of money, bullion or other valuable thing for its use, or for the use of any of its stockholders or creditors, and all payments of money to either, made after the commission of an act of insolvency or in contemplation thereof made with a view to the preference of one creditor to another, shall be utterly null and void.

The department may, in its discretion, extend the time for filing claims for an additional period not exceeding one year, and may, for good cause shown, permit a claim to be filed after the time for filing same has elapsed. Any secured claim filed within the said one year or such time as the time for the filing of claims has been extended, may be amended at any time prior to the final distribution of the assets in the hands of the liquidator. The liquidator, with the approval of the department and the circuit court, may value any security held by a claimant and allow as a common claim any balance of the claim remaining beyond such value of the security, and it shall not be necessary for such claimant to liquidate such security prior to such valuation, nor shall such valuation in anywise affect or impair the right of such claimant to liquidate such security. Any dividend check not called for within two years after the same is issued shall be cancelled, and the money represented thereby shall be put back into the general account for distribution to depositors and creditors who may have claimed their dividends; provided, however, that before the cancellation of any such dividend warrant the department shall give notice of its intention so to do in a newspaper published in the county in which the insolvent bank is located and if no newspaper is located within said county, then the notice shall be run in a newspaper of general circulation in an adjoining county, and for good cause shown the department may issue to a claimant a dividend check representing any prior dividend checks cancelled. Whenever the depositors and other creditors of any such bank or trust company have been paid dividends representing one hundred per cent of all claims which have been duly proved against any such bank or trust company, the undistributed funds then on hand for the account of such bank or trust company not represented by dividend warrants shall be paid to such bank or trust company at the expiration of a period of two years from the time of the closing out of any such receivership.

The compensation of the liquidator shall be fixed by the department, and shall be based upon the amount of work actually necessary and performed, and shall in no case exceed five per cent of the cash collections. From time to time, after full provisions having first been made for the expenses of the liquidating agency, and the payment of liens for taxes and preferred claims, the department shall make ratable dividend of the money in the hands of the state treasurer on all such claims as may have been proved to its satisfaction or adjudicated in a court of competent jurisdiction, and as the proceeds of the assets of such bank, or trust company, are paid over to the liquidator, shall make further dividends on all claims previously proved or adjudicated; and the remainder of the proceeds, if any, after all claims have been paid, shall be paid over to the shareholders of such bank, or trust company, or their legal representatives, in proportion to the stock by them respectively held, or their interest therein as appearing.

either in whole or in part, of the payment of any money to depositors or other creditors of insolvent banks and trust companies until the money so borrowed shall have been repaid in full, provided that any such pledge or mortgage shall be confirmed by the circuit court. The holder of any such pledge or mortgage shall have the right to enforce such pledge or mortgage as any other pledgee or mortgagee, and may exercise any rights given by such agreement or pledge or mortgage, providing further that a conservator may renew and extend notes or other obligations held by the bank in his custody from time to time, and may offer as substitution to the pledgee such renewed obligations. The conservator, under the directions of the department, shall take possession of the books, records and assets of every description of such bank and take such action as may be necessary to conserve the assets of such bank pending further disposition of its business, as provided by law. Such conservator shall have all the rights, powers and privileges now possessed by or hereafter given receivers or liquidators of insolvent state banks, and shall be subject to the obligations and penalties not inconsistent with the provisions of this article, to which the receivers or liquidators are now and may hereafter become subject. During the time that such conservator remains in possession of such bank, the rights of all parties with respect thereto shall, subject to the other provisions of this article, be the same as if a receiver or liquidator had been appointed therefor. All expenses of any such conservator shall be paid out of the assets of such bank and shall be a lien thereon which shall be prior to any other liens provided by this law, or otherwise. The conservator shall receive as salary an amount to be fixed by the department, but in no case greater than that paid to liquidators performing a similar service.

Such deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator shall be kept on hand, in cash, invested in the direct obligations of the United States or deposited with the correspondent bank to be selected by the conservator and subject to his withdrawal.

When such reorganization becomes effective by confirmation of the court, as provided herein, the affairs of the bank or trust company shall be conducted by its board of directors in the manner provided by the plan under the conditions, restrictions and limitations which may have been prescribed by the department.

(1) "Association" shall mean a savings association or savings and loan association subject to the provisions of this chapter.

* (2) ["Department" shall mean the department of banking and finance.]

(3) "Community" shall mean a centralized area or locality in which a body of inhabitants is gathered in one group having common residential, social or business interests. The term does not necessarily mean a municipal corporation or other political subdivision; a community need not be limited by lines and boundaries. A

(a) The character, responsibility, and general fitness of the persons named in the petition are such as to command confidence and warrant belief that the business of the proposed association will be honestly and efficiently conducted in accordance with the intent and purpose of this chapter and that the proposed association will have qualified full-time management;

expense of organizing the association and its operating expenses may be paid from said fund until such time as its net income is sufficient to pay such earnings as may be declared and paid or credited to its savings account holders from sources available for payment of earnings. The incorporators and others, before a certificate of incorporation is issued, shall deposit to the credit of the chairman of the incorporators in cash the amount of the expense fund. The amounts contributed to the expense fund by the incorporators and others shall not constitute a liability of the association except as hereinafter provided.

(1) CORPORATE NAME.—The name of every association shall include either the words "savings association," or "savings and loan association." These words shall be preceded by an appropriate descriptive word or words approved by the department. An ordinal number may not be used as a single descriptive word preceding the words "savings association," or "savings and loan association," unless such words are followed by the words "of", the blank being filled by the name of the community, town, city, or county in which the association has its home office. An ordinal number may be used together with another descriptive word preceding the words, "savings association" or "savings and loan association," provided the other descriptive word has not been used in the corporate name of any other association in the state, in which case the suffix mentioned above is not required to be used. An ordinal number may be used, together with another descriptive word preceding the words "savings association" or "savings and loan association," even when such other descriptive word has been used in the corporate name of an association in the state, provided the suffix "of _____," as provided above, is also used. The suffix provided above may be used in any corporate name. The use of the words, "national," "federal," "United States," "insured," "guaranteed," or any form thereof, separately or in any combination thereof with other words or syllables, is prohibited as part of the corporate name of an association. No certificate of incorporation of a proposed association having the same name as a corporation authorized to do business under the laws of this state or a name so nearly resembling it as to be likely to deceive shall be issued by the department, except to an association formed by the reincorporation, reorganization, or consolidation of the association with other associations, or upon the sale of the property or franchise of an association.

(2) EXCLUSIVENESS OF NAME.—No person, firm, company, association, fiduciary, partnership, or corporation, either domestic or foreign, unless he or it is lawfully authorized to do business in this state under the provisions of this chapter and actually is engaged in carrying on a savings association business shall do business under any name or title which contains the terms "savings association," "savings and loan association," "building and loan association," "building association," or any combination employing either or both of the words "building" or "loan" with one or more of the words "saving," "savings," "thrift," or words of similar import, or any combination employing one or more of the words "saving," "savings," "thrift," or words of similar import with one or more of the words "association," "institution," "society," "company," "fund," "corporation," or words of similar import, or use any name or sign or circulate or use any letterhead, billhead, circular or paper whatever, or advertise or represent in any manner which indicates or reasonably implies that his or its business is the character or kind of business carried on or transacted by an association or which is likely to lead any person to believe that his or its business is that of an association. Upon application by the department or any association, a court of competent jurisdiction may issue an injunction to restrain any such entity from violating or continuing to violate any of the foregoing provisions of this subsection. Any person who violates any provision of this subsection shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000, and each day of violation shall constitute a separate offense. The prohibitions of this subsection shall not apply to any corporation or association formed for the purpose of promoting the interests of thrift institutions, the membership of which is comprised of thrift institutions, their officers or other representatives.

(3) CORPORATE OFFICE.—Without the prior approval of the department, as provided in this chapter, no association shall establish any office other than its home office, which shall be in the location named in the certificate of incorporation. No office of an association shall be moved from its immediate vicinity unless approved by the department.

(4) CHANGE OF NAME OR OFFICE.—The name or the location of the home office of any association fixed in the certificate of incorporation may be changed in the following manner: The proposed new name or the new location of the home office of the association shall be approved by a resolution adopted by the board of directors. Immediately preceding application to the department for approval, notice of intention to change the name or the location of the home office, signed by two officers, shall be published once a week for two successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the home office is located, and a copy of such notice shall be displayed during such consecutive two weeks' period in a conspicuous public place in the home office of the association. Five copies of an application to the department for approval shall be signed by two officers of the association, acknowledged before an officer competent to take acknowledgments of deeds and filed with the department. Upon approval of an application for change of name, the department shall endorse on each copy of the application therefor a certificate of approval thereof, and the change of name of such association shall be effective immediately. Whenever the department shall receive from any association an application for change of location of its home office, it shall make a determination based upon the criteria set out in §665.031(3) in the case of establishment of a newly chartered association, and, acting in its sole discretion, may hold a hearing as provided for in that section. Upon its approval of such application, the department shall endorse on each copy of such application a certificate of approval. When the department shall have endorsed such approval upon the copies of an application for approval of change of name or change of location of home office, it shall file one copy thereof with the department of state, two copies with the Federal Home Loan Bank of which the association is a member, return one copy to the applicant association and retain the original copy in the permanent files of the department.

(5) FORFEITURE OF CHARTER FOR NONUSE.—Any association which shall not commence business within six months after the date upon which its corporate existence shall have begun, shall forfeit its corporate existence, unless the department, before the expiration of such six months' period, shall have approved the extension of time within which it may commence business, upon a written application stating the reasons for such delay. Upon such forfeiture the certificate of incorporation shall expire, and all action taken in connection with the incorporation thereof except the payment of the incorporation fee shall become void. Amounts credited on savings accounts, less expenditures authorized by law, shall be returned pro rata to the respective holders thereof.

History.—§5, ch. 69-39; §§10, 12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.061 Conversion.—

(1) CONVERSION INTO FEDERAL SAVINGS ASSOCIATION.—At an annual meeting or at any special meeting of the members called to consider such action, any association or corporation of this state doing a home-financing business may convert itself into a federal savings association or federal savings and loan association, hereinafter called "federal association," in accordance with the laws of the United States, as now or hereafter amended, upon a vote of fifty-one percent or more of the total number of votes of the members eligible to be cast. A copy of the minutes of the proceedings of such meeting of the members, verified by the affidavit of the secretary or an assistant secretary, shall be filed with the department within ten days after the date of such meeting. A sworn copy of the proceedings of such meeting, when so filed, shall be presumptive evidence of the holding and action of such meeting. Within three months after the date of such meeting, the association shall take such action in the manner prescribed and authorized by the laws of the United States as shall make it a federal association. There shall be filed with the department a copy of the charter issued to such federal association by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board or a certificate showing the organization of such association as a federal association, certified by the secretary or assistant secretary of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. A similar copy of the charter, or of such certificate, shall be filed by the association with the department of state. No failure to file any such instruments with either the department of banking and finance or the department of state shall affect the validity of such conversion. Upon the grant to any association of a charter by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the association receiving such charter shall cease to be an association incorporated under this chapter and shall no longer be subject to the supervision and control of the department. Upon the conversion of any association into a federal association, the corporate existence of such association shall not terminate, but such federal association shall be deemed to be a continuation of the entity of the association so converted and all property of the converted association, including its rights, titles, and interest in all and to all property of whatever kind, whether real, personal, or mixed, and things in action, and every right, privilege, interest, and asset of any conceivable value or benefit then existing, or pertaining to it, or which would inure to it, shall immediately by operation of law and without any conveyance or transfer and without any further act or deed remain and be vested in and continue and be the property of such federal association into which the state association has converted itself, and such federal association shall have, hold, and enjoy the same in its own right as fully and to the same extent as the same was possessed, held, and enjoyed by the converting association. Such federal association as of the time of the taking effect of such conversion shall continue to have and succeed to all the rights, obligations, and relations of the converting association. All pending actions and other judicial proceedings to which the converting state association is a party shall not be deemed to have abated or to have discontinued by reason of such conversion, but may be prosecuted to final judgment, order, or decree in the same manner as if such conversion into such federal association had not been made and such federal association resulting from such conversion may continue such action in its corporate name as a federal association, and any judgment, order or decree may be rendered for or against it which might have been rendered for or against the converting state association theretofore involved in such judicial proceedings. Any association or corporation, which has heretofore converted itself into a federal association under the provisions of the laws of the United States and has received a charter from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, shall hereafter be recognized as a federal association, and its federal charter shall be given full recognition by the courts of this state to the same extent as if such conversion had taken place under the provisions of this section; provided, however, that there shall have been compliance with the foregoing requirements with respect to the filing with the department of a copy of the federal charter or a certificate showing the organization of such association as a federal association. All such conversions are hereby ratified and confirmed, and all the obligations of such an association which has so converted shall continue as valid and subsisting obligations of such federal association, and the title to all of the property of such an association shall be deemed to have continued and vested, as of the date of issuance of such federal charter, in such federal association as fully and completely as if such conversion had taken place since the enactment of this chapter pursuant to this section.

(2) CONVERSION INTO STATE CHARTERED ASSOCIATION.—At an annual meeting or at any special meeting of the members called to consider such action, any federal association may convert itself into an association under this chapter upon a vote of fifty-one percent or more of the total number of votes of the members of such federal association eligible to be cast. Copies of the minutes of the proceedings of such meeting of members, verified by the affidavit of the secretary or an assistant secretary, shall be filed in the office of the department and mailed to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Washington, D. C., within ten days after such meeting. Such verified copies of the proceedings of the meeting when so filed shall be presumptive evidence of the holding and action of such meeting. At the meeting at which conversion is voted upon, the members shall also vote upon the directors who shall be the directors of the state-chartered association after conversion takes effect. Such directors shall then execute two copies of the petition for certificate of incorporation and two copies of the bylaws. The department shall insert in the certificate of incorporation, at the end of the paragraph preceding the testimonium clause, the following:

"This association is incorporated by conversion from a federal association."

All of the directors who are chosen for the association shall sign and acknowledge the petition for certificate of incorporation as subscribers thereto and the proposed bylaws as incorporators of the association. The provisions of this chapter shall, so far as applicable, apply to such conversion under this chapter. The department may provide, by regulation, for the procedure to be followed by any such federal association converting into an association. All the provisions regarding property and other rights contained in the preceding subsection shall apply, in reverse order, to the conversion of a federal association into an association incorporated under this chapter, so that the state-chartered association shall be a continuation of the corporate entity of the converting federal association and continue to have all of its property and rights.

(3) LIMITATION.—No conversion of an association or a federal association, direct or indirect, shall be permitted except as specifically authorized by this chapter.

History.—§6, ch. 69-39; §§10, 12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.073 Power to reorganize, merge or consolidate.—Pursuant to a plan adopted by the board of directors and approved by the department as equitable to the members of the association and as not impairing the usefulness and success of other properly conducted associations in the community, an association shall have power to reorganize or merge or consolidate with another association or federal association within its primary lending area, provided that the plan of such reorganization, merger or consolidation shall be approved at an annual meeting or at any special meeting of the members called to consider such action by a vote of fifty-one percent or more of the total number of votes of the members eligible to be cast. In all cases the corporate continuity of the resulting corporation shall possess the same incidents as that of an association which has converted in accordance with this chapter. No association, directly or indirectly, shall convert or reorganize, or merge, consolidate, assume liability to pay savings accounts or other liabilities of, transfer assets in consideration of the assumption of liabilities for any portion of the savings accounts, deposits made in, or other liabilities of such association to, or acquire the assets of or assume liability to pay any liabilities of, any financial institution or any other organization, person, or entity, except as specifically authorized by this chapter.

History.—§7, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.081 Dissolution.—

(1) DISSOLUTION.—Subject to the limitations of §665.073, any association may, at any special meeting of the members called to consider such action, terminate its existence in accordance with the provisions of this section upon a vote of fifty-one percent or more of the total number of votes of members eligible to be cast.

(2) CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION.—Upon such vote, five copies of a certificate of dissolution, which shall state the vote cast in favor of dissolution, shall be signed by two officers and acknowledged before an officer competent to take acknowledgments of deeds. Five copies of such certificate shall be filed with the department, which shall examine such association, and, if it finds that the association is not in an impaired condition, shall so note, together with its approval of such dissolution, upon all the copies of the certificate of dissolution. The department shall place a copy in its permanent files, file a copy with the department of state, and return the remaining copies to the parties filing the same.

(3) CONTINUATION AS CORPORATE ENTITY FOR SOLE PURPOSE OF WINDING UP AFFAIRS.—Upon such approval the association shall be dissolved and shall cease to carry on business but nevertheless shall continue as a corporate entity for the sole purpose of paying, satisfying, and discharging existing liabilities and obligations, collecting and distributing assets, and doing all other acts required to adjust, wind up, and dissolve its business and affairs.

(4) DIRECTORS AS LIQUIDATING TRUSTEES.—The board of directors shall act as trustees for liquidation. It shall proceed as quickly as may be practicable to wind up the affairs of the association and, to the extent necessary or expedient to that end, shall exercise all the powers of such dissolved association and, without prejudice to the generality of such authority, may fill vacancies, elect officers, carry out the contracts, make new contracts, borrow money, mortgage or pledge the property, sell its assets at public or private sale, or compromise claims in favor of or against the association, apply assets to the discharge of liabilities, distribute assets either in cash or in kind among savings account members according to their respective pro rata interests after paying or adequately providing for the payment of other liabilities, and perform all acts necessary or expedient to the winding up of the association. All deeds or other instruments shall be in the name of the association and executed by the president or a vice president and the secretary or an assistant secretary. The board of directors shall also have power to exchange or otherwise dispose of or put in trust all, or substantially all, or any part of the assets, upon such terms and conditions and for such considerations, which may be money, stock, bonds, shares, or accounts of any insured association, or of any federal association, or other instruments for the payment of money, or other property, or other considerations, as the board of directors may deem reasonable or expedient, and may distribute such considerations or the proceeds thereof, or trust receipts, or certificates of beneficial interest among the savings account members in proportion to their pro rata interests therein. In the absence of fraud, any determination of value made by the board of directors for any such purposes shall be conclusive.

(5) SUPERVISION BY DEPARTMENT DURING LIQUIDATION.—The association, during the liquidation of the assets of the association by the board of directors, shall continue to be subject to the supervision of the department, and the board of directors shall report the progress of such liquidation to the department from time to time as it may require. Upon completion of liquidation, the board of directors shall file with the department a final report and accounting of such liquidation. The approval of such report by the department shall operate as a complete and final discharge of the board of directors and each member thereof in connection with the liquidation of such association. No such dissolution or any action of the board of directors in connection therewith shall impair any contract right between such association and any borrower or other person or persons or the vested rights of any member of such association.

History.—§8, ch. 69-39; §§10, 12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.091 Meetings of members.—

(1) MEETINGS OF MEMBERS.—Annual meetings of the members of each association shall be held in the first month of the fiscal year, as fixed in the bylaws of such association. Special meetings may be called as provided in the bylaws.

(2) MEMBERS ENTITLED TO VOTE.—The members who shall be entitled to vote at any meeting of the members shall be those who are members of record at the end of the calendar month next preceding the date of the meeting, except those who have ceased to be members. The number of votes which members shall be entitled to cast shall be in accordance with the books on the said date determinative of entitlement to vote.

(3) VOTING RIGHTS.—In the determination of all questions requiring action by the members, each member shall be entitled to cast one vote for each one hundred dollars of the withdrawal value of savings accounts, if any, held by such member. No member however, shall cast more than fifty votes.

(4) VOTING BY PROXY.—At any meeting of the members, voting may be in person or by proxy, provided that no proxy shall be eligible to be voted at any meeting unless such proxy shall have been filed with the secretary of the association, for verification, at least five days prior to the date of such meeting. Every proxy shall be in writing and signed by the member or his duly authorized attorney-in-fact and, when filed with the secretary, shall unless otherwise specified in the proxy, continue in force from year to year until revoked by a writing duly delivered to the secretary or until superseded by subsequent proxies.

(5) QUORUM.—At an annual meeting or at any special meeting of the members, any number of members present in person or by proxy eligible to be voted constitutes a quorum. A majority of all votes cast at any meeting of members shall determine any question unless this chapter specifically provides otherwise.

History.—§9, ch. 69-39.

665.101 Membership charges prohibited.—The association shall not directly or indirectly charge any membership, admission, withdrawal, or any other fee or sum of money for the privilege of becoming, remaining, or ceasing to be a member of the association, except reasonable charges upon the making or modification of a loan. Except as authorized by this chapter, the association shall not charge any member any sum of money by way of fine or penalty for any cause, except that a reasonable charge may be made against borrowers for defaults or prepayments.

History.—§10, ch. 69-39.

665.111 Access to books and records; communication with members.—

(1) EXCLUSIVENESS OF ACCESS.—Every member shall have the right to inspect the books and records of an association which pertain to his loan or savings account. Otherwise, the right of inspection and examination of the books and records shall be limited:

(a) To the department or its duly authorized representatives;

(b) To persons duly authorized to act for the association; and

(c) To any federal or state instrumentality or agency authorized to inspect or examine the books and records of an insured association.

The books and records pertaining to the accounts and loans of members shall be kept confidential by the association, its directors, officers and employees, and by the department, its examiners and representatives, except where the disclosure thereof shall be compelled by a court of competent jurisdiction. No member or any other person shall have access to the books and records or be furnished or possessed of a partial or complete list of the members except upon express action and authority of the board of directors.

(2) COMMUNICATION WITH MEMBERS.—In the event, however, that any member or members desire to communicate with the other members of the association with reference to any question pending or to be presented for consideration at a meeting of the members, the association shall furnish upon request a statement of the approximate number of members of the association at the time of such request, and an estimate of the cost of forwarding such communication. The requesting member or members shall then submit the communication, together with a sworn statement that the proposed communication is not for any reason other than the business welfare of the association, to the department, which, if it finds it to be appropriate, truthful and in the best interest of the association and its members, shall execute a certificate setting out such findings, forward the certificate together with the communication to the association, and direct that the communication be prepared and mailed by the association to the members upon the requesting member's or members' payment to it of the expenses of such preparation and mailing. If the department finds such proposed communication to be inappropriate, untruthful, or contrary to the best interests of the association and its members, it shall have the discretion to make any disposition of the request to communicate which it deems proper and it shall execute a certificate setting out such findings and deliver it to the requesting member together with its order making disposition of the request.

(3) APPLICABILITY OF SECTION TO FEDERAL ASSOCIATIONS.—Insofar as the provisions of this section are not inconsistent with federal law, such provisions shall apply to federal associations whose home offices are located in this state, and to the members thereof, except that the communication and statement provided for in subsection (2) shall be tendered to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Washington, D.C., in the case of a federal association and forwarded only upon the board's certificate and direction.

History.—§11, ch. 69-39; §12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.121 Financial statement.—Every association shall prepare and publish annually in the first month of the fiscal year in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the home office of such association is located a statement of its financial condition in the form prescribed or approved by the department. The association shall deliver a copy of such statement to each of its members upon application.

History.—§12, ch. 69-39; §12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.131 Board of directors.—

(1) ASSOCIATION UNDER DIRECTION OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS.—The business of the association shall be directed by a board of directors of not less than five nor more than fifteen as determined by, and elected by ballot from among, the members by a plurality of the votes of the members present, or represented by proxy. If authorized by vote of the members the directors may elect all directors. At all times at least two thirds of the directors shall be bona fide residents of this state.

(2) QUALIFICATIONS REQUIRED OF DIRECTORS.—In order to qualify as a director, a member of an association must hold individually, or jointly with his spouse, a savings account, the withdrawal value of which is at least five hundred dollars; however, if the assets of the association exceed five million dollars, the withdrawal value of such account must be at least one thousand dollars. Except with the written consent of the department, no member shall be eligible for election or shall serve as a director or officer of an association who has been adjudicated a bankrupt or convicted of a criminal offense involving dishonesty or a breach of trust. A director shall automatically cease to be a director when he ceases to be a member, or when he is adjudicated a bankrupt or is convicted of a criminal offense, or when the net equity above loans of all savings accounts in the association held by him aggregates less than the minimum required to be eligible for election as a director. No action of the board of directors shall be invalidated through the participation of such director in such action. If a director becomes ineligible under the terms of this subsection by reason of the exercise by the association of the right of redemption of savings accounts provided for in §665.351 he shall remain validly in office until the expiration of his term or until he otherwise becomes ineligible, resigns, or is removed, whichever may occur first.

(3) CLASSIFICATION OF DIRECTORS.—At the first annual meeting, the members shall by majority vote divide the directors into three classes of as nearly equal numbers as possible. The term of office of directors of the first class shall expire at the annual meeting next after the first election; of the second class, one year thereafter; and of the third class, two years thereafter; and at each annual election thereafter directors shall be chosen for a full term of three years to succeed those whose terms expire.

(4) NUMBER OF DIRECTORS.—The authorized number of directors determined by the members within the limits hereinabove specified may subsequently be increased or decreased only by vote of the members.

(5) VACANCY ON BOARD OF DIRECTORS CAUSED BY INCREASE IN NUMBER.—If the members fail to elect a director to fill each vacancy created by any such increase, the directors may fill such vacancy by electing a director to serve until the next annual meeting of the members, at which time a director shall be elected to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term for the class of director in which such vacancy exists.

(6) CLASSIFICATION OF NEW DIRECTORS ELECTED TO FILL VACANCIES.—Whenever the number of directors is changed and vacancies caused by such change are filled, the directors so elected shall be classified so that each of the three classes shall always contain numbers as nearly equal as possible.

(7) VACANCY ON BOARD OF DIRECTORS FILLED BY DIRECTORS.—Any vacancy

among directors, not so filled by the members, may be filled by a majority vote of the remaining directors, though less than a quorum, by electing a director to serve until the next annual meeting of the members, at which time a director shall be elected to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term for the class of director in which such vacancy exists. In event of a vacancy on the board of directors from any cause, the remaining directors shall have full power and authority to continue direction of the association until such vacancy is filled.

History.—§13, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.141 Indemnity bonds.—All directors, officers, and employees of an association shall, before entering upon the performance of any of their duties, execute their individual bonds with adequate corporate surety payable to the association as an indemnity for any loss the association may sustain of money or other property by or through any fraud, dishonesty, forgery or alteration, larceny, theft, embezzlement, robbery, burglary, hold-up, wrongful or unlawful abstraction, misapplication, misplacement, destruction or misappropriation, or any other dishonest or criminal act or omission by any such director, officer, employee, or agent. Associations which employ collection agents, who for any reason are not covered by a bond as hereinabove required, shall provide for the bonding of each such agent in an amount equal to at least twice the average monthly collection of such agent. Such agents shall be required to make settlement with the association at least monthly. No bond coverage will be required of any agent which is a financial institution insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The amounts and form of such bonds and sufficiency of the surety thereon shall be approved by the board of directors and by the department. In lieu of individual bonds, a blanket bond in an amount and form approved by the department protecting the association from loss through any such act or acts on the part of any such director, officer, or employee, may be obtained. A true copy of every such indemnity bond shall be filed at all times with the department. Such bonds shall provide that a cancellation thereof either by the surety or by the insured shall not become effective unless and until ten days' notice in writing first shall have been given to the department, unless it shall have approved such cancellation earlier.

History.—§14, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.151 Transactions of officers and directors.—

(1) CONFLICT OF INTEREST.—Directors and officers occupy a fiduciary relationship to the association of which they are directors or officers, and no director or officer shall engage or participate, directly or indirectly, in any business or transaction conducted on behalf of or involving the association, which would result in a conflict of his own personal interests with those of the association which he serves, unless:

(a) Such business or transactions are conducted in good faith and are honest, fair and reasonable to the association;

(b) A full disclosure of such business or transaction and the nature of the director's or officer's interest is made to the board of directors;

(c) Such business or transactions are approved in good faith by the board of directors, any interested director abstaining, and such approval is recorded in the minutes;

(d) Any profits inuring to the officer or director are not at the expense of the association and do not prejudice the best interests of the association in any way; and such business or transactions do not represent a breach of the officer's or director's fiduciary duty and are not fraudulent, illegal or ultra vires.

(2) DISCLOSURE OF PERSONAL INTEREST.—Without limitation by any of the specific provisions of this section, the department may require the disclosure by directors, officers, and employees of their personal interest, directly or indirectly, in any business or transactions on behalf of or involving the association and of their control of or active participation in enterprises having activities related to the business of the association.

(3) SPECIFIED RESTRICTIONS.—The following restrictions governing the conduct of directors and officers expressly are specified, but such specification is not to be construed in any manner as excusing such persons from the observance of any other aspect of the general fiduciary duty owed by them to the association which they serve:

(a) Dual status.—No officer or director of an association shall hold office or status as a director or officer of another thrift institution the principal office of which is located in the association's primary lending area.

(b) Remuneration.—No director shall receive remuneration as director except reasonable fees for service as a director or for service as a member of a committee of directors, except that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prohibit or in any way to limit any right of a director who is also an officer or employee of or attorney for the association to receive compensation for service as an officer, employee or attorney.

(c) Loans.—No director or officer shall have any interest, directly or indirectly, in the proceeds of a loan or investment or of a purchase or sale made by the association, unless such loan, investment, purchase or sale is authorized expressly by resolution of the board of directors, and unless such resolution is approved by vote of at least two thirds of the directors authorized of the association, any interested director taking no part in such vote.

(d) Savings.—No director or officer shall have any interest, direct or indirect, in the purchase at less than its face value of any evidence of a savings account, deposit or other indebtedness issued by the association.

(e) Coercion.—No director, association, or officer thereof shall require, as a condition to the granting of any loan or the extension of any other service by the association, that the borrower or any other person undertake a contract of insurance or any other agreement, or understanding with respect to the furnishing of any other goods or services, with any specific company, agency or individual.

(f) Voting rights; office.—No officer or director acting as proxy for a member of an association shall exercise, transfer, or delegate such vote or votes in any consideration of a private benefit or advantage, direct or indirect. The voting rights of members and directors shall not be the subject of sale, barter, exchange or similar transaction, either directly or indirectly. Any officer or director who violates the provisions of this section shall be held accountable to the association for any increment.

(g) Inducements.—No director or officer shall solicit, accept or agree to accept, directly or indirectly, from any person other than the association any gratuity, compensation or other personal benefit for any action taken by the association or for endeavoring to procure any such action.

(4) PENALTY.—Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be punishable as a misdemeanor.

History.—§15, ch. 69-39; §12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.162 Depositaries.—No association shall deposit any of its funds except with a depositary approved by a vote of a majority of the directors authorized of the association. No director who is an officer, partner, director, or trustee of the depositary so designated shall take part in such vote.

History.—§16, ch. 69-39.

665.171 Indemnification of officers, directors and employees.—Any person shall be indemnified or reimbursed by the association for reasonable expenses, including but not limited to attorney fees, actually incurred by him in connection with any action, suit or proceeding, instituted or threatened, judicial or administrative, civil or criminal, to which he is made a party by reason of his being or having been a director, officer or employee of an association; provided, however, that no person shall be so indemnified or reimbursed, nor shall he retain any advancement or allowance for indemnification which may have been made by the association in advance of final disposition, in relation to such action, suit or proceeding in which and to the extent that he finally shall be adjudicated to have been guilty of a breach of good faith, to have been negligent in the performance of his duties or to have committed an action or failed to perform a duty for which there is a common law or a statutory liability; and provided further, that a person may, with the approval of the department, be so indemnified or reimbursed for amounts paid in compromise or settlement of any action, suit or proceeding, including reasonable expenses incurred in connection therewith, or reasonable expenses including fines and penalties incurred in connection with a criminal or civil action, suit or proceeding in which such person has been adjudicated guilty, negligent or liable if it shall be determined by the board of directors and by the department that such person was acting in good faith and in what he believed to be the best interests of the association and without knowledge that the action was illegal, and if such indemnification or reimbursement is approved at an annual or special meeting of the members by a majority of the votes eligible to be cast. Amounts paid to the association, whether pursuant to judgment or settlement by any person within the meaning of this section shall not be indemnified or reimbursed in any case.

History.—§17, ch. 69-39; §12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.181 Approval of operating contracts.—No association shall make any operating or management contract with any person or persons extending for more than one year, except with the approval of the department.

Complete records of all business transacted at the home office shall be maintained at the home office. Control records of all business transacted at each branch office or agency shall be maintained at the home office.

(2) RECORDS AT BRANCH OFFICE.—Each branch office shall keep detailed records of all transactions at such branch office and shall furnish full control records to the home office.

(3) FORMS AND ACCOUNTING; APPROVAL.—Every association shall use such forms and observe such accounting principles and practices as the department may require from time to time.

(4) SEMIANNUAL CLOSING OF BOOKS.—Every association shall close its books at the close of business on June 30 and December 31 of each year, or more often if authorized for all associations by the department.

(5) INACCURATE DESIGNATION OF ASSETS.—No association by any system of accounting or any device of bookkeeping shall, either directly or indirectly, enter any of its assets upon its books in the name of any other person, partnership, association or corporation or under any title or designation that is not truly descriptive of such assets.

(6) OVERVALUED ASSETS; SPECIAL RESERVES.—The department, after a determination of value made in accordance with §665.451(6), may order that assets, individually or in the aggregate, to the extent that such assets are overvalued on an association's books, be charged off, or that a special reserve or reserves equal to such overvaluation be set up by transfers from undivided profits or reserves.

(7) BONDS AND OTHER OBLIGATIONS.—The bonds or other interest-bearing obligations purchased by an association shall not be carried on its books at more than the cost thereof.

(8) REAL ESTATE INVESTMENTS.—An association shall not carry any real estate on its books at a sum in excess of the total amount invested by such association on account of such real estate, including advances, costs, and improvements but excluding accrued but uncollected interest.

(9) APPRAISAL OF REAL ESTATE.—Every association shall have appraised each parcel of real estate at the time of acquisition thereof. The report of each such appraisal shall be submitted in writing to the board of directors and shall be kept in the records of the association. In addition to its powers under §665.451(6), the department may require the appraisal of real estate securing loans which are delinquent more than four months.

(10) MAINTENANCE OF LOAN AND INVESTMENT RECORDS.—Every association shall maintain complete loan and investment records, and shall do so in a manner satisfactory to the department. Detailed records necessary to make determinations of compliance by an association with the requirements of §§665.351-665.391 and other provisions of this chapter shall be maintained consistently and at all times, the record of each real estate loan or other secured loan or investment containing documentation to the satisfaction of the department of the type, adequacy and complexion of the security.

(11) MAINTENANCE OF MEMBERSHIP RECORDS.—Every association shall maintain membership records, which shall show the name and address of the member, the status of the member as a savings account holder, or an obligor, or a savings account holder and obligor, and the date of membership thereof. In the case of members holding a savings account the association shall obtain a savings account contract containing the signatures of each holder of such account or his duly authorized representative, and shall preserve such contract in the records of the association.

(12) REPRODUCTION AND DESTRUCTION OF RECORDS.—Any association may cause any or all records kept by such association to be copied or reproduced by a photostatic, photographic or microfilming process which correctly and permanently copies, reproduces or forms a medium for copying or reproducing the original record on a film or other durable material, and such association may thereafter dispose of the original record. Any such copy or reproduction shall be deemed to be an original record for all purposes and shall be treated as an original record in all courts or administrative agencies for the purpose of its admissibility in evidence. A facsimile, exemplification or certified copy of any such copy or reproduc-

—Every association shall set up and maintain the reserves required by, and may set up and maintain such additional reserves as are permitted by, this chapter. On or before the closing date of each accounting period, after payment of or provision for all expenses, each association shall transfer to a separate general reserve account, which shall be set up and maintained for the sole purpose of absorbing losses, an amount equal to at least ten percent of its net income or, in the case of an association which at the close of such period has assets in excess of twenty million dollars or which has done business as a savings association in this state for more than twenty years, the greater of ten percent of its net income or an amount equal to the difference between four percent of its assets (excluding liquid assets) at the end of the period and the amount of its general reserve at the beginning of the period, until the general reserve is equal to at least ten percent of the savings liability. Upon advance written application of an association, the department acting in its sole discretion may approve the transfer to the general reserve of a lesser amount for such period. In the event that any credit to the general reserve is made following June 2, 1969, in excess of the minimum requirement, the dollar amount of any such excess may be carried over as a credit toward the minimum requirement of any subsequent period. If and whenever the general reserve is not equal to at least ten percent of its savings liability, credits as above provided shall again be made to the general reserve until it shall again be equal to at least ten percent of its savings liability. The board of directors may make additional transfers to other reserve accounts. Interest receivable on all loans shall be accrued monthly and an evaluation account shall be maintained equivalent to all accrued and uncollected interest. On or before each closing date after payment of or provision for all expenses and appropriate transfers to reserves the remainder of net income for the period shall be credited to the undivided profits account.

—Every association incorporated pursuant to or operating under the provisions of this chapter shall have all the powers enumerated, authorized, and permitted by this chapter and such other rights, privileges, and powers as may be incidental to or reasonably necessary or appropriate for the accomplishment of the objects and purposes of the association. Among others, and except as otherwise limited by the provisions of this chapter, every association shall have the following powers:

(1) EXISTENCE; SEAL; BYLAWS.—To have perpetual existence; to adopt and use a corporate seal, which may be affixed by imprint, facsimile, or otherwise; and to adopt and amend bylaws as provided in this chapter;

(2) PLAINTIFF; DEFENDANT.—To sue and be sued, complain and defend in any court of law or equity;

(3) PROPERTY TRANSFERS.—To acquire, hold, sell, dispose of and convey real and personal estate consistent with its objects and powers; to mortgage, pledge, or lease any real or personal estate; and to take property by gifts, devise, or bequest;

(4) BORROWING.—If and when an association is not a member of a Federal Home Loan Bank, to borrow from sources, individual or corporate, not more than an aggregate amount equal to one fourth of its savings liability on the date of borrowing and such additional sums as the department may approve. If and when an association is a member of a Federal Home Loan Bank, to secure advances of not more than an aggregate amount equal to one half of its savings liability; within such amount equal to one half of its savings liability, the association may borrow from sources individual or corporate, other than such Federal Home Loan Bank an aggregate amount not in excess of twenty percent of its savings liability. Sources of borrowing other than financial institutions or Federal Home Loan Banks shall require advance written approval of the department, acting in its sole discretion. A subsequent reduction of savings liability shall not affect in any way outstanding obligations for borrowed money. All such loans and advances may be secured by property of the association, and may be evidenced by such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations or securities (except capital stock) as the department may authorize for all associations; provided that authorization by the department shall not be required in the case of securities guaranteed pursuant to §306 (g) of the National Housing Act of 1934, as amended.

Notwithstanding the limitations of this subsection, loans may be assigned for collateral purposes with recourse to any Federal Home Loan Bank of which the association is a member.

(a) The contract of insurance contemplated is written upon substantially the same basis as to form, amount, coverage, maturity, voluntary and involuntary termination and other provisions as the insurance contract provided at that time by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and complies with such further requirements for protection as the department in its discretion may deem reasonably necessary; and

(b) The contract is underwritten by an insurer having a net worth reasonably commensurate with the risks underwritten, but in no event less than twenty-five million dollars, which is licensed in this state and authorized to do business in this state, and which is admitted and authorized by law to write such insurance in all of the states of the union, and shall have issued its certificate of approval of such application. The aforesaid requirements shall apply to all revisions or modifications of such contracts of insurance. Associations and foreign associations insured as provided in this subsection may make representations as to such insurance of savings accounts, provided that any such representations shall set forth the name of the insurer. Excepting banks, no association or foreign association or any other person shall advertise or represent or accept or offer to accept any savings accounts in this state as insured or guaranteed accounts or as the savings accounts of an insured or guaranteed institution unless the same are insured as provided in this subsection, any violation of this provision shall be a separate offense for each day of such violation and shall be a misdemeanor and shall be enjoined upon the application of the department of legal affairs, the department of banking and finance, or other state prosecuting official, or by an association in this state. The requirements of this subsection are in the exercise of the police power of this state and are enacted to protect the people of the state from misrepresentation, misunderstanding and loss.

provide them suitable compensation;

(b) To provide for life, health and casualty insurance for officers and employees;

(d) To provide for indemnification of its officers, employees and directors as prescribed or permitted in this chapter whether by insurance or otherwise;

(9) FACILITATING ORGANIZATIONS.—To become a member of, deal with, or make reasonable payments or contributions to any organization to the extent that such organization assists in furthering or facilitating the association's purposes, powers or community responsibilities, and to comply with any reasonable condition of eligibility;

(10) FISCAL AGENT.—If and when an association is a member of a Federal Home Loan Bank, to act as fiscal agent of the United States, and, when so designated by the secretary of the treasury, to perform, under such regulations as he may prescribe, all such reasonable duties as fiscal agent of the United States as he may require; and to act as agent for any instrumentality of the United States and as agent of this state or any instrumentality thereof;

History.—§21, ch. 69-39; §§11, 12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.221 Savings liability.—The savings liability of an association is not limited, but shall consist only of the aggregate amount of savings accounts of its members, plus earnings credited to such accounts, less redemption and withdrawal payments. Except as limited by the board of directors from time to time, a member may make additions to his savings accounts in such amounts and at such times as he may elect. Savings accounts may be opened for cash or property in which the association is authorized to invest, and, in the absence of fraud in the transaction, the value of the property taken in payment therefor as determined by the board of directors shall be conclusive. The members of an association shall not be responsible for any losses which its savings liability shall not be sufficient to satisfy, and savings accounts shall not be subject to assessment, nor shall the holders thereof be liable for any unpaid installments on their accounts. Earnings shall be declared in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. Except as provided in §665.331, no association shall prefer one of its savings accounts over any other savings account as to the right to participate in earnings. No preference between savings account members shall be created with respect to the distribution of assets upon voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of an association. No association shall issue, sell, negotiate, or advertise for issuance or sale to members any type of savings or investment media other than savings accounts or savings deposits, nor shall it contract with respect to the savings liability in a manner inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter.

665.231 Savings accounts.—

(1) OWNERSHIP.—Savings accounts or savings deposits may be opened and held solely and absolutely in his own right by, or in trust or other fiduciary capacity for, any person, including an adult or minor individual, male, or female, single or married, partnership, association, fiduciary, corporation, or political subdivision or public or governmental unit. Savings accounts shall be represented only by the account of each savings account or savings deposit holder on the books of the association, and such accounts or any interest therein shall be transferable only on the books of the association and upon proper written application by the transferee and upon acceptance by the association of the transferee as a member upon terms approved by the board of directors. The association may treat the holder of record of a savings account as the owner thereof for all purposes without being affected by any notice to the contrary unless the association has acknowledged in writing notice of a pledge of such savings account.

(2) SAVINGS ACCOUNT CONTRACT.—Each holder of a savings account shall execute a savings account contract setting forth any special terms and provisions applicable to such savings account and the ownership thereof and the conditions upon which withdrawals may be made not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter.

(3) EVIDENCE OF OWNERSHIP.—An account book may be issued to each savings account holder of record as shown by the books of the association, and such account book shall, if issued, indicate the withdrawal value of the savings account. A separate certificate for a savings account may be issued in lieu of an account book, entitled "Certificate of Savings Account," and if issued shall be on the following form:

This certifies that _____ is a member of the undersigned savings association and holds a _____ dollar savings account therein, subject to the Savings Association Act, the certificate of incorporation, and bylaws of the association.

(4) DUPLICATE ACCOUNT BOOKS AND CERTIFICATES.—Upon the filing with an association by the holder of record as shown by the books of the association, or by his legal representative, of an affidavit to the effect that the account book or certificate evidencing his savings account with the association has been lost or destroyed, and that such account book or certificate has not been pledged or assigned in whole or in part, such association shall issue a new account book or certificate in the name of the holder of record, such evidence stating that it is issued in lieu of the one lost or destroyed, and the association shall in no way be liable thereafter on account of the original account book or certificate, provided that the board of directors shall, if in its judgment it is necessary, require a bond in an amount it deems sufficient to indemnify the association against any loss which might result from the issuance of such new account book or certificate.

(5) INDUCEMENTS.—No association shall, directly, or indirectly, for the opening or increasing of any savings account, give, sell, dispose of, or permit the giving, selling or disposition of, for any one such opening or increase anything having a cost or value in excess of two dollars and fifty cents.

History.—§23, ch. 69-39.

665.241 Contracts for savings programs.—

(1) SCHOOL SAVINGS.—An association may contract with the proper authorities of any public or nonpublic elementary or secondary school or institution of higher learning, or any public or charitable institution caring for minors, for the participation and implementation by the association in any school or institutional thrift or savings plan, and it may accept savings accounts at such a school or institution, either by its own collector or by any representatives of the school or institution, which becomes the agent of the association for such purpose.

(2) PAYROLL SAVINGS.—An association may contract with any employer with respect to the solicitation, collection and receipt of savings by payroll deduction to be credited to a designated account or accounts of his or its employee or employees who voluntarily may participate.

History.—§24, ch. 69-39.

665.251 Powers of attorney on savings accounts.—Any association or federal association may continue to recognize the authority of an attorney-in-fact authorized in writing to manage or to make withdrawals either in whole or in part from the savings account of a member, whether minor or adult, until it receives written notice or is on actual notice of the revocation of his authority. For the purposes of this section, written notice of the death or adjudication of incompetency of such member shall constitute written notice of revocation of the authority of his attorney. No such institution shall be liable for damages, penalty or tax by reason of any payment made pursuant to this section.

History.—§25, ch. 69-39.

665.262 Married women and minors.—Any association operating under this law and any federal savings and loan association doing business in this state may accept savings accounts from any married woman or minor as the sole and absolute owner of such savings account, and receive payments thereon by or for such owner, and pay withdrawals, accept pledges to the association, and act in any other matter with respect to such accounts in the order of such married woman or minor. Any payment or delivery of rights to a married woman or to any minor, or a receipt or acquittance signed by a married woman or by a minor who holds a savings account, shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge of such institution for any payment so made or delivery of rights to such married woman or minor. In the case of a minor, the receipt, acquittance, pledge or other action required by the institution to be taken by the minor shall be binding upon such minor with like effect as if he were of full age and legal capacity; provided, if any parent or guardian of such minor should not desire the minor to have authority to pledge, hypothecate, control, transfer or make withdrawals from his savings account, such fact may be made known to the association in writing by such parent or guardian, in which event the right of the minor to pledge, hypothecate, control, transfer and make withdrawals from the account during the minority of such minor shall not be exercised by him except with the joinder of such parent or guardian. In the event of the death of such minor, the receipt or acquittance of either parent or guardian of such minor shall be valid and sufficient discharge of such institution for any sum or sums not exceeding in the aggregate one thousand dollars.

History.—§26, ch. 69-39.

665.271 Accounts in two or more names.—When a savings account is maintained in any association or federal association in the names of two or more persons, whether minor or adult, in such form that the moneys in the account are payable to either or the survivor or survivors then, in the absence of fraud or undue influence, such account and all additions thereto shall be the property of such persons as joint tenants. The moneys in account may be paid to or on the order of any one of such persons during their lifetimes or to or on the order of any one of the survivors of them after the death of any one or more of them. The opening of the account in such form shall, in the absence of fraud or undue influence, be conclusive evidence in any action or proceeding to which either the association or the survivor or survivors is a party, of the intention of all of the parties to the account to vest title to such account and the additions thereto in such survivor or survivors. By written instructions given to the association by all the parties to the account, the signatures of more than one of such persons during their lifetime or of more than one of the survivors after the death of any one of them may be required on any check, receipt, or withdrawal order, in which case the association shall pay the moneys in the account only in accordance with such instructions, but no such instructions shall limit the right of the survivor or survivors to receive the moneys in the account. Payment of all or any of the moneys in such account as provided in this section shall discharge the association from liability with respect to the moneys so paid, prior to receipt by the association of a written notice from any one of them directing the association not to permit withdrawals in accordance with the terms of the account or the instructions. After receipt of such notice an association may refuse, without liability, to honor any check, receipt, or withdrawal order on the account pending determination of the rights of the parties. No association paying any survivor in accordance with the provisions of this section shall thereby be liable for any estate, inheritance or succession taxes which may be due this state.

History.—§27, ch. 69-39.

665.281 Pledge to association of savings accounts in joint tenancy.—The pledge or hypothecation to any association or federal association of all or part of a savings account in joint tenancy signed by any tenant or tenants whether minor or adult, upon whose signature or signatures withdrawals may be made from the account shall, unless the terms of the savings account provide specifically to the contrary, be a valid pledge and transfer to the association of that part of the account pledged or hypothecated, and shall not operate to sever or terminate the joint and survivorship ownership of all or any part of the account.

History.—§28, ch. 69-39.

665.291 Accounts of administrators, executors, guardians, custodians, trustees, and other fiduciaries.—Any association or federal association may accept savings accounts in the name of any administrator, executor, custodian, conservator, guardian, trustee, or other fiduciary for a named beneficiary or beneficiaries. Any such fiduciary shall have power to vote as a member as if the membership were held absolutely, to open and to make additions to, and to withdraw any such account in whole or in part. The withdrawal value of any such account, and earnings thereon, or other rights relating thereto may be paid or delivered, in whole or in part, to such fiduciary without regard to any notice to the contrary as long as such fiduciary is living. The payment or delivery to any such fiduciary or a receipt or acquittance signed by any such fiduciary to whom any such payment or any such delivery of right is made shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge of an association for the payment or delivery so made. Whenever a person holding an account in a fiduciary capacity dies and no written notice of the revocation or termination of the fiduciary relationship shall have been given to an association and the association has no written notice of any other disposition of the beneficial estate, the withdrawal value of such account, and earnings thereon, or other rights relating thereto may, at the option of an association, be paid or delivered, in whole or in part, to the beneficiary or beneficiaries. Whenever an account shall be opened by any person, describing himself in opening such account as trustee for another and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust than such description shall have been given in writing to such association, in the event of the death of the person so described as trustee, the withdrawal value of such account or any part thereof, together with the earnings thereon, may be paid to the person for whom the account was thus described to have been opened. The payment or delivery to any such beneficiary, beneficiaries or designated person, or a receipt or acquittance signed by any such beneficiary, beneficiaries or designated person for any such payment or delivery shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge of an association for the payment or delivery so made. No association paying any such fiduciary, beneficiary or designated person in accordance with the provisions of this section shall thereby be liable for any estate, inheritance or succession taxes which may be due this state.

History.—§29, ch. 69-39.

665.301 Accounts of incompetents.—When a savings account is held in any association or federal association by a person who becomes incompetent and an adjudication of incompetency has been made by a court of competent jurisdiction, such an association may pay or deliver the withdrawal value of such savings account and any earnings that may have accrued thereon to the guardian for such person upon proof of his appointment and qualification; provided that if such association has received no written notice and is not on actual notice that such savings account holder has been adjudicated incompetent, it may pay or deliver such funds to such holder in accordance with the provisions of the savings account contract, and the receipt or acquittance of such holder therefor shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge of the association for the payment or delivery so made.

History.—§30, ch. 69-39.

665.311 Accounts of deceased nonresidents.

—When a savings account is held in any association or federal association by a person residing in another state or country, the account, together with additions thereto and earnings thereon, or any part thereof, shall be exempt from any taxation otherwise imposed by this state and may be paid to the administrator or executor appointed in the state or country where the account holder resided at the time of death, provided such administrator or executor has furnished the association with authenticated copies of his letters and of the order of the court which issued the letters to him authorizing him to collect, receive, and remove the personal estate, and an affidavit by the administrator or executor that to his knowledge no letters then are outstanding in this state and no petition for letters by an heir, legatee, devisee or creditor of the decedent is pending on the estate in this state, and that there are no creditors of the estate in this state. Upon payment or delivery to such representative after receipt of the affidavit and authenticated copies, the association is released and discharged to the same extent as if the payment or delivery had been made to a legally qualified resident executor or administrator, and is not required to see to the application or disposition of the property. No action at law or in equity shall be maintained against the association for payment made in accordance with this section.

665.321 Savings accounts as legal investments.—

(1) LEGAL INVESTMENTS.—Administrators, executors, custodians, conservators, guardians, trustees and other fiduciaries of every kind and nature, insurance companies, business and manufacturing companies, banks, trust companies, credit unions and other types of similar financial organizations, charitable, educational, eleemosynary and public corporations, funds and organizations, and municipalities and other public corporations and bodies, and public officials hereby are specifically authorized and empowered to invest funds held by them without any order of any court, in savings accounts of savings associations which are under state supervision and in accounts of federal associations organized under the laws of the United States and under federal supervision, and such investments shall be deemed and held to be legal investments for such funds.

(2) SECURITY.—Whenever, under the laws of this state or otherwise, a deposit of securities is required for any purpose, the savings accounts and accounts made legal investments by this section shall be acceptable for such deposits, and whenever, under the laws of this state or otherwise, a bond is required with security, such bond may be furnished, and the savings accounts and accounts made legal investments by this section in the amount of such bond, when deposited therewith, shall be acceptable as security without other security.

(3) PROVISIONS SUPPLEMENTAL.—The provisions of this section are supplemental to any and all other laws relating to and declaring what shall be legal investments for the persons, fiduciaries, corporations, organizations and officials referred to in this section, and the laws relating to the deposit of securities and the making and filing of bonds for any purpose.

History.—§32, ch. 69-39.

665.331 Earnings.—An association may pay earnings on its savings accounts from sources available for payment of earnings at such rate and at such times as shall be determined by resolution of its board of directors. All savings account holders shall participate equally in earnings pro rata to the withdrawal value of their respective accounts, except that an association may classify its savings accounts according to the character, amount, or duration thereof, or regularity of additions thereto, and may agree in advance to pay an additional or different rate of earnings not to exceed one percent over and above the rate of earnings paid on all savings accounts based on such classification, and shall regulate such earnings in such manner that each savings account in the same classification shall receive the same ratable portion of such additional earnings. Earnings shall be declared on the withdrawal value of each savings account at the beginning of the account period, plus additions thereto made during the period (less amounts previously withdrawn and noticed for withdrawal, which for earnings purposes shall be deducted from the latest previous additions thereto) computed at the declared rate for the time the funds have been invested, determined as next provided. The date of investment shall be the date of actual receipt by the association of an account or an addition to an account, except that if the board of directors shall so determine, accounts in one or more classifications or additions thereto received by the association on or before a date not later than the twentieth day of the month (unless the day determined is not a business day, in which case it may be the next succeeding business day) shall receive earnings as if invested on the first day of the month in which such payments were received; if the board shall make such determination, it also shall determine that payments received subsequent to such determination date shall either receive earnings as if invested on the first day of the next succeeding month, or receive earnings from the date of actual receipt by the association. Unless the department shall issue its approval in writing, no earnings shall be declared or paid for an accounting period unless the allocation to the general reserve for the preceding accounting period required by §665.201 or approved by the department thereunder has been made. Notwithstanding the provisions of the second sentence of this section, the board of directors, by resolution, may determine that earnings shall not be paid on any savings account which has a withdrawal value of a specified amount less than fifty dollars or which by written agreement is intended to be closed within a specified period less than fifteen months from the date on which such savings account is opened, provided that an exception may be made and earnings paid on savings accounts opened pursuant to §665.231. The directors shall determine by resolution the method of calculating the amount of any earnings on savings accounts as herein provided, and the time or times when earnings are to be declared, paid or credited.

History.—§33, ch. 69-39; §12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.341 Withdrawal.—Any savings account member or his authorized representative may at any time present a written application for withdrawal of all or any part of his savings accounts. No member shall have on file in any one association more than one application at a time. Every application shall request immediate withdrawal of a stated amount in accordance with this section. Any member may cancel his application at any time in whole or in part by a writing. Every association shall pay or number, date, and file in the order of actual receipt every withdrawal application. Withdrawals shall be paid in the order of actual receipt of applications, except as provided in this section. Upon receipt of a withdrawal request signed by the person or persons authorized to withdraw by the savings account contract or by operation of law, an association shall pay such amount in the form of cash, one or more checks or similar instruments payable to the order of such person or persons or to the order of others as directed, or transfer of credits to the account or accounts of others in the institution as directed, but not in excess of the withdrawal value of such savings account or accounts, together with any earnings which may have been declared and may have accrued thereon for the current period. If an association so elects, it may at any time pay in full each and every application as presented. It shall not, however, pay some in full unless it pays every application on file in full, except by paying all applications on file on the rotation system prescribed in this section. The board of directors, however, shall have an absolute right to pay upon any application not exceeding two hundred dollars to any one savings account member in any one month in any order. No association can obligate itself to pay withdrawals on any plan other than as provided in this chapter. Savings account holders who have filed written applications for withdrawal shall remain savings account members so long as their applications remain on file. No earnings shall be declared upon that portion of an account which has been noticed for withdrawal, which for earnings purposes is required to be deducted from the latest previous additions to such account, so long as such application is on file. The rotation system for payment of withdrawals is as follows: On the first day of each month, each application which has been on file since the first day of the preceding month and which is reached in order shall be paid one thousand dollars on account, or in full if the amount noticed for withdrawal or the unpaid balance of such application is less than one thousand dollars. Each such application for more than one thousand dollars so paid shall be deemed refiled as if filed on that day. Such limited payment on the first day of each month and such renumbering shall take place on the first day of each subsequent month as long as there are applications unpaid. At least one third of the receipts of an association from its members during the preceding calendar month shall be applied on the first day of each month to the payment of applications which have been on file since the first day of the preceding month. Any association may apply to withdrawals an amount larger than one third of such receipts, but cannot obligate itself to do so. When an application to withdraw is reached for payment as above provided, a written notice shall be sent to the applicant by mail at his last address recorded on the books and unless the applicant shall apply in person or in writing for such withdrawal within thirty days from the date of such notice, no payment on account of such application shall be made and such application shall be canceled. In no event shall an association voluntarily or involuntarily delay or postpone the whole or partial payment of the value of any savings account pursuant to a written withdrawal application by a savings account member for a period exceeding thirty days following the receipt of such application without first securing written permission, in the case of an association the accounts of which are not insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, from the department, or in the case of an association the accounts of which are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, from the said corporation.

History.—§34, ch. 69-39; §12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.351 Redemption.—At any time funds are on hand for the purpose, the association shall have the right to redeem by lot or otherwise, as the board of directors may determine, all or any part of any of its savings accounts on an earnings date by giving thirty days' notice by registered mail addressed to each affected account holder at his last address as recorded on the books of the association. No association shall redeem any of its savings accounts when the association is in an impaired condition or when it has applications for withdrawal which have been on file more than thirty days and have not been reached for payment. The redemption price of savings accounts redeemed shall be the full value of the account redeemed, as determined by the board of directors, but in no event shall the redemption price be less than the withdrawal value. If the aforesaid notice of redemption shall have been duly given, and if on or before the redemption date the funds necessary for such redemption shall have been set aside so as to be and continue to be available therefor, earnings upon the accounts called for redemption shall cease to accrue from and after the earnings date specified as the redemption date, and all rights with respect to such accounts shall forthwith, after such redemption date, terminate, except only any right of account holder of record to receive the redemption price without interest. All savings account books or certificates evidencing former savings accounts which have been validly called for redemption must be tendered for payment within ten years from the date of redemption designated in the redemption notice, otherwise they shall be canceled, the funds set aside for such accounts shall become the property of the association, and all claims of such former account holders against the association shall be barred forever.

665.361 Investments.—Savings associations shall have power to invest in securities as follows:

(1) INVESTMENTS NOT SUBJECT TO LIMITATION.—Without limit, in obligations of, or obligations which are fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States or this state; in stock or obligations of any Federal Home Loan Bank or Banks; in stock or obligations of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation; in stock or obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Government National Mortgage Association, or any successor or successors thereto; in obligation of, or guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the Dominion of Canada or any province thereof, provided that the principal and interest of any such obligations are payable in United States funds; in obligations issued or guaranteed by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development or by the Inter-American Development Bank; in demand, time or savings deposits, shares or accounts, or other obligations of any financial institution the accounts of which are insured by a federal agency; in bankers' acceptances which are eligible for purchase by federal reserve banks;

(2) LIMITATIONS ON INVESTMENTS.—Not in excess of twenty-five percent of its assets in:

(a) Bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness which are a general obligation of, or guaranteed as to principal and interest by, any agency or instrumentality of the United States, not specified in subsection (1) or of this state, or any city, town, village, county, district, or other municipal corporation or political subdivision of this state, or any public instrumental or public authority of any one or more of the foregoing;

(b) Capital stock, obligations, or other securities of service organizations, provided that the aggregate of such investments shall not thereupon exceed one percent of its assets; and

(c) Other stocks, securities and obligations which the department shall approve and place on a list to be published and distributed to every association from time to time, and the department is directed to publish and make distribution of such a list. An association holding investments which are so listed by the department shall not be required to dispose of the same if at a later time the department shall remove such investments from the list.

History.—§36, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.371 Required liquidity.—No association shall invest in any security, other than in liquid assets, or in any loan at any time when its liquid assets are less than five percent of its savings liability unless the department shall have issued written approval.

History.—§37, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.381 Investment in loans.—Every savings association shall have power to invest in loans and other investments as follows:

(1) SAVINGS ACCOUNT LOANS.—Loans secured by its savings accounts to the extent of the withdrawal value thereof;

(2) REAL ESTATE LOANS.—Real estate loans in any amount not exceeding the value of the security, subject to the following conditions:

(a) No association shall make a real estate loan to one borrower if the sum of 1. the amount of such loan and 2. the total balances of all outstanding real estate loans owed to such association by such borrower exceeds an amount equal to ten percent of such association's savings liability or an amount equal to the sum of such association's reserves for losses and undivided profits, whichever amount is less, except that any such loan may be made if the sum of 1. and 2. does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars;

(b) An association may:

1. Participate with one or more financial institutions, or entities having a tax exemption under §501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code, in any real estate loan of the type in which such association is authorized to invest on its own account, provided that the participating interest of such association is not subordinated or inferior to any other participating interest; and

2. Participate in such real estate loans with other than financial institutions or those entities described, provided that the participating interest of such association is superior to the participating interests of such other participants;

(c) The aggregate balances outstanding of real estate loans on real estate located outside the primary lending area of an association shall at no time exceed ten percent of the assets of the association, except that loans insured or guaranteed in whole or in part by the United States, the president or a federal agency and loans in which an association owns or has purchased no more than seventy-five percent participation interest shall not be subject to this restriction; and

(d) Direct-reduction real estate loans on home property not in excess of fifty thousand dollars and not in excess of ninety percent of the value of the security, and direct-reduction real estate loans on primarily residential property not in excess of eighty percent of the value of the security, including participating interest in such loans, shall average annually, based on monthly computations, at least sixty percent of assets, other than liquid assets, held by the association;

(3) LOANS SECURED BY LOANS.—Loans secured by the pledge of loans or investments, the assignment of which need not be recorded, of a type in which the association is authorized to invest, provided that the loans and investments so pledged shall be subject to all restrictions and requirements which would be applicable were the association to invest directly in such loans or investments;

(4) IMPROVEMENT LOANS.—Property improvement loans made pursuant to the provisions of any title of the National Housing Act, and, subject to any limitation as to maximum loan amount which may be prescribed by the department for all associations, other loans, secured or unsecured, to home owners and other property owners for the maintenance, repair, alteration, modernization, landscaping, improvement, including new construction, furnishing or equipment of their properties;

(5) MOBILE HOME LOANS.—Loans made for the purpose of mobile home financing, subject to any limitation as to maximum loan amount which may be prescribed by the department for all associations. For the purposes of this subsection "mobile home" shall mean a movable accommodation used or designed for use as living quarters;

(6) BUSINESS PROPERTY.—Such real property or interests therein as the directors may deem necessary or convenient for the conduct of the business of the association, which for the purposes of this chapter shall be deemed to include the ownership of stock of a wholly owned subsidiary corporation having as its exclusive activity the ownership and management of such property or interests, but the amount so invested shall not exceed the sum of the reserves and undivided profits of the association, provided that the department may authorize a greater amount to be so invested;

(7) PURCHASE OF REAL ESTATE.—An amount not exceeding the lesser of the sum of its reserves and undivided profits or five percent of its assets, in the purchase of real estate within its primary lending area for the purpose of producing income or for inventory and sale or for improvement including the erection of buildings thereon, for sale or rental purposes, and such an association may hold, sell, lease, operate or otherwise exercise the rights of an owner of any such property. Merchantable title to all real estate acquired under this subsection shall be taken and held in the name of the association and such title immediately shall be recorded in accordance with the laws of this state.

History.—§38, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.391 Loan plans.—Real estate loans eligible for investment by an association under this chapter may be written upon the following plan, or upon any other loan plan approved by the department:

(1) APPRAISAL.—No investment in a real estate loan shall be made until a qualified person or persons approved by the board of directors shall have made a physical inspection and submitted a signed appraisal of the value of the real estate securing such loan.

(2) PAYMENTS.—Payments on real estate loans shall be applied first to the payment of interest on the unpaid balance of the loan and the remainder on the reduction of principal; provided that if the loan is in default in any manner, payments may be applied by the association as provided in the loan contract. All real estate loans may be prepaid in part or in full, at any time, and the association shall not charge for such privilege of anticipatory payment an amount greater than two percent of the amount of such anticipatory payment. Unless otherwise agreed in writing, any prepayment of principal may, at the option of the association, be applied on the final installment of the note or other obligation until fully paid, and thereafter on the installments in the inverse order of their maturity.

(3) EVIDENCE OF LOAN.—Every loan shall be evidenced by a note or instrument of obligation for the amount of the loan. The note or instrument shall specify the amount, rate of interest and terms of repayment including any penalty or charge for late payment, and may contain all other terms of the loan contract.

(4) SECURITY INSTRUMENT.—Every real estate loan shall be secured by a mortgage, deed of trust or other transaction or instrument constituting a first lien or claim, or the full equivalent thereof, upon the real estate securing the loan, according to any lawful and recognized practice which is suited to the transaction. Any such instrument or transaction constituting a first lien or claim is herein termed a "mortgage." Such mortgage shall provide specifically for full protection to the association with respect to such loan and additional advances and the usual insurance risks, ground rents, taxes, assessments, other governmental levies, maintenance, and repairs. It may provide for an assignment of rents, and if such assignment is made, any such assignment shall be absolute upon the borrower's default, becoming operative upon written demand made by the association. All such mortgages shall be recorded in accordance with the law of this state.

(5) LIEN OF MORTGAGE.—Any mortgage that can be made by an association under the provisions of this chapter may be made to secure existing debts or obligations, to secure debts or obligations created simultaneously with the execution of the mortgage, to secure future advances necessary to protect the security, and to secure future advances to be made at the option of the parties up to a total amount stated in the mortgage. All such debts, obligations, and future advances shall, from and as of the time the mortgage is filed for record as provided by the law of this state, be secured by such mortgage equally with, and have the same priority over the rights of all persons who subsequent to the recording of such mortgage acquire any rights in or liens upon the mortgaged real estate as, the debts and obligations secured thereby at the time of the filing of the mortgage for record; except that:

(a) The mortgagor or his successor in title is hereby authorized to file for record, and the same shall be recorded, a notice limiting the amount of optional future advances secured by such mortgage to not less than the amount actually advanced at the time of such filing, provided a copy of such filing is also filed with the mortgagee, and

(b) If any optional future advance shall be made by the mortgagee to the mortgagor or his successor in title after written notice of any mortgage, lien, or claim against such real property which is junior to such mortgage, then the amount of such advance shall be junior to such mortgage, lien or claim of which such written notice was given.

(6) ADVANCES FOR TAXES, ETC.—An association may pay taxes, assessments, ground rents, insurance premiums, and other similar charges for the protection of its real estate loans. All such payments shall be added to the unpaid balance of the loan and shall be equally secured by the first lien on the property as provided above. An association may require life insurance to be assigned as additional collateral upon any real estate loan. In such event, the association shall obtain a first lien upon such policy and may advance premiums thereon. Such premium advances shall be added to the unpaid balance of the loan and shall be equally secured by the first lien on the property as provided above.

(7) PROVISIONS FOR TAXES, INSURANCE, ETC.—An association may require the borrower to pay monthly in advance, in addition to interest or interest and principal payments, the equivalent of one twelfth of the estimated annual taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, ground rents, and other charges upon the real estate securing a loan, or any of such charges, so as to enable the association to pay such charges as they become due from the funds so received. The amount of such monthly charges may be increased or decreased so as to provide reasonably for the payment of the estimated annual taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, and other charges. The association at its option may hold such funds in trust and commingle them with other such funds and use the same for such purposes, or place such funds in savings accounts and withdraw and use the same for such purposes, or hold such funds in open account and commingle them with its own funds and advance like amounts for such purposes, or credit such funds as received to the mortgage account and advance a like amount for the purposes stated. If such funds are held in trust or invested in savings accounts, the amounts shall be pledged to further secure the indebtedness and, if held in open account or credited to the loan account, the amounts when advanced for the purposes stated shall be secured by the mortgage with the same priority as the original amount advanced under the mortgage. The association shall have no obligation to pay interest, earnings or other increment to the borrower upon such monthly payments, nor to invest the same for the benefit of the borrower, unless such funds have been placed in a savings account or accounts. Every association shall keep a record of the status of taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, ground rents, and other charges on all real estate securing its loans and on all real and other property owned by it.

History.—§39, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.395 Collection of fines, interest or premiums on loans made by building and loan associations.—No fines, interest or premiums paid on loans made by any building and loan association shall be deemed usurious, and the same may be collected as debts of like amount are now collected by law in this state, and according to the terms and stipulations of the agreement between the association and the borrower.

History.—§8, ch. 4158, 1893; GS 2755; RGS 4242; CGL 6192; §2, ch. 63-318.

Note.—See former §§668.09 and 665.161.
cf.—Ch. 687, Interest and usury.

665.401 Loan expenses.—

(1) FEES AND CHARGES.—Every association may require borrowing members to pay all reasonable expenses incurred in connection with the making, closing, disbursing, extending, readjusting, or renewing of real estate loans. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, such expenses may include appraisal, attorney, abstract, recording, and registration fees, title examination, title insurance, loan insurance, credit report, survey, drawing of papers, escrow services, loan closing costs, and taxes or charges imposed upon or in connection with the making and recording of any loan. Every association also may require borrowing members to pay the cost of all other necessary and incidental services rendered by the association or by others in connection with real estate and other loans in such reasonable amounts as may be fixed by the board of directors. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, such costs may include the costs of services of inspectors, engineers, and architects. Such initial charges may be collected by the association from the borrower and paid to any persons, including any director, officer, or employee of the association rendering such services, or paid directly by the borrower. In lieu of such initial charges to cover such expenses and costs, an association may make a reasonable charge, part or all of which may be retained by the association which renders such service, or part or all of which may be paid to others who render such services. The fees and charges authorized by §665.391 and this section shall be in addition to interest authorized by law, and shall not be deemed to be a part of the interest collected or agreed to be paid on such loans within the meaning of any law of this state which limits the rate of interest which may be exacted in any transaction. No director, officer, or employee of an association shall receive any fee or other compensation of any kind in connection with procuring any loan for an association, except for services actually rendered as above provided.

(2) SETTLEMENT STATEMENT.—The association shall furnish a loan settlement statement to each borrower upon the closing of the loan, indicating in detail the charges and fees such borrower has paid or obligated himself to pay to the association or to any other person in connection with such loan. A copy of such statement shall be retained in the records of the association.

History.—§40, ch. 69-39.

665.411 Dealing with successors in interest.—In the case of any investment made by an association in a real estate loan, in the event the ownership of the real estate security or any part thereof becomes vested in a person other than the party or parties originally executing the security instruments, and provided there is not an agreement in writing to the contrary, an association may, without notice to such party or parties, deal with such successor or successors in interest with reference to said mortgage and the debt thereby secured in the same manner as with such party or parties, and may forbear to sue or may extend time for payment of or otherwise modify the terms of the debt secured thereby, without discharging or in any way affecting the original liability of such party or parties thereunder or upon the debt thereby secured.

History.—§41, ch. 69-39.

665.421 Right to act to avoid loss.—Nothing in this chapter or the statute law of the state shall be construed as denying to an association the right to invest its funds, operate a business, manage or deal in property, or take any other action over whatever period of time may reasonably be necessary to avoid loss on a loan or investment theretofore made or an obligation created in good faith.

History.—§42, ch. 69-39.

665.431 Supervisory power of department.—The department shall have general supervision over all associations, service organizations the principal offices of which are located in this state and which are principally owned by one or more thrift institutions, and corporations which are subject to the provisions of this chapter. It shall enforce the purposes of this chapter by use of the powers herein conferred and by reference to the court when required.

History.—§43, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.441 Branch offices.—

(1) DEFINITION.—A “branch office” is a legally established place of business of the association other than the home office authorized by the board of directors and approved by the department, at which savings accounts and loan payments may be accepted, application for loans may be received, account books and membership certificates may be issued, and loans may be closed.

(2) SUBJECT TO HOME OFFICE.—Each association shall be operated from the home office. All branch offices shall be subject to direction from the home office.

(3) APPROVAL OF ESTABLISHMENT.—Each application for approval of the establishment and maintenance of a branch office shall state the proposed location thereof, the need therefor, the functions to be performed therein, the estimated volume of business thereof, the estimated annual expense thereof, and the mode of payment therefor. Each such application shall be accompanied by a budget of the association for the current earnings period and for the next succeeding semiannual period, which reflects the estimated additional expense of the maintenance of such a branch office. Upon the receipt by the department of such an application, it shall notify other thrift institutions in the state and hold a hearing on said application, said notification and hearing following the procedure as set out in §665.031(3). It shall determine whether the establishment and maintenance of such office will unduly injure any properly conducted existing association or federal association in the community where such branch office is proposed to be established. If it finds that no undue injury is likely to result and that the establishment and maintenance of such branch office is advisable, it may approve the application.

(4) REVOCATION OF APPROVAL.—The department may for reasonable cause revoke its approval of the maintenance of any branch office by a written notice to the association fixing a reasonable time after which the association shall cease to use and maintain such branch office.

History.—§44, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.445 Saturday closing.—Any building and loan association or savings and loan association lawfully doing business in the state, whether chartered under state or federal statutes, may be closed on any one or more Saturdays upon the adoption of a resolution to such effect by a majority vote of the board of directors. Any one or more of such Saturdays shall, with respect to any such building and loan association or savings and loan association which shall be closed thereon in accordance with the provisions of this section, constitute a legal holiday for all purposes whatsoever.

History.—§1, ch. 59-49.

Note.—See former §665.072.

665.451 Reports and examinations.—

(1) ANNUAL REPORT.—On or before the last day of the first month of the fiscal year, every association shall make an annual written report to the department, upon a form to be prescribed and furnished by the department, of its affairs and operations, which shall include a complete statement of its financial condition, including a statement of income and expense since its last previous similar report, for the twelve months ending on December 31 of the previous year. Every such report shall be verified by the president and treasurer.

(2) OTHER REPORTS.—Every association also shall make such other reports as the department may from time to time require, which shall be in such form and filed on such date as it may prescribe and shall, if required by it, be verified in the same manner as the annual report.

(3) ANNUAL AUDIT AND EXAMINATION.—The department shall, at least once each year, without previous notice, examine or cause an examination to be made into the affairs of every association subject to this chapter. If an association is not audited at least once each year in a manner satisfactory to the department, the examination of such association shall include an audit. Examination fees charged the association shall be the same as those provided by statute for the examination of banks.

(4) EXAMINATIONS BY FEDERAL AGENCIES.—In lieu of such examination, the department may accept any examination made by a Federal Home Loan Bank, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, or by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Two copies of any audit, signed and certified by the auditor making such audit, shall be filed promptly with the department.

(5) ADDITIONAL EXAMINATIONS; REPORTS.—Whenever, in the judgment of the department, the condition of any association renders it necessary or expedient to make an extra examination or audit or to devote any extraordinary attention to affairs of the association, the department shall cause the same to be done. A full and complete copy of the report of all examinations and audits shall be furnished to the association examined. Such report of examination or audit shall be presented by the president to the board of directors at its next regular or special meeting.

(6) APPRAISALS BY DEPARTMENT.—The department is authorized in connection with any examination or audit of any association to cause to be made appraisals of real estate held by the association or securing the association's assets when specific facts or information with respect to real estate held, secured loans or lending, or when in its opinion the association's policies, practices, operating results and trends, give evidence that an association's appraisals may be excessive, that lending or investment may be of a marginal nature, that appraisal policies and practices may not conform with generally accepted and established professional standards, or that real estate held by the association or assets secured by real estate are overvalued. In lieu of causing such appraisals to be made, the department may accept any appraisal caused to be made by a Federal Home Loan Bank, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, or by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation or other insuring agency of an insured association. Unless otherwise ordered by the department, appraisal of real estate in connection with any examination or audit pursuant to this section shall be made by a professional appraiser or appraisers selected by the department, and the cost of such appraisal shall be paid promptly by such association directly to such appraiser or appraisers upon receipt by the association of a statement of such cost bearing the written approval of the department. A copy of the report of each appraisal caused to be made by the department pursuant to this subsection shall be furnished to the association within a reasonable time, not to exceed sixty days, following the completion of such appraisals, and may in the case of an insured association be furnished to the insuring agency.

(7) ACCESSIBILITY OF RECORDS TO DEPARTMENT; ISSUANCE OF SUMMONS, ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS, EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.—The department, or its examiners or auditors shall have free access to all books and papers of an association or a service organization the principal office of which is located in this state and which is principally owned by one or more thrift institutions, which relate to its business and books and papers kept by any officer, agent, or employee, relating to or upon which any record of its business is kept, and may summon witnesses and administer oaths or affirmations in the examination of the directors, officers, agents, or employees of any such association, service organization or any other person in relation to its affairs, transactions, and conditions, and may require and compel the production of records, books, papers, contracts, or other documents by court order, if not voluntarily produced.

History.—§45, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.461 Enforcement and conservatorship.—

(1) DEPARTMENT'S ORDER TO DISCONTINUE ILLEGAL PRACTICES.—If the department, as a result of any examination or from any report made to it, shall find that any association is violating the provisions of its certificate of incorporation or bylaws, or the laws of this state or of the United States, or any lawful order or regulation of the department, it shall, by a formal written order delivered to the association, state any alleged violation, together with a statement of the facts alleged to be such violation, and order discontinuance of such violation and conformance with all requirements of law. Such order shall specify the effective date thereof, which may be immediate or at a later date, and such order shall remain in effect until withdrawn by the department, or until terminated by a court order. Such order of the department, upon application made on or after the effective date thereof by the department to a court of general jurisdiction in the county in which the home office of the association is located, shall be enforced ex parte and without notice by an order to comply entered by said court. Such proceedings shall be given precedence over other cases pending in such court, and shall in every way be expedited. Any association affected by such order of the department shall, after receipt thereof, have the right to apply within thirty days to any such court for an immediate hearing and order suspending the order of the department until such time as the hearing has been completed. The hearing of such application to the court shall be upon such notice to the department as the court shall provide. Whether upon application by the department or by the association, the court shall have power to and shall adjudicate the question and enter the proper order or orders and enforce the same.

(2) CONSERVATOR.—If the department, as a result of any examination or from any report made to it believes that the public interest may be served by the appointment of a conservator, and if it shall find that any association:

- (a) Is in an impaired condition;
- (b) Is engaging in practices which threaten to result in an impaired condition; or
- (c) Is in violation of an order or injunction, as authorized by this section, which has become final in that time to appeal has expired without appeal or a final order entered from which there can be no appeal, the department may appoint a conservator for such association, which may be the department, or its agent or any other person, and upon such appointment shall apply immediately to a court of general jurisdiction in the county in which the home office of the association is located for confirmation of such appointment, and such court shall have exclusive jurisdiction to determine the issues and all related matters. Such proceedings shall be given precedence over other cases pending in such court and shall in every way be expedited. Such court shall confirm such appointment if it shall find that one or more such grounds exist, and a certified copy of the order of the court confirming such appointment shall be evidence thereof. The conservator shall have the power and authority provided in this chapter and such other power and authority as may be expressed in the order of the court. The conservator shall endeavor promptly to remedy the situation complained of by the department in its application for confirmation of such appointment. Within six months of the date of such appointment, or within twelve months if the court shall extend such six months' period, such association shall be returned to the board of directors thereof and thereafter shall be managed and operated as if no conservator had been appointed, or a receiver shall be appointed as hereinafter provided. If the department, or its agent, or examiner is appointed conservator it shall receive no additional compensation, but if another person is appointed, then the compensation of the conservator, as determined by the court, shall be paid by the association. A certified copy of the order of the court discharging such conservator and returning such association to the directors thereof shall be sufficient evidence thereof.

(3) CONSERVATOR; POWERS OF DIRECTORS, OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.—Any conservator appointed shall have all the right, powers, and privileges possessed by the officers, board of directors, and members of the association.

(4) SPECIAL COUNSEL OR EXPERTS; SPECIAL EXPENSES.—The conservator shall not retain special counsel or other experts, incur any expense other than normal operating expenses, or liquidate assets except in the ordinary course of operations.

(5) REMOVAL OF OFFICERS OR DIRECTORS.—The directors and officers shall remain in office and the employees shall remain in their respective positions, but the conservator may remove any director, officer, or employee, providing the order of removal of a director or officer shall be approved in writing by the department.

(6) OPERATION OF BUSINESS CONTINUED.—While the association is in the charge of a conservator, members of such association shall continue to make payments to the association in accordance with the terms and conditions of their contracts, and the conservator, in his discretion, may permit savings account members to withdraw their accounts from the association pursuant to the provisions of this chapter or under and subject to such rules and regulations as the department may prescribe. The conservator shall have power to accept savings accounts and additions to savings accounts, but any such amounts received by the conservator may be segregated if the department shall so order in writing. If so ordered, such amounts shall not be subject to offset and shall not be used to liquidate any indebtedness of such association existing at the time the conservator was appointed for it or any subsequent indebtedness incurred for the purposes of liquidating the indebtedness of any such association existing at the time such conservator was appointed. All expenses of the association during such conservatorship shall be paid by the association.

History.—§46, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.471 Receivership.—

(1) APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER.—If the department shall find that any association:

- (a) Is in an impaired condition;
- (b) Is engaging in practices which threaten to result in an impaired condition; or
- (c) Is in violation of an order or injunction, as provided in §665.461, which has become final in that the time to appeal has expired without appeal or a final order entered from which there can be no appeal, the department may appoint a receiver for such association, which may be the department, its agent or any other person, and upon such appointment shall apply immediately to a court of general jurisdiction in the county in which the home office of the association is located for confirmation of such appointment, and such court shall have exclusive jurisdiction to determine the issues and all related matters. Such proceedings shall be given precedence over other cases pending in such court, and shall in every way be expedited. The court shall confirm the appointment if it shall find that one or more such grounds exist. A certified copy of the order of the court confirming such appointment shall be evidence thereof. In the case of an insured association, the appointment by the department of a receiver under this section shall constitute an official determination of a public authority of this state pursuant to which a receiver is appointed for the purpose of liquidation as contemplated by and within the meaning of §401(d) of the National Housing Act of 1934, as amended, if, within ten days after the date the application of the department is filed, confirmation of such appointment or denial of appointment has not been issued by the court. Such receiver shall have all the powers and authority of a conservator plus the power to liquidate, and shall have such other powers and authority as may be expressed in the order of the court. If the department, or its agent, or examiner is appointed receiver, it shall receive no additional compensation, but if another person is appointed, then the compensation of the receiver, as determined by the court, shall be paid from the assets of the association.

(2) APPOINTMENT OF FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN INSURANCE CORPORATION AS RECEIVER OR CORECEIVER.—If the association is an institution insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation shall be tendered appointment as receiver or coreceiver. If it accepts such appointment, it may, nevertheless, make loans on the security of or purchase at public or private sale any part or all of the assets of the association of which it is receiver or coreceiver, provided such loan or purchase is approved by such court.

(3) PROCEDURE.—The procedure in such receivership action shall be in all other respects in accordance with the practice in such court, including all rights of appeal and review. The directors, officers and attorneys of an association in office at the time of the initiation of any proceeding under §665.461 or this section are expressly authorized to contest any such proceeding and shall be reimbursed for reasonable expenses and attorney fees by the association or from its assets. Any court having any such proceeding before it shall allow and order the payment of reasonable expenses and attorney's fees for such directors, officers and attorneys.

History.—§47, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.481 Correction of wrongdoings by unimpaired institution.—No conservator or receiver shall be appointed, or private property seized, with respect to an association which is not in an impaired condition if the alleged wrongdoing can be otherwise corrected as provided in this chapter or otherwise as provided by law.

History.—§48, ch. 69-39.

665.491 Right to declaratory judgment.—At any time after any controversy has arisen between the department and an association with respect to any question of law or regulation, or with respect to any question involving immeasurable or irreparable damage to the association, and prior to an administrative or a judicial hearing, the association or the department may apply to any court of competent jurisdiction in the county in which the home office of the association is located for a declaratory judgment as to such question, and such court shall have and shall take jurisdiction and decide the controversy on its merits in accordance with the weight of the evidence, and such court shall have full power to enforce its orders.

History.—§49, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.501 Foreign associations.—

(1) DEFINED.—For the purposes of this section, the term "foreign association" shall include any person, firm, company, association, fiduciary, partnership or corporation, by whatever name called, actually engaged in the business of a savings association, which is not organized under the provisions of this chapter or the laws of the United States, as now or hereafter amended, the principal business office of which is located outside the territorial limits of this state.

(2) DOING BUSINESS.—No foreign association shall do any business of a savings association within this state or maintain an office in this state for the purpose of doing such business unless an application is made to the department for permission to do such business in this state which is approved by it.

(3) UNAPPROVED FOREIGN ASSOCIA-

TIONS.—The department is authorized, empowered and directed to obtain an injunction or to take any other action necessary to prevent any foreign association from doing any business of a savings association in this state without its approval.

(4) ACTIVITIES NOT CONSIDERED "DOING BUSINESS."—For the purposes of this section and any other law of this state prohibiting, limiting, regulating, charging or taxing the doing of business in this state by foreign associations or foreign corporations of any type, any federal association the principal office of which is located outside this state, and any foreign association which is subject to state or federal supervision, or both, which by law is subject to periodic examination by such supervisory authority and to a requirement of periodic audit, shall not be considered to be doing business or to have a tax situs in this state by reason of engaging in any of the following activities:

(a) The purchase, acquisition, holding, sale, assignment, transfer, collecting and enforcement of obligations or any interest therein secured by real estate mortgages or other instruments in the nature of a mortgage, covering real property located in this state, or the foreclosure of such instruments, or the acquisition of title to such property by foreclosure, or otherwise, as a result of default under such instruments, or the holding protection, rental maintenance and operation of said property so acquired, or the disposition thereof; provided that such associations shall not hold, own or operate said property for a period exceeding five years without securing the department's approval.

(b) The advertising or solicitation of savings accounts, or the making of any representations with respect thereto in this state through the media of the mail, radio, television, magazines, newspapers or any other media which are published or circulated within this state, provided that such advertising, solicitation or the making of such representations shall be accurately descriptive of the fact, and provided further, that if such advertising, solicitation or the making of such representations shall contain any reference to insurance or guaranty of accounts, such shall comply with the provisions of §665.214(6).

(5) SERVICE OF PROCESS AND SUIT.—Any foreign association or federal association described in subsection (4) which engages in any of the activities described in paragraph (a) thereof pursuant to the provisions of this section shall in any connection therewith be subject to suit in the courts of this state by this state and the citizens of this state, and service on such association shall be effected by serving the secretary of state of this state, provided that the provisions of this section shall have no other application to the question of whether any foreign association or federal association is subject to service of process and suit in this state as a result of the transaction of business or other activities in this state.

History.—§50, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

665.511 Federal savings associations.—Federal savings associations or federal savings and loan associations, incorporated pursuant to the laws of the United States, as now or hereafter amended, are not foreign corporations or foreign associations. Unless federal laws or regulations provide otherwise, federal associations and the members thereof shall possess all of the rights, powers, privileges, benefits, immunities and exemptions that are now provided or that hereafter may be provided by the laws of this state for associations organized under the laws of this state and for the members thereof. This provision is additional and supplemental to any provision which, by specific reference, is applicable to federal associations and the members thereof.

History.—§51, ch. 69-39.

665.521 Taxes.—No tax may be imposed by the state or any of its political subdivisions on any savings and loan association or its franchise, surplus, deposits, assets, reserves, loans or income which is greater than the least onerous imposed by that state on any other financial institution.

History.—§52, ch. 69-39.

665.53 Grandfather clause.—This chapter shall not impair or affect any act done, offense committed or right accruing, accrued, or acquired, or liability, penalty, forfeiture or punishment incurred prior to June 2, 1969, but the same may be enjoyed, asserted, enforced, prosecuted or inflicted, as fully and to the same extent as if this chapter had not been passed.

History.—§53, ch. 69-39.

665.54 Conformity.—

(1) ALL THRIFT AND HOME-FINANCING ORGANIZATIONS SUBJECT TO PROVISIONS OF ACT.—All persons accepting moneys from the public and engaged in home financing, whether or not incorporated, and every corporation heretofore incorporated under the statutes of this state which has for its purpose the promotion of thrift and the financing of homes, by whatever name known, as defined in §665.021(23), shall at * [the time this act becomes effective be subject to the] provisions of the chapter and shall be deemed to exist hereunder. However, nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to require any building and loan association heretofore organized under the laws of this state and existing on June 2, 1969 to become an insured association as herein defined or to change its name.

(2) CORPORATIONS HERETOFORE INCORPORATED; CONFORMANCE TO CH. 665.—The name, rights, powers, privileges, and immunities of every such corporation heretofore incorporated in this state shall be governed, controlled, construed, extended, limited and determined by the provisions of this chapter to the same extent and effect as if such corporation had been incorporated pursuant hereto. The articles of association, certificate of incorporation, or charter, however entitled, bylaws and constitution, or other rules of every such corporation heretofore made or existing are hereby modified, altered, and amended to conform to the provisions of the chapter, with or without the issuance or approval by the department of conformed copies of such documents, and the same are declared void to the extent that the same are inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter; except that the obligations of any such existing corporation, whether between such corporation and its members, or any of them, or any other person or persons, or any valid contract between the members of any such corporation, or between such corporation and any other person or persons, existing on June 2, 1969 shall not be in any way impaired by the provisions of this chapter, and, with such exception, every such corporation shall possess the rights, powers, privileges, and immunities and shall be subject to the duties, liabilities, disabilities, and restrictions conferred and imposed by this chapter, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in its certificate of incorporation, bylaws, constitution, or rules.

History.—§54, ch. 69-39; §§12, 35, ch. 69-106.

671.101 Short title.—Chapters 671-679 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§1-101, U.C.C.

671.102 Purposes; rules of construction; variation by agreement.—

(1) This code shall be liberally construed and applied to promote its underlying purposes and policies.

(2) Underlying purposes and policies of this code are:

(a) To simplify, clarify and modernize the law governing commercial transactions;

(b) To permit the continued expansion of commercial practices through custom, usage and agreement of the parties;

(c) To make uniform the law among the various jurisdictions.

(3) The effect of provisions of this code may be varied by agreement, except as otherwise provided in this code and except that the obligations of good faith, diligence, reasonableness and care prescribed by this code may not be disclaimed by agreement but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which the performance of such obligations is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(4) The presence in certain provisions of this code of the words "unless otherwise agreed" or words of similar import does not imply that the effect of other provisions may not be varied by agreement under subsection (3).

(5) In this code unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) Words in the singular number include the plural, and in the plural include the singular;

(b) Words of the masculine gender include the feminine and the neuter, and when the sense so indicates words of the neuter gender may refer to any gender.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-102, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.53, 614.21.

*Note.—Pursuant to §69, ch. 69-353, the editors have altered the numbers of all sections making up this chapter by deleting the digit and hyphen immediately following the decimal point. The purpose is to conform the numbering of the Code sections with the decimal numbering system used in other chapters of the Florida Statutes. The visual relationship between Florida Statutes section numbers and Code section number is not destroyed by this alteration; the digit preceding the decimal point coincides with the Code article number, and the digits following the decimal point coincide with the Code section numbers.

671.103 Supplementary general principles of law applicable.—Unless displaced by the particular provisions of this code, the principles of law and equity, including the law merchant and the law relative to capacity to contract, principal and agent, estoppel, fraud, misrepresentation, duress, coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other validating or invalidating cause shall supplement its provisions.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-103, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.52, 673.17, 614.20.

671.104 Construction against implicit repeal.—This code being a general act intended as a unified coverage of its subject matter, no part of it shall be deemed to be impliedly repealed by subsequent legislation if such construction can reasonably be avoided.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-104, U.C.C.

671.105 Territorial application of the code; parties' power to choose applicable law.—

(1) Except as provided hereafter in this section, when a transaction bears a reasonable relation to this state and also to another state or nation the parties may agree that the law either of this state or of such other state or nation shall govern their rights and duties. Failing such agreement this code applies to transactions bearing an appropriate relation to this state.

(2) Where one of the following provisions of this code specifies the applicable law, that provision governs and a contrary agreement is effective only to the extent permitted by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) so specified:

Rights of creditors against sold goods. (§672.402)

Applicability of the chapter on bank deposits and collections. (§674.102)

Bulk transfers subject to the chapter on bulk transfers. (§676.102)

Applicability of the chapter on investment securities. (§678.106)

Policy and scope of the chapter on secured transactions. (§§679.102 and 679.103)

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-105, U.C.C.

671.106 Remedies to be liberally administered.—

(1) The remedies provided by this code shall be liberally administered to the end that the aggrieved party may be put in as good a position as if the other party had fully performed but neither consequential or special nor penal damages may be had except as specifically provided in this code or by other rule of law.

(2) Any right or obligation declared by this code is enforceable by action unless the provision declaring it specifies a different and limited effect.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-106, U.C.C.

671.107 Waiver or renunciation of claim or right after breach.—Any claim or right arising out of an alleged breach can be discharged in whole or in part without consideration by a written waiver or renunciation signed and delivered by the aggrieved party.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-107, U.C.C.; supersedes §§675.28, 675.30.

671.108 Severability.—If any provision or clause of this code or application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the code which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this code are declared to be severable.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-109, U.C.C.

671.109 Section captions.—Section captions are parts of this code.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-108, U.C.C.

671.201 General definitions.—Subject to additional definitions contained in the subsequent chapters of this code which are applicable to specific chapters or parts thereof, and unless the context otherwise requires, in this code:

(1) "Action" in the sense of a judicial proceeding includes recoupment, counterclaim, set-off, suit in equity and any other proceedings in which rights are determined.

(2) "Aggrieved party" means a party entitled to resort to a remedy.

(3) "Agreement" means the bargain of the 671.206 Statute of frauds for kinds of personal property not otherwise covered.

671.207 Performance or acceptance under reservation of rights.

671.208 Option to accelerate at will.

parties in fact as found in their language or by implication from other circumstances including course of dealing or usage of trade or course of performance as provided in this code (§§671.205 and 672.208). Whether an agreement has legal consequences is determined by the provisions of this code, if applicable; otherwise by the law of contracts (§671.103). (Compare "Contract".)

(4) "Bank" means any person engaged in the business of banking.

(5) "Bearer" means the person in possession of an instrument, document of title, or security payable to bearer or indorsed in blank.

(6) "Bill of lading" means a document evidencing the receipt of goods for shipment issued by a person engaged in the business of transporting or forwarding goods, and includes an airbill. "Airbill" means a document serving for air transportation as a bill of lading does for marine or rail transportation, and includes an air consignment note or air waybill.

(7) "Branch" includes a separately incorporated foreign branch of a bank.

(8) "Burden of establishing" a fact means the burden of persuading the triers of fact that the existence of the fact is more probable than its non-existence.

(9) "Buyer in ordinary course of business" means a person who in good faith and without knowledge that the sale to him is in violation of the ownership rights or security interest of a third party in the goods buys in ordinary course from a person in the business of selling goods of that kind but does not include a pawnbroker. "Buying" may be for cash or by exchange of other property or on secured or unsecured credit and includes receiving goods or documents of title under a pre-existing contract for sale but does not include a transfer in bulk or as security for or in total or partial satisfaction of a money debt.

(10) "Conspicuous": A term or clause is conspicuous when it is so written that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to have noticed it. A printed heading in capitals (as: NON-NEGOTIABLE BILL OF LADING) is conspicuous. Language in the body of a form is "conspicuous" if it is in larger or other contrasting type or color. But in a telegram any stated term is "conspicuous". Whether a term or clause is "conspicuous" or not is for decision by the court.

(11) "Contract" means the total legal obligation which results from the parties' agreement as affected by this code and any other applicable rules of law. (Compare "Agreement".)

(12) "Creditor" includes a general creditor, a secured creditor, a lien creditor and any representative of creditors, including an assignee for the benefit of creditors, a trustee in bankruptcy, a receiver in equity and an executor or administrator of an insolvent debtor's or assignor's estate.

(13) "Defendant" includes a person in the position of defendant in a cross-action or counterclaim.

(14) "Delivery" with respect to instruments, documents of title, chattel paper or securities means voluntary transfer of possession.

(15) "Document of title" includes bill of lading, dock warrant, dock receipt, warehouse receipt or order for the delivery of goods, and also any other document which in the regular course of business or financing is treated as adequately evidencing that the person in possession of it is entitled to receive, hold and dispose of the document and the goods it covers. To be a document of title a document must purport to be issued by or addressed to a bailee and purport to cover goods in the bailee's possession which are either identified or are fungible portions of an identified mass.

(16) "Fault" means wrongful act, omission or breach.

(17) "Fungible" with respect to goods or securities means goods or securities of which any unit is, by nature or usage of trade, the equivalent of any other like unit. Goods which are not fungible shall be deemed fungible for the purposes of this code to the extent that under a particular agreement or document unlike units are treated as equivalents.

(18) "Genuine" means free of forgery or counterfeiting.

(19) "Good faith" means honesty in fact in the conduct or transaction concerned.

(20) "Holder" means a person who is in possession of a document of title or an instrument or an investment security drawn, issued or indorsed to him or to his order or to bearer or in blank.

(21) To "honor" is to pay or to accept and pay, or where a credit so engages to purchase or discount a draft complying with the terms of the credit.

(22) "Insolvency proceedings" includes any assignment for the benefit of creditors or other proceedings intended to liquidate or rehabilitate the estate of the person involved.

(23) A person is "insolvent" who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business or cannot pay his debts as they become due or is insolvent within the meaning of the federal bankruptcy law.

(24) "Money" means a medium of exchange authorized or adopted by a domestic or foreign government as a part of its currency.

(25) A person has "notice" of a fact when

- (a) He has actual knowledge of it; or
- (b) He has received a notice or notification of it; or

(c) From all the facts and circumstances known to him at the time in question he has reason to know that it exists.

A person "knows" or has "knowledge" of a fact when he has actual knowledge of it. "Discover" or "learn" or a word or phrase of similar import refers to knowledge rather than to reason to know. The time and circumstances under which a notice or notification may cease to be effective are not determined by this code.

(26) A person "notifies" or "gives" a notice or notification to another by taking such steps as may be reasonably required to inform the other in ordinary course whether or not such other actually comes to know of it. A person "receives" a notice or notification when

- (a) It comes to his attention; or
- (b) It is duly delivered at the place of business through which the contract was made or at any other place held out by him as the place for receipt of such communications.

(27) Notice, knowledge or a notice or notification received by an organization is effective for a particular transaction from the time when it is brought to the attention of the individual conducting that transaction, and in any event from the time when it would have been brought to his attention if the organization had exercised due diligence. An organization exercises due diligence if it maintains reasonable routines for communicating significant information to the person conducting the transaction and there is reasonable compliance with the routines. Due diligence does not require an individual acting for the organization to communicate information unless such communication is part of his regular duties or unless he has reason to know of the transaction and that the transaction would be materially affected by the information.

(28) "Organization" includes a corporation, government or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, estate, trust, partnership or association, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity.

(29) "Party", as distinct from "third party", means a person who has engaged in a transaction or made an agreement within this code.

(30) "Person" includes an individual or an organization (See §671.102).

(31) "Presumption" or "presumed" means that the trier of fact must find the existence of the fact presumed unless and until evidence is introduced which would support a finding of its non-existence.

(32) "Purchase" includes taking by sale, discount, negotiation, mortgage, pledge, lien, issue or re-issue, gift or any other voluntary transaction creating an interest in property.

(33) "Purchaser" means a person who takes by purchase.

(34) "Remedy" means any remedial right to which an aggrieved party is entitled with or without resort to a tribunal.

(35) "Representative" includes an agent, an officer of a corporation or association, and a trustee, executor or administrator of an estate, or any other person empowered to act for another.

(36) "Rights" includes remedies.

(37) "Security interest" means an interest in personal property or fixtures which secures payment or performance of an obligation. The retention or reservation of title by a seller of goods notwithstanding shipment or delivery to the buyer (§672.401) is limited in effect to a reservation of a "security interest". The term also includes any interest of a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, or contract rights which is subject to chapter 679. The special property interest of a buyer of goods on identification of such goods to a contract for sale under §672.401 is not a "security interest", but a buyer may also acquire a "security interest" by complying with chapter 679. Unless a lease or consignment is intended as security, reservation of title thereunder is not a "security interest" but a consignment is in any event subject to the provisions on consignment sales (§672.326). Whether a lease is intended as security is to be determined by the facts of each case; however, (a) the inclusion of an option to purchase does not of itself make the lease one intended for security, and (b) an agreement that upon compliance with the terms of the lease the lessee shall become or has the option to become the owner of the property for no additional consideration or for a nominal consideration does make the lease one intended for security.

(38) "Send" in connection with any writing or notice means to deposit in the mail or deliver for transmission by any other usual means of communication with postage or cost of transmission provided for and properly addressed and in the case of an instrument to an address specified thereon or otherwise agreed, or if there be none to any address reasonable under the circumstances. The receipt of any writing or notice within the time at which it would have arrived if properly sent has the effect of a proper sending.

(39) "Signed" includes any symbol executed or adopted by a party with present intention to authenticate a writing.

(40) "Surety" includes guarantor.

(41) "Telegram" includes a message transmitted by radio, teletype, cable, any mechanical method of transmission, or the like.

(42) "Term" means that portion of an agreement which relates to a particular matter.

(43) "Unauthorized" signature or indorsement means one made without actual, implied or apparent authority and includes a forgery.

(44) "Value". Except as otherwise provided with respect to negotiable instruments and bank collections (§§673.303, 674.208 and 674.209), a person gives "value" for rights if he acquires them.

(a) In return for a binding commitment to extend credit or for the extension of immediately available credit whether or not drawn upon and whether or not a charge-back is provided for in the event of difficulties in collection; or

(b) As security for or in total or partial satisfaction of a pre-existing claim; or

(c) By accepting delivery pursuant to a pre-existing contract for purchase; or

(d) Generally, in return for any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract.

(45) "Warehouse receipt" means a receipt issued by a person engaged in the business of storing goods for hire.

(46) "Written" or "writing" includes printing, typewriting or any other intentional reduction to tangible form.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-201, U.C.C.; superseded §§614.02, 673.01, 674.01, 674.07, 674.28, 674.29, 674.30, 678.54.

671.202 Prima facie evidence by third party documents.—A document in due form purporting to be a bill of lading, policy or certificate of insurance, official weigher's or inspector's certificate, consular invoice, or any other document authorized or required by the contract to be issued by a third party shall be prima facie evidence of its own authenticity and genuineness and of the facts stated in the document by the third party.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-202, U.C.C.

671.203 Obligation of good faith.—Every contract or duty within this code imposes an obligation of good faith in its performance or enforcement.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-203, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.54, 614.02(11).

671.204 Time; reasonable time; "seasonably".—

(1) Whenever this code requires any action to be taken within a reasonable time, any time which is not manifestly unreasonable may be fixed by agreement.

(2) What is a reasonable time for taking any action depends on the nature, purpose and circumstances of such action.

(3) An action is taken "seasonably" when it is taken at or within the time agreed or if no time is agreed at or within a reasonable time.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-204, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.01.

671.205 Course of dealing and usage of trade.—

(1) A course of dealing is a sequence of previous conduct between the parties to a particular transaction which is fairly to be regarded as establishing a common basis of understanding for interpreting their expressions and other conduct.

(2) A usage of trade is any practice or method of dealing having such regularity of observance in a place, vocation or trade as to justify an expectation that it will be observed with respect to the transaction in question. The existence and scope of such a usage are to be proved as facts. If it is established that such a usage is embodied in a written trade code or similar writing the interpretation of the writing is for the court.

(3) A course of dealing between parties and any usage of trade in the vocation or trade in which they are engaged or of which they are or should be aware give particular meaning to and supplement or qualify terms of an agreement.

(4) The express terms of an agreement and an applicable course of dealing or usage of trade shall be construed wherever reasonable as consistent with each other; but when such construction is unreasonable express terms control both course of dealing and usage of trade and course of dealing controls usage of trade.

(5) An applicable usage of trade in the place where any part of performance is to occur shall be used in interpreting the agreement as to that part of the performance.

(6) Evidence of a relevant usage of trade offered by one party is not admissible unless and until he has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise to the latter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-205, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.01.

671.206 Statute of frauds for kinds of personal property not otherwise covered.—

(1) Except in the cases described in subsection (2) of this section a contract for the sale of personal property is not enforceable by way of action or defense beyond five thousand dollars in amount or value of remedy unless there is some writing which indicates that a contract for sale has been made between the parties at a defined or stated price, reasonably identifies the subject matter, and is signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section does not apply to contracts for the sale of goods (§672.201) nor of securities (§678.319) nor to security agreements (§679.203).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-206, U.C.C.; supersedes §725.02.

671.207 Performance or acceptance under reservation of rights.—A party who with explicit reservation of rights performs or promises performance or assents to performance in a manner demanded or offered by the other party does not thereby prejudice the rights reserved. Such words as "without prejudice", "under protest" or the like are sufficient.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-207, U.C.C.

671.208 Option to accelerate at will.—A term providing that one party or his successor in interest may accelerate payment or performance or require collateral or additional collateral "at will" or "when he deems himself insecure" or in words of similar import shall be construed to mean that he shall have power to do so only if he in good faith believes that the prospect of payment or performance is impaired. The burden of establishing lack of good faith is on the party against whom the power has been exercised.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§1-208, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.03(3).

672.101 Short title.—Chapter 672 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code—sales.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-101, U.C.C.

672.102 Scope; certain security and other transactions excluded from this chapter.—Unless the context otherwise requires, this chapter applies to transactions in goods; it does not apply to any transaction which although in the form of an unconditional contract to sell or present sale is intended to operate only as a security transaction nor does this chapter impair or repeal any statute regulating sales to consumers, farmers or other specified classes of buyers.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-102, U.C.C.

672.103 Definitions and index of definitions.—

(1) In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Buyer" means a person who buys or contracts to buy goods.

(b) "Good faith" in the case of a merchant means honesty in fact and the observance of reasonable commercial standards of fair dealing in the trade.

(c) "Receipt" of goods means taking physical possession of them.

(d) "Seller" means a person who sells or contracts to sell goods.

(2) Other definitions applying to this chapter, or to specified parts thereof, and the sections in which they appear are:

"Lot". (§672.105).

*Note.—Pursuant to §69, ch. 69-353, the editors have altered the numbers of all sections making up this chapter by deleting the digit and hyphen immediately following the decimal point. The purpose is to conform the numbering of the Code sections with the decimal numbering system used in other chapters of the Florida Statutes. The visual relationship between Florida Statutes section numbers and Code section number is not destroyed by this alteration; the digit preceding the decimal point coincides with the Code article number, and the digits following the decimal point coincide with the Code section numbers.

"Merchant". (§672.104).

"Overseas". (§672.323).

"Person in position of seller". (§672.707).

"Present sale". (§672.106).

(4) In addition chapter 671 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-103, U.C.C.

672.104 Definitions: "merchant"; "between merchants"; "financing agency".—

(1) "Merchant" means a person who deals in goods of the kind or otherwise by his occupation holds himself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods involved in the transaction or to whom such knowledge or skill may be attributed by his employment of an agent or broker or other intermediary who by his occupation holds himself out as having such knowledge or skill.

(2) "Financing agency" means a bank, finance company or other person who in the ordinary course of business makes advances against goods or documents of title or who by arrangement with either the seller or the buyer intervenes in ordinary course to make or collect payment due or claimed under the contract for sale, as by purchasing or paying the seller's draft or making advances against it or by merely taking it for collection whether or not documents of title accompany the draft. "Financing agency" includes also a bank or other person who similarly intervenes between persons who are in the position of seller and buyer in respect to the goods (§672.707).

(3) "Between merchants" means in any transaction with respect to which both parties are chargeable with the knowledge or skill of merchants.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-104, U.C.C.

672.105 Definitions: transferability; "goods"; "future" goods; "lot"; "commercial unit".—

(1) "Goods" means all things (including specially manufactured goods) which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities (chapter 678) and things in action. "Goods" also includes the unborn young of animals and growing crops and other identified things attached to realty as described in the section on goods to be severed from realty (§672.107).

(2) Goods must be both existing and identified before any interest in them can pass. Goods which are not both existing and identified are "future" goods. A purported present sale of future goods or of any interest therein operates as a contract to sell.

(3) There may be a sale of a part interest in existing identified goods.

(4) An undivided share in an identified bulk of fungible goods is sufficiently identified to be sold although the quantity of the bulk is not determined. Any agreed proportion of such a bulk or any quantity thereof agreed upon by number, weight or other measure may to the extent of the seller's interest in the bulk be sold to the buyer who then becomes an owner in common.

(5) "Lot" means a parcel or a single article which is the subject matter of a separate sale or delivery, whether or not it is sufficient to perform the contract.

(6) "Commercial unit" means such a unit of goods as by commercial usage is a single whole for purposes of sale and division of which materially impairs its character or value on the market or in use. A commercial unit may be a single article (as a machine) or a set of articles (as a suite of furniture or an assortment of sizes) or a quantity (as a bale, gross, or carload) or any other unit treated in use or in the relevant market as a single whole.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-105, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.54.

672.106 Definitions: "contract"; "agreement"; "contract for sale"; "sale"; "present sale"; "conforming" to contract; "termination"; "cancellation".—

(1) In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires "contract" and "agreement" are limited to those relating to the present or future sale of goods. "Contract for sale" includes both a present sale of goods and a contract to sell goods at a future time. A "sale" consists in the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price (§672.401). A "present sale" means a sale which is accomplished by the making of the contract.

(2) Goods or conduct including any part of a performance are "conforming" or conform to the contract when they are in accordance with the obligations under the contract.

(3) "Termination" occurs when either party pursuant to a power created by agreement or law puts an end to the contract otherwise than for its breach. On "termination" all obligations which are still executory on both sides are discharged but any right based on prior breach or performance survives.

(4) "Cancellation" occurs when either party puts an end to the contract for breach by the other and its effect is the same as that of "termination" except that the cancelling party also retains any remedy for breach of the whole contract or any unperformed balance.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-106, U.C.C.

672.107 Goods to be severed from realty: recording.—

(1) A contract for the sale of timber, minerals or the like or a structure or its materials to be removed from realty is a contract for the sale of goods within this chapter if they are to be severed by the seller but until severance a purported present sale thereof which is not effective as a transfer of an interest in land is effective only as a contract to sell.

(2) A contract for the sale apart from the land of growing crops or other things attached to realty and capable of severance without material harm thereto but not described in subsection (1) is a contract for the sale of goods within this chapter whether the subject matter is to be severed by the buyer or by the seller even though it forms part of the realty at the time of contracting, and the parties can by identification effect a present sale before severance.

(3) The provisions of this section are subject to any third party rights provided by the law relating to realty records, and the contract for sale may be executed and recorded as a document transferring an interest in land and shall then constitute notice to third parties of the buyer's rights under the contract for sale.

*History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-107, U.C.C.*

PART IIFORM, FORMATION AND READJUSTMENT OF CONTRACT

- 672.201 Formal requirements; statute of frauds.
672.202 Final written expression: parol or extrinsic evidence.
672.203 Seals inoperative.
672.204 Formation in general.
672.205 Firm offers.
672.206 Offer and acceptance in formation of contract.

- 672.207 Additional terms in acceptance or confirmation.
672.208 Course of performance or practical construction.
672.209 Modification, rescission and waiver.
672.210 Delegation of performance; assignment of rights.

672.201 Formal requirements; statute of frauds.—

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this section a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed upon but the contract is not enforceable under this paragraph beyond the quantity of goods shown in such writing.

(2) Between merchants if within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the contract and sufficient against the sender is received and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents, it satisfies the requirements of subsection (1) against such party unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within ten days after it is received.

(3) A contract which does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (1) but which is valid in other respects is enforceable:

(a) If the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business and the seller, before notice of repudiation is received and under circumstances which reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer, has made either a substantial beginning of their manufacture or commitments for their procurement; or

(b) If the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading, testimony or otherwise in court that a contract for sale was made, but the contract is not enforceable under this provision beyond the quantity of goods admitted; or

(c) With respect to goods for which payment has been made and accepted or which have been received and accepted (§672.606).

*History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-201, U.C.C.*

672.202 Final written expression: parol or extrinsic evidence.—Terms with respect to which the confirmatory memoranda of the parties agree or which are otherwise set forth in a writing intended by the parties as a final expression of their agreement with respect to such terms as are included therein may not be contradicted by evidence of any prior agreement or of a contemporaneous oral agreement but may be explained or supplemented:

(1) By course of dealing or usage of trade (§671.205) or by course of performance (§672.208); and

(2) By evidence of consistent additional terms unless the court finds the writing to have been intended also as a complete and exclusive statement of the terms of the agreement.

*History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-202, U.C.C.*

672.203 Seals inoperative.—The affixing of a seal to a writing evidencing a contract for sale or an offer to buy or sell goods does not constitute the writing a sealed instrument and the law with respect to sealed instruments does not apply to such a contract or offer.

*History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-203, U.C.C.*

672.204 Formation in general.—

(1) A contract for sale of goods may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement, including conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of such a contract.

(2) An agreement sufficient to constitute a contract for sale may be found even though the moment of its making is undetermined.

(3) Even though one or more terms are left open a contract for sale does not fail for indefiniteness if the parties have intended to make a contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-204, U.C.C.

672.205 Firm offers.—An offer by a merchant to buy or sell goods in a signed writing which by its terms gives assurance that it will be held open is not revocable, for lack of consideration, during the time stated or if no time is stated for a reasonable time, but in no event may such period of irrevocability exceed three months; but any such term of assurance on a form supplied by the offeree must be separately signed by the offeror.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-205, U.C.C.

672.206 Offer and acceptance in formation of contract.—

(1) Unless otherwise unambiguously indicated by the language or circumstances:

(a) An offer to make a contract shall be construed as inviting acceptance in any manner and by any medium reasonable in the circumstances;

(b) An order or other offer to buy goods for prompt or current shipment shall be construed as inviting acceptance either by a prompt promise to ship or by the prompt or current shipment of conforming or nonconforming goods, but such a shipment of nonconforming goods does not constitute an acceptance if the seller seasonably notifies the buyer that the shipment is offered only as an accommodation to the buyer.

(2) Where the beginning of a requested performance is a reasonable mode of acceptance an offeror who is not notified of acceptance within a reasonable time may treat the offer as having lapsed before acceptance.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-206, U.C.C.

672.207 Additional terms in acceptance or confirmation.—

(1) A definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation which is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even though it states terms additional to or different from those offered or agreed upon, unless acceptance is expressly made conditional on assent to the additional or different terms.

(2) The additional terms are to be construed as proposals for addition to the contract. Between merchants such terms become part of the contract unless:

(a) The offer expressly limits acceptance to the terms of the offer;

(b) They materially alter it; or

(c) Notification of objection to them has already been given or is given within a reasonable time after notice of them is received.

(3) Conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of a contract is sufficient to establish a contract for sale although the writings of the parties do not otherwise establish a contract. In such case the terms of the particular contract consist of those terms on which the writings of the parties agree, together with any supplementary terms incorporated under any other provisions of this code.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-207, U.C.C.

672.208 Course of performance or practical construction.—

(1) Where the contract for sale involves repeated occasions for performance by either party with knowledge of the nature of the performance and opportunity for objection to it by the other, any course of performance accepted or acquiesced in without objection shall be relevant to determine the meaning of the agreement.

(2) The express terms of the agreement and any such course of performance, as well as any course of dealing and usage of trade, shall be construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other; but when such construction is unreasonable, express terms shall control course of performance and course of performance shall control both course of dealing and usage of trade (§671.205).

(3) Subject to the provisions of the next section on modification and waiver, such course of performance shall be relevant to show a waiver or modification of any term inconsistent with such course of performance.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-208, U.C.C.

672.209 Modification, rescission and waiver.—

(1) An agreement modifying a contract within this chapter needs no consideration to be binding.

(2) A signed agreement which excludes modification or rescission except by a signed writing cannot be otherwise modified or rescinded, but except as between merchants such a requirement on a form supplied by the merchant must be separately signed by the other party.

(3) The requirements of the statute of frauds section of this chapter (§672.201) must be satisfied if the contract as modified is within its provisions.

(4) Although an attempt at modification or rescission does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (2) or (3) it can operate as a waiver.

(5) A party who has made a waiver affecting an executory portion of the contract may retract the waiver by reasonable notification received by the other party that strict performance will be required of any term waived, unless the retraction would be unjust in view of a material change of position in reliance on the waiver.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-209, U.C.C.

672.210 Delegation of performance; assignment of rights.—

(1) A party may perform his duty through a delegate unless otherwise agreed or unless the other party has a substantial interest in having his original promisor perform or control the acts required by the contract. No delegation of performance relieves the party delegating of any duty to perform or any liability for breach.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed all rights of either seller or buyer can be assigned except where the assignment would materially change the duty of the other party, or increase materially the burden or risk imposed on him by his contract, or impair materially his chance of obtaining return performance. A right to damages for breach of the whole contract or a right arising out of the assignor's due performance of his entire obligation can be assigned despite agreement otherwise.

(3) Unless the circumstances indicate the contrary a prohibition of assignment of "the contract" is to be construed as barring only the delegation to the assignee of the assignor's performance.

(4) An assignment of "the contract" or of "all my rights under the contract" or an assignment in similar general terms is an assignment of rights and unless the language or the circumstances (as in an assignment for security) indicate the contrary, it is a delegation of performance of the duties of the assignor and its acceptance by the assignee constitutes a promise by him to perform those duties. This promise is enforceable by either the assignor or the other party to the original contract.

(5) The other party may treat any assignment which delegates performance as creating reasonable grounds for insecurity and may without prejudice to his rights against the assignor demand assurances from the assignee (§672.609).

672.302 Unconscionable contract or clause.—

without the unconscionable clause, or it may so limit the application of any unconscionable clause as to avoid any unconscionable result.

(2) When it is claimed or appears to the court that the contract or any clause thereof may be unconscionable the parties shall be afforded a reasonable opportunity to present evidence as to its commercial setting, purpose and effect to aid the court in making the determination.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-302, U.C.C.

672.303 Allocation or division of risks.—Where this chapter allocates a risk or a burden as between the parties “unless otherwise agreed”, the agreement may not only shift the allocation but may also divide the risk or burden.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-303, U.C.C.

672.304 Price payable in money, goods, realty, or otherwise.—

(1) The price can be made payable in money or otherwise. If it is payable in whole or in part in goods each party is a seller of the goods which he is to transfer.

(2) Even though all or part of the price is payable in an interest in realty the transfer of the goods and the seller's obligations with reference to them are subject to this chapter, but not the transfer of the interest in realty or the transferor's obligations in connection therewith.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-304, U.C.C.

672.305 Open price term.—

(1) The parties if they so intend can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled. In such a case the price is a reasonable price at the time for delivery if:

(a) Nothing is said as to price; or

(b) The price is left to be agreed by the parties and they fail to agree; or

(c) The price is to be fixed in terms of some agreed market or other standard as set or recorded by a third person or agency and it is not so set or recorded.

(2) A price to be fixed by the seller or by the buyer means a price for him to fix in good faith.

(3) When a price left to be fixed otherwise than by agreement of the parties fails to be fixed through fault of one party the other may at his option treat the contract as cancelled or himself fix a reasonable price.

(4) Where, however, the parties intend not to be bound unless the price be fixed or agreed and it is not fixed or agreed there is no contract. In such a case the buyer must return any goods already received or if unable so to do must pay their reasonable value at the time of delivery and the seller must return any portion of the price paid on account.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-305, U.C.C.

672.306 Output, requirements and exclusive dealings.—

(1) A term which measures the quantity by the output of the seller or the requirements of the buyer means such actual output or requirements as may occur in good faith, except that no quantity unreasonably disproportionate to any stated estimate or in the absence of a stated estimate to any normal or otherwise comparable prior output or requirements may be tendered or demanded.

(2) A lawful agreement by either the seller or the buyer for exclusive dealing in the kind of goods concerned imposes unless otherwise agreed an obligation by the seller to use best efforts to supply the goods and by the buyer to use best efforts to promote their sale.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-306, U.C.C.

672.307 Delivery in single lot or several lots.—Unless otherwise agreed all goods called for by a contract for sale must be tendered in a single delivery and payment is due only on such tender but where the circumstances give either party the right to make or demand delivery in lots the price if it can be apportioned may be demanded for each lot.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-307, U.C.C.

672.308 Absence of specified place for delivery.—Unless otherwise agreed:

(1) The place for delivery of goods is the seller's place of business or if he has none his residence; but

(2) In a contract for sale of identified goods which to the knowledge of the parties at the time of contracting are in some other place, that place is the place for their delivery; and

(3) Documents of title may be delivered through customary banking channels.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-308, U.C.C.

672.309 Absence of specific time provisions; notice of termination.—

(1) The time for shipment or delivery or any other action under a contract if not provided in this chapter or agreed upon shall be a reasonable time.

(2) Where the contract provides for successive performances but is indefinite in duration it is valid for a reasonable time but unless otherwise agreed may be terminated at any time by either party.

(3) Termination of a contract by one party except on the happening of an agreed event requires that reasonable notification be received by the other party and an agreement dispensing with notification is invalid if its operation would be unconscionable.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-309, U.C.C.

672.310 Open time for payment or running of credit; authority to ship under reservation.—Unless otherwise agreed:

(1) Payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the goods even though the place of shipment is the place of delivery; and

(2) If the seller is authorized to send the goods he may ship them under reservation, and may tender the documents of title, but the buyer may inspect the goods after their arrival before payment is due unless such inspection is inconsistent with the terms of the contract (§672.513); and

(3) If delivery is authorized and made by way of documents of title otherwise than by subsection (2) then payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the documents regardless of where the goods are to be received; and

(4) Where the seller is required or authorized to ship the goods on credit the credit period runs from the time of shipment but postdating the invoice or delaying its dispatch will correspondingly delay the starting of the credit period.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-310, U.C.C.

672.311 Options and cooperation respecting performance.—

(1) An agreement for sale which is otherwise sufficiently definite (§672.204(3)) to be a contract is not made invalid by the fact that it leaves particulars of performance to be specified by one of the parties. Any such specification must be made in good faith and within limits set by commercial reasonableness.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed specifications relating to assortment of the goods are at the buyer's option and except as otherwise provided in §672.319(1)(c), (3) specifications or arrangements relating to shipment are at the seller's option.

(3) Where such specification would materially affect the other party's performance but is not seasonably made or where one party's cooperation is necessary to the agreed performance of the other but is not seasonably forthcoming, the other party in addition to all other remedies:

(a) Is excused for any resulting delay in his own performance; and

(b) May also either proceed to perform in any reasonable manner or after the time for a material part of his own performance treat the failure to specify or to cooperate as a breach by failure to deliver or accept the goods.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-311, U.C.C.

672.312 Warranty of title and against infringement; buyer's obligation against infringement.—

(1) Subject to subsection (2) there is in a contract for sale a warranty by the seller that:

(a) The title conveyed shall be good, and its transfer rightful; and

(b) The goods shall be delivered free from any security interest or other lien or encumbrance of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) will be excluded or modified only by specific language or by circumstances which give the buyer reason to know that the person selling does not claim title in himself or that he is purporting to sell only such right or title as he or a third person may have.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed a seller who is a merchant regularly dealing in goods of the kind warrants that the goods shall be delivered free of the rightful claim of any third person by way of infringement or the like but a buyer who furnishes specifications to the seller must hold the seller harmless against any such claim which arises out of compliance with the specifications.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-312, U.C.C.

672.313 Express warranties by affirmation, promise, description, sample.—

(1) Express warranties by the seller are created as follows:

(a) Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer which relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the affirmation or promise.

(b) Any description of the goods which is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the description.

(c) Any sample or model which is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods shall conform to the sample or model.

(2) It is not necessary to the creation of an express warranty that the seller use formal words such as "warrant" or "guarantee" or that he have a specific intention to make a warranty, but an affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods does not create a warranty.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-313, U.C.C.

672.314 Implied warranty: merchantability; usage of trade.—

(1) Unless excluded or modified (§672.316), a warranty that the goods shall be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind. Under this section the serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale.

(2) Goods to be merchantable must be at least such as:

(a) Pass without objection in the trade under the contract description; and

(b) In the case of fungible goods, are of fair average quality within the description; and

(c) Are fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used; and

(d) Run, within the variations permitted by the agreement, of even kind, quality and quantity within each unit and among all units involved; and

(e) Are adequately contained, packaged, and labeled as the agreement may require; and

(f) Conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label if any.

(3) Unless excluded or modified (§672.316) other implied warranties may arise from course of dealing or usage of trade.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-314, U.C.C.

672.315 Implied warranty: fitness for particular purpose.—Where the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know any particular purpose for which the goods are required and that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods, there is unless excluded or modified under the next section an implied warranty that the goods shall be fit for such purpose.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-315, U.C.C.; supersedes §578.13.

672.316 Exclusion or modification of warranties.

(1) Words or conduct relevant to the creation of an express warranty and words or conduct tending to negate or limit warranty shall be construed wherever reasonable as consistent with each other; but subject to the provisions of this chapter on parol or extrinsic evidence (§672.202) negation or limitation is inoperative to the extent that such construction is unreasonable.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), to exclude or modify the implied warranty of merchantability or any part of it the language must mention merchantability and in case of a writing must be conspicuous, and to exclude or modify any implied warranty of fitness the exclusion must be by a writing and conspicuous. Language to exclude all implied warranties of fitness is sufficient if it states, for example, that "There are no warranties which extend beyond the description on the face hereof."

(3) Notwithstanding subsection (2):

(a) Unless the circumstances indicate otherwise, all implied warranties are excluded by expressions like "as is", "with all faults" or other language which in common understanding calls the buyer's attention to the exclusion of warranties and makes plain that there is no implied warranty; and

(b) When the buyer before entering into the contract has examined the goods or the sample or model as fully as he desired or has refused to examine the goods there is no implied warranty with regard to defects which an examination ought in the circumstances to have revealed to him; and

(c) An implied warranty can also be excluded or modified by course of dealing or course of performance or usage of trade.

(4) Remedies for breach of warranty can be limited in accordance with the provisions of this chapter on liquidation or limitation of damages and on contractual modification of remedy (§§672.718 and 672.719).

(5) The procurement, processing, storage, distribution, or use of whole blood, plasma, blood products, and blood derivatives for the purpose of injecting or transfusing the same, or any of them, into the human body for any purpose whatsoever is declared to be the rendering of a service by any person participating therein and does not constitute a sale, whether or not any consideration is given therefor, and the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose shall not be applicable as to a defect that cannot be detected or removed by reasonable use of scientific procedures or techniques.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254; §1, ch. 69-157.

Note.—§2-316, U.C.C.

672.317 Cumulation and conflict of warranties express or implied.—Warranties whether express or implied shall be construed as consistent with each other and as cumulative, but if such construction is unreasonable the intention of the parties shall determine which warranty is dominant. In ascertaining that intention the following rules apply:

(1) Exact or technical specifications displace an inconsistent sample or model or general language of description.

(2) A sample from an existing bulk displaces inconsistent general language of description.

(3) Express warranties displace inconsistent implied warranties other than an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-317, U.C.C.

672.318 Third party beneficiaries of warranties express or implied.—A seller's warranty whether express or implied extends to any natural person who is in the family or household of his buyer, who is a guest in his home or who is an employee, servant or agent of his buyer if it is reasonable to expect that such person may use, consume or be affected by the goods and who is injured in person by breach of the warranty. A seller may not exclude nor limit the operation of this section.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254; §1, ch. 67-574.

Note.—§2-318, U.C.C.

672.319 F.O.B. and F.A.S. terms.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed the term F.O.B. (which means "free on board") at a named place, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which:

(a) When the term is F.O.B. the place of shipment, the seller must at that place ship the goods in the manner provided in this chapter (§672.504) and bear the expense and risk of putting them into the possession of the carrier; or

(b) When the term is F.O.B. the place of destination, the seller must at his own expense and risk transport the goods to that place and there tender delivery of them in the manner provided in this chapter (§672.503);

(c) When under either (a) or (b) the term is also F.O.B. vessel, car or other vehicle, the seller must in addition at his own expense and risk load the goods on board. If the term is F.O.B. vessel the buyer must name the vessel and in an appropriate case the seller must comply with the provisions of this chapter on the form of bill of lading (§672.323).

(2) Unless otherwise agreed the term F.A.S. vessel (which means "free alongside") at a named port, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which the seller must:

(a) At his own expense and risk deliver the goods alongside the vessel in the manner usual in that port or on a dock designated and provided by the buyer; and

(b) Obtain and tender a receipt for the goods in exchange for which the carrier is under a duty to issue a bill of lading.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed in any case falling within subsection (1) (a) or (c) or subsection (2) the buyer must seasonably give any needed instructions for making delivery, including when the term is F.A.S. or F.O.B. the loading berth of the vessel and in an appropriate case its name and sailing date. The seller may treat the failure of needed instructions as a failure of cooperation under this chapter (§672.311). He may also at his option move the goods in any reasonable manner preparatory to delivery or shipment.

(4) Under the term F.O.B. vessel or F.A.S. unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-319, U.C.C.

672.320 C.I.F. and C.&F. terms.—

(1) The term C.I.F. means that the price includes in a lump sum the cost of the goods and the insurance and freight to the named destination. The term C. & F. or C.F. means that the price so includes cost and freight to the named destination.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed and even though used only in connection with the stated price and destination, the term C.I.F. destination or its equivalent requires the seller at his own expense and risk to:

(a) Put the goods into the possession of a carrier at the port for shipment and obtain a negotiable bill or bills of lading covering the entire transportation to the named destination; and

(b) Load the goods and obtain a receipt from the carrier (which may be contained in the bill of lading) showing that the freight has been paid or provided for; and

(c) Obtain a policy or certificate of insurance, including any war risk insurance, of a kind and on terms then current at the port of shipment in the usual amount, in the currency of the contract, shown to cover the same goods covered by the bill of lading and providing for payment of loss to the order of the buyer or for the account of whom it may concern; but the seller may add to the price the amount of the premium for any such war risk insurance; and

(d) Prepare an invoice of the goods and procure any other documents required to effect shipment or to comply with the contract; and

(e) Forward and tender with commercial promptness all the documents in due form and with any indorsement necessary to perfect the buyer's rights.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term C. & F. or its equivalent has the same effect and imposes upon the seller the same obligations and risks as a C.I.F. term except the obligation as to insurance.

(4) Under the term C.I.F. or C. & F. unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-320, U.C.C.

672.321 C.I.F. or C. & F.: "net landed weights"; "payment on arrival"; warranty of condition on arrival.—Under a contract containing a term C.I.F. or C. & F.:

(1) Where the price is based on or is to be adjusted according to "net landed weights", "delivered weights", "out turn" quantity or quality or the like, unless otherwise agreed the seller must reasonably estimate the price. The payment due on tender of the documents called for by the contract is the amount so estimated, but after final adjustment of the price a settlement must be made with commercial promptness.

(2) An agreement described in subsection (1) or any warranty of quality or condition of the goods on arrival places upon the seller the risk of ordinary deterioration, shrinkage and the like in transportation but has no effect on the place or time of identification to the contract for sale or delivery or on the passing of the risk of loss.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed where the contract provides for payment on or after arrival of the goods the seller must before payment allow such preliminary inspection as is feasible; but if the goods are lost delivery of the documents and payment are due when the goods should have arrived.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-321, U.C.C.

672.322 Delivery "ex-ship".—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed a term for delivery of goods "ex-ship" (which means from the carrying vessel) or in equivalent language is not restricted to a particular ship and requires delivery from a ship which has reached a place at the named port of destination where goods of the kind are usually discharged.

(2) Under such a term unless otherwise agreed:

(a) The seller must discharge all liens arising out of the carriage and furnish the buyer with a direction which puts the carrier under a duty to deliver the goods; and

(b) The risk of loss does not pass to the buyer until the goods leave the ship's tackle or are otherwise properly unloaded.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-322, U.C.C.

672.323 Form of bill of lading required in overseas shipment; "overseas".—

(1) Where the contract contemplates overseas shipment and contains a term C.I.F. or C. & F. or F.O.B. vessel, the seller unless otherwise agreed must obtain a negotiable bill of lading stating that the goods have been loaded on board or, in the case of a term C.I.F. or C. & F., received for shipment.

(2) Where in a case within subsection (1) a bill of lading has been issued in a set of parts, unless otherwise agreed if the documents are not to be sent from abroad the buyer may demand tender of the full set; otherwise only one part of the bill of lading need be tendered. Even if the agreement expressly requires a full set:

(a) Due tender of a single part is acceptable within the provisions of this chapter on cure of improper delivery (§672.508(1)); and

(b) Even though the full set is demanded, if the documents are sent from abroad the person tendering an incomplete set may nevertheless require payment upon furnishing an indemnity which the buyer in good faith deems adequate.

(3) A shipment by water or by air or a contract contemplating such shipment is "overseas" insofar as by usage of trade or agreement it is subject to the commercial, financing or shipping practices characteristic of international deep water commerce.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-323, U.C.C.

672.324 "No arrival, no sale" term.—Under a term "no arrival, no sale" or terms of like meaning, unless otherwise agreed:

(1) The seller must properly ship conforming goods and if they arrive by any means he must tender them on arrival but he assumes no obligation that the goods will arrive unless he has caused the non-arrival; and

(2) Where without fault of the seller the goods are in part lost or have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract or arrive after the contract time, the buyer may proceed as if there had been casualty to identified goods (§672.613).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-324, U.C.C.

672.325 "Letter of credit" term; "confirmed credit".—

(1) Failure of the buyer seasonably to furnish an agreed letter of credit is a breach of the contract for sale.

(2) The delivery to seller of a proper letter of credit suspends the buyer's obligation to pay. If the letter of credit is dishonored, the seller may on seasonable notification to the buyer require payment directly from him.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term "letter of credit" or "banker's credit" in a contract for sale means an irrevocable credit issued by a financing agency of good repute and, where the shipment is overseas, of good international repute. The term "confirmed credit" means that the credit must also carry the direct obligation of such an agency which does business in the seller's financial market.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-325, U.C.C.

672.326 Sale on approval and sale or return; consignment sales and rights of creditors.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed, if delivered goods may be returned by the buyer even though they conform to the contract, the transaction is:

(a) A "sale on approval" if the goods are delivered primarily for use, and

(b) A "sale or return" if the goods are delivered primarily for resale.

(2) Except as provided in subsection (3), goods held on approval are not subject to the claims of the buyer's creditors until acceptance; goods held on sale or return are subject to such claims while in the buyer's possession.

(3) Where goods are delivered to a person for sale and such person maintains a place of business at which he deals in goods of the kind involved, under a name other than the name of the person making delivery, then with respect to claims of creditors of the person conducting the business the goods are deemed to be on sale or return. The provisions of this subsection are applicable even though an agreement purports to reserve title to the person making delivery until payment or resale or uses such words as "on consignment" or "on memorandum". However, this subsection is not applicable if the person making delivery:

(a) Complies with an applicable law providing for a consignor's interest or the like to be evidenced by a sign, or

(b) Establishes that the person conducting the business is generally known by his creditors to be substantially engaged in selling the goods of others, or

(c) Complies with the filing provisions of the chapter on secured transactions (chapter 679).

(4) Any "or return" term of a contract for sale is to be treated as a separate contract for sale within the statute of frauds section of this chapter (§672.201) and as contradicting the sale aspect of the contract within the provisions of this chapter on parol or extrinsic evidence (§672.202).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-326, U.C.C.

672.327 Special incidents of sale on approval and sale or return.—

(1) Under a sale on approval unless otherwise agreed:

(a) Although the goods are identified to the contract the risk of loss and the title do not pass to the buyer until acceptance; and

(b) Use of the goods consistent with the purpose of trial is not acceptance but failure seasonably to notify the seller of election to return the goods is acceptance, and if the goods conform to the contract acceptance of any part is acceptance of the whole; and

(c) After due notification of election to return, the return is at the seller's risk and expense but a merchant buyer must follow any reasonable instructions.

(2) Under a sale or return unless otherwise agreed:

(a) The option to return extends to the whole or any commercial unit of the goods while in substantially their original condition, but must be exercised seasonably; and

(b) The return is at the buyer's risk and expense.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-327, U.C.C.

672.328 Sale by auction.—

(1) In a sale by auction if goods are put up in lots each lot is the subject of a separate sale.

(2) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer so announces by the fall of the hammer or in other customary manner. Where a bid is made while the hammer is falling in acceptance of a prior bid the auctioneer may in his discretion reopen the bidding or declare the goods sold under the bid on which the hammer was falling.

(3) Such a sale is with reserve unless the goods are in explicit terms put up without reserve. In an auction with reserve the auctioneer may withdraw the goods at any time until he announces completion of the sale. In an auction without reserve, after the auctioneer calls for bids on an article or lot, that article or lot cannot be withdrawn unless no bid is made within a reasonable time. In either case a bidder may retract his bid until the auctioneer's announcement of completion of the sale, but a bidder's retraction does not revive any previous bid.

(4) If the auctioneer knowingly receives a bid on the seller's behalf or the seller makes or procures such a bid, and notice has not been given that liberty for such bidding is reserved, the buyer may at his option avoid the sale or take the goods at the price of the last good faith bid prior to the completion of the sale. This subsection shall not apply to any bid at a forced sale.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

PART IV

TITLE, CREDITORS AND GOOD FAITH PURCHASERS

672.401 Passing of title; reservation for security; limited application of this section.

672.401 Passing of title; reservation for security; limited application of this section.—Each provision of this chapter with regard to the rights, obligations and remedies of the seller, the buyer, purchasers or other third parties applies irrespective of title to the goods except where the provision refers to such title. Insofar as situations are not covered by the other provisions of this chapter and matters concerning title become material the following rules apply:

(1) Title to goods cannot pass under a contract for sale prior to their identification to the contract (§672.501), and unless otherwise explicitly agreed the buyer acquires by their identification a special property as limited by this code. Any retention or reservation by the seller of the title (property) in goods shipped or delivered to the buyer is limited in effect to a reservation of a security interest. Subject to these provisions and to the provisions of the chapter on secured transactions (chapter 679), title to goods passes from the seller to the buyer in any manner and on any conditions explicitly agreed on by the parties.

(2) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed title passes to the buyer at the time and place at which the seller completes his performance with reference to the physical delivery of the goods, despite any reservation of a security interest and even though a document of title is to be delivered at a different time or place; and in particular and despite any reservation of a security interest by the bill of lading:

672.402 Rights of seller's creditors against sold goods.

672.403 Power to transfer; good faith purchase of goods; "entrusting".

(a) If the contract requires or authorizes the seller to send the goods to the buyer but does not require him to deliver them at destination, title passes to the buyer at the time and place of shipment; but

(b) If the contract requires delivery at destination, title passes on tender there.

(3) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed where delivery is to be made without moving the goods:

(a) If the seller is to deliver a document of title, title passes at the time when and the place where he delivers such documents; or

(b) If the goods are at the time of contracting already identified and no documents are to be delivered, title passes at the time and place of contracting.

(4) A rejection or other refusal by the buyer to receive or retain the goods, whether or not justified, or a justified revocation of acceptance reverts title to the goods in the seller. Such reversion occurs by operation of law and is not a "sale".

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-401, U.C.C.

672.402 Rights of seller's creditors against sold goods.—

(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), rights of unsecured creditors of the seller with respect to goods which have been identified to a contract for sale are subject to the buyer's rights to recover the goods under this chapter (§§672.502 and 672.716).

(2) A creditor of the seller may treat a sale or an identification of goods to a contract for sale as void if as against him a retention of possession by the seller is fraudulent under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated, except that retention of possession in good faith and current course of trade by a merchant-seller for a commercially reasonable time after a sale or identification is not fraudulent.

(3) Nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to impair the rights of creditors of the seller:

(a) Under the provisions of the chapter on secured transactions (chapter 679); or

(b) Where identification to the contract or delivery is made not in current course of trade but in satisfaction of or as security for a pre-existing claim for money, security or the like and is made under circumstances which under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated would apart from this chapter constitute the transaction a fraudulent transfer or voidable preference.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-402, U.C.C.

672.403 Power to transfer; good faith purchase of goods; "entrusting".—

(1) A purchaser of goods acquires all title which his transferor had or had power to transfer except that a purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased. A person with voidable title has power to transfer a good title to a good faith purchaser for value. When goods have been delivered under a transaction of purchase the purchaser has such power even though:

(a) The transferor was deceived as to the identity of the purchaser, or

(b) The delivery was in exchange for a check which is later dishonored, or

(c) It was agreed that the transaction was to be a "cash sale", or

(d) The delivery was procured through fraud punishable as larcenous under the criminal law.

(2) Any entrusting of possession of goods to a merchant who deals in goods of that kind gives him power to transfer all rights of the entruster to a buyer in ordinary course of business.

(3) "Entrusting" includes any delivery and any acquiescence in retention of possession regardless of any condition expressed between the parties to the delivery or acquiescence and regardless of whether the procurement of the entrusting or the possessor's disposition of the goods have been such as to be larcenous under the criminal law.

(4) The rights of other purchasers of goods and of lien creditors are governed by the chapters on secured transactions (chapter 679), bulk transfers (chapter 676) and documents of title (chapter 677).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-403, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.09.

PERFORMANCE

- 672.501 Insurable interest in goods; manner of identification of goods.
- 672.502 Buyer's right to goods on seller's insolvency.
- 672.503 Manner of seller's tender of delivery.
- 672.504 Shipment by seller.

- 672.506 Rights of financing agency.
- 672.507 Effect of seller's tender; delivery on condition.
- 672.508 Cure by seller of improper tender or delivery; replacement.

672.501 Insurable interest in goods; manner of identification of goods.—

(1) The buyer obtains a special property and an insurable interest in goods by identification of existing goods as goods to which the contract refers even though the goods so identified are non-conforming and he has an option to return or reject them. Such identification can be made at any time and in any manner explicitly agreed to by the parties. In the absence of explicit agreement identification occurs:

(a) When the contract is made if it is for the sale of goods already existing and identified;

(b) If the contract is for the sale of future goods other than those described in paragraph (c), when goods are shipped, marked or other-

- 672.511 Tender of payment by buyer; payment by check.
- 672.512 Payment by buyer before inspection.

wise designated by the seller as goods to which the contract refers;

(c) When the crops are planted or otherwise become growing crops or the young are conceived if the contract is for the sale of unborn young to be born within twelve months after contracting or for the sale of crops to be harvested within twelve months or the next normal harvest season after contracting whichever is longer.

(2) The seller retains an insurable interest in goods so long as title to or any security interest in the goods remains in him and where the identification is by the seller alone he may until default or insolvency or notification to the buyer that the identification is final substitute other goods for those identified.

(3) Nothing in this section impairs any insurable interest recognized under any other statute or rule of law.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-501, U.C.C.

672.502 Buyer's right to goods on seller's insolvency.—

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and even though the goods have not been shipped a buyer who has paid a part or all of the price of goods in which he has a special property under the provisions of the immediately preceding section may on making and keeping good a tender of any unpaid portion of their price recover them from the seller if the seller becomes insolvent within ten days after receipt of the first installment on their price.

(2) If the identification creating his special property has been made by the buyer he acquires the right to recover the goods only if they conform to the contract for sale.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-502, U.C.C.

672.503 Manner of seller's tender of delivery.—

(1) Tender of delivery requires that the seller put and hold conforming goods at the buyer's disposition and give the buyer any notification reasonably necessary to enable him to take delivery. The manner, time and place for tender are determined by the agreement and this chapter, and in particular:

(a) Tender must be at a reasonable hour, and if it is of goods they must be kept available for the period reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take possession; but

(b) Unless otherwise agreed the buyer must furnish facilities reasonably suited to the receipt of the goods.

(2) Where the case is within the next section respecting shipment tender requires that the seller comply with its provisions.

(3) Where the seller is required to deliver at a particular destination tender requires that he comply with subsection (1) and also in any appropriate case tender documents as described in subsections (4) and (5) of this section.

(4) Where goods are in the possession of a bailee and are to be delivered without being moved:

(a) Tender requires that the seller either tender a negotiable document of title covering such goods or procure acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; but

(b) Tender to the buyer of a non-negotiable document of title or of a written direction to the bailee to deliver is sufficient tender unless the buyer seasonably objects, and receipt by the bailee of notification of the buyer's rights fixes those rights as against the bailee and all third persons; but risk of loss of the goods and of any failure by the bailee to honor the non-negotiable document of title or to obey the direction remains on the seller until the buyer has had a reasonable time to present the document or direction, and a refusal by the bailee to honor the document or to obey the direction defeats the tender.

(5) Where the contract requires the seller to deliver documents:

(a) He must tender all such documents in correct form, except as provided in this chapter with respect to bills of lading in a set (§672-323(2)); and

(b) Tender through customary banking channels is sufficient and dishonor of a draft accompanying the documents constitutes non-acceptance or rejection.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-503, U.C.C.

672.504 Shipment by seller.—Where the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer and the contract does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination, then unless otherwise agreed he must:

(1) Put the goods in the possession of such a carrier and make such a contract for their transportation as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and other circumstances of the case; and

(2) Obtain and promptly deliver or tender in due form any document necessary to enable the buyer to obtain possession of the goods or otherwise required by the agreement or by usage of trade; and

(3) Promptly notify the buyer of the shipment.

Failure to notify the buyer under subsection (3) or to make a proper contract under subsection (1) is a ground for rejection only if material delay or loss ensues.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-504, U.C.C.

672.505 Seller's shipment under reservation.—

(1) Where the seller has identified goods to the contract by or before shipment:

(a) His procurement of a negotiable bill of lading to his own order or otherwise reserves in him a security interest in the goods. His procurement of the bill to the order of a financing agency or of the buyer indicates in addition only the seller's expectation of transferring that interest to the person named.

(b) A non-negotiable bill of lading to himself or his nominee reserves possession of the goods as security but except in a case of conditional delivery (§672.507(2)) a non-negotiable bill of lading naming the buyer as consignee reserves no security interest even though the seller retains possession of the bill of lading.

(2) When shipment by the seller with reservation of a security interest is in violation of the contract for sale it constitutes an improper contract for transportation within the preceding section but impairs neither the rights given to the buyer by shipment and identification of the goods to the contract nor the seller's powers as a holder of a negotiable document.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-505, U.C.C.

672.506 Rights of financing agency.—

(1) A financing agency by paying or purchasing for value a draft which relates to a shipment of goods acquires to the extent of the payment or purchase and in addition to its own rights under the draft and any document of title securing it any rights of the shipper in the goods including the right to stop delivery and the shipper's right to have the draft honored by the buyer.

(2) The right to reimbursement of a financing agency which has in good faith honored or purchased the draft under commitment to or authority from the buyer is not impaired by subsequent discovery of defects with reference to any relevant document which was apparently regular on its face.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-506, U.C.C.

672.507 Effect of seller's tender; delivery on condition.—

(1) Tender of delivery is a condition to the buyer's duty to accept the goods and, unless otherwise agreed, to his duty to pay for them. Tender entitles the seller to acceptance of the goods and to payment according to the contract.

(2) Where payment is due and demanded on the delivery to the buyer of goods or documents of title, his right as against the seller to retain or dispose of them is conditional upon his making the payment due.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-507, U.C.C.

672.508 Cure by seller of improper tender or delivery; replacement.—

(1) Where any tender or delivery by the seller is rejected because non-conforming and the time for performance has not yet expired, the seller may seasonably notify the buyer of his intention to cure and may then within the contract time make a conforming delivery.

(2) Where the buyer rejects a non-conforming tender which the seller had reasonable grounds to believe would be acceptable with or without money allowance the seller may if he seasonably notifies the buyer have a further reasonable time to substitute a conforming tender.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-508, U.C.C.

672.509 Risk of loss in the absence of breach.—

(1) Where the contract requires or authorizes the seller to ship the goods by carrier:

(a) If it does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are duly delivered to the carrier even though the shipment is under reservation (§672.505); but

(b) If it does require him to deliver them at a particular destination and the goods are there duly tendered while in the possession of the carrier, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are there duly so tendered as to enable the buyer to take delivery.

(2) Where the goods are held by a bailee to be delivered without being moved, the risk of loss passes to the buyer:

(a) On his receipt of a negotiable document of title covering the goods; or

(b) On acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; or

(c) After his receipt of a non-negotiable document of title or other written direction to deliver, as provided in §672.503(4)(b).

(3) In any case not within subsection (1) or (2), the risk of loss passes to the buyer on his receipt of the goods if the seller is a merchant; otherwise the risk passes to the buyer on tender of delivery.

(4) The provisions of this section are subject to contrary agreement of the parties and to the provisions of this chapter on sale on approval (§672.327) and on effect of breach on risk of loss (§672.510).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-509, U.C.C.

672.510 Effect of breach on risk of loss.—

(1) Where a tender or delivery of goods so fails to conform to the contract as to give a right of rejection the risk of their loss remains on the seller until cure or acceptance.

(2) Where the buyer rightfully revokes acceptance he may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as having rested on the seller from the beginning.

(3) Where the buyer as to conforming goods already identified to the contract for sale repudiates or is otherwise in breach before risk of their loss has passed to him, the seller may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as resting on the buyer for a commercially reasonable time.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-510, U.C.C.

672.511 Tender of payment by buyer; payment by check.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed tender of payment is a condition to the seller's duty to tender and complete any delivery.

(2) Tender of payment is sufficient when made by any means or in any manner current in the ordinary course of business unless the seller demands payment in legal tender and gives any extension of time reasonably necessary to procure it.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this code on the effect of an instrument on an obligation (§673.802), payment by check is conditional and is defeated as between the parties by dishonor of the check on due presentment.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-511, U.C.C.

672.512 Payment by buyer before inspection.—

(1) Where the contract requires payment before inspection non-conformity of the goods does not excuse the buyer from so making payment unless:

(a) The non-conformity appears without inspection; or

(b) Despite tender of the required documents the circumstances would justify injunction against honor under the provisions of this code (§675.114).

(2) Payment pursuant to subsection (1) does not constitute an acceptance of goods or impair the buyer's right to inspect or any of his remedies.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-512, U.C.C.

672.513 Buyer's right to inspection of goods.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to subsection (3), where goods are tendered or delivered or identified to the contract for sale, the buyer has a right before payment or acceptance to inspect them at any reasonable place and time and in any reasonable manner. When the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer, the inspection may be after their arrival.

(2) Expenses of inspection must be borne by the buyer but may be recovered from the seller if the goods do not conform and are rejected.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to the provisions of this chapter on C.I.F. contracts (§672.321(3)), the buyer is not entitled to inspect the goods before payment of the price when the contract provides:

(a) For delivery "C.O.D." or on other like terms; or

(b) For payment against documents of title, except where such payment is due only after the goods are to become available for inspection.

(4) A place or method of inspection fixed by the parties is presumed to be exclusive but unless otherwise expressly agreed it does not postpone identification or shift the place for delivery or for passing the risk of loss. If compliance becomes impossible, inspection shall be as provided in this section unless the place or method fixed was clearly intended as an indispensable condition failure of which avoids the contract.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-513, U.C.C.

672.514 When documents deliverable on acceptance; when on payment.—Unless otherwise agreed documents against which a draft is drawn are to be delivered to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment; otherwise, only on payment.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-514, U.C.C.

672.515 Preserving evidence of goods in dispute.—In furtherance of the adjustment of any claim or dispute:

(1) Either party on reasonable notification to the other and for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and preserving evidence has the right to inspect, test and sample the goods including such of them as may be in the possession or control of the other; and form to the contract, the buyer may:

(2) The parties may agree to a third party inspection or survey to determine the conformity or condition of the goods and may agree that the findings shall be binding upon them in any subsequent litigation or adjustment.

- (1) Reject the whole; or
- (2) Accept the whole; or
- (3) Accept any commercial unit or units and reject the rest.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-601, U.C.C.

672.602 Manner and effect of rightful rejection.—

(1) Rejection of goods must be within a reasonable time after their delivery or tender. It is ineffective unless the buyer seasonably notifies the seller.

(2) Subject to the provisions of the two following sections on rejected goods (§§672.603 and 672.604):

(a) After rejection any exercise of ownership by the buyer with respect to any commercial unit is wrongful as against the seller; and

(b) If the buyer has before rejection taken physical possession of goods in which he does not have a security interest under the provisions of this chapter (§672.711(3)), he is under a duty after rejection to hold them with reasonable care at the seller's disposition for a time sufficient to permit the seller to remove them; but

(c) The buyer has no further obligations with regard to goods rightfully rejected.

(3) The seller's rights with respect to goods wrongfully rejected are governed by the provisions of this chapter on seller's remedies in general (§672.703).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-602, U.C.C.

672.603 Merchant buyer's duties as to rightfully rejected goods.—

(1) Subject to any security interest in the buyer (§672.711(3)) when the seller has no agent or place of business at the market of rejection a merchant buyer is under a duty after rejection of goods in his possession or control to follow any reasonable instructions received from the seller with respect to the goods and in the absence of such instructions to make reasonable efforts to sell them for the seller's account if they are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily. Instructions are not reasonable if on demand indemnity for expenses is not forthcoming.

(2) When the buyer sells goods under subsection (1), he is entitled to reimbursement from the seller or out of the proceeds for reasonable expenses of caring for and selling them, and if the expenses include no selling commission then to such commission as is usual in the trade or if there is none to a reasonable sum not exceeding ten per cent on the gross proceeds.

(3) In complying with this section the buyer is held only to good faith and good faith conduct hereunder is neither acceptance nor conversion nor the basis of an action for damages.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-603, U.C.C.

672.604 Buyer's options as to salvage of rightfully rejected goods.—Subject to the provisions of the immediately preceding section on perishables if the seller gives no instructions within a reasonable time after notification of rejection the buyer may store the rejected goods for the seller's account or reship them to him or resell them for the seller's account with reimbursement as provided in the preceding section. Such action is not acceptance or conversion.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-604, U.C.C.

672.605 Waiver of buyer's objections by failure to particularize.—

(1) The buyer's failure to state in connection with rejection a particular defect which is ascertainable by reasonable inspection precludes him from relying on the unstated defect to justify rejection or to establish breach:

(a) Where the seller could have cured it if stated seasonably; or

(b) Between merchants when the seller has after rejection made a request in writing for a full and final written statement of all defects on which the buyer proposes to rely.

(2) Payment against documents made without reservation of rights precludes recovery of the payment for defects apparent on the face of the documents.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-605, U.C.C.

672.606 What constitutes acceptance of goods.—

(1) Acceptance of goods occurs when the buyer:

(a) After a reasonable opportunity to inspect the goods signifies to the seller that the goods are conforming or that he will take or retain them in spite of their non-conformity; or

(b) Fails to make an effective rejection (§672.602(1)), but such acceptance does not occur until the buyer has had a reasonable opportunity to inspect them; or

(c) Does any act inconsistent with the seller's ownership; but if such act is wrongful as against the seller it is an acceptance only if ratified by him.

(2) Acceptance of a part of any commercial unit is acceptance of that entire unit.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-606, U.C.C.

672.607 Effect of acceptance; notice of breach; burden of establishing breach after acceptance; notice of claim or litigation to person answerable over.—

(1) The buyer must pay at the contract rate for any goods accepted.

(2) Acceptance of goods by the buyer precludes rejection of the goods accepted and if made with knowledge of a non-conformity cannot be revoked because of it unless the acceptance was on the reasonable assumption that the non-conformity would be seasonably cured but acceptance does not of itself impair any other remedy provided by this chapter for non-conformity.

(3) Where a tender has been accepted:

(a) The buyer must within a reasonable time after he discovers or should have discovered any breach notify the seller of breach or be barred from any remedy; and

(b) If the claim is one for infringement or the like (§672.312(3)) and the buyer is sued as a result of such a breach he must so notify the seller within a reasonable time after he receives notice of the litigation or be barred from any remedy over for liability established by the litigation.

(4) The burden is on the buyer to establish any breach with respect to the goods accepted.

(5) Where the buyer is sued for breach of a warranty or other obligation for which his seller is answerable over:

(a) He may give his seller written notice of the litigation. If the notice states that the seller may come in and defend and that if the seller does not do so he will be bound in any action against him by his buyer by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless the seller after seasonable receipt of the notice does come in and defend he is so bound.

(b) If the claim is one for infringement or the like (§672.312(3)) the original seller may demand in writing that his buyer turn over to him control of the litigation including settlement or else be barred from any remedy over and if he also agrees to bear all expense and to satisfy any adverse judgment, then unless the buyer after seasonable receipt of the demand does turn over control the buyer is so barred.

(6) The provisions of subsections (3), (4) and (5) apply to any obligation of a buyer to hold the seller harmless against infringement or the like (§672.312(3)).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-607, U.C.C.

672.608 Revocation of acceptance in whole or in part.—

(1) The buyer may revoke his acceptance of a lot or commercial unit whose non-conformity substantially impairs its value to him if he has accepted it:

(a) On the reasonable assumption that its non-conformity would be cured and it has not been seasonably cured; or

(b) Without discovery of such non-conformity if his acceptance was reasonably induced either by the difficulty of discovery before acceptance or by the seller's assurances.

(2) Revocation of acceptance must occur within a reasonable time after the buyer discovers or should have discovered the ground for it and before any substantial change in condition of the goods which is not caused by their own defects. It is not effective until the buyer notifies the seller of it.

(3) A buyer who so revokes has the same rights and duties with regard to the goods involved as if he had rejected them.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-608, U.C.C.

672.609 Right to adequate assurance of performance.—

(1) A contract for sale imposes an obligation on each party that the other's expectation of receiving due performance will not be impaired. When reasonable grounds for insecurity arise with respect to the performance of either party the other may in writing demand adequate assurance of due performance and until he receives such assurance may if commercially reasonable suspend any performance for which he has not already received the agreed return.

(2) Between merchants the reasonableness of grounds for insecurity and the adequacy of any assurance offered shall be determined according to commercial standards.

(3) Acceptance of any improper delivery or payment does not prejudice the aggrieved party's right to demand adequate assurance of future performance.

(4) After receipt of a justified demand failure to provide within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days such assurance of due performance as is adequate under the circumstances of the particular case is a repudiation of the contract.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-609, U.C.C.

672.610 Anticipatory repudiation.—When either party repudiates the contract with respect to a performance not yet due the loss of which will substantially impair the value of the contract to the other, the aggrieved party may:

(1) For a commercially reasonable time await performance by the repudiating party; or

(2) Resort to any remedy for breach (§672.703 or §672.711), even though he has notified the repudiating party that he would await the latter's performance and has urged retraction; and

(3) In either case suspend his own performance or proceed in accordance with the provisions of this chapter on the seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods (§672.704).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-610, U.C.C.

672.611 Retraction of anticipatory repudiation.—

(1) Until the repudiating party's next performance is due he can retract his repudiation unless the aggrieved party has since the repudiation cancelled or materially changed his position or otherwise indicated that he considers the repudiation final.

(2) Retraction may be by any method which clearly indicates to the aggrieved party that the repudiating party intends to perform, but must include any assurance justifiably demanded under the provisions of this chapter (§672.609).

(3) Retraction reinstates the repudiating party's rights under the contract with due excuse and allowance to the aggrieved party for any delay occasioned by the repudiation.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-611, U.C.C.

672.612 "Installment contract"; breach.—

(1) An "installment contract" is one which requires or authorizes the delivery of goods in separate lots to be separately accepted, even though the contract contains a clause "each delivery is a separate contract" or its equivalent.

(2) The buyer may reject any installment which is non-conforming if the non-conformity substantially impairs the value of that installment and cannot be cured or if the non-conformity is a defect in the required documents; but if the non-conformity does not fall within subsection (3) and the seller gives adequate assurance of its cure the buyer must accept that installment.

(3) Whenever non-conformity or default with respect to one or more installments substantially impairs the value of the whole contract there is a breach of the whole. But the aggrieved party reinstates the contract if he accepts a non-conforming installment without seasonably notifying of cancellation or if he brings an action with respect only to past installments or demands performance as to future installments.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-612, U.C.C.

672.613 Casualty to identified goods.—Where the contract requires for its performance goods identified when the contract is made, and the goods suffer casualty without fault of either party before the risk of loss passes to the buyer, or in a proper case under a "no arrival, no sale" term (§672.324) then:

(1) If the loss is total the contract is avoided; and

(2) If the loss is partial or the goods have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract the buyer may nevertheless demand inspection and at his option either treat the contract as avoided or accept the goods with due allowance from the contract price for the deterioration or the deficiency in quantity but without further right against the seller.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-613, U.C.C.

672.614 Substituted performance.—

(1) Where without fault of either party the agreed berthing, loading, or unloading facilities fail or an agreed type of carrier becomes unavailable or the agreed manner of delivery otherwise becomes commercially impracticable but a commercially reasonable substitute is available, such substitute performance must be tendered and accepted.

(2) If the agreed means or manner of payment fails because of domestic or foreign governmental regulation, the seller may withhold or stop delivery unless the buyer provides a means or manner of payment which is commercially a substantial equivalent. If delivery has already been taken, payment by the means or in the manner provided by the regulation discharges the buyer's obligation unless the regulation is discriminatory, oppressive or predatory.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-614, U.C.C.

672.615 Excuse by failure of presupposed conditions.—Except so far as a seller may have assumed a greater obligation and subject to the preceding section on substituted performance:

(1) Delay in delivery or non-delivery in whole or in part by a seller who complies with subsections (2) and (3) is not a breach of his duty under a contract for sale if performance as agreed has been made impracticable by the occurrence of a contingency the non-occurrence of which was a basic assumption on which the contract was made or by compliance in good faith with any applicable foreign or domestic governmental regulation or order whether or not it later proves to be invalid.

(2) Where the causes mentioned in subsection (1) affect only a part of the seller's capacity to perform, he must allocate production and deliveries among his customers but may at his option include regular customers not then under contract as well as his own requirements for further manufacture. He may so allocate in any manner which is fair and reasonable.

(3) The seller must notify the buyer seasonably that there will be delay or non-delivery and, when allocation is required under subsection (2), of the estimated quota thus made available for the buyer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-615, U.C.C.

672.616 Procedure on notice claiming excuse.—

(1) Where the buyer receives notification of a material or indefinite delay or an allocation justified under the preceding section he may by written notification to the seller as to any delivery concerned, and where the prospective deficiency substantially impairs the value of the whole contract under the provisions of this chapter relating to breach of installment contracts (§672.612), then also as to the whole:

(a) Terminate and thereby discharge any unexecuted portion of the contract; or

(b) Modify the contract by agreeing to take his available quota in substitution.

(2) If after receipt of such notification from the seller the buyer fails so to modify the contract within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days the contract lapses with respect to any deliveries affected.

(3) The provisions of this section may not be negated by agreement except in so far as the seller has assumed a greater obligation under the preceding section.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

|--|---|

672.701 Remedies for breach of collateral contracts not impaired.—Remedies for breach of any obligation or promise collateral or ancillary to a contract for sale are not impaired by the provisions of this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-701, U.C.C.

672.702 Seller's remedies on discovery of buyer's insolvency.—

(1) Where the seller discovers the buyer to be insolvent he may refuse delivery except for cash including payment for all goods theretofore delivered under the contract, and stop delivery under this chapter (§672.705).

(2) Where the seller discovers that the buyer has received goods on credit while insolvent he may reclaim the goods upon demand made within ten days after the receipt, but if misrepresentation of solvency has been made to the particular seller in writing within three months before delivery the ten day limitation does not apply. Except as provided in this subsection the seller may not base a right to reclaim goods on the buyer's fraudulent or innocent misrepresentation of solvency or of intent to pay.

(3) The seller's right to reclaim under subsection (2) is subject to the rights of a buyer in ordinary course or other good faith purchaser or lien creditor under this chapter (§672.403). Successful reclamation of goods excludes all other remedies with respect to them.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-702, U.C.C.

672.703 Seller's remedies in general.—Where the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods or fails to make a payment due on or before delivery or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole, then with respect to any goods directly affected and, if the breach is of the whole contract (§672.612), then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance, the aggrieved seller may:

- (1) Withhold delivery of such goods;
- (2) Stop delivery by any bailee as hereafter provided (§672.705);
- (3) Proceed under the next section respecting goods still unidentified to the contract;
- (4) Resell and recover damages as hereafter provided (§672.706);
- (5) Recover damages for non-acceptance (§672.708) or in a proper case the price (§672.709);
- (6) Cancel.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-703, U.C.C.

672.704 Seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods.—

(1) An aggrieved seller under the preceding section may:

- (a) Identify to the contract conforming goods not already identified if at the time he learned of the breach they are in his possession or control;
- (b) Treat as the subject of resale goods which have demonstrably been intended for the particular contract even though those goods are unfinished.

(2) Where the goods are unfinished an aggrieved seller may in the exercise of reasonable commercial judgment for the purposes of avoiding loss and of effective realization either complete the manufacture and wholly identify the goods to the contract or cease manufacture and resell for scrap or salvage value or proceed in any other reasonable manner.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-704, U.C.C.

672.705 Seller's stoppage of delivery in transit or otherwise.—

(1) The seller may stop delivery of goods in the possession of a carrier or other bailee when he discovers the buyer to be insolvent (§672.702) and may stop delivery of carload, truckload, planeload or larger shipments of express or freight when the buyer repudiates or fails to make a payment due before delivery or if for any other reason the seller has a right to withhold or reclaim the goods.

(2) As against such buyer the seller may stop delivery until:

- (a) Receipt of the goods by the buyer; or
- (b) Acknowledgment to the buyer by any bailee of the goods except a carrier that the bailee holds the goods for the buyer; or
- (c) Such acknowledgment to the buyer by a carrier by reshipment or as warehouseman; or
- (d) Negotiation to the buyer of any negotiable document of title covering the goods.

(3) (a) To stop delivery the seller must so notify as to enable the bailee by reasonable diligence to prevent delivery of the goods.

(b) After such notification the bailee must hold and deliver the goods according to the directions of the seller but the seller is liable to the bailee for any ensuing charges or damages.

(c) If a negotiable document of title has been issued for goods the bailee is not obliged to obey a notification to stop until surrender of the document.

(d) A carrier who has issued a non-negotiable bill of lading is not obliged to obey a notification to stop received from a person other than the consignor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-705, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.51.

672.706 Seller's resale including contract for resale.—

(1) Under the conditions stated in §672.703 on seller's remedies, the seller may resell the goods concerned or the undelivered balance thereof. Where the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner the seller may recover the difference between the resale price and the contract price together with any incidental damages allowed under the provisions of this chapter (§672.710), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (3) or unless otherwise agreed resale may be at public or private sale including sale by way of one or more contracts to sell or of identification to an existing contract of the seller. Sale may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the sale including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. The resale must be reasonably identified as referring to the broken contract, but it is not necessary that the goods be in existence or that any or all of them have been identified to the contract before the breach.

(3) Where the resale is at private sale the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of his intention to resell.

(4) Where the resale is at public sale:

(a) Only identified goods can be sold except where there is a recognized market for a public sale of futures in goods of the kind; and

(b) It must be made at a usual place or market for public sale if one is reasonably available and except in the case of goods which are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale; and

(c) If the goods are not to be within the view of those attending the sale the notification of sale must state the place where the goods are located and provide for their reasonable inspection by prospective bidders; and

(d) The seller may buy.

(5) A purchaser who buys in good faith at a resale takes the goods free of any rights of the original buyer even though the seller fails to comply with one or more of the requirements of this section.

(6) The seller is not accountable to the buyer for any profit made on any resale. A person in the position of a seller (§672.707) or a buyer who has rightfully rejected or justifiably revoked acceptance must account for any excess over the amount of his security interest, as hereinafter defined (§672.711(3)).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-706, U.C.C.

672.707 "Person in the position of a seller".—

(1) A "person in the position of a seller" includes as against a principal an agent who has paid or become responsible for the price of goods on behalf of his principal or anyone who otherwise holds a security interest or other right in goods similar to that of a seller.

(2) A person in the position of a seller may as provided in this chapter withhold or stop delivery (§672.705) and resell (§672.706) and recover incidental damages (§672.710).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-707, U.C.C.

672.708 Seller's damages for non-acceptance or repudiation.—

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and to the provisions of this chapter with respect to proof of market price (§672.723), the measure of damages for non-acceptance or repudiation by the buyer is the difference between the market price at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price together with any incidental damages provided in this chapter (§672.710), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach.

(2) If the measure of damages provided in subsection (1) is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done then the measure of damages is the profit (including reasonable overhead) which the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer, together with any incidental damages provided in this chapter (§672.710), due allowance for costs reasonably incurred and due credit for payments or proceeds of resale.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-708, U.C.C.

672.709 Action for the price.—

(1) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it becomes due the seller may recover, together with any incidental damages under the next section, the price:

(a) Of goods accepted or of conforming goods lost or damaged within a commercially reasonable time after risk of their loss has passed to the buyer; and

(b) Of goods identified to the contract if the seller is unable after reasonable effort to resell them at a reasonable price or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing.

(2) Where the seller sues for the price he must hold for the buyer any goods which have been identified to the contract and are still in his control except that if resale becomes possible he may resell them at any time prior to the collection of the judgment. The net proceeds of any such resale must be credited to the buyer and payment of the judgment entitles him to any goods not resold.

(3) After the buyer has wrongfully rejected or revoked acceptance of the goods or has failed to make a payment due or has repudiated (§672.610), a seller who is held not entitled to the price under this section shall nevertheless be awarded damages for non-acceptance under the preceding section.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-709, U.C.C.

672.710 Seller's incidental damages.—Incidental damages to an aggrieved seller include any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions incurred in stopping delivery, in the transportation, care and custody of goods after the buyer's breach, in connection with return or resale of the goods or otherwise resulting from the breach.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-710, U.C.C.

672.711 Buyer's remedies in general; buyer's security interest in rejected goods.—

(1) Where the seller fails to make delivery or repudiates or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance then with respect to any goods involved, and with respect to the whole if the breach goes to the whole contract (§672.612), the buyer may cancel and whether or not he has done so may in addition to recovering so much of the price as has been paid:

(a) "Cover" and have damages under the next section as to all the goods affected whether or not they have been identified to the contract; or

(b) Recover damages for non-delivery as provided in this chapter (§672.713).

(2) Where the seller fails to deliver or repudiates the buyer may also:

(a) If the goods have been identified recover them as provided in this chapter (§672.502); or

(b) In a proper case obtain specific performance or replevy the goods as provided in this chapter (§672.716).

(3) On rightful rejection or justifiable revocation of acceptance a buyer has a security interest in goods in his possession or control for any payments made on their price and any expenses reasonably incurred in their inspection, receipt, transportation, care and custody and may hold such goods and resell them in like manner as an aggrieved seller (§672.706).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-711, U.C.C.

672.712 "Cover"; buyer's procurement of substitute goods.—

(1) After a breach within the preceding section the buyer may "cover" by making in good faith and without unreasonable delay any reasonable purchase of or contract to purchase goods in substitution for those due from the seller.

(2) The buyer may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price together with any incidental or consequential damages as herein-after defined (§672.715), but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach.

(3) Failure of the buyer to effect cover within this section does not bar him from any other remedy.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-712, U.C.C.

672.713 Buyer's damages for non-delivery or repudiation.—

(1) Subject to the provisions of this chapter with respect to proof of market price (§672.723), the measure of damages for non-delivery or repudiation by the seller is the difference between the market price at the time when the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price together with any incidental and consequential damages provided in this chapter (§672.715), but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach.

(2) Market price is to be determined as of the place for tender or, in cases of rejection after arrival or revocation of acceptance, as of the place of arrival.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-713, U.C.C.

672.714 Buyer's damages for breach in regard to accepted goods.—

(1) Where the buyer has accepted goods and given notification (§672.607(3)) he may recover as damages for any non-conformity of tender the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach as determined in any manner which is reasonable.

(2) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted, unless special circumstances show proximate damages of a different amount.

(3) In a proper case any incidental and consequential damages under the next section may also be recovered.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-714, U.C.C.

672.715 Buyer's incidental and consequential damages.—

(1) Incidental damages resulting from the seller's breach include expenses reasonably incurred in inspection, receipt, transportation and care and custody of goods rightfully rejected, any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions in connection with effecting cover and any other reasonable expense incident to the delay or other breach.

(2) Consequential damages resulting from the seller's breach include:

(a) Any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know and which could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise; and

(b) Injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-715, U.C.C.

672.716 Buyer's right to specific performance or replevin.—

(1) Specific performance may be decreed where the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances.

(2) The decree for specific performance may include such terms and conditions as to payment of the price, damages, or other relief as the court may deem just.

(3) The buyer has a right of replevin for goods identified to the contract if after reasonable effort he is unable to effect cover for such goods or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing or if the goods have been shipped under reservation and satisfaction of the security interest in them has been made or tendered.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-716, U.C.C.

672.717 Deduction of damages from the price.—The buyer on notifying the seller of his intention to do so may deduct all or any part of the damages resulting from any breach of the contract from any part of the price still due under the same contract.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-717, U.C.C.

672.718 Liquidation or limitation of damages; deposits.—

(1) Damages for breach by either party may be liquidated in the agreement but only at an amount which is reasonable in the light of the anticipated or actual harm caused by the breach, the difficulties of proof of loss, and the inconvenience or non-feasibility of otherwise obtaining an adequate remedy. A term fixing unreasonably large liquidated damages is void as a penalty.

(2) Where the seller justifiably withholds delivery of goods because of the buyer's breach, the buyer is entitled to restitution of any amount by which the sum of his payments exceeds:

(a) The amount to which the seller is entitled by virtue of terms liquidating the seller's damages in accordance with subsection (1), or

(b) In the absence of such terms, twenty per cent of the value of the total performance for which the buyer is obligated under the contract or $500, whichever is smaller.

(3) The buyer's right to restitution under subsection (2) is subject to offset to the extent that the seller establishes:

(a) A right to recover damages under the provisions of this chapter other than subsection (1), and

(b) The amount or value of any benefits received by the buyer directly or indirectly by reason of the contract.

(4) Where a seller has received payment in goods their reasonable value or the proceeds of their resale shall be treated as payments for the purposes of subsection (2); but if the seller has notice of the buyer's breach before reselling goods received in part performance, his resale is subject to the conditions laid down in this chapter on resale by an aggrieved seller (§672.706).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-718, U.C.C.

672.719 Contractual modification or limitation of remedy.—

(1) Subject to the provisions of subsections (2) and (3) of this section and of the preceding section on liquidation and limitation of damages:

(a) The agreement may provide for remedies in addition to or in substitution for those provided in this chapter and may limit or alter the measure of damages recoverable under this chapter, as by limiting the buyer's remedies to return of the goods and repayment of the price or to repair and replacement of non-conforming goods or parts; and

(b) Resort to a remedy as provided is optional unless the remedy is expressly agreed to be exclusive, in which case it is the sole remedy.

(2) Where circumstances cause an exclusive or limited remedy to fail of its essential purpose, remedy may be had as provided in this code.

(3) Consequential damages may be limited or excluded unless the limitation or exclusion is unconscionable. Limitation of consequential damages for injury to the person in the case of consumer goods is prima facie unconscionable but limitation of damages where the loss is commercial is not.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§2-719, U.C.C.

672.720 Effect of "cancellation" or "rescission" on claims for antecedent breach.—Unless the contrary intention clearly appears, expressions of "cancellation" or "rescission" of the contract or the like shall not be construed as a renunciation or discharge of any claim in damages for an antecedent breach.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-720, U.C.C.

672.721 Remedies for fraud.—Remedies for material misrepresentation or fraud include all remedies available under this chapter for non-fraudulent breach. Neither rescission or a claim for rescission of the contract for sale nor rejection or return of the goods shall bar or be deemed inconsistent with a claim for damages or other remedy.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-721, U.C.C.

672.722 Who can sue third parties for injury to goods.—Where a third party so deals with goods which have been identified to a contract for sale as to cause actionable injury to a party to that contract:

(1) A right of action against the third party is in either party to the contract for sale who has title to or a security interest or a special property or an insurable interest in the goods; and if the goods have been destroyed or converted a right of action is also in the party who either bore the risk of loss under the contract for sale or has since the injury assumed that risk as against the other;

(2) If at the time of the injury the party plaintiff did not bear the risk of loss as against the other party to the contract for sale and there is no arrangement between them for disposition of the recovery, his suit or settlement is, subject to his own interest, as a fiduciary for the other party to the contract;

(3) Either party may with the consent of the other sue for the benefit of whom it may concern.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-722, U.C.C.

672.723 Proof of market price: time and place.—

(1) If an action based on anticipatory repudiation comes to trial before the time for performance with respect to some or all of the goods, any damages based on market price (§672.708 or §672.713) shall be determined according to the price of such goods prevailing at the time when the aggrieved party learned of the repudiation.

(2) If evidence of a price prevailing at the times or places described in this chapter is not readily available the price prevailing within any reasonable time before or after the time described or at any other place which in commercial judgment or under usage of trade would serve as a reasonable substitute for the one described may be used, making any proper allowance for the cost of transporting the goods to or from such other place.

(3) Evidence of a relevant price prevailing at a time or place other than the one described in this chapter offered by one party is not admissible unless and until he has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-723, U.C.C.

672.724 Admissibility of market quotations.—Whenever the prevailing price or value of any goods regularly bought and sold in any established commodity market is in issue, reports in official publications or trade journals or in newspapers or periodicals of general circulation published as the reports of such market shall be admissible in evidence. The circumstances of the preparation of such a report may be shown to affect its weight but not its admissibility.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§2-724, U.C.C.

672.725 Statute of limitations in contracts for sale.—

(1) An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued. By the original agreement the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year but may not extend it.

(2) A cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach. A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made, except that where a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach must await the time of such performance the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered.

(3) Where an action commenced within the time limited by subsection (1) is so terminated as to leave available a remedy by another action for the same breach such other action may be commenced after the expiration of the time limited and within six months after the termination of the first action unless the termination resulted from voluntary discontinuance or from dismissal for failure or neglect to prosecute.

(4) This section does not alter the law on tolling of the statute of limitations nor does it apply to causes of action which have accrued before this code becomes effective.

673.101 Short title.—Chapter 673 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code—commercial paper.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§3-101, U.C.C.

673.102 Definitions and index of definitions.—

(1) In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Issue" means the first delivery of an instrument to a holder or a remitter.

(b) An "order" is a direction to pay and must be more than an authorization or request. It must identify the person to pay with reasonable certainty. It may be addressed to one or more such persons jointly or in the alternative but not in succession.

(c) A "promise" is an undertaking to pay and must be more than an acknowledgment of an obligation.

(d) "Secondary party" means a drawer or endorser.

(e) "Instrument" means a negotiable instrument.

(2) Other definitions applying to this chapter and the sections in which they appear are:

- "Acceptance". §673.410.
- "Accommodation party". §673.415.
- "Alteration". §673.407.
- "Certificate of deposit". §673.104.
- "Certification". §673.411.

- "On demand". §673.108.

*Note.—Pursuant to §69, ch. 69-353, the editors have altered the numbers of all sections making up this chapter by deleting the digit and hyphen immediately following the decimal point. The purpose is to conform the numbering of the Code sections with the decimal numbering system used in other chapters of the Florida Statutes. The visual relationship between Florida Statutes section numbers and Code section number is not destroyed by this alteration; the digit preceding the decimal point coincides with the Code article number, and the digits following the decimal point coincide with the Code section numbers.

"Presentment". §673.504.

"Protest". §673.509.

"Restrictive Indorsement". §673.205.

"Signature". §673.401.

(3) The following definitions in other chapters (of this code) apply to this chapter:

"Account". §674.104.

"Banking day". §674.104.

"Clearing house". §674.104.

"Collecting bank". §674.105.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

673.103 Limitations on scope of chapter.—

(2) The provisions of this chapter are subject to the provisions of the chapter on bank deposits and collections (chapter 674) and secured transactions (chapter 679).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-103, U.C.C.

673.104 Form of negotiable instruments; "draft"; "check"; "certificate of deposit"; "note".—

(1) Any writing to be a negotiable instrument within this chapter must:

(a) Be signed by the maker or drawer; and

(b) Contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money and no other promise, order, obligation or power given by the maker or drawer except as authorized by this chapter; and

(c) Be payable on demand or at a definite time; and

(d) Be payable to order or to bearer.

(2) A writing which complies with the requirements of this section is:

(a) A "draft" ("bill of exchange") if it is an order;

(b) A "check" if it is a draft drawn on a bank and payable on demand;

(c) A "certificate of deposit" if it is an acknowledgment by a bank of receipt of money with an engagement to repay it;

(d) A "note" if it is a promise other than a certificate of deposit.

(3) As used in other chapters of this code, and as the context may require, the terms "draft", "check", "certificate of deposit" and "note" may refer to instruments which are not negotiable within this chapter as well as to instruments which are so negotiable.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-104, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.02, 674.06, 674.12, 676.01, 676.47, 676.48.

673.105 When promise or order unconditional.—

(1) A promise or order otherwise unconditional is not made conditional by the fact that the instrument:

(a) Is subject to implied or constructive conditions; or

(b) States its consideration, whether performed or promised, or the transaction which gave rise to the instrument, or that the promise or order is made or the instrument matures in accordance with or "as per" such transaction; or

(c) Refers to or states that it arises out of a separate agreement or refers to a separate agreement for rights as to prepayment or acceleration; or

(d) States that it is drawn under a letter of credit; or

(e) States that it is secured, whether by mortgage, reservation of title or otherwise; or

(f) Indicates a particular account to be debited or any other fund or source from which reimbursement is expected; or

(g) Is limited to payment out of a particular fund or the proceeds of a particular source, if the instrument is issued by a government or governmental agency or unit; or

(h) Is limited to payment out of the entire assets of a partnership, unincorporated association, trust or estate by or on behalf of which the instrument is issued.

(2) A promise or order is not unconditional if the instrument:

(b) States that it is to be paid only out of a particular fund or source except as provided in this section.

Note.—§3-105, U.C.C.; supersedes §675.04.

673.106 Sum certain.—

(1) The sum payable is a sum certain even though it is to be paid:

(a) With stated interest or by stated installments; or

(b) With stated different rates of interest before and after default or a specified date; or

(c) With a stated discount or addition if paid before or after the date fixed for payment; or

(d) With exchange or less exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate; or

(2) Nothing in this section shall validate any term which is otherwise illegal.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-106, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.03, 674.07(5).

673.107 Money.—

(1) An instrument is payable in money if the medium of exchange in which it is payable is money at the time the instrument is made. An instrument payable in "currency" or "current funds" is payable in money.

(2) A promise or order to pay a sum stated in a foreign currency is for a sum certain in money and, unless a different medium of payment is specified in the instrument, may be satisfied by payment of that number of dollars which the stated foreign currency will purchase at the buying sight rate for that currency on the day on which the instrument is payable or, if payable on demand, on the day of demand. If such an instrument specifies a foreign currency as the medium of payment the instrument is payable in that currency.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-107, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.07(5).

673.108 Payable on demand.—Instruments payable on demand include those payable at sight or on presentation and those in which no time for payment is stated.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-108, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.09.

673.109 Definite time.—

(1) An instrument is payable at a definite time if by its terms it is payable:

- (a) On or before a stated date or at a fixed period after a stated date; or
- (b) At a fixed period after sight; or
- (c) At a definite time subject to any acceleration; or
- (d) At a definite time subject to extension at the option of the holder, or to extension to a further definite time at the option of the maker or acceptor or automatically upon or after a specified act or event.

(2) An instrument which by its terms is otherwise payable only upon an act or event uncertain as to time of occurrence is not payable at a definite time even though the act or event has occurred.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-109, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.05, 674.19(3).

673.110 Payable to order.—

(1) An instrument is payable to order when by its terms it is payable to the order or assigns of any person therein specified with reasonable certainty, or to him or his order, or when it is conspicuously designated on its face as "exchange" or the like and names a payee. It may be payable to the order of:

- (a) The maker or drawer; or
- (b) The drawee; or
- (c) A payee who is not maker, drawer or drawee; or
- (d) Two or more payees together or in the alternative; or
- (e) An estate, trust or fund, in which case it is payable to the order of the representative of such estate, trust or fund or his successors; or

(f) An office, or an officer by his title as such in which case it is payable to the principal but the incumbent of the office or his successors may act as if he or they were the holder; or

(g) A partnership or unincorporated association, in which case it is payable to the partnership or association and may be indorsed or transferred by any person thereto authorized.

(2) An instrument not payable to order is not made so payable by such words as "payable upon return of this instrument properly indorsed."

(3) An instrument made payable both to order and to bearer is payable to order unless the bearer words are handwritten or typewritten.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-110, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.10.

673.111 Payable to bearer.—An instrument is payable to bearer when by its terms it is payable to:

- (1) Bearer or the order of bearer; or
- (2) A specified person or bearer; or
- (3) "Cash" or the order of "cash", or any other indication which does not purport to designate a specific payee.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-111, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.11.

673.112 Terms and omissions not affecting negotiability.—

(1) The negotiability of an instrument is not affected by:

- (a) The omission of a statement of any consideration or of the place where the instrument is drawn or payable; or
- (b) A statement that collateral has been given to secure obligations either on the instrument or otherwise of an obligor on the instrument or that in case of default on those obligations the holder may realize on or dispose of the collateral; or
- (c) A promise or power to maintain or protect collateral or to give additional collateral; or

(d) A term authorizing a confession of judgment on the instrument if it is not paid when due; or

(e) A term purporting to waive the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of any obligor; or

(f) A term in a draft providing that the payee by indorsing or cashing it acknowledges full satisfaction of an obligation of the drawer; or

(g) A statement in a draft drawn in a set of parts (§673.801) to the effect that the order is effective only if no other part has been honored.

(2) Nothing in this section shall validate any term which is otherwise illegal.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-112, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.06, 674.07.

673.113 Seal.—An instrument otherwise negotiable is within this chapter even though it is under a seal.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-113, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.07(4).

673.114 Date, antedating, postdating.—

(1) The negotiability of an instrument is not affected by the fact that it is undated, antedated or postdated.

(2) Where an instrument is antedated or postdated the time when it is payable is determined by the stated date if the instrument is payable on demand or at a fixed period after date.

(3) Where the instrument or any signature thereon is dated, the date is presumed to be correct.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-114, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.07(1), 674.13, 674.14, 674.19.

673.115 Incomplete instruments.—

(1) When a paper whose contents at the time of signing show that it is intended to become an instrument is signed while still incomplete in any necessary respect it cannot be enforced until completed, but when it is completed in accordance with authority given it is effective as completed.

(2) If the completion is unauthorized the rules as to material alteration apply (§673.407), even though the paper was not delivered by the maker or drawer; but the burden of establishing that any completion is unauthorized is on the party so asserting.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-115, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.15-674.17.

673.116 Instruments payable to two or more persons.—An instrument payable to the order of two or more persons:

(1) If in the alternative is payable to any one of them and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced by any of them who has possession of it;

(2) If not in the alternative is payable to all of them and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced only by all of them.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-116, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.44.

673.117 Instruments payable with words of description.—An instrument made payable to a named person with the addition of words describing him:

(1) As agent or officer of a specified person is payable to his principal but the agent or officer may act as if he were the holder;

(2) As any other fiduciary for a specified person or purpose is payable to the payee and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced by him;

(3) In any other manner is payable to the payee unconditionally and the additional words are without effect on subsequent parties.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-117, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.45.

673.118 Ambiguous terms and rules of construction.—The following rules apply to every instrument:

(1) Where there is doubt whether the instrument is a draft or a note the holder may treat it as either. A draft drawn on the drawer is effective as a note.

(2) Handwritten terms control typewritten and printed terms, and typewritten control printed.

(3) Words control figures except that if the words are ambiguous figures control.

(4) Unless otherwise specified a provision for interest means interest at the judgment rate at the place of payment from the date of the instrument, or if it is undated from the date of issue.

(5) Unless the instrument otherwise specifies two or more persons who sign as maker, acceptor or drawer or indorser and as a part of the same transaction are jointly and severally liable even though the instrument contains such words as "I promise to pay."

(6) Unless otherwise specified consent to extension authorizes a single extension for not longer than the original period. A consent to extension, expressed in the instrument, is binding on secondary parties and accommodation makers. A holder may not exercise his option to extend an instrument over the objection of a maker or acceptor or other party who in accordance with §673.604 tenders full payment when the instrument is due.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-118, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.19, 674.70.

673.119 Other writings affecting instrument.—

(1) As between the obligor and his immediate obligee or any transferee the terms of an instrument may be modified or affected by any other written agreement executed as a part of the same transaction, except that a holder in due course is not affected by any limitation of his rights arising out of the separate written agreement if he had no notice of the limitation when he took the instrument.

(2) A separate agreement does not affect the negotiability of an instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-119, U.C.C.

673.120 Instruments "payable through" bank.—An instrument which states that it is "payable through" a bank or the like designates that bank as a collecting bank to make presentment but does not of itself authorize the bank to pay the instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-120, U.C.C.

673.121 Instruments payable at bank.—A note or acceptance which states that it is payable at a bank is not of itself an order or authorization to the bank to pay it.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

*Note.—The official 1962 text was drafted in two alternatives (A and B). Alternative B was adopted in Florida.

Note.—§3-121, U.C.C.; supersedes §675.04.

673.122 Accrual of cause of action.—

(1) A cause of action against a maker or an acceptor accrues:

(a) In the case of a time instrument on the day after maturity;

(b) In the case of a demand instrument upon its date or, if no date is stated, on the date of issue.

(2) A cause of action against the obligor of a demand or time certificate of deposit accrues upon demand, but demand on a time certificate may not be made until on or after the date of maturity.

(3) A cause of action against a drawer of a draft or an indorser of any instrument accrues upon demand following dishonor of the instrument. Notice of dishonor is a demand.

(4) Unless an instrument provides otherwise, interest runs at the rate provided by law for a judgment:

(a) In the case of a maker, acceptor or other primary obligor of a demand instrument, from the date of demand;

(b) In all other cases from the date of accrual of the cause of action.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-122, U.C.C.

PART II

TRANSFER AND NEGOTIATION

673.201 Transfer; right to indorsement.

673.202 Negotiation.

673.203 Wrong or misspelled name.

673.204 Special indorsement; blank indorsement.

673.201 Transfer; right to indorsement.—

(1) Transfer of an instrument vests in the transferee such rights as the transferor has therein, except that a transferee who has himself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument or who as a prior holder had notice of a defense or claim against it cannot improve his position by taking from a later holder in due course.

(2) A transfer of a security interest in an instrument vests the foregoing rights in the transferee to the extent of the interest transferred.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed any transfer for value of an instrument not then payable to bearer gives the transferee the specifically enforceable right to have the unqualified indorsement of the transferor. Negotiation takes effect only when the indorsement is made and until that time there is no presumption that the transferee is the owner.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-201, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.30, 674.51, 674.60.

673.202 Negotiation.—

(1) Negotiation is the transfer of an instrument in such form that the transferee becomes a holder. If the instrument is payable to order it is negotiated by delivery with any necessary indorsement; if payable to bearer it is negotiated by delivery.

(2) An indorsement must be written by or on behalf of the holder and on the instrument or on a paper so firmly affixed thereto as to become a part thereof.

(3) An indorsement is effective for negotiation only when it conveys the entire instrument or any unpaid residue. If it purports to be of less it operates only as a partial assignment.

(4) Words of assignment, condition, wavier, guaranty, limitation or disclaimer of liability and the like accompanying an indorsement do not affect its character as an indorsement.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-202, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.33-674.35.

673.203 Wrong or misspelled name.—Where an instrument is made payable to a person under a misspelled name or one other than his own he may indorse in that name or his own or both; but signature in both names may be 673.205 Restrictive indorsements.

673.206 Effect of restrictive indorsement.

673.207 Negotiation effective although it may be rescinded.

673.208 Reacquisition.

required by a person paying or giving value for the instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-203, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.46.

673.204 Special indorsement; blank indorsement.—

(1) A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order it makes the instrument payable. Any instrument specially indorsed becomes payable to the order of the special indorsee and may be further negotiated only by his indorsement.

(2) An indorsement in blank specifies no particular indorsee and may consist of a mere signature. An instrument payable to order and indorsed in blank becomes payable to bearer and may be negotiated by delivery alone until specially indorsed.

(3) The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-204, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.12, 674.36-674.39, 674.44.

673.205 Restrictive indorsements.—An indorsement is restrictive which either:

(1) Is conditional; or

(2) Purports to prohibit further transfer of the instrument; or

(3) Includes the words "for collection", "for deposit", "pay any bank", or like terms signifying a purpose of deposit or collection; or

(4) Otherwise states that it is for the benefit or use of the indorser or of another person.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-205, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.39, 674.42.

673.206 Effect of restrictive indorsement.—

(1) No restrictive indorsement prevents further transfer or negotiation of the instrument.

(2) An intermediary bank, or a payor bank which is not the depository bank, is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by a restrictive indorsement of any person except the bank's immediate transferor or the person presenting for payment.

(3) Except for an intermediary bank, any transferee under an indorsement which is conditional or includes the words "for collection", "for deposit", "pay any bank", or like terms (§673.205(1),(3)) must pay or apply any value given by him for or on the security of the instrument consistently with the indorsement and to the extent that he does so he becomes a holder for value. In addition such transferee is a holder in due course if he otherwise complies with the requirements of §673.302 on what constitutes a holder in due course.

(4) The first taker under an indorsement for the benefit of the indorser or another person (§673.205(4)) must pay or apply any value given by him for or on the security of the instrument consistently with the indorsement and to the extent that he does so he becomes a holder for value. In addition such taker is a holder in due course if he otherwise complies with the requirements of §673.302 on what constitutes a holder in due course. A later holder for value is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by such restrictive indorsement unless he has knowledge that a fiduciary or other person has negotiated the instrument in any transaction for his own benefit or otherwise in breach of duty (§673.304(2)).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-206, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.39, 674.40, 674.42, 674.49.

673.207 Negotiation effective although it may be rescinded.—

(1) Negotiation is effective to transfer the instrument although the negotiation is:

(a) Made by an infant, a corporation exceeding its powers, or any other person without capacity; or

(b) Obtained by fraud, duress or mistake of any kind; or

(c) Part of an illegal transaction; or

(d) Made in breach of duty.

(2) Except as against a subsequent holder in due course such negotiation is in an appropriate case subject to rescission, the declaration of a constructive trust or any other remedy permitted by law.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-207, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.24, 674.60, 674.61.

673.208 Reacquisition.—Where an instrument is returned to or reacquired by a prior party he may cancel any indorsement which is not necessary to his title and reissue or further negotiate the instrument, but any intervening party is discharged as against the reacquiring party and subsequent holders not in due course and if his indorsement has been cancelled is discharged as against subsequent holders in due course as well.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-208, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.50, 674.52, 675.29.

673.304 Notice to purchaser.

673.305 Rights of a holder in due course.
673.306 Rights of one not holder in due course.
673.307 Burden of establishing signatures, defenses and due course.

673.301 Rights of a holder.—The holder of an instrument whether or not he is the owner may transfer or negotiate it and, except as otherwise provided in §673.603 on payment or satisfaction, discharge it or enforce payment in his own name.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-301, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.53.

673.302 Holder in due course.—

(1) A holder in due course is a holder who takes the instrument:

(a) For value; and

(b) In good faith; and

(c) Without notice that it is overdue or has been dishonored or of any defense against or claim to it on the part of any person.

(2) A payee may be a holder in due course.

(3) A holder does not become a holder in due course of an instrument:

(a) By purchase of it at judicial sale or by taking it under legal process; or

(b) By acquiring it in taking over an estate; or

(c) By purchasing it as part of a bulk transaction not in regular course of business of the transferor.

(4) A purchaser of a limited interest can be a holder in due course only to the extent of the interest purchased.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-302, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.54

673.303 Taking for value.—A holder takes the instrument for value:

(1) To the extent that the agreed consideration has been performed or that he acquires a security interest in or a lien on the instrument otherwise than by legal process; or

(2) When he takes the instrument in payment of or as security for an antecedent claim against any person whether or not the claim is due; or

(3) When he gives a negotiable instrument for it or makes an irrevocable commitment to a third person.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-303, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.28-674.30, 674.56.

673.304 Notice to purchaser.—

(1) The purchaser has notice of a claim or defense if:

(a) The instrument is so incomplete, bears such visible evidence of forgery or alteration, or is otherwise so irregular as to call into question its validity, terms or ownership or to create an ambiguity as to the party to pay; or

(b) The purchaser has notice that the obligation of any party is voidable in whole or in part, or that all parties have been discharged.

(2) The purchaser has notice of a claim against the instrument when he has knowledge that a fiduciary has negotiated the instrument in payment of or as security for his own debt or in any transaction for his own benefit or otherwise in breach of duty.

(3) The purchaser has notice that an instrument is overdue if he has reason to know:

(a) That any part of the principal amount is overdue or that there is an uncured default in payment of another instrument of the same series; or

(b) That acceleration of the instrument has been made; or

(c) That he is taking a demand instrument after demand has been made or more than a reasonable length of time after its issue. A reasonable time for a check drawn and payable within the states and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia is presumed to be thirty days.

(4) Knowledge of the following facts does not of itself give the purchaser notice of a defense or claim:

(a) That the instrument is antedated or postdated;

(b) That it was issued or negotiated in return for an executory promise or accompanied by a separate agreement, unless the purchaser has notice that a defense or claim has arisen from the terms thereof;

(c) That any party has signed for accommodation;

(d) That an incomplete instrument has been completed, unless the purchaser has notice of any improper completion;

(e) That any person negotiating the instrument is or was a fiduciary;

(f) That there has been default in payment of interest on the instrument or in payment of any other instrument, except one of the same series.

(5) The filing or recording of a document does not of itself constitute notice within the provisions of this chapter to a person who would otherwise be a holder in due course.

(6) To be effective notice must be received at such time and in such manner as to give a reasonable opportunity to act on it.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-304, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.48, 674.54, 674.55, 674.57, 674.58.

673.305 Rights of a holder in due course.—To the extent that a holder is a holder in due course he takes the instrument free from:

(1) All claims to it on the part of any person; and

(2) All defenses of any party to the instrument with whom the holder has not dealt except:

(a) Infancy, to the extent that it is a defense to a simple contract; and

(b) Such other incapacity, or duress, or illegality of the transaction, as renders the obligation of the party a nullity; and

(c) Such misrepresentation as has induced the party to sign the instrument with neither knowledge nor reasonable opportunity to obtain knowledge of its character or its essential terms; and

(d) Discharge in insolvency proceedings; and

(e) Any other discharge of which the holder has notice when he takes the instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-305, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.17, 674.18, 674.59.

673.306 Rights of one not holder in due course.—Unless he has the rights of a holder in due course any person takes the instrument subject to:

(1) All valid claims to it on the part of any person; and

(2) All defenses of any party which would be available in an action on a simple contract; and

(3) The defenses of want or failure of consideration, non-performance of any condition precedent, non-delivery, or delivery for a special purpose (§673.408); and

(4) The defense that he or a person through whom he holds the instrument acquired it by theft, or that payment or satisfaction to such holder would be inconsistent with the terms of a restrictive indorsement. The claim of any third person to the instrument is not otherwise available as a defense to any party liable thereon unless the third person himself defends the action for such party.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-306, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.18, 674.31, 674.60, 674.61.

673.307 Burden of establishing signatures, defenses and due course.—

(1) Unless specifically denied in the pleadings each signature on an instrument is admitted. When the effectiveness of a signature is put in issue:

(a) The burden of establishing it is on the party claiming under the signature; but

(b) The signature is presumed to be genuine or authorized except where the action is to enforce the obligation of a purported signer who has died or become incompetent before proof is required.

(2) When signatures are admitted or established, production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense.

(3) After it is shown that a defense exists a person claiming the rights of a holder in due course has the burden of establishing that he or some person under whom he claims is in all respects a holder in due course.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-307, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.61.

thereto in any respect, including any such change in:

(a) The number or relations of the parties; or

(b) An incomplete instrument, by completing it otherwise than as authorized; or

(c) The writing as signed, by adding to it or by removing any part of it.

(2) As against any person other than a subsequent holder in due course:

(a) Alteration by the holder which is both fraudulent and material discharges any party whose contract is thereby changed unless that party assents or is precluded from asserting the defense;

(b) No other alteration discharges any party and the instrument may be enforced according to its original tenor, or as to incomplete instruments according to the authority given.

(3) A subsequent holder in due course may in all cases enforce the instrument according to its original tenor, and when an incomplete instrument has been completed, he may enforce it as completed.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-407, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.16, 674.17, 675.32.

673.408 Consideration.—Want or failure of consideration is a defense as against any person not having the rights of a holder in due course (§673.305), except that no consideration is necessary for an instrument or obligation thereon given in payment of or as security for an antecedent obligation of any kind. Nothing in this section shall be taken to displace any statute outside this code under which a promise is enforceable notwithstanding lack or failure of consideration. Partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto whether or not the failure is in an ascertained or liquidated amount.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-408, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.27, 674.28, 674.31.

673.409 Draft not an assignment.—

(1) A check or other draft does not of itself operate as an assignment of any funds in the hands of the drawee available for its payment, and the drawee is not liable on the instrument until he accepts it.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any liability in contract, tort or otherwise arising from any letter of credit or other obligation or representation which is not an acceptance.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-409, U.C.C.; supersedes §§676.01, 676.52.

673.410 Definition and operation of acceptance.—

(1) Acceptance is the drawee's signed engagement to honor the draft as presented. It must be written on the draft, and may consist of his signature alone. It becomes operative when completed by delivery or notification.

(2) A draft may be accepted although it has not been signed by the drawer or is otherwise incomplete or is overdue or has been dishonored.

(3) Where the draft is payable at a fixed period after sight and the acceptor fails to date his acceptance the holder may complete it by supplying a date in good faith.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-410, U.C.C.; supersedes §§676.05, 676.07, 676.09, 674.01, 676.06, 676.08, 676.27-676.35, 676.15.

673.411 Certification of a check.—

(1) Certification of a check is acceptance. Where a holder procures certification the drawer and all prior indorsers are discharged.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed a bank has no obligation to certify a check.

(3) A bank may certify a check before returning it for lack of proper indorsement. If it does so the drawer is discharged.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-411, U.C.C.; supersedes §§676.50, 676.51.

673.412 Acceptance varying draft.—

(1) Where the drawee's proffered acceptance in any manner varies the draft as presented the holder may refuse the acceptance and treat the draft as dishonored in which case the drawee is entitled to have his acceptance cancelled.

(2) The terms of the draft are not varied by an acceptance to pay at any particular bank or place in the United States, unless the acceptance states that the draft is to be paid only at such bank or place.

(3) Where the holder assents to an acceptance varying the terms of the draft each drawer and indorser who does not affirmatively assent is discharged.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-412, U.C.C.; supersedes §§676.10, 676.11.

673.413 Contract of maker, drawer and acceptor.—

(1) The maker or acceptor engages that he will pay the instrument according to its tenor at the time of his engagement or as completed pursuant to §673.115 on incomplete instruments.

(2) The drawer engages that upon dishonor of the draft and any necessary notice of dishonor or protest he will pay the amount of the draft to the holder or to any indorser who takes it up. The drawer may disclaim this liability by drawing without recourse.

(3) By making, drawing or accepting the party admits as against all subsequent parties including the drawee the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-413, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.62-674.64.

673.414 Contract of indorser; order of liability.—

(1) Unless the indorsement otherwise specifies (as by such words as "without recourse") every indorser engages that upon dishonor and any necessary notice of dishonor and protest he will pay the instrument according to its tenor at the time of his indorsement to the holder or to any subsequent indorser who takes it up, even though the indorser who takes it up was not obligated to do so.

(2) Unless they otherwise agree indorsers are liable to one another in the order in which they indorse, which is presumed to be the order in which their signatures appear on the instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-414, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.41, 674.47, 674.68, 674.69.

673.415 Contract of accommodation party.—

(1) An accommodation party is one who signs the instrument in any capacity for the purpose of lending his name to another party to it.

(2) When the instrument has been taken for value before it is due the accommodation party is liable in the capacity in which he has signed even though the taker knows of the accommodation.

(3) As against a holder in due course and without notice of the accommodation oral proof of the accommodation is not admissible to give the accommodation party the benefit of discharges dependent on his character as such. In other cases the accommodation character may be shown by oral proof.

(4) An indorsement which shows that it is not in the chain of title is notice of its accommodation character.

(5) An accommodation party is not liable to the party accommodated, and if he pays the instrument has a right of recourse on the instrument against such party.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-415, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.31, 674.32, 674.66.

673.416 Contract of guarantor.—

(1) "Payment guaranteed" or equivalent words added to a signature mean that the signer engages that if the instrument is not paid when due he will pay it according to its tenor without resort by the holder to any other party.

(2) "Collection guaranteed" or equivalent words added to a signature mean that the signer engages that if the instrument is not paid when due he will pay it according to its tenor, but only after the holder has reduced his claim against the maker or acceptor to judgment and execution has been returned unsatisfied, or after the maker or acceptor has become insolvent or it is otherwise apparent that it is useless to proceed against him.

(3) Words of guaranty which do not otherwise specify guarantee payment.

(4) No words of guaranty added to the signature of a sole maker or acceptor affect his liability on the instrument. Such words added to the signature of one of two or more makers or acceptors create a presumption that the signature is for the accommodation of the others.

(5) When words of guaranty are used presentment, notice of dishonor and protest are not necessary to charge the user.

(6) Any guaranty written on the instrument is enforceable notwithstanding any statute of frauds.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-416, U.C.C.

673.417 Warranties on presentment and transfer.—

(1) Any person who obtains payment or acceptance and any prior transferor warrants to a person who in good faith pays or accepts that:

(a) He has a good title to the instrument or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title; and

(b) He has no knowledge that the signature of the maker or drawer is unauthorized, except that this warranty is not given by a holder in due course acting in good faith:

1. To a maker with respect to the maker's own signature; or

2. To a drawer with respect to the drawer's own signature, whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

3. To an acceptor of a draft if the holder in due course took the draft after the acceptance or obtained the acceptance without knowledge that the drawer's signature was unauthorized; and

(c) The instrument has not been materially altered, except that this warranty is not given by a holder in due course acting in good faith:

1. To the maker of a note; or

2. To the drawer of a draft whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

3. To the acceptor of a draft with respect to an alteration made prior to the acceptance if the holder in due course took the draft after the acceptance, even though the acceptance provided "payable as originally drawn" or equivalent terms; or

4. To the acceptor of a draft with respect to an alteration made after the acceptance.

(2) Any person who transfers an instrument and receives consideration warrants to his transferee and if the transfer is by indorsement to any subsequent holder who takes the instrument in good faith that:

(a) He has a good title to the instrument or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title and the transfer is otherwise rightful; and

(b) All signatures are genuine or authorized; and

(c) The instrument has not been materially altered; and

(d) No defense of any party is good against him; and

(e) He has no knowledge of any insolvency proceeding instituted with respect to the maker or acceptor or the drawer of an unaccepted instrument.

(3) By transferring "without recourse" the transferor limits the obligation stated in subsection (2) (d) to a warranty that he has no knowledge of such a defense.

(4) A selling agent or broker who does not disclose the fact that he is acting only as such gives the warranties provided in this section, but if he makes such disclosure warrants only his good faith and authority.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-417, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.67, 674.71.

673.418 Finality of payment or acceptance.—Except for recovery of bank payments as provided in the chapter on bank deposits and collections (chapter 674) and except for liability for breach of warranty on presentment under the preceding section, payment or acceptance of any instrument is final in favor of a holder in due course, or a person who has in good faith changed his position in reliance on the payment.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-418, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.64.

673.419 Conversion of instrument; innocent representative.—

(1) An instrument is converted when:

(a) A drawee to whom it is delivered for acceptance refuses to return it on demand; or

(b) Any person to whom it is delivered for payment refuses on demand either to pay or to return it; or

(c) It is paid on a forged indorsement.

(2) In an action against a drawee under subsection (1) the measure of the drawee's liability is the face amount of the instrument.

In any other action under subsection (1) the measure of liability is presumed to be the face amount of the instrument.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this code concerning restrictive indorsements a representative, including a depository or collecting bank, who has in good faith and in accordance with the reasonable commercial standards applicable to the business of such representative dealt with an instrument or its proceeds on behalf of one who was not the true owner is not liable in conversion or otherwise to the true owner beyond the amount of any proceeds remaining in his hands.

(4) An intermediary bank or payor bank which is not a depository bank is not liable in conversion solely by reason of the fact that proceeds of an item indorsed restrictively (§§673.205 and 673.206) are not paid or applied consistently with the restrictive indorsement of an indorser other than its immediate transferor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-419, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.08.

673.503 Time of presentment.

673.504 How presentment made.

673.505 Rights of party to whom presentment is made.

673.506 Time allowed for acceptance or payment.

673.508 Notice of dishonor.

673.509 Protest; noting for protest.

673.510 Evidence of dishonor and notice of dishonor.

673.511 Waived or excused presentment, protest or notice of dishonor or delay therein.

673.501 When presentment, notice of dishonor, and protest necessary or permissible.—

(1) Unless excused (§673.511) presentment is necessary to charge secondary parties as follows:

(a) Presentment for acceptance is necessary to charge the drawer and indorsers of a draft where the draft so provides, or is payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee, or its date of payment depends upon such presentment. The holder may at his option present for acceptance any other draft payable at a stated date;

(b) Presentment for payment is necessary to charge any indorser;

(c) In the case of any drawer, the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank, presentment for payment is necessary, but failure to make presentment discharges such drawer, acceptor or maker only as stated in §673.502(1)(b).

(2) Unless excused (§673.511):

(a) Notice of any dishonor is necessary to charge any indorser;

(b) In the case of any drawer, the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank, notice of any dishonor is necessary, but failure to give such notice discharges such drawer, acceptor or maker only as stated in §673.502(1)(b).

(3) Unless excused (§673.511) protest of any dishonor is necessary to charge the drawer and indorsers of any draft which on its face appears to be drawn or payable outside of the states and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia. The holder may at his option make protest of any dishonor of any other instrument and in the case of a foreign draft may on insolvency of the acceptor before maturity make protest for better security.

(4) Notwithstanding any provision of this section, neither presentment nor notice of dishonor nor protest is necessary to charge an indorser who has indorsed an instrument after maturity.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-501, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.72, 675.06, 675.27, 676.02, 676.12, 676.13, 676.17-676.19, 676.22, 676.23, 676.49.

673.502 Unexcused delay; discharge.—

(1) Where without excuse any necessary presentment or notice of dishonor is delayed beyond the time when it is due:

(a) Any indorser is discharged; and

(b) Any drawer or the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank who because the drawee or payor bank becomes insolvent during the delay is deprived of funds maintained with the drawee or payor bank to cover the instrument may discharge his liability by written assignment to the holder of his rights against the drawee or payor bank in respect of such funds, but such drawer, acceptor or maker is not otherwise discharged.

(2) Where without excuse a necessary protest is delayed beyond the time when it is due any drawer or indorser is discharged.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

673.503 Time of presentment.—

(1) Unless a different time is expressed in the instrument the time for any presentment is determined as follows:

(a) Where an instrument is payable at or a fixed period after a stated date any presentment for acceptance must be made on or before the date it is payable;

(b) Where an instrument is payable after sight it must either be presented for acceptance or negotiated within a reasonable time after date or issue whichever is later;

(c) Where an instrument shows the date on which it is payable presentment for payment is due on that date;

(d) Where an instrument is accelerated presentment for payment is due within a reasonable time after the acceleration;

(e) With respect to the liability of any secondary party presentment for acceptance or payment of any other instrument is due within a reasonable time after such party becomes liable thereon.

(2) A reasonable time for presentment is determined by the nature of the instrument, any usage of banking or trade and the facts of the particular case. In the case of an uncertified check which is drawn and payable within the United States and which is not a draft drawn by a bank the following are presumed to be reasonable periods within which to present for payment or to initiate bank collection:

(a) With respect to the liability of the drawer, thirty days after date or issue whichever is later; and

(b) With respect to the liability of an indorser, seven days after his indorsement.

(3) Where any presentment is due on a day which is not a full business day for either the person making presentment or the party to pay or accept, presentment is due on the next following day which is a full business day for both parties.

(4) Presentment to be sufficient must be made at a reasonable hour, and if at a bank during its banking day.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-503, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.73, 674.75, 674.78, 675.03, 676.13-676.15, 676.49, 674.01.

673.504 How presentment made.—

(1) Presentment is a demand for acceptance or payment made upon the maker, acceptor, drawee or other payor by or on behalf of the holder.

(2) Presentment may be made:

(a) By mail, in which event the time of presentment is determined by the time of receipt of the mail; or

(b) Through a clearing house; or

(c) At the place of acceptance or payment specified in the instrument or if there be none at the place of business or residence of the party to accept or pay. If neither the party to accept or pay nor anyone authorized to act for him is present or accessible at such place presentment is excused.

(3) It may be made:

(a) To any one of two or more makers, acceptors, drawees or other payors; or

(b) To any person who has authority to make or refuse the acceptance or payment.

(4) A draft accepted or a note made payable at a bank in the United States must be presented at such bank.

(5) In the cases described in §674.210 presentment may be made in the manner and with the result stated in that section.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-504, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.75, 674.76, 674.80, 674.81, 676.14.

673.505 Rights of party to whom presentment is made.—

(1) The party to whom presentment is made may without dishonor require:

(a) Exhibition of the instrument; and

(b) Reasonable identification of the person making presentment and evidence of his authority to make it if made for another; and

(c) That the instrument be produced for acceptance or payment at a place specified in it, or if there be none at any place reasonable in the circumstances; and

(d) A signed receipt on the instrument for any partial or full payment and its surrender upon full payment.

(2) Failure to comply with any such requirement invalidates the presentment but the person presenting has a reasonable time in which to comply and the time for acceptance or payment runs from the time of compliance.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-505, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.77.

673.506 Time allowed for acceptance or payment.—

(1) Acceptance may be deferred without dishonor until the close of the next business day following presentment. The holder may also in a good faith effort to obtain acceptance and without either dishonor of the instrument or discharge of secondary parties allow postponement of acceptance for an additional business day.

(2) Except as a longer time is allowed in the case of documentary drafts drawn under a letter of credit, and unless an earlier time is agreed to by the party to pay, payment of an instrument may be deferred without dishonor pending reasonable examination to determine whether it is properly payable, but payment must be made in any event before the close of business on the day of presentment.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-506, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.07.

673.507 Dishonor; holder's right of recourse; term allowing re-presentment.—

(1) An instrument is dishonored when:

(a) A necessary or optional presentment is duly made and due acceptance or payment is refused or cannot be obtained within the prescribed time or in case of bank collections the instrument is seasonably returned by the midnight deadline (§674.301); or

(b) Presentment is excused and the instrument is not duly accepted or paid.

(2) Subject to any necessary notice of dishonor and protest, the holder has upon dishonor an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers.

(3) Return of an instrument for lack of proper indorsement is not dishonor.

(4) A term in a draft or an indorsement thereof allowing a stated time for re-presentment in the event of any dishonor of the draft by nonacceptance if a time draft or by nonpayment if a sight draft gives the holder as against any secondary party bound by the term an option to waive the dishonor without affecting the liability of the secondary party and he may present again up to the end of the stated time.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-507, U.C.C.; supersedes §§675.01, 676.17.

673.508 Notice of dishonor.—

(1) Notice of dishonor may be given to any person who may be liable on the instrument by or on behalf of the holder or any party who has himself received notice, or any other party who can be compelled to pay the instrument. In addition an agent or bank in whose hands the instrument is dishonored may give notice to his principal or customer or to another agent or bank from which the instrument was received.

(2) Any necessary notice must be given by a bank before its midnight deadline and by any other person before midnight of the third business day after dishonor or receipt of notice of dishonor.

(3) Notice may be given in any reasonable manner. It may be oral or written and in any terms which identify the instrument and state that it has been dishonored. A misdescription which does not mislead the party notified does not vitiate the notice. Sending the instrument bearing a stamp, ticket or writing stating that acceptance or payment has been refused or sending a notice of debit with respect to the instrument is sufficient.

(4) Written notice is given when sent although it is not received.

(5) Notice to one partner is notice to each although the firm has been dissolved.

(6) When any party is in insolvency proceedings instituted after the issue of the instrument notice may be given either to the party or to the representative of his estate.

(7) When any party is dead or incompetent notice may be sent to his last known address or given to his personal representative.

(8) Notice operates for the benefit of all parties who have rights on the instrument against the party notified.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-508, U.C.C.; supersedes §§675.07-675.21.

673.509 Protest; noting for protest.—

(1) A protest is a certificate of dishonor made under the hand and seal of a United States consul or vice consul or a notary public or other person authorized to certify dishonor by the law of the place where dishonor occurs. It may be made upon information satisfactory to such person.

(2) The protest must identify the instrument and certify either that due presentment has been made or the reason why it is excused and that the instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment.

(3) The protest may also certify that notice of dishonor has been given to all parties or to specified parties.

(4) Subject to subsection (5) any necessary protest is due by the time that notice of dishonor is due.

(5) If, before protest is due, an instrument has been noted for protest by the officer to make protest, the protest may be made at any time thereafter as of the date of the noting.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-509, U.C.C.; supersedes §§676.20, 676.21, 676.23, 676.25.

673.510 Evidence of dishonor and notice of dishonor.—The following are admissible as evidence and create a presumption of dishonor and of any notice of dishonor therein shown:

(a) A document regular in form as provided in the preceding section which purports to be a protest;

(b) The purported stamp or writing of the drawee, payor bank or presenting bank on the instrument or accompanying it stating that acceptance or payment has been refused for reasons consistent with dishonor;

(c) Any book or record of the drawee, payor bank, or any collecting bank kept in the usual course of business which shows dishonor, even though there is no evidence of who made the entry.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-510, U.C.C.

673.511 Waived or excused presentment, protest or notice of dishonor or delay therein.—

(1) Delay in presentment, protest or notice of dishonor is excused when the party is without notice that it is due or when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond his control and he exercises reasonable diligence after the cause of the delay ceases to operate.

(2) Presentment or notice or protest as the case may be is entirely excused when:

(a) The party to be charged has waived it expressly or by implication either before or after it is due; or

(b) Such party has himself dishonored the instrument or has countermanded payment or otherwise has no reason to expect or right to require that the instrument be accepted or paid; or

(c) By reasonable diligence the presentment or protest cannot be made or the notice given.

(3) Presentment is also entirely excused when:

(a) The maker, acceptor or drawee of any instrument except a documentary draft is dead or in insolvency proceedings instituted after the issue of the instrument; or

(b) Acceptance or payment is refused but not for want of proper presentment.

(4) Where a draft has been dishonored by nonacceptance a later presentment for payment and any notice of dishonor and protest for nonpayment are excused unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted.

(5) A waiver of protest is also a waiver of presentment and of notice of dishonor even though protest is not required.

(6) Where a waiver of presentment or notice or protest is embodied in the instrument itself it is binding upon all parties; but where it is written above the signature of an indorser it binds him only.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

PART VI

DISCHARGE

673.601 Discharge of parties.

673.602 Effect of discharge against holder in due course.

673.603 Payment or satisfaction.

673.601 Discharge of parties.—

(1) The extent of the discharge of any party from liability on an instrument is governed by the sections on:

(a) Payment or satisfaction (§673.603); or

(b) Tender of payment (§673.604); or

(c) Cancellation or renunciation (§673.605); or

(d) Impairment of right of recourse or of collateral (§673.606); or

(e) Reacquisition of the instrument by a prior party (§673.208); or

(f) Fraudulent and material alteration (§673.407); or

(g) Certification of a check (§673.411); or

(h) Acceptance varying a draft (§673.412); or

(i) Unexcused delay in presentment or notice of dishonor or protest (§673.502).

(2) Any party is also discharged from his liability on an instrument to another party by any other act or agreement with such party which would discharge his simple contract for the payment of money.

(3) The liability of all parties is discharged when any party who has himself no right of action or recourse on the instrument:

(a) Reacquires the instrument in his own right; or

(b) Is discharged under any provision of this chapter, except as otherwise provided with respect to discharge for impairment of recourse or of collateral (§673.606).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-601, U.C.C.; supersedes §§675.28, 675.29.

673.604 Tender of payment.

673.605 Cancellation and renunciation.

673.606 Impairment of recourse or of collateral.

673.602 Effect of discharge against holder in due course.—No discharge of any party provided by this chapter is effective against a subsequent holder in due course unless he has notice thereof when he takes the instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-602, U.C.C.

673.603 Payment or satisfaction.—

(1) The liability of any party is discharged to the extent of his payment or satisfaction to the holder even though it is made with knowledge of a claim of another person to the instrument unless prior to such payment or satisfaction the person making the claim either supplies indemnity deemed adequate by the party seeking the discharge or enjoins payment or satisfaction by order of a court of competent jurisdiction in an action in which the adverse claimant and the holder are parties. This subsection does not, however, result in the discharge of the liability:

(a) Of a party who in bad faith pays or satisfies a holder who acquired the instrument by theft or who (unless having the rights of a holder in due course) holds through one who so acquired it; or

(b) Of a party (other than an intermediary bank or a payor bank which is not a depository bank) who pays or satisfies the holder of an instrument which has been restrictively indorsed in a manner not consistent with the terms of such restrictive indorsement.

(2) Payment or satisfaction may be made with the consent of the holder by any person including a stranger to the instrument. Surrender of the instrument to such a person gives him the rights of a transferee (§673.201).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-603, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.53, 675.05, 675.28, 675.29, 676.36-676.40.

673.604 Tender of payment.—

(1) Any party making tender of full payment to a holder when or after it is due is discharged to the extent of all subsequent liability for interest, costs and attorney's fees.

(2) The holder's refusal of such tender wholly discharges any party who has a right of recourse against the party making the tender.

(3) Where the maker or acceptor of an instrument payable otherwise than on demand is able and ready to pay at every place of payment specified in the instrument when it is due, it is equivalent to tender.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-604, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.72, 675.28.

673.605 Cancellation and renunciation.—

(1) The holder of an instrument may even without consideration discharge any party:

(a) In any manner apparent on the face of the instrument or the indorsement, as by intentionally cancelling the instrument or the party's signature by destruction or mutilation, or by striking out the party's signature; or

(b) By renouncing his rights by a writing signed and delivered or by surrender of the instrument to the party to be discharged.

(2) Neither cancellation nor renunciation without surrender of the instrument affects the title thereto.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-605, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.50, 675.28, 675.30, 675.31.

673.606 Impairment of recourse or of collateral.—

(1) The holder discharges any party to the instrument to the extent that without such party's consent the holder:

(a) Without express reservation of rights releases or agrees not to sue any person against whom the party has to the knowledge of the holder a right of recourse or agrees to suspend the right to enforce against such person the instrument or collateral or otherwise discharges such person, except that failure or delay in effecting any required presentment, protest or notice of dishonor with respect to any such person does not discharge any party as to whom presentment, protest or notice of dishonor is effective or unnecessary; or

(b) Unjustifiably impairs any collateral for the instrument given by or on behalf of the party or any person against whom he has a right of recourse.

(2) By express reservation of rights against a party with a right of recourse the holder preserves:

(a) All his rights against such party as of the time when the instrument was originally due; and

(b) The right of the party to pay the instrument as of that time; and

(c) All rights of such party to recourse against others.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-606, U.C.C.; supersedes §675.28.

PART VII

ADVICE OF INTERNATIONAL SIGHT DRAFT

673.701 Letter of advice of international sight draft.

673.701 Letter of advice of international sight draft.—

(1) A "letter of advice" is a drawer's communication to the drawee that a described draft has been drawn.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed when a bank receives from another bank a letter of advice of an international sight draft the drawee bank may immediately debit the drawer's account and stop the running of interest pro tanto. Such a debit and any resulting credit to any account covering outstanding drafts leaves in the drawer full power to stop payment or otherwise dispose of the amount and creates no trust or interest in favor of the holder.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and except where a draft is drawn under a credit issued by the drawee, the drawee of an international sight draft owes the drawer no duty to pay an unadvised draft but if it does so and the draft is genuine, may appropriately debit the drawer's account.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-701, U.C.C.

PART VIII

MISCELLANEOUS

673.801 Drafts in a set.

673.802 Effect of instrument on obligation for which it is given.

673.803 Notice to third party.

673.804 Lost, destroyed or stolen instruments.

673.805 Instruments not payable to order or to bearer.

673.801 Drafts in a set.—

(1) Where a draft is drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be an order only if no other part has been honored, the whole of the parts constitutes one draft but a taker of any part may become a holder in due course of the draft.

(2) Any person who negotiates, indorses or accepts a single part of a draft drawn in a set thereby becomes liable to any holder in due course of that part as if it were the whole set, but as between different holders in due course to whom different parts have been negotiated the holder whose title first accrues has all rights to the draft and its proceeds.

(3) As against the drawee the first presented part of a draft drawn in a set is the part entitled to payment, or if a time draft to acceptance and payment. Acceptance of any subsequently presented part renders the drawee liable thereon under subsection (2). With respect both to a holder and to the drawer payment of a subsequently presented part of a draft payable at sight has the same effect as payment of a check notwithstanding an effective stop order (§674.407).

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this section, where any part of a draft in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole draft is discharged.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-801, U.C.C.; supersedes §§676.41-676.46.

673.802 Effect of instrument on obligation for which it is given.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where an instrument is taken for an underlying obligation:

(a) The obligation is pro tanto discharged if a bank is drawer, maker or acceptor of the instrument and there is no recourse on the instrument against the underlying obligor; and

(b) In any other case the obligation is suspended pro tanto until the instrument is due or if it is payable on demand until its presentment. If the instrument is dishonored action may be maintained on either the instrument or the obligation; discharge of the underlying obligor on the instrument also discharges him on the obligation.

(2) The taking in good faith of a check which is not postdated does not of itself so extend the time on the original obligation as to discharge a surety.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-802, U.C.C.

673.803 Notice to third party.—Where a defendant is sued for breach of an obligation for which a third person is answerable over under this chapter he may give the third person written notice of the litigation, and the person notified may then give similar notice to any other person who is answerable over to him under this chapter. If the notice states that the person notified may come in and defend and that if the person notified does not do so he will in any action against him by the person giving the notice be bound by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless after seasonable receipt of the notice the person notified does come in and defend he is so bound.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-803, U.C.C.

673.804 Lost, destroyed or stolen instruments.—The owner of an instrument which is lost, whether by destruction, theft or otherwise, may maintain an action in his own name and recover from any party liable thereon upon due proof of his ownership, the facts which prevent his production of the instrument and its terms. The court may require security indemnifying the defendant against loss by reason of further claims on the instrument.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§3-804, U.C.C.

673.805 Instruments not payable to order or to bearer.—This chapter applies to any instrument whose terms do not preclude transfer and which is otherwise negotiable within this chapter but which is not payable to order or to bearer, except that there can be no holder in due course of such an instrument.

674.101 Short title.—Chapter 674 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code—bank deposits and collections.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-101, U.C.C.

674.102 Applicability.—

(1) To the extent that items within this chapter are also within the scope of chapters 673 and 678, they are subject to the provisions of those chapters. In the event of conflict the provisions of this chapter govern those of chapter 673 but the provisions of chapter 678 govern those of this chapter.

(2) The liability of a bank for action or non-action with respect to any item handled by it for purposes of presentment, payment or collection is governed by the law of the place where the bank is located. In the case of action or non-action by or at a branch or separate office of a bank, its liability is governed by the law of the place where the branch or separate office is located.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-102, U.C.C.; supersedes §659.33.

674.103 Variation by agreement; measure of damages; certain action constituting ordinary care.—

(1) The effect of the provisions of this chapter may be varied by agreement except that no agreement can disclaim a bank's responsibility for its own lack of good faith or failure to exercise ordinary care or can limit the measure of damages for such lack or failure; but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which such responsibility is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(2) Federal reserve regulations and operating letters, clearing house rules, and the like, have the effect of agreements under subsection (1), whether or not specifically assented to by all parties interested in items handled.

(3) Action or non-action approved by this chapter or pursuant to federal reserve regulations or operating letters constitutes the exercise of ordinary care and, in the absence of special instructions, action or non-action consistent with clearing house rules and the like or with a general banking usage not disapproved by this chapter, prima facie constitutes the exercise of ordinary care.

(4) The specification or approval of certain procedures by this chapter does not constitute disapproval of other procedures which may be reasonable under the circumstances.

(5) The measure of damages for failure to exercise ordinary care in handling an item is the amount of the item reduced by an amount which could not have been realized by the use of ordinary care, and where there is bad faith it includes other damages, if any, suffered by the party as a proximate consequence.

(2) Delay by a collecting bank or payor bank beyond time limits prescribed or per-

|---|---|

674.201 Presumption and duration of agency status of collecting banks and provisional status of credits; applicability of chapter; item indorsed “pay any bank”.—

(1) Unless a contrary intent clearly appears and prior to the time that a settlement given by a collecting bank for an item is or becomes final (§674.211(3) and §§674.212 and 674.213) the bank is an agent or sub-agent of the owner of the item and any settlement given for the item is provisional. This provision applies regardless of the form of indorsement or lack of indorsement and even though credit given for the item is subject to immediate withdrawal as of right or is in fact withdrawn; but the continuance of ownership of an item by its owner and any rights of the owner to proceeds of the item are subject to rights of a collecting bank such as those resulting from outstanding advances on the item and valid rights of setoff. When an item is handled by banks for purposes of presentment, payment and collection, the relevant provisions of this chapter apply even though action of parties clearly establishes that a particular bank has purchased the item and is the owner of it.

(2) After an item has been indorsed with the words “pay any bank” or the like, only a bank may acquire the rights of a holder:

(a) Until the item has been returned to the customer initiating collection; or

(b) Until the item has been specially indorsed by a bank to a person who is not a bank.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-201, U.C.C.

674.202 Responsibility for collection; when action seasonable.—

(1) A collecting bank must use ordinary care in:

(a) Presenting an item or sending it for presentment; and

(b) Sending notice of dishonor or non-payment or returning an item other than a documentary draft to the bank’s transferor or directly to the depositary bank under §674.212(2) after learning that the item has not been paid or accepted, as the case may be; and

(c) Settling for an item when the bank receives final settlement; and

(d) Making or providing for any necessary protest; and

(e) Notifying its transferor of any loss or delay in transit within a reasonable time after discovery thereof.

(2) A collecting bank taking proper action before its midnight deadline following receipt of an item, notice or payment acts seasonably; taking proper action within a reasonably longer time may be seasonable but the bank has the burden of so establishing.

(3) Subject to subsection (1) (a), a bank is not liable for the insolvency, neglect, misconduct, mistake or default of another bank or person or for loss or destruction of an item in transit or in the possession of others.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-202, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.74.

674.203 Effect of instructions.—Subject to the provisions of chapter 673 concerning conversion of instruments (§673.419) and the provisions of both chapter 673 and this chapter concerning restrictive indorsements only a collecting bank's transferor can give instructions which affect the bank or constitute notice to it and a collecting bank is not liable to prior parties for any action taken pursuant to such instructions or in accordance with any agreement with its transferor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-203, U.C.C.

674.204 Methods of sending and presenting; sending direct to payor bank.—

(1) A collecting bank must send items by reasonably prompt method taking into consideration any relevant instructions, the nature of the item, the number, of such items on hand, and the cost of collection involved and the method generally used by it or others to present such items.

(2) A collecting bank may send:

- (a) Any item direct to the payor bank;
- (b) Any item to any non-bank payor if authorized by its transferor; and
- (c) Any item other than documentary drafts to any non-bank payor, if authorized by federal reserve regulation or operating letter, clearing house rule or the like.

(3) Presentment may be made by a presenting bank at a place where the payor bank has requested that presentment be made.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-204, U.C.C.

674.205 Supplying missing indorsement; no notice from prior indorsement.—

(1) A depository bank which has taken an item for collection may supply any indorsement of the customer which is necessary to title unless the item contains the words "payee's indorsement required" or the like. In the absence of such a requirement a statement placed on the item by the depository bank to the effect that the item was deposited by a customer or credited to his account is effective as the customer's indorsement.

(2) An intermediary bank, or payor bank which is not a depository bank, is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by a restrictive indorsement of any person except the bank's immediate transferor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-205, U.C.C.

674.206 Transfer between banks.—Any agreed method which identifies the transferor bank is sufficient for the item's further transfer to another bank.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-206, U.C.C.

674.207 Warranties of customer and collecting bank on transfer or presentment of items; time for claims.—

(1) Each customer or collecting bank who obtains payment or acceptance of an item and each prior customer and collecting bank warrants to the payor bank or other payor who in good faith pays or accepts the item that:

(a) He has a good title to the item or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title; and

(b) He has no knowledge that the signature of the maker or drawer is unauthorized, except that this warranty is not given by any customer or collecting bank that is a holder in due course and acts in good faith:

1. To a maker with respect to the maker's own signature; or

2. To a drawer with respect to the drawer's own signature, whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

3. To an acceptor of an item if the holder in due course took the item after the acceptance or obtained the acceptance without knowledge that the drawer's signature was unauthorized; and

(c) The item has not been materially altered, except that this warranty is not given by any customer or collecting bank that is a holder in due course and acts in good faith:

1. To the maker of a note; or

2. To the drawer of a draft whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

3. To the acceptor of an item with respect to an alteration made prior to the acceptance if the holder in due course took the item after the acceptance, even though the acceptance provided "payable as originally drawn" or equivalent terms; or

4. To the acceptor of an item with respect to an alteration made after the acceptance.

(2) Each customer and collecting bank who transfers an item and receives a settlement or other consideration for it warrants to his transferee and to any subsequent collecting bank who takes the item in good faith that:

(a) He has a good title to the item or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title and the transfer is otherwise rightful; and

(b) All signatures are genuine or authorized; and

(c) The item has not been materially altered; and

(d) No defense of any party is good against him; and

(e) He has no knowledge of any insolvency proceeding instituted with respect to the maker or acceptor or the drawer of an unaccepted item.

In addition each customer and collecting bank so transferring an item and receiving a settlement or other consideration engages that upon dishonor and any necessary notice of dishonor and protest he will take up the item.

(3) The warranties and the engagement to honor set forth in the two preceding subsections arise notwithstanding the absence of indorsement or words of guaranty or warranty in the transfer or presentment and a collecting bank remains liable for their breach despite remittance to its transferor. Damages for breach of such warranties or engagement to honor shall not exceed the consideration received by the customer or collecting bank responsible plus finance charges and expenses related to the item, if any.

(4) Unless a claim for breach of warranty under this section is made within a reasonable time after the person claiming learns of the breach, the person liable is discharged to the extent of any loss caused by the delay in making claim.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-207, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.67, 674.71.

674.208 Security interest of collecting bank in items, accompanying documents and proceeds.—

(1) A bank has a security interest in an item and any accompanying documents or the proceeds of either:

(a) In case of an item deposited in an account to the extent to which credit given for the item has been withdrawn or applied;

(b) In case of an item for which it has given credit available for withdrawal as of right, to the extent of the credit given whether or not the credit is drawn upon and whether or not there is a right of charge-back; or

(c) If it makes an advance on or against the item.

(2) When credit which has been given for several items received at one time or pursuant to a single agreement is withdrawn or applied in part the security interest remains upon all the items, any accompanying documents or the proceeds of either. For the purpose of this section, credits first given are first withdrawn.

(3) Receipt by a collecting bank of a final settlement for an item is a realization on its security interest in the item, accompanying documents and proceeds. To the extent and so long as the bank does not receive final settlement for the item or give up possession of the item or accompanying documents for purposes other than collection, the security interest continues and is subject to the provisions of chapter 679 except that:

(a) No security agreement is necessary to make the security interest enforceable (§679-203(1)(b)); and

(b) No filing is required to perfect the security interest; and

(c) The security interest has priority over conflicting perfected security interests in the item, accompanying documents or proceeds.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-208, U.C.C.

674.209 When bank gives value for purposes of holder in due course.—For purposes of determining its status as a holder in due course, the bank has given value to the extent that it has a security interest in an item provided that the bank otherwise complies with the requirements of §673.302 on what constitutes a holder in due course.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-209, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.30.

674.210 Presentment by notice of item not payable by, through or at a bank; liability of secondary parties.—

(1) Unless otherwise instructed, a collecting bank may present an item not payable by, through or at a bank by sending to the party to accept or pay a written notice that the bank holds the item for acceptance or payment. The notice must be sent in time to be received on or before the day when presentment is due and the bank must meet any requirement of the party to accept or pay under §673.505 by the close of the bank's next banking day after it knows of the requirement.

(2) Where presentment is made by notice and neither honor nor request for compliance with a requirement under §673.505 is received by the close of business on the day after maturity or in the case of demand items by the close of business on the third banking day after notice was sent, the presenting bank may treat the item as dishonored and charge any secondary party by sending him notice of the facts.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-210, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.77.

674.211 Media of remittance; provisional and final settlement in remittance cases.—

(1) A collecting bank may take in settlement of an item:

(a) A check of the remitting bank or of another bank on any bank except the remitting bank; or

(b) A cashier's check or similar primary obligation of a remitting bank which is a member of or clears through a member of the same clearing house or group as the collecting bank; or

(c) Appropriate authority to charge an account of the remitting bank or of another bank with the collecting bank; or

(d) If the item is drawn upon or payable by a person other than a bank, a cashier's check, certified check or other bank check or obligation.

(2) If before its midnight deadline the collecting bank properly dishonors a remittance check or authorization to charge on itself or presents or forwards for collection a remittance instrument of or on another bank which is of a kind approved by subsection (1) or has not been authorized by it, the collecting bank is not liable to prior parties in the event of the dishonor of such check, instrument or authorization.

(3) A settlement for an item by means of a remittance instrument or authorization to charge is or becomes a final settlement as to both the person making and the person receiving the settlement:

(a) If the remittance instrument or authorization to charge is of a kind approved by subsection (1) or has not been authorized by the person receiving the settlement and in either case the person receiving the settlement acts seasonably before its midnight deadline in presenting, forwarding for collection or paying the instrument or authorization,—at the time the remittance instrument or authorization is finally paid by the payor by which it is payable;

(b) If the person receiving the settlement has authorized remittance by a non-bank check or obligation or by a cashier's check or similar primary obligation of or a check upon the payor or other remitting bank which is not of a kind approved by subsection (1)(b),—at the time of the receipt of such remittance check or obligation; or

(c) If in a case not covered by paragraphs (a) or (b) the person receiving the settlement fails to seasonably present, forward for collection, pay or return a remittance instrument or authorization to it to charge before its midnight deadline,—at such midnight deadline.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-211, U.C.C.

674.212 Right of charge-back or refund.—

(1) If a collecting bank has made provisional settlement with its customer for an item and itself fails by reason of dishonor, suspension of payments by a bank or otherwise to receive a settlement for the item which is or becomes final, the bank may revoke the settlement given by it, charge back the amount of any credit given for the item to its customer's account or obtain refund from its customer whether or not it is able to return the items if by its midnight deadline or within a longer reasonable time after it learns the facts it returns the item or sends notification of the facts. These rights to revoke, charge-back and obtain refund terminate if and when a settlement for the item received by the bank is or becomes final (§§674.211(3) and 674.213(2), (3)).

(2) Within the time and manner prescribed by this section and §674.301, an intermediary or payor bank, as the case may be, may return an unpaid item directly to the depository bank and may send for collection a draft on the depository bank and obtain reimbursement. In such case, if the depository bank has received provisional settlement for the item, it must reimburse the bank drawing the draft and any provisional credits for the item between banks shall become and remain final.

(3) A depository bank which is also the payor may charge-back the amount of an item to its customer's account or obtain refund in accordance with the section governing return of an item received by a payor bank for credit on its books (§674.301).

(4) The right to charge-back is not affected by:

(a) Prior use of the credit given for the item; or

(b) Failure by any bank to exercise ordinary care with respect to the item but any bank so failing remains liable.

(5) A failure to charge-back or claim refund does not affect other rights of the bank against the customer or any other party.

(6) If credit is given in dollars as the equivalent of the value of an item payable in a foreign currency the dollar amount of any charge-back or refund shall be calculated on the basis of the buying sight rate for the foreign currency prevailing on the day when the person entitled to the charge-back or refund learns that it will not receive payment in ordinary course.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-212, U.C.C.

674.213 Final payment of item by payor bank; when provisional debits and credits become final; when certain credits become available for withdrawal.—

(1) An item is finally paid by a payor bank when the bank has done any of the following, whichever happens first:

(a) Paid the item in cash; or

(b) Settled for the item without reserving a right to revoke the settlement and without having such right under statute, clearing house rule or agreement; or

(c) Completed the process of posting the item to the indicated account of the drawer, maker or other person to be charged therewith; or

(d) Made a provisional settlement for the item and failed to revoke the settlement in the time and manner permitted by statute, clearing house rule or agreement and has not returned the item directly to the depository bank within the time and manner provided in §674.212(2). Upon a final payment under paragraphs (b), (c) or (d) the payor bank shall be accountable for the amount of the item.

(2) If provisional settlement for an item between the presenting and payor banks is made through a clearing house or by debits or credits in an account between them, then to the extent that provisional debits or credits for the item are entered in accounts between the presenting and payor banks or between the presenting and successive prior collecting banks seriatim, they become final upon final payment of the item by the payor bank.

(3) If a collecting bank receives a settlement for an item which is or becomes final (§§674.211(3), 674.213(2)) the bank is accountable to its customer for the amount of the item and any provisional credit given for the item in an account with its customer becomes final.

(4) Subject to any right of the bank to apply the credit to an obligation of the customer, credit given by a bank for an item in an account with its customer becomes available for withdrawal as of right:

(a) In any case where the bank has received a provisional settlement for the item,—when such settlement becomes final and the bank has had a reasonable time to learn that the settlement is final;

(b) In any case where the bank is both a depository bank and a payor bank and the item is finally paid,—at the opening of the bank's second banking day following receipt of the item.

(5) A deposit of money in a bank is final when made but, subject to any right of the bank to apply the deposit to an obligation of the customer, the deposit becomes available for withdrawal as of right at the opening of the bank's next banking day following receipt of the deposit.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254; §1, ch. 67-172.
Note.—§4-213, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.55.

674.214 Insolvency and preference.—

(1) Any item in or coming into the possession of a payor or collecting bank which suspends payment and which item is not finally paid shall be returned by the receiver, trustee or agent in charge of the closed bank to the presenting bank or the closed bank's customer.

(2) If a payor bank finally pays an item and suspends payments without making a settlement for the item with its customer or the presenting bank which settlement is or becomes final, the owner of the item has a preferred claim against the payor bank.

(3) If a payor bank gives or a collecting bank gives or receives a provisional settlement for an item and thereafter suspends payments, the suspension does not prevent or interfere with the settlement becoming final if such finality occurs automatically upon the lapse of certain time or the happening of certain events (§§674.211(3), 674.213(1)(d), (2), (3)).

(4) If a collecting bank receives from subsequent parties settlement for an item which settlement is or becomes final and suspends payments without making a settlement for the item with its customer which is or becomes final, the owner of the item has a preferred claim against such collecting bank.

674.301 Deferred posting; recovery of payment by return of items; time of dishonor.

674.302 Payor bank's responsibility for late return of item.

674.301 Deferred posting; recovery of payment by return of items; time of dishonor.—

(1) Where an authorized settlement for a demand item (other than a documentary draft) received by a payor bank otherwise than for immediate payment over the counter has been made before midnight of the banking day of receipt the payor bank may revoke the settlement and recover any payment if before it has made final payment (§674.213(1)) and before its midnight deadline it:

- (a) Returns the item; or
- (b) Sends written notice of dishonor or nonpayment if the item is held for protest or is otherwise unavailable for return.

(2) If a demand item is received by a payor bank for credit on its books it may return such item or send notice of dishonor and may revoke any credit given or recover the amount thereof withdrawn by its customer, if it acts within the time limit and in the manner specified in the preceding subsection.

(3) Unless previous notice of dishonor has been sent an item is dishonored at the time when for purposes of dishonor it is returned or notice sent in accordance with this section.

(4) An item is returned:

- (a) As to an item received through a clearing house, when it is delivered to the presenting or last collecting bank or to the clearing house or is sent or delivered in accordance with its rules; or
- (b) In all other cases, when it is sent or

674.303 When items subject to notice, stop-order, legal process or setoff; order in which items may be charged or certified.

delivered to the bank's customer or transferor or pursuant to his instructions.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§4-301, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.55.

674.302 Payor bank's responsibility for late return of item.—In the absence of a valid defense such as breach of a presentment warranty (§674.207(1)), settlement effected or the like, if an item is presented on and received by a payor bank the bank is accountable for the amount of:

(1) A demand item other than a documentary draft whether properly payable or not if the bank, in any case where it is not also the depository bank, retains the item beyond midnight of the banking day of receipt without settling for it or, regardless of whether it is also the depository bank, does not pay or return the item or send notice of dishonor until after its midnight deadline; or

(2) Any other properly payable item unless within the time allowed for acceptance or payment of that item the bank either accepts or pays the item or returns it and accompanying documents.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§4-302, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.55.

674.303 When items subject to notice, stop-order, legal process or setoff; order in which items may be charged or certified.—

(1) Any knowledge, notice or stop-order received by, legal process served upon or setoff exercised by a payor bank, whether or not effective under other rules of law to terminate, suspend or modify the bank's right or duty to pay an item or to charge its customer's account for the item, comes too late to so terminate, suspend or modify such right or duty if the knowledge, notice, stop-order or legal process is received or served and a reasonable time for the bank to act thereon expires or the setoff is exercised after the bank has done any of the following:

- (a) Accepted or certified the item;
- (b) Paid the item in cash;
- (c) Settled for the item without reserving a right to revoke the settlement and without having such right under statute, clearing house rule or agreement;

(e) Become accountable for the amount of the item under §674.213(1)(d) and §674.302 dealing with the payor bank's responsibility for late return of items.

(2) Subject to the provisions of subsection (1) items may be accepted, paid, certified or charged to the indicated account of its customer in any order convenient to the bank.

- 674.403 Customer's right to stop payment; burden of proof of loss.
- 674.404 Bank not obligated to pay check more than six months old.

674.401 When bank may charge customer's account.—

(1) As against its customer, a bank may charge against his account any item which is otherwise properly payable from that account even though the charge creates an overdraft.

(2) A bank which in good faith makes payment to a holder may charge the indicated account of its customer according to:

(a) The original tenor of his altered item; or

(b) The tenor of his completed item, even though the bank knows the item has been completed unless the bank has notice that the completion was improper.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-401, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.15-674.17, 675.32.

674.402 Bank's liability to customer for wrongful dishonor.—A payor bank is liable to its customer for damages proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor of an item. When the dishonor occurs through mistake liability is limited to actual damages proved. If so proximately caused and proved damages may include damages for an arrest or prosecution of the customer or other consequential damages. Whether any consequential damages are proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor is a question of fact to be determined in each case.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-402, U.C.C.; supersedes §659.33.

674.403 Customer's right to stop payment; burden of proof of loss.—

(1) A customer, or any customer if there is more than one, or any person authorized to sign checks or make withdrawals on or from an account, may stop payment of any item payable, for or drawn against such customer's or

674.405 Death or incompetence of customer.
674.406 Customer's duty to discover and report unauthorized signature or alteration.

674.407 Payor bank's right to subrogation on improper payment.

customers' account but the same shall not be effective and the bank may disregard the same unless the order is in writing, is signed by such customer or authorized person, describes with certainty the item on which payment is to be stopped, and is served upon and received by an officer of the bank at the banking house during regular banking hours and in such time and in such manner as to afford the bank a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to the happening of any of the events described in §674.303, and in any event no bank shall be responsible or liable for failure to comply with any such order on the day the same is served upon or received by such bank unless such omission or failure to comply with the same on the day received result from the willful and intentional disregard of such order.

(2) An order may be disregarded by the bank six months after its receipt unless renewed in writing.

(3) The bank may be liable to its customer for the actual loss incurred by the customer resulting from the wrongful payment of an item contrary to a valid and binding stop payment order, not exceeding the amount of the item unless the bank is guilty of gross negligence or unless such wrongful payment was made as a result of the willful and intentional disregard by the bank of such order. The burden of establishing the fact and amount of loss resulting from the wrongful payment of an item contrary to a binding stop payment order is on the customer.

History.—Art. 10, §1, ch. 65-254.

Note.*—The above section is not identical with the 1962 official U.C.C. text.

674.404 Bank not obligated to pay check more than six months old.—A bank is under no obligation to a customer having a checking account to pay a check, other than a certified check, which is presented more than six months after its date, but it may charge its customer's account for a payment made thereafter in good faith.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-404, U.C.C.; supersedes §659.31.

674.405 Death or incompetence of customer.—

(1) A payor or collecting bank's authority to accept, pay or collect an item or to account for proceeds of its collection if otherwise effective is not rendered ineffective by incompetence of a customer of either bank existing at the time the item is issued or its collection is undertaken if the bank does not know of an adjudication of incompetence. Neither death nor incompetence of a customer revokes such authority to accept, pay, collect or account until the bank knows of the fact of death or of an adjudication of incompetence and has reasonable opportunity to act on it.

(2) Even with knowledge a bank may for ten days after the date of death pay or certify checks drawn on or prior to that date unless ordered to stop payment by a person claiming an interest in the account.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-405, U.C.C.; supersedes §§659.39, 659.40.

674.406 Customer's duty to discover and report unauthorized signature or alteration.—

(1) When a bank sends to its customer a statement of account accompanied by items paid in good faith in support of the debit entries or holds the statement and items pursuant to a request or instructions of its customer or otherwise in a reasonable manner makes the statement and items available to the customer, the customer must exercise reasonable care and promptness to examine the statement and items to discover his unauthorized signature or any alteration on an item and must notify the bank promptly after discovery thereof.

(2) If the bank establishes that the customer failed with respect to an item to comply with the duties imposed on the customer by subsection (1) the customer is precluded from asserting against the bank:

(a) His unauthorized signature or any alteration on the item if the bank also establishes that it suffered a loss by reason of such failure; and

(b) An unauthorized signature or alteration by the same wrongdoer on any other item paid in good faith by the bank after the first item and statement was available to the customer for a reasonable period not exceeding fourteen calendar days and before the bank receives notification from the customer of any such unauthorized signature or alteration.

(3) The preclusion under subsection (2) does not apply if the customer establishes lack of ordinary care on the part of the bank in paying the item(s).

(4) Without regard to care or lack of care of either the customer or the bank a customer who does not within one year from the time the statement and items are made available to the customer (subsection (1)) discover and report his unauthorized signature or any alteration on the face or back of the item or does not within three years from that time discover and report any unauthorized indorsement is precluded from asserting against the bank such unauthorized signature or indorsement or such alteration.

(5) If under this section a payor bank has a valid defense against a claim of a customer upon or resulting from payment of an item and waives or fails upon request to assert the defense the bank may not assert against any collecting bank or other prior party presenting or transferring the item a claim based upon the unauthorized signature or alteration giving rise to the customer's claim.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§4-406, U.C.C.; supersedes §659.37.
cf.—§659.35 Limitations; statements as correct.

674.407 Payor bank's right to subrogation on improper payment.—If a payor bank has paid an item over the stop payment order of the drawer or maker or otherwise under circumstances giving a basis for objection by the drawer or maker, to prevent unjust enrichment and only to the extent necessary to prevent loss to the bank by reason of its payment of the item, the payor bank shall be subrogated to the rights:

(1) Of any holder in due course on the item against the drawer or maker; and

(2) Of the payee or any other holder of the item against the drawer or maker either on the item or under the transaction out of which the item arose; and

(3) Of the drawer or maker against the payee or any other holder of the item with respect to the transaction out of which the item arose.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

PART V

COLLECTION OF DOCUMENTARY DRAFTS

- 674.501 Handling of documentary drafts; duty to send for presentment and to notify customer of dishonor.
 674.502 Presentment of "On Arrival" drafts.

- 674.503 Responsibility of presenting bank for documents and goods; report of reasons for dishonor; referee in case of need.
 674.504 Privilege of presenting bank to deal with goods; security interest for expenses.

674.501 Handling of documentary drafts; duty to send for presentment and to notify customer of dishonor.—A bank which takes a documentary draft for collection must present or send the draft and accompanying documents for presentment and upon learning that the draft has not been paid or accepted in due course must seasonably notify its customer of such fact even though it may have discounted or bought the draft or extended credit available for withdrawal as of right.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§4-501, U.C.C.

674.502 Presentment of "On Arrival" drafts.—When a draft or the relevant instructions require presentment "on arrival", "when goods arrive" or the like, the collecting bank need not present until in its judgment a reasonable time for arrival of the goods has expired. Refusal to pay or accept because the goods have not arrived is not dishonor; the bank must notify its transferor of such refusal but need not present the draft again until it is instructed to do so or learns of the arrival of the goods.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§4-502, U.C.C.

674.503 Responsibility of presenting bank for documents and goods; report of reasons for dishonor; referee in case of need.—Unless otherwise instructed and except as provided in chapter 675 a bank presenting a documentary draft:

(1) Must deliver the documents to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment; otherwise, only on payment; and

(2) Upon dishonor, either in the case of presentment for acceptance or presentment for payment, may seek and follow instructions from any referee in case of need designated in the draft or if the presenting bank does not choose to utilize his services it must use diligence and good faith to ascertain the reason for dishonor, must notify its transferor of the dishonor and of the results of its effort to ascertain the reasons therefor and must request instructions.

But the presenting bank is under no obligation with respect to goods represented by the documents except to follow any reasonable instructions seasonably received; it has a right to reimbursement for any expense incurred in following instructions and to prepayment of or indemnity for such expenses.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§4-503, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.04.

674.504 Privilege of presenting bank to deal with goods; security interest for expenses.—

(1) A presenting bank which, following the dishonor of a documentary draft, has seasonably requested instructions but does not receive them within a reasonable time may store, sell, or otherwise deal with the goods in any reasonable manner.

(2) For its reasonable expenses incurred by action under subsection (1) the presenting bank has a lien upon the goods or their proceeds, which may be foreclosed in the same manner as an unpaid seller's lien.

675.101 Short title.—Chapter 675 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code—letters of credit.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-101, U.C.C.

675.102 Scope.—

- (1) This chapter applies:
 - (a) To a credit issued by a bank if the credit requires a documentary draft or a documentary demand for payment; and
 - (b) To a credit issued by a person other than a bank if the credit requires that the draft or demand for payment be accompanied by a document of title; and
 - (c) To a credit issued by a bank or other person if the credit is not within paragraphs (a) or (b) but conspicuously states that it is a letter of credit or is conspicuously so entitled.
- (2) Unless the engagement meets the requirements of subsection (1), this chapter does not apply to engagements to make advances or to honor drafts or demands for payment, to authorities to pay or purchase, to guarantees or to general agreements.
- (3) This chapter deals with some but not all of the rules and concepts of letters of credit as such rules or concepts have developed prior to this act or may hereafter develop. The fact that this chapter states a rule does not by itself require, imply or negate application of the same or a converse rule to a situation not provided for or to a person not specified by this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-102, U.C.C.

675.103 Definitions.—

- (1) In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires:
 - (a) "Credit" or "letter of credit" means an engagement by a bank or other person made at the request of a customer and of a kind within the scope of this chapter (§675.102) that the issuer will honor drafts or other demands for payment upon compliance with the conditions specified in the credit. A credit shall clearly state whether it is revocable or irrevocable and in the absence of such statement shall be presumed to be irrevocable. The engagement may be either an agreement to honor or a statement that the bank or other person is authorized to honor.

(b) A "documentary draft" or a "documentary demand for payment" is one honor of which is conditioned upon the presentation of a document or documents. "Document" means any paper including document of title, security, invoice, certificate, notice of default and the like.

(c) An "issuer" is a bank or other person issuing a credit.

(d) A "beneficiary" of a credit is a person who is entitled under its terms to draw or demand payment.

(e) An "advising bank" is a bank which gives notification of the issuance of a credit by another bank.

(f) A "confirming bank" is a bank which engages either that it will itself honor a credit already issued by another bank or that such a credit will be honored by the issuer or a third bank.

(g) A "customer" is a buyer or other person who causes an issuer to issue a credit. The term also includes a bank which procures issuance or confirmation on behalf of that bank's customer.

(2) Other definitions applying to this chapter and the sections in which they appear are:

"Notation of Credit". §675.108.

"Presenter". §675.112(3).

(3) Definitions in other chapters applying to this chapter and the sections in which they appear are:

"Accept" or "Acceptance". §673.410.

*Note.—Pursuant to §69, ch. 69-353, the editors have altered the numbers of all sections making up this chapter by deleting the digit and hyphen immediately following the decimal point. The purpose is to conform the numbering of the Code sections with the decimal numbering system used in other chapters of the Florida Statutes. The visual relationship between Florida Statutes section numbers and Code section number is not destroyed by this alteration; the digit preceding the decimal point coincides with the Code article number, and the digits following the decimal point coincide with the Code section numbers.

"Contract for sale". §672.106.

"Draft". §673.104.

"Holder in due course". §673.302.

"Midnight deadline". §674.104.

"Security". §678.102.

(4) In addition, chapter 671 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—The above section is not identical with the 1962 official U.C.C. text.

Note.—§5-103, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.06.

675.104 Formal requirements; signing.—

(1) Except as otherwise required in §675.102(1)(c) on scope, no particular form of phrasing is required for a credit. A credit must be in writing and signed by the issuer and a confirmation must be in writing and signed by the confirming bank. A modification of the terms of a credit or confirmation must be signed by the issuer or confirming bank.

(2) A telegram may be a sufficient signed writing if it identifies its sender by an authorized authentication. The authentication may be in code and the authorized naming of the issuer in an advice of credit is a sufficient signing.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-104, U.C.C.

675.105 Consideration.—No consideration is necessary to establish a credit or to enlarge or otherwise modify its terms.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-105, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.27, 674.31.

675.106 Time and effect of establishment of credit.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed a credit is established:

(a) As regards the customer as soon as a letter of credit is sent to him or the letter of credit or an authorized written advice of its issuance is sent to the beneficiary; and

(b) As regards the beneficiary when he receives a letter of credit or an authorized written advice of its issuance.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed once an irrevocable credit is established as regards the customer it can be modified or revoked only with the consent of the customer and once it is established as regards the beneficiary it can be modified or revoked only with his consent.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed after a revocable credit is established it may be modified or revoked by the issuer without notice to or consent from the customer or beneficiary.

(4) Notwithstanding any modification or revocation of a revocable credit any person authorized to honor or negotiate under the terms of the original credit is entitled to reimbursement for or honor of any draft or demand for payment duly honored or negotiated before receipt of notice of the modification or revocation and the issuer in turn is entitled to reimbursement from its customer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-106, U.C.C.

675.107 Advice of credit; confirmation; error in statement of terms.—

(1) Unless otherwise specified an advising bank by advising a credit issued by another bank does not assume any obligation to honor drafts drawn or demands for payment made under the credit but it does assume obligation for the accuracy of its own statement.

(2) A confirming bank by confirming a credit becomes directly obligated on the credit to the extent of its confirmation as though it were its issuer and acquires the rights of an issuer.

(3) Even though an advising bank incorrectly advises the terms of a credit it has been authorized to advise the credit is established as against the issuer to the extent of its original terms.

(4) Unless otherwise specified the customer bears as against the issuer all risks of transmission and reasonable translation or interpretation of any message relating to a credit.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-107, U.C.C.

675.108 "Notation Credit"; exhaustion of credit.—

(1) A credit which specifies that any person purchasing or paying drafts drawn or demands for payment made under it must note the amount of the draft or demand on the letter or advice of credit is a "notation credit".

(2) Under a notation credit:

(a) A person paying the beneficiary or purchasing a draft or demand for payment from him acquires a right to honor only if the appropriate notation is made and by transferring or forwarding for honor the documents under the credit such a person warrants to the issuer that the notation has been made; and

(b) Unless the credit or a signed statement that an appropriate notation has been made accompanies the draft or demand for payment the issuer may delay honor until evidence of notation has been procured which is satisfactory to it but its obligation and that of its customer continue for a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days to obtain such evidence.

(3) If the credit is not a notation credit:

(a) The issuer may honor complying drafts or demands for payment presented to it in the order in which they are presented and is discharged pro tanto by honor of any such draft or demand;

(b) As between competing good faith purchasers of complying drafts or demands the person first purchasing has priority over a subsequent purchaser even though the later purchased draft or demand has been first honored.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-108, U.C.C.

675.109 Issuer's obligation to its customer.—

(1) An issuer's obligation to its customer includes good faith and observance of any general banking usage but unless otherwise agreed does not include liability or responsibility:

(a) For performance of the underlying contract for sale or other transaction between the customer and the beneficiary; or

(b) For any act or omission of any person other than itself or its own branch or for loss or destruction of a draft, demand or document in transit or in the possession of others; or

(c) Based on knowledge or lack of knowledge of any usage of any particular trade.

(2) An issuer must examine documents with care so as to ascertain that on their face they appear to comply with the terms of the credit but unless otherwise agreed assumes no liability or responsibility for the genuineness, falsification or effect of any document which appears on such examination to be regular on its face.

(3) A non-bank issuer is not bound by any banking usage of which it has no knowledge.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-109, U.C.C.

675.110 Availability of credit in portions; presenter's reservation of lien or claim.—

(1) Unless otherwise specified a credit may be used in portions in the discretion of the beneficiary.

(2) Unless otherwise specified a person by presenting a documentary draft or demand for payment under a credit relinquishes upon its honor all claims to the documents and a person by transferring such draft or demand or causing such presentation authorizes such relinquishment. An explicit reservation of claim makes the draft or demand non-complying.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-110, U.C.C.

675.111 Warranties on transfer and presentation.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed the beneficiary by transferring or presenting a documentary draft or demand for payment warrants to all interested parties that the necessary conditions of the credit have been complied with. This is in addition to any warranties arising under chapters 673, 674, 677 and 678.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed a negotiating, advising, confirming, collecting or issuing bank presenting or transferring a draft or demand for payment under a credit warrants only the matters warranted by a collecting bank under chapter 674 and any such bank transferring a document warrants only the matters warranted by an intermediary under chapters 677 and 678.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-111, U.C.C.; supersedes §675.32.

675.112 Time allowed for honor or rejection; withholding honor or rejection by consent; "presenter".—

(1) A bank to which a documentary draft or demand for payment is presented under a credit may without dishonor of the draft, demand or credit:

(a) Defer honor until the close of the third banking day following receipt of the documents; and

(b) Further defer honor if the presenter has expressly or impliedly consented thereto.

Failure to honor within the time here specified constitutes dishonor of the draft or demand and of the credit.

(2) Upon dishonor the bank may unless otherwise instructed fulfill its duty to return the draft or demand and the documents by holding them at the disposal of the presenter and sending him an advice to that effect.

(3) "Presenter" means any person presenting a draft or demand for payment for honor under a credit even though that person is a confirming bank or other correspondent which is acting under an issuer's authorization.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-112, U.C.C.; supersedes §676.07.

675.113 Indemnities.—

(1) A bank seeking to obtain (whether for itself or another) honor, negotiation or reimbursement under a credit may give an indemnity to induce such honor, negotiation or reimbursement.

(2) An indemnity agreement inducing honor, negotiation or reimbursement:

(a) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed applies to defects in the documents but not in the goods; and

(b) Unless a longer time is explicitly agreed expires at the end of ten business days following receipt of the documents by the ultimate customer unless notice of objection is sent before such expiration date. The ultimate customer may send notice of objection to the person from whom he received the documents and any bank receiving such notice is under a duty to send notice to its transferor before its midnight deadline.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-113, U.C.C.

675.114 Issuer's duty and privilege to honor; right to reimbursement.—

(1) An issuer must honor a draft or demand for payment which complies with the terms of the relevant credit regardless of whether the goods or documents conform to the underlying contract for sale or other contract between the customer and the beneficiary. The issuer is not excused from honor of such a draft or demand by reason of an additional general term that all documents must be satisfactory to the issuer, but an issuer may require that specified documents must be satisfactory to it.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed when documents appear on their face to comply with the terms of a credit but a required document does not in fact conform to the warranties made on negotiation or transfer of a document of title (§677.507) or of a security (§678.306) or is forged or fraudulent or there is fraud in the transaction:

(a) The issuer must honor the draft or demand for payment if honor is demanded by a negotiating bank or other holder of the draft or demand which has taken the draft or demand under the credit and under circumstances which would make it a holder in due course

(§673.302) and in an appropriate case would make it a person to whom a document of title has been duly negotiated (§677.502) or a bona fide purchaser of a security (§678.302); and

(b) In all other cases as against its customer, an issuer acting in good faith may honor the draft or demand for payment despite notification from the customer of fraud, forgery or other defect not apparent on the face of the documents but a court of appropriate jurisdiction may enjoin such honor.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed an issuer which has duly honored a draft or demand for payment is entitled to immediate reimbursement of any payment made under the credit and to be put in effectively available funds not later than the day before maturity of any acceptance made under the credit.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—The above section is not identical with the 1962 official U.C.C. text.

Note.—§5-114, U.C.C.

675.115 Remedy for improper dishonor or anticipatory repudiation.—

(1) When an issuer wrongfully dishonors a draft or demand for payment presented under a credit the person entitled to honor has with respect to any documents the rights of a person in the position of a seller (§672.707) and may recover from the issuer the face amount of the draft or demand together with incidental damages under §672.710 on seller's incidental damages and interest but less any amount realized by resale or other use or disposition of the subject matter of the transaction. In the event no resale or other utilization is made the documents, goods or other subject matter involved in the transaction must be turned over to the issuer on payment of judgment.

(2) When an issuer wrongfully cancels or otherwise repudiates a credit before presentation of a draft or demand for payment drawn under it the beneficiary has the rights of a seller after anticipatory repudiation by the buyer under §672.610 if he learns of the repudiation in time reasonably to avoid procurement of the required documents. Otherwise the beneficiary has an immediate right of action for wrongful dishonor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-115, U.C.C.

675.116 Transfer and assignment.—

(1) The right to draw under a credit can be transferred or assigned only when the credit is expressly designated as transferable or assignable.

(2) Even though the credit specifically states that it is non-transferable or nonassignable the beneficiary may before performance of the conditions of the credit assign his right to proceeds. Such an assignment is an assignment of a contract right under chapter 679 on secured transactions and is governed by that chapter except that:

(a) The assignment is ineffective until the letter of credit or advice of credit is delivered to the assignee which delivery constitutes perfection of the security interest under chapter 679; and

(b) The issuer may honor drafts or demands for payment drawn under the credit until it receives a notification of the assignment signed by the beneficiary which reasonably identifies the credit involved in the assignment and contains a request to pay the assignee; and

(c) After what reasonably appears to be such a notification has been received the issuer may without dishonor refuse to accept or pay even to a person otherwise entitled to honor until the letter of credit or advice of credit is exhibited to the issuer.

(3) Except where the beneficiary has effectively assigned his right to draw or his right to proceeds, nothing in this section limits his right to transfer or negotiate drafts or demands drawn under the credit.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§5-116, U.C.C.

675.117 Insolvency of bank holding funds for documentary credit.—

(1) Where an issuer or an advising or confirming bank or a bank which has for a customer procured issuance of a credit by another bank becomes insolvent before final payment under the credit and the credit is one to which this chapter is made applicable by §675.102-(1)(a) or (b) on scope, the receipt or allocation of funds or collateral to secure or meet obligations under the credit shall have the following results:

(a) To the extent of any funds or collateral turned over after or before the insolvency as indemnity against or specifically for the purpose of payment of drafts or demands for payment drawn under the designated credit, the drafts or demands are entitled to payment in preference over depositors or other general creditors of the issuer or bank; and

(b) On expiration of the credit or surrender of the beneficiary's rights under it unused any person who has given such funds or collateral is similarly entitled to return thereof; and

(c) A change to a general or current account with a bank if specifically consented to for the purpose of indemnity against or payment of drafts or demands for payment drawn under the designated credit falls under the same rules as if the funds had been drawn out in cash and then turned over with specific instructions.

(2) After honor or reimbursement under this section the customer or other person for whose account the insolvent bank has acted is entitled to receive the documents involved.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

676.101 Short title.—Chapter 676 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code—bulk transfers.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§6-101, U.C.C.

676.102 "Bulk Transfers"; transfers of equipment; enterprises subject to this chapter; bulk transfers subject to this chapter.—

(1) A "bulk transfer" is any transfer in bulk and not in the ordinary course of the transferor's business of a major part of the materials, supplies, merchandise or other inventory (§679.109) of an enterprise subject to this chapter.

(2) A transfer of a substantial part of the equipment (§679.109) of such an enterprise is a bulk transfer if it is made in connection with a bulk transfer of inventory, but not otherwise.

(3) The enterprises subject to this chapter are all those whose principal business is the sale of merchandise from stock, including those who manufacture what they sell.

(4) Except as limited by the following section all bulk transfers of goods located within this state are subject to this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§6-102, U.C.C.; supersedes §726.05.

676.103 Transfers excepted from this chapter.—The following transfers are not subject to this chapter:

(1) Those made to give security for the performance of an obligation;

(2) General assignments for the benefit of all the creditors of the transferor, and subsequent transfers by the assignee thereunder;

(3) Transfers in settlement or realization of a lien or other security interest;

(4) Sales by executors, administrators, receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or any public officer under judicial process;

(5) Sales made in the course of judicial or administrative proceedings for the dissolution or reorganization of a corporation and of which notice is sent to the creditors of the corporation pursuant to order of the court or administrative agency;

(6) Transfers to a person maintaining a known place of business in this state who becomes bound to pay the debts of the transferor in full and gives public notice of that fact, and who is solvent after becoming so bound;

(7) A transfer to a new business enterprise organized to take over and continue the business, if public notice of the transaction is given and the new enterprise assumes the debts of the transferor and he receives nothing from the transaction except an interest in the new enterprise junior to the claims of creditors;

(8) Transfers of property which is exempt from execution.

Public notice under subsection (6) or subsection (7) may be given by publishing once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation where the transferor had its principal place of business in this state an advertisement including the names and addresses of the transferor and transferee and the effective date of the transfer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§6-103, U.C.C.; supersedes §726.05.

676.104 Schedule of property, list of creditors.—

(1) Except as provided with respect to auction sales (§676.108), a bulk transfer subject to this chapter is ineffective against any creditor of the transferor unless:

(a) The transferee requires the transferor to furnish a list of his existing creditors prepared as stated in this section; and

(b) The parties prepare a schedule of the property transferred sufficient to identify it; and

(c) The transferee preserves the list and schedule for six months next following the transfer and permits inspection of either or both and copying therefrom at all reasonable hours by any creditor of the transferor, or files the list and schedule in (a public office to be here identified).

(2) The list of creditors must be signed and sworn to or affirmed by the transferor or his agent. It must contain the names and business addresses of all creditors of the transferor, with the amounts when known, and also the names of all persons who are known to the transferor to assert claims against him even though such claims are disputed. If the transferor is the obligor of an outstanding issue of bonds, debentures or the like as to which there is an indenture trustee, the list of creditors need include only the name and address of the indenture trustee and the aggregate outstanding principal amount of the issue.

(3) Responsibility for the completeness and accuracy of the list of creditors rests on the transferor, and the transfer is not rendered ineffective by errors or omissions therein unless the transferee is shown to have had knowledge.

(4) Any transferor who shall, concerning the list of creditors prescribed in subsection (1) of this section, knowingly or willfully make or deliver or cause to be made or delivered any statement of which any portion is false, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six months.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.*—The above section is not identical with the 1962 official U.C.C. text.

Note.—§6-104, U.C.C.; supersedes §726.06.

676.105 Notice to creditors.—In addition to the requirements of the preceding section, any bulk transfer subject to this chapter except one made by auction sale (§676.108) is ineffective against any creditor of the transferor unless at least ten days before he takes possession of the goods or pays for them, whichever happens first, the transferee gives notice of the transfer in the manner and to the persons hereafter provided (§676.107).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§6-105, U.C.C.; supersedes §726.03.

676.106 Application of the proceeds.—In addition to the requirements of the two preceding sections:

(1) Upon every bulk transfer subject to this chapter for which new consideration becomes payable except those made by sale at auction it is the duty of the transferee to assure that such consideration is applied so far as necessary to pay those debts of the transferor which are either shown on the list furnished by the transferor (§676.104) or filed in writing in the place stated in the notice (§676.107) within thirty days after the mailing of such notice. This duty of the transferee runs to all the holders of such debts, and may be enforced by any of them for the benefit of all.

(2) If any of said debts are in dispute the necessary sum may be withheld from distribution until the dispute is settled or adjudicated.

(3) If the consideration payable is not enough to pay all of the said debts in full distribution shall be made pro rata.

(4) A transferee may within ten days after taking possession of the goods, discharge his obligations under this section by an action in the circuit court for the county where the transferor had his principal place of business in this state interpleading all creditors in the list of creditors required by §676.104. In such event the court shall require the consideration to be deposited into the registry of the court and thereupon shall decree the goods to be free and clear of the claims of such creditors and that such creditors should file their claims with the court.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§6-106, U.C.C.

676.107 The notice.—

(1) The notice to creditors (§676.105) shall state:

(a) That a bulk transfer is about to be made; and

(b) The names and business addresses of the transferor and transferee, and all other business names and addresses used by the transferor within three years last past so far as known to the transferee; and

(c) Whether or not all the debts of the transferor are to be paid in full as they fall due as a result of the transaction, and if so, the address to which creditors should send their bills.

(2) If the debts of the transferor are not to be paid in full as they fall due or if the transferee is in doubt on that point then the notice shall state further:

(a) The location and general description of the property to be transferred and the estimated total of the transferor's debts;

(b) The address where the schedule of property and list of creditors (§676.104) may be inspected;

(c) Whether the transfer is to pay existing debts and if so the amount of such debts and to whom owing;

(d) Whether the transfer is for new consideration and if so the amount of such consideration and the time and place of payment; and

(e) If for new consideration the time and place where creditors of the transferor are to file their claims.

(3) The notice in any case shall be to all persons shown on the list of creditors furnished by the transferor (§676.104) and to all other persons who are known by the transferee to hold or assert claims against the transferor, and shall be:

(a) Delivered personally or by registered or certified mail, and

(b) If the county in which the transferor resides has a population in excess of two hundred thousand persons according to the latest statewide decennial census, published one time in a daily newspaper of general circulation in such county.

676.108 Auction sales; "Auctioneer".—

(1) A bulk transfer is subject to this chapter even though it is by sale at auction, but only in the manner and with the results stated in this section.

(2) The transferor shall furnish a list of his creditors and assist in the preparation of a schedule of the property to be sold, both prepared as before stated (§676.104).

(3) The person or persons other than the transferor who direct, control or are responsible for the auction are collectively called the "auctioneer". The auctioneer shall:

(a) Receive and retain the list of creditors and prepare and retain the schedule of property for the period stated in this chapter (§676.104);

(b) Give notice of the auction personally or by registered or certified mail at least ten days before it occurs to all persons shown on the list of creditors and to all other persons who are known to him to hold or assert claims against the transferor; and

(c) Assure that the net proceeds of the auction are applied as provided in this chapter (§676.106).

(4) Failure of the auctioneer to perform any of these duties does not affect the validity of the sale or the title of the purchasers, but if the auctioneer knows that the auction constitutes a bulk transfer such failure renders the auctioneer liable to the creditors of the transferor as a class for the sums owing to them from the transferor up to but not exceeding the net proceeds of the auction. If the auctioneer consists of several persons their liability is joint and several.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§6-108, U.C.C.; supersedes §726.05.

676.109 What creditors protected; credit for payment to particular creditors.—

(1) The creditors of the transferor mentioned in this chapter are those holding claims based on transactions or events occurring before the bulk transfer, but creditors who become such after notice to creditors is given (§§676.105 and 676.107) are not entitled to notice.

(2) Against the aggregate obligation imposed by the provisions of this chapter concerning the application of the proceeds (§§676.106 and 676.108(3)(c)) the transferee or auctioneer is entitled to credit for sums paid to particular creditors of the transferor, not exceeding the sums believed in good faith at the time of the payment to be properly payable to such creditors.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§6-109, U.C.C.

676.110 Subsequent transfers.—When the title of a transferee to property is subject to a defect by reason of his non-compliance with the requirements of this chapter, then:

(1) A purchaser of any of such property from such transferee who pays no value or who takes with notice of such non-compliance takes subject to such defect, but

(2) A purchaser for value in good faith and without such notice takes free of such defect.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§6-110, U.C.C.

676.111 Limitation of actions and levies.—No action under this chapter shall be brought nor levy made more than one year after the date on which the transferee took possession of the goods unless the transfer has been concealed. If the transfer has been concealed, actions may be brought or levies made within one year after its discovery.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS, BILLS OF LADING AND OTHER DOCUMENTS OF TITLE

PART I

GENERAL

677.101 Short title.

677.102 Definitions and index of definitions.

677.103 Relation of chapter to treaty, statute, tariff, classification or regulation.

677.104 Negotiable and non-negotiable warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title.

677.105 Construction against negative implication.

677.101 Short title.—Chapter 677 shall be known and may be cited as the uniform commercial code—documents of title.

History.—§1, ch. 65-25.

Note.—§7-101, U.C.C.

677.102 Definitions and index of definitions.—

(1) In this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Bailee" means the person who by a warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title acknowledges possession of goods and contracts to deliver them.

(b) "Consignee" means the person named in a bill to whom or to whose order the bill promises delivery.

(c) "Consignor" means the person named in a bill as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment.

(d) "Delivery order" means a written order to deliver goods directed to a warehouseman, carrier or other person who in the ordinary course of business issues warehouse receipts or bills of lading.

(e) "Document" means document of title as defined in the general definitions in chapter 671 (§671.201).

(f) "Goods" means all things which are treated as movable for the purposes of a contract of storage or transportation.

(g) "Issuer" means a bailee who issues a document except that in relation to an unaccepted delivery order it means the person who orders the possessor of goods to deliver. Issuer includes any person for whom an agent or employee purports to act in issuing a document if the agent or employee has real or apparent authority to issue documents, notwithstanding that the issuer received no goods or that the goods were misdescribed or that in any other respect the agent or employee violated his instructions.

(h) "Warehouseman" is a person engaged in the business of storing goods for hire.

(2) Other definitions applying to this chapter or to specified parts thereof, and the sections in which they appear are:

"Duly negotiate". §677.501.

"Person entitled under the document". §677.403(4).

(3) Definitions in other chapters applying to this chapter and the sections in which they appear are:

"Contract for sale". §672.106.

"Overseas". §672.323.

"Receipt" of goods. §672.103.

(4) In addition chapter 671 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-102, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.54.

*Note.—Pursuant to §69, ch. 69-353, the editors have altered the numbers of all sections making up this chapter by deleting the digit and hyphen immediately following the decimal point. The purpose is to conform the numbering of the Code sections with the decimal numbering system used in other chapters of the Florida Statutes. The visual relationship between Florida Statutes section numbers and Code section number is not destroyed by this alteration; the digit preceding the decimal point coincides with the Code article number, and the digits following the decimal point coincide with the Code section numbers.

677.103 Relation of chapter to treaty, statute, tariff, classification or regulation.—To the extent that any treaty or statute of the United States, regulatory statute of this state or tariff, classification or regulation filed or issued pursuant thereto is applicable, the provisions of this chapter are subject thereto.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-103, U.C.C.

677.104 Negotiable and non-negotiable warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title.—

(1) A warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title is negotiable:

(a) If by its terms the goods are to be delivered to bearer or to the order of a named person; or

(b) Where recognized in overseas trade, if it runs to a named person or assigns.

(2) Any other document is non-negotiable. A bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned to a named person is not made negotiable by a provision that the goods are to be delivered only against a written order signed by the same or another named person.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-104, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.02-678.05.

677.105 Construction against negative implication.—The omission from either part II or part III of this chapter of a provision corresponding to a provision made in the other part does not imply that a corresponding rule of law is not applicable.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-105, U.C.C.

PART II

WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS: SPECIAL PROVISIONS

- 677.201 Who may issue a warehouse receipt; storage under government bond.
 677.202 Form of warehouse receipt; essential terms; optional terms.
 677.203 Liability for non-receipt or misdescription.
 677.204 Duty of care; contractual limitation of warehouseman's liability.

- 677.205 Title under warehouse receipt defeated in certain cases.
 677.206 Termination of storage at warehouseman's option.
 677.207 Goods must be kept separate; fungible goods.
 677.208 Altered warehouse receipts.
 677.209 Lien of warehouseman.
 677.210 Enforcement of warehouseman's lien.

677.201 Who may issue a warehouse receipt; storage under government bond.—

(1) A warehouse receipt may be issued by any warehouseman.

(2) Where goods including distilled spirits and agricultural commodities are stored under a statute requiring a bond against withdrawal or a license for the issuance of receipts in the nature of warehouse receipts, a receipt issued for the goods has like effect as a warehouse receipt even though issued by a person who is the owner of the goods and is not a warehouseman.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-201, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.01.

677.202 Form of warehouse receipt; essential terms; optional terms.—

(1) A warehouse receipt need not be in any particular form.

(2) Unless a warehouse receipt embodies within its written or printed terms each of the following, the warehouseman is liable for damages caused by the omission to a person injured thereby:

- (a) The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored;
 (b) The date of issue of the receipt;
 (c) The consecutive number of the receipt;
 (d) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order;
 (e) The rate of storage and handling charges, except that where goods are stored under a field warehousing arrangement a statement of that fact is sufficient on a non-negotiable receipt;

(f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them;

(g) The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent;

(h) If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and

(i) A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien or security interest (§677.209). If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

(3) A warehouseman may insert in his receipt any other terms which are not contrary to the provisions of this code and do not impair his obligation of delivery (§677.403) or his duty of care (§677.204). Any contrary provisions shall be ineffective.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-202, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.02.

677.203 Liability for non-receipt or misdescription.—A party to or purchaser for value in good faith of a document of title other than a bill of lading relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods may recover from the issuer damages caused by the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods, except to the extent that the document conspicuously indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description, as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind, quantity or condition, or the receipt or description is qualified by "contents, condition and quality unknown", "said to contain" or the like, if such indication be true, or the party or purchaser otherwise has notice.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-203, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.20.

677.204 Duty of care; contractual limitation of warehouseman's liability.—

(1) A warehouseman is liable for damages for loss of or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances but unless otherwise agreed he is not liable for damages which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care.

(2) Damages may be limited by a term in the warehouse receipt or storage agreement limiting the amount of liability in case of loss or damage, and setting forth a specific liability per article or item, or value per unit of weight, beyond which the warehouseman shall not be liable; provided, however, that such liability may on written request of the bailor at the time of signing such storage agreement or within a reasonable time after receipt of the warehouse receipt be increased on part or all of the goods thereunder, in which event increased rates may be charged based on such increased valuation, but that no such increase shall be permitted contrary to a lawful limitation of liability contained in the warehouseman's tariff, if any. No such limitation is effective with respect to the warehouseman's liability for conversion to his own use.

(3) This section does not impair or repeal any statute which imposes a higher responsibility upon the warehouseman or invalidates contractual limitations which would be permissible under this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—The above section is not identical with the 1962 official U.C.C. text.

Note.—§7-204, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.03, 678.20.

677.205 Title under warehouse receipt defeated in certain cases.—A buyer in the ordinary course of business of fungible goods sold and delivered by a warehouseman who is also in the business of buying and selling such goods takes free of any claim under a warehouse receipt even though it has been duly negotiated.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-205, U.C.C.

677.206 Termination of storage at warehouseman's option.—

(1) A warehouseman may on notifying the person on whose account the goods are held and any other person known to claim an interest in the goods require payment of any charges and removal of the goods from the warehouse at the termination of the period of storage fixed by the document, or, if no period is fixed, within a stated period not less than thirty days after the notification. If the goods are not removed before the date specified in the notification, the warehouseman may sell them in accordance with the provisions of the section on enforcement of a warehouseman's lien (§677.210).

(2) If a warehouseman in good faith believes that the goods are about to deteriorate or decline in value to less than the amount of his lien within the time prescribed in subsection (1) for notification, advertisement and sale, the warehouseman may specify in the notification any reasonable shorter time for removal of the goods and in case the goods are not removed, may sell them at public sale held not less than one week after a single advertisement or posting.

(3) If as a result of a quality or condition of the goods of which the warehouseman had no notice at the time of deposit the goods are a hazard to other property or to the warehouse or to persons, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertisement on reasonable notification to all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell the goods he may dispose of them in any lawful manner and shall incur no liability by reason of such disposition.

(4) The warehouseman must deliver the goods to any person entitled to them under this chapter upon due demand made at any time prior to sale or other disposition under this section.

(5) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale or disposition under this section but must hold the balance for delivery on the demand of any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-206, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.34.

677.207 Goods must be kept separate; fungible goods.—

(1) Unless the warehouse receipt otherwise provides, a warehouseman must keep separate the goods covered by each receipt so as to permit at all times identification and delivery of those goods except that different lots of fungible goods may be commingled.

(2) Fungible goods so commingled are owned in common by the persons entitled thereto and the warehouseman is severally liable to each owner for that owner's share. Where because of overissue a mass of fungible goods is insufficient to meet all the receipts which the warehouseman has issued against it, the persons entitled include all holders to whom overissued receipts have been duly negotiated.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-207, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.22, 678.23.

677.208 Altered warehouse receipts.—Where a blank in a negotiable warehouse receipt has been filled in without authority, a purchaser for value and without notice of the want of authority may treat the insertion as authorized. Any other unauthorized alteration leaves any receipt enforceable against the issuer according to its original tenor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-208, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.13.

677.209 Lien of warehouseman.—

(1) A warehouseman has a lien against the bailor on the goods covered by a warehouse receipt or on the proceeds thereof in his possession for charges for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges), insurance, labor, or charges present or future in relation to the goods, and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to law. If the person on whose account the goods are held is liable for like charges or expenses in relation to other goods whenever deposited and it is stated in the receipt that a lien is claimed for charges and expenses in relation to other goods, the warehouseman also has a lien against him for such charges and expenses whether or not the other goods have been delivered by the warehouseman. But against a person to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt is duly negotiated a warehouseman's lien is limited to charges in an amount or at a rate specified on the receipt or if no charges are so specified then to a reasonable charge for storage of the goods covered by the receipt subsequent to the date of the receipt.

(2) The warehouseman may also reserve a security interest against the bailor for a maximum amount specified on the receipt for charges other than those specified in subsection (1), such as for money advanced and interest. Such a security interest is governed by the chapter on secured transactions (chapter 679).

(3) A warehouseman's lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) or a security interest under subsection (2) is also effective against any person who so entrusted the bailor with possession of the goods that a pledge of them by him to a good faith purchaser for value would have been valid but is not effective against a person as to whom the document confers no right in the goods covered by it under §677.503.

(4) A warehouseman loses his lien on any goods which he voluntarily delivers or which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-209, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.27-678.32.

677.210 Enforcement of warehouseman's lien.—

(1) Except as provided in subsection (2), a warehouseman's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods in block or in parcels, at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable, after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due, the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the warehouseman is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the warehouseman either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor, or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale, or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold, he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to insure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) A warehouseman's lien on goods other than goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business may be enforced only as follows:

(a) All persons known to claim an interest in the goods must be notified.

(b) The notification must be delivered in person or sent by registered or certified letter to the last known address of any person to be notified.

(c) The notification must include an itemized statement of the claim, a description of the goods subject to the lien, a demand for payment within a specified time not less than ten days after receipt of the notification, and a conspicuous statement that unless the claim is paid within that time the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

(d) The sale must conform to the terms of the notification.

(e) The sale must be held at the nearest suitable place to that where the goods are held or stored.

(f) After the expiration of the time given in the notification, an advertisement of the sale must be published once a week for two weeks consecutively in a newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held. The advertisement must include a description of the goods, the name of the person on whose account they are being held, and the time and place of the sale. The sale must take place at least fifteen days after the first publication. If there is no newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held, the advertisement must be posted at least ten days before the sale in not less than six conspicuous places in the neighborhood of the proposed sale.

(3) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the warehouseman subject to the terms of the receipt and this chapter.

(4) The warehouseman may buy at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(5) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a warehouseman's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid, despite noncompliance by the warehouseman with the requirements of this section.

(6) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance, if any, for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(7) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(8) Where a lien is on goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business the lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or (2).

(9) The warehouseman is liable for damages caused by failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-210, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.33.

PART III

BILLS OF LADING: SPECIAL PROVISIONS

677.301 Liability for non-receipt or misdescription; "Said to Contain"; "Shipper's Load and Count"; improper handling.

677.302 Through bills of lading and similar documents.

677.303 Diversion; reconsignment; change of instructions.

677.304 Bills of lading in a set.

677.305 Destination bills.

677.306 Altered bills of lading.

677.307 Lien of carrier.

677.308 Enforcement of carrier's lien.

677.309 Duty of care; contractual limitation of carrier's liability.

677.301 Liability for non-receipt or misdescription; "Said to Contain"; "Shipper's Load and Count"; improper handling.—

(1) A consignee of a non-negotiable bill who has given value in good faith or a holder to whom a negotiable bill has been duly negotiated relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods, or upon the date therein shown, may recover from the issuer damages caused by the misdating of the bill or the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods, except to the extent that the document indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description, as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind, quantity, or condition or the receipt or description is qualified by "contents or condition of contents of packages unknown", "said to contain", "shipper's weight, load and count" or the like, if such indication be true.

(2) When goods are loaded by an issuer who is a common carrier, the issuer must count the packages of goods if package freight and ascertain the kind and quantity if bulk freight. In such cases "shipper's weight, load and count" or other words indicating that the description was made by the shipper are ineffective except as to freight concealed by packages.

(3) When bulk freight is loaded by a shipper who makes available to the issuer adequate facilities for weighing such freight, an issuer who is a common carrier must ascertain the kind and quantity within a reasonable time after receiving the written request of the shipper to do so. In such cases "shipper's weight" or other words of like purport are ineffective.

(4) The issuer may by inserting in the bill

the words "shipper's weight, load and count" or other words of like purport indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper; and if such statement be true the issuer shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading. But their omission does not imply liability for such damages.

(5) The shipper shall be deemed to have guaranteed to the issuer the accuracy at the time of shipment of the description, marks, labels, number, kind, quantity, condition and weight, as furnished by him; and the shipper shall indemnify the issuer against damage caused by inaccuracies in such particulars. The right of the issuer to such indemnity shall in no way limit his responsibility and liability under the contract of carriage to any person other than the shipper.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-301, U.C.C.

cf.—§352.25 To receive, transport and deliver freight.

§352.26 Freight to be delivered according to terms and direction.

677.302 Through bills of lading and similar documents.—

(1) The issuer of a through bill of lading or other document embodying an undertaking to be performed in part by persons acting as its agents or by connecting carriers is liable to anyone entitled to recover on the document for any breach by such other persons or by a connecting carrier of its obligation under the document but to the extent that the bill covers an undertaking to be performed overseas or in territory not contiguous to the continental United States or an undertaking including matters other than transportation this liability may be varied by agreement of the parties.

(2) Where goods covered by a through bill of lading or other document embodying an undertaking to be performed in part by persons other than the issuer are received by any such person, he is subject with respect to his own performance while the goods are in his possession to the obligation of the issuer. His obligation is discharged by delivery of the goods to another such person pursuant to the document, and does not include liability for breach by any other such persons or by the issuer.

(3) The issuer of such through bill of lading or other document shall be entitled to recover from the connecting carrier or such other person in possession of the goods when the breach of the obligation under the document occurred, the amount it may be required to pay to anyone entitled to recover on the document therefor, as may be evidenced by any receipt, judgment, or transcript thereof, and the amount of any expense reasonably incurred by it in defending any action brought by anyone entitled to recover on the document therefor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§7-302, U.C.C.

677.303 Diversion; reconsignment; change of instructions.—

(1) Unless the bill of lading otherwise provides, the carrier may deliver the goods to a person or destination other than that stated in the bill or may otherwise dispose of the goods on instructions from:

- (a) The holder of a negotiable bill; or
- (b) The consignor on a non-negotiable bill notwithstanding contrary instructions from the consignee; or
- (c) The consignee on a non-negotiable bill in the absence of contrary instructions from the consignor, if the goods have arrived at the billed destination or if the consignee is in possession of the bill; or
- (d) The consignee on a non-negotiable bill if he is entitled as against the consignor to dispose of them.

(2) Unless such instructions are noted on a negotiable bill of lading, a person to whom the bill is duly negotiated can hold the bailee according to the original terms.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§7-303, U.C.C.

677.304 Bills of lading in a set.—

(1) Except where customary in overseas transportation, a bill of lading must not be issued in a set of parts. The issuer is liable for damages caused by violation of this subsection.

(2) Where a bill of lading is lawfully drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be valid only if the goods have not been delivered against any other part, the whole of the parts constitute one bill.

(3) Where a bill of lading is lawfully issued in a set of parts and different parts are negotiated to different persons, the title of the holder to whom the first due negotiation is made prevails as to both the document and the goods even though any later holder may have received the goods from the carrier in good faith and discharged the carrier's obligation by surrender of his part.

(4) Any person who negotiates or transfers a single part of a bill of lading drawn in a set is liable to holders of that part as if it were the whole set.

(5) The bailee is obliged to deliver in accordance with part IV of this chapter against the first presented part of a bill of lading lawfully drawn in a set. Such delivery discharges the bailee's obligation on the whole bill.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§7-304, U.C.C.

677.305 Destination bills.—

(1) Instead of issuing a bill of lading to the consignor at the place of shipment a carrier may at the request of the consignor procure the bill to be issued at destination or at any other place designated in the request.

(2) Upon request of anyone entitled as against the carrier to control the goods while in transit and on surrender of any outstanding bill of lading or other receipt covering such goods, the issuer may procure a substitute bill to be issued at any place designated in the request.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§7-305, U.C.C.

677.306 Altered bills of lading.—An unauthorized alteration or filling in of a blank in a bill of lading leaves the bill enforceable according to its original tenor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§7-306, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.13.

677.307 Lien of carrier.—

(1) A carrier has a lien on the goods covered by a bill of lading for charges subsequent to the date of its receipt of the goods for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges) and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods incident to their transportation or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to law. But against a purchaser for value of a negotiable bill of lading a carrier's lien is limited to charges stated in the bill or the applicable tariffs, or if no charges are stated then to a reasonable charge.

(2) A lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) on goods which the carrier was required by law to receive for transportation is effective against the consignor or any person entitled to the goods unless the carrier had notice that the consignor lacked authority to subject the goods to such charges and expenses. Any other lien under subsection (1) is effective against the consignor and any person who permitted the bailor to have control or possession of the goods unless the carrier had notice that the bailor lacked such authority.

(3) A carrier loses his lien on any goods which he voluntarily delivers or which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§7-307, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.27-678.32.

677.308 Enforcement of carrier's lien.—

(1) A carrier's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods, in block or in parcels, at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable, after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due, the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the carrier is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the carrier either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to ensure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the carrier subject to the terms of the bill and this chapter.

(3) The carrier may buy at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(4) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a carrier's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid, despite noncompliance by the carrier with the requirements of this section.

(5) The carrier may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance, if any, for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(6) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(7) A carrier's lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or the procedure set forth in §677.210(2).

(8) The carrier is liable for damages caused by failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-308, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.33.

677.309 Duty of care; contractual limitation of carrier's liability.—

(1) A carrier who issues a bill of lading whether negotiable or non-negotiable must exercise the degree of care in relation to the goods which a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances. This subsection does not repeal or change any law or rule of law which imposes liability upon a common carrier for damages not caused by its negligence.

(2) Damages may be limited by a provision that the carrier's liability shall not exceed a value stated in the document if the carrier's rates are dependent upon value and the consignor by the carrier's tariff is afforded an opportunity to declare a higher value or a value as lawfully provided in the tariff, or where no tariff is filed he is otherwise advised of such opportunity; but no such limitation is effective with respect to the carrier's liability for conversion to its own use.

(3) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the shipment may be included in a bill of lading or tariff.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-309, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.03, 678.20.

PART IV

WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING: GENERAL OBLIGATIONS

677.401 Irregularities in issue of receipt or bill or conduct of issuer.

677.402 Duplicate receipt or bill; overissue.

677.403 Obligation of warehouseman or carrier to deliver; excuse.

677.401 Irregularities in issue of receipt or bill or conduct of issuer.—The obligations imposed by this chapter on an issuer apply to a document of title regardless of the fact that:

(1) The document may not comply with the requirements of this chapter or of any other law or regulation regarding its issue, form or content; or

(2) The issuer may have violated laws regulating the conduct of his business; or

(3) The goods covered by the document were owned by the bailee at the time the document was issued; or

(4) The person issuing the document does not come within the definition of warehouseman if it purports to be a warehouse receipt.

677.404 No liability for good faith delivery pursuant to receipt or bill.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-401, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.20.

677.402 Duplicate receipt or bill; overissue.—Neither a duplicate nor any other document of title purporting to cover goods already represented by an outstanding document of the same issuer confers any right in the goods, except as provided in the case of bills in a set, overissue of documents for fungible goods and substitutes for lost, stolen or destroyed documents. But the issuer is liable for damages caused by his overissue or failure to identify a duplicate document as such by conspicuous notation on its face.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-402, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.06.

677.403 Obligation of warehouseman or carrier to deliver; excuse.—

(1) The bailee must deliver the goods to a person entitled under the document who complies with subsections (2) and (3), unless and to the extent that the bailee establishes any of the following:

(a) Delivery of the goods to a person whose receipt was rightful as against the claimant;

(b) Damage to or delay, loss or destruction of the goods for which the bailee is not liable;

(c) Previous sale or other disposition of the goods in lawful enforcement of a lien or on warehouseman's lawful termination of storage;

(d) The exercise by a seller of his right to stop delivery pursuant to the provisions of the chapter on sales (§672.705);

(e) A diversion, reconsignment or other disposition pursuant to the provisions of this chapter (§677.303) or tariff regulating such right;

(f) Release, satisfaction or any other fact affording a personal defense against the claimant;

(g) Any other lawful excuse.

(2) A person claiming goods covered by a document of title must satisfy the bailee's lien where the bailee so requests or where the bailee is prohibited by law from delivering the goods until the charges are paid.

(3) Unless the person claiming is one against whom the document confers no right under §677.503(1), he must surrender for cancellation or notation of partial deliveries any outstanding negotiable document covering the goods, and the bailee must cancel the document or conspicuously note the partial delivery thereon or be liable to any person to whom the document is duly negotiated.

(4) "Person entitled under the document" means holder in the case of a negotiable document, or the person to whom delivery is to be made by the terms of or pursuant to written instructions under a non-negotiable document.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-403, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.08-678.12, 678.16, 678.19.

677.404 No liability for good faith delivery pursuant to receipt or bill.—A bailee who in good faith including observance of reasonable commercial standards has received goods and delivered or otherwise disposed of them according to the terms of the document of title or pursuant to this chapter is not liable therefor. This rule applies even though the person from whom he received the goods had no authority to procure the document or to dispose of the goods and even though the person to whom he delivered the goods had no authority to receive them.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-404, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.10.

PART V

WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING: NEGOTIATION AND TRANSFER

677.501 Form of negotiation and requirements of "Due Negotiation".

677.502 Rights acquired by due negotiation.

677.503 Document of title to goods defeated in certain cases.

677.504 Rights acquired in the absence of due negotiation; effect of diversion; seller's stoppage of delivery.

677.505 Indorser not a guarantor for other parties.

677.506 Delivery without indorsement; right to compel indorsement.

677.507 Warranties on negotiation or transfer of receipt or bill.

677.508 Warranties of collecting bank as to documents.

677.509 Receipt or bill; when adequate compliance with commercial contract.

677.501 Form of negotiation and requirements of "Due Negotiation".—

(1) A negotiable document of title running to the order of a named person is negotiated by his indorsement and delivery. After his indorsement in blank or to bearer any person can negotiate it by delivery alone.

(2) (a) A negotiable document of title is also negotiated by delivery alone when by its original terms it runs to bearer.

(b) When a document running to the order of a named person is delivered to him the effect is the same as if the document had been negotiated.

(3) Negotiation of a negotiable document of title after it has been indorsed to a specified person requires indorsement by the special indorsee as well as delivery.

(4) A negotiable document of title is "duly negotiated" when it is negotiated in the manner stated in this section to a holder who purchases it in good faith without notice of any defense against or claim to it on the part of any person and for value, unless it is established that the negotiation is not in the regular course of business or financing or involves receiving the document in settlement or payment of a money obligation.

(5) Indorsement of a non-negotiable document neither makes it negotiable nor adds to the transferee's rights.

(6) The naming in a negotiable bill of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods does not limit the negotiability of the bill nor constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any interest of such person in the goods.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-501, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.39-678.42, 678.49.

677.502 Rights acquired by due negotiation.—

(1) Subject to the following section and to the provisions of §677.205 on fungible goods, a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated acquires thereby:

(a) Title to the document;

(b) Title to the goods;

(c) All rights accruing under the law of agency or estoppel, including rights to goods delivered to the bailee after the document was issued; and

(d) The direct obligation of the issuer to hold or deliver the goods according to the terms of the document free of any defense or claim by him except those arising under the terms of the document or under this chapter. In the case of a delivery order the bailee's obligation accrues only upon acceptance and the obligation acquired by the holder is that the issuer and any indorser will procure the acceptance of the bailee.

(2) Subject to the following section, title and rights so acquired are not defeated by any stoppage of the goods represented by the document or by surrender of such goods by the bailee, and are not impaired even though the negotiation or any prior negotiation constituted a breach of duty or even though any person has been deprived of possession of the document by misrepresentation, fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft or conversion, or even though a previous sale or other transfer of the goods or document has been made to a third person.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-502, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.43, 678.49-678.51.

677.503 Document of title to goods defeated in certain cases.—

(1) A document of title confers no right in goods against a person who before issuance of the document had a legal interest or a perfected security interest in them and who neither:

(a) Delivered or entrusted them or any document of title covering them to the bailor or his nominee with actual or apparent authority to ship, store or sell or with power to obtain delivery under this chapter (§677.403) or with power of disposition under this code (§§672.403 and 679.307) or other statute or rule of law; nor

(b) Acquiesced in the procurement by the bailor or his nominee of any document of title.

(2) Title to goods based upon an unaccepted delivery order is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt or bill of lading covering the goods has been duly negotiated. Such a title may be defeated under the next section to the same extent as the rights of the issuer or a transferee from the issuer.

(3) Title to goods based upon a bill of lading issued to a freight forwarder is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a bill issued by the freight forwarder is duly negotiated; but delivery by the carrier in accordance with part IV of this chapter pursuant to its own bill of lading discharges the carrier's obligation to deliver.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-503, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.43.

677.504 Rights acquired in the absence of due negotiation; effect of diversion; seller's stoppage of delivery.—

(1) A transferee of a document, whether negotiable or non-negotiable, to whom the document has been delivered but not duly negotiated, acquires the title and rights which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey.

(2) In the case of a non-negotiable document, until but not after the bailee receives notification of the transfer, the rights of the transferee may be defeated:

(a) By those creditors of the transferor who could treat the sale as void under §672.402; or

(b) By a buyer from the transferor in ordinary course of business if the bailee has delivered the goods to the buyer or received notification of his rights; or

(c) As against the bailee by good faith dealings of the bailee with the transferor.

(3) A diversion or other change of shipping instructions by the consignor in a non-negotiable bill of lading which causes the bailee not to deliver to the consignee defeats the consignee's title to the goods if they have been delivered to a buyer in ordinary course of business and in any event defeats the consignee's rights against the bailee.

(4) Delivery pursuant to a non-negotiable document may be stopped by a seller under §672.705, and subject to the requirement of due notification there provided. A bailee honoring the seller's instructions is entitled to be indemnified by the seller against any resulting loss or expense.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-504, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.43, 678.44.

677.505 Indorser not a guarantor for other parties.—The indorsement of a document of title issued by a bailee does not make the indorser liable for any default by the bailee or by previous indorsers.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-505, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.47.

677.506 Delivery without indorsement; right to compel indorsement.—The transferee of a negotiable document of title has a specifically enforceable right to have his transferor supply any necessary indorsement but the transfer becomes a negotiation only as of the time the indorsement is supplied.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-506, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.45.

677.507 Warranties on negotiation or transfer of receipt or bill.—Where a person negotiates or transfers a document of title for value otherwise than as a mere intermediary under the next following section, then unless otherwise agreed he warrants to his immediate purchaser only in addition to any warranty made in selling the goods:

- (1) That the document is genuine; and
- (2) That he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair its validity or worth; and
- (3) That his negotiation or transfer is rightful and fully effective with respect to the title to the document and the goods it represents.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-507, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.46.

677.508 Warranties of collecting bank as to documents.—A collecting bank or other intermediary known to be entrusted with documents on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against delivery of documents warrants by such delivery of the documents only its own good faith and authority. This rule applies even though the intermediary has purchased or made advances against the claim or draft to be collected.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-508, U.C.C.; supersedes §685.01.

677.509 Receipt or bill; when adequate compliance with commercial contract.—The question whether a document is adequate to fulfill the obligations of a contract for sale or the conditions of a credit is governed by the chapters on sales (chapter 672) and on letters of credit (chapter 675).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-509, U.C.C.

PART VI

WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING: MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

677.601 Lost and missing documents.

677.602 Attachment of goods covered by a negotiable document.

677.601 Lost and missing documents.—

(1) If a document has been lost, stolen or destroyed, a court may order delivery of the goods or issuance of a substitute document and the bailee may without liability to any person comply with such order. If the document was negotiable the claimant must post security approved by the court to indemnify any person who may suffer loss as a result of non-surrender of the document. If the document was not negotiable, such security may be required at the discretion of the court. The court may also in its discretion order payment of the bailee's reasonable costs and counsel fees.

(2) A bailee who without court order delivers goods to a person claiming under a missing negotiable document is liable to any person injured thereby, and if the delivery is not in good faith becomes liable for conversion. Delivery in good faith is not conversion if made in accordance with a filed classification or tariff or, where no classification or tariff is filed, if the claimant posts security with the bailee in an amount at least double the value of the goods at the time of posting to indemnify any person injured by the delivery who files a notice of claim within one year after the delivery.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-601, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.14.

677.603 Conflicting claims; interpleader.

677.602 Attachment of goods covered by a negotiable document.—Except where the document was originally issued upon delivery of the goods by a person who had no power to dispose of them, no lien attaches by virtue of any judicial process to goods in the possession of a bailee for which a negotiable document of title is outstanding unless the document be first surrendered to the bailee or its negotiation enjoined, and the bailee shall not be compelled to deliver the goods pursuant to process until the document is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. One who purchases the document for value without notice of the process or injunction takes free of the lien imposed by judicial process.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-602, U.C.C.; supersedes §678.25.

677.603 Conflicting claims; interpleader.—If more than one person claims title or possession of the goods, the bailee is excused from delivery until he has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claims or to bring an action to compel all claimants to interplead and may compel such interpleader, either in defending an action for non-delivery of the goods, or by original action, whichever is appropriate.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§7-603, U.C.C.; supersedes §§678.16, 678.17.

Note.—§8-103, U.C.C; supersedes §614.17.

678.104 Effect of overissue; "Overissue."—

(1) The provisions of this chapter which validate a security or compel its issue or reissue

*Note.—Pursuant to §69, ch. 69-353, the editors have altered the numbers of all sections making up this chapter by deleting the digit and hyphen immediately following the decimal point. The purpose is to conform the numbering of the Code sections with the decimal numbering system used in other chapters of the Florida Statutes. The visual relationship between Florida Statutes section numbers and Code section number is not destroyed by this alteration; the digit preceding the decimal point coincides with the Code article number, and the digits following the decimal point coincide with the Code section numbers.

do not apply to the extent that validation, issue or reissue would result in overissue; but:

(a) If an identical security which does not constitute an overissue is reasonably available for purchase, the person entitled to issue or validation may compel the issuer to purchase and deliver such a security to him against surrender of the security, if any, which he holds; or

(b) If a security is not so available for purchase, the person entitled to issue or validation may recover from the issuer the price he or the last purchaser for value paid for it with interest from the date of his demand.

(2) "Overissue" means the issue of securities in excess of the amount which the issuer has corporate power to issue.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-104, U.C.C.

cf.—§608.14(1) Capital stock; power to issue, etc.

678.105 Securities negotiable; presumptions.—

(1) Securities governed by this chapter are negotiable instruments.

(2) In any action on a security:

(a) Unless specifically denied in the pleadings, each signature on the security or in a necessary indorsement is admitted;

(b) When the effectiveness of a signature is put in issue the burden of establishing it is on the party claiming under the signature but the signature is presumed to be genuine or authorized;

(c) When signatures are admitted or established production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense or a defect going to the validity of the security; and

(d) After it is shown that a defense or defect exists the plaintiff has the burden of establishing that he or some person under whom he claims is a person against whom the defense or defect is ineffective (§678.202).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-105, U.C.C.

678.106 Applicability.—The validity of a security and the rights and duties of the issuer with respect to registration of transfer are governed by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction of organization of the issuer.

(2) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it comes due under a contract of sale the seller may recover the price:

(a) Of securities accepted by the buyer; and

(b) Of other securities if efforts at their resale would be unduly burdensome or if there is no readily available market for their resale.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

PART II

ISSUE—ISSUER

678.201 "Issuer."

678.202 Issuer's responsibility and defenses; notice of defect or defense.

678.203 Staleness as notice of defects or defenses.

678.204 Effect of issuer's restrictions on transfer.

678.205 Effect of unauthorized signature on issue.

678.201 "Issuer."—

(1) With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security "issuer" includes a person who:

(a) Places or authorizes the placing of his name on a security (otherwise than as authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or the like) to evidence that it represents a share, participation or other interest in his property or in an enterprise or to evidence his duty to perform an obligation evidenced by the security; or

(b) Directly or indirectly creates fractional interests in his rights or property which fractional interests are evidenced by securities; or

(c) Becomes responsible for or in place of 678.206 Completion or alteration of instrument.

678.207 Rights of issuer with respect to registered owners.

678.208 Effect of signature of authenticating trustee, registrar or transfer agent.

any other person described as an issuer in this section.

(2) With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security a guarantor is an issuer to the extent of his guaranty whether or not his obligation is noted on the security.

(3) With respect to registration of transfer (part IV of this chapter) "issuer" means a person on whose behalf transfer books are maintained.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-201, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.32, 674.62-674.64.

cf.—§710.02(9) Definitions.

678.202 Issuer's responsibility and defenses; notice of defect or defense.—

(1) Even against a purchaser for value and without notice, the terms of a security include those stated on the security and those made part of the security by reference to another instrument, indenture or document or to a constitution statute, ordinance, rule, regulation, order or the like to the extent that the terms so referred to do not conflict with the stated terms. Such a reference does not of itself charge a purchaser for value with notice of a defect going to the validity of the security even though the security expressly states that a person accepting it admits such notice.

(2) (a) A security other than one issued by a government or governmental agency or unit even though issued with a defect going to its validity is valid in the hands of a purchaser for value and without notice of the particular defect unless the defect involves a violation of constitutional provisions in which case the security is valid in the hands of a subsequent purchaser for value and without notice of the defect.

(b) The rule of (a) applies to an issuer which is a government or governmental agency or unit only if either there has been substantial compliance with the legal requirements governing the issue or the issuer has received a substantial consideration for the issue as a whole or for the particular security and a stated purpose of the issue is one for which the issuer has power to borrow money or issue the security.

(3) Except as otherwise provided in the case of certain unauthorized signatures on issue (§678.205), lack of genuineness of a security is a complete defense even against a purchaser for value and without notice.

(4) All other defenses of the issuer including nondelivery and conditional delivery of the security are ineffective against a purchaser for value who has taken without notice of the particular defense.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the right of a party to a "when, as and if issued" or a "when distributed" contract to cancel the contract in the event of a material change in the character of the security which is the subject of the contract or in the plan or arrangement pursuant to which such security is to be issued or distributed.

Note.—§8-202, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.18, 674.25, 674.31, 674.58, 674.59, 674.62—674.64.

678.203 Staleness as notice of defects or defenses.—

(1) After an act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which sets a date on or after which the security is to be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange, a purchaser is charged with notice of any defect in its issue or defense of the issuer:

(a) If the act or event is one requiring the payment of money or the delivery of securities or both on presentation or surrender of the security and such funds or securities are available on the date set for payment or exchange and he takes the security more than one year after that date; and

(b) If the act or event is not covered by paragraph (a) and he takes the security more than two years after the date set for surrender or presentation or the date on which such performance became due.

(2) A call which has been revoked is not within subsection (1).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§8-203, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.54(2), 674.55.

678.204 Effect of issuer's restrictions on transfer.—Unless noted conspicuously on the security a restriction on transfer imposed by the issuer even though otherwise lawful is ineffective except against a person with actual knowledge of it.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§8-204, U.C.C.; supersedes §614.17.

678.205 Effect of unauthorized signature on issue.—An unauthorized signature placed on a security prior to or in the course of issue is ineffective except that the signature is effective in favor of a purchaser for value and without notice of the lack of authority if the signing has been done by:

(1) An authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or other person entrusted by the issuer with the signing of the security or of similar securities or their immediate preparation for signing; or

(2) An employee of the issuer or of any of the foregoing entrusted with responsible handling of the security.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§8-205, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.25.

678.206 Completion or alteration of instrument.—

(1) Where a security contains the signatures necessary to its issue or transfer but is incomplete in any other respect:

(a) Any person may complete it by filling in the blanks as authorized; and

(b) Even though the blanks are incorrectly filled in, the security as completed is enforceable by a purchaser who took it for value and without notice of such incorrectness.

(2) A complete security which has been improperly altered even though fraudulently remains enforceable but only according to its original terms.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§8-206, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.16, 674.17, 675.32, 614.18.

678.207 Rights of issuer with respect to registered owners.—

(1) Prior to due presentment for registration of transfer of a security in registered form the issuer or indenture trustee may treat the registered owner as the person exclusively entitled to vote, to receive notifications and otherwise to exercise all the rights and powers of an owner.

(2) Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to affect the liability of the registered owner of a security for calls, assessments or the like.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-207, U.C.C.; supersedes §614.05.

678.208 Effect of signature of authenticating trustee, registrar or transfer agent.—

(1) A person placing his signature upon a security as authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or the like warrants to a purchaser for value without notice of the particular defect that:

(a) The security is genuine; and

(b) His own participation in the issue of the security is within his capacity and within the scope of the authorization received by him from the issuer; and

(c) He has reasonable grounds to believe that the security is in the form and within the amount the issuer is authorized to issue.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, a person by so placing his signature does not assume responsibility for the validity of the security in other respects.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

PURCHASE

- 678.301 Rights acquired by purchaser; "Adverse Claim"; title acquired by bona fide purchaser.
- 678.302 "Bona Fide Purchaser."
- 678.303 "Broker."
- 678.304 Notice to purchaser of adverse claims.
- 678.305 Staleness as notice of adverse claims.
- 678.306 Warranties on presentment and transfer.
- 678.307 Effect of delivery without indorsement; right to compel indorsement.
- 678.308 Indorsement, how made; special indorsement; indorser not a guarantor; partial assignment.
- 678.309 Effect of indorsement without delivery.

678.301 Rights acquired by purchaser; "Adverse Claim"; title acquired by bona fide purchaser.—

(1) Upon delivery of a security the purchaser acquires the rights in the security which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey except that a purchaser who has himself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the security or who as a prior holder had notice of an adverse claim cannot improve his position by taking from a later bona fide purchaser. "Adverse claim" includes a claim that a transfer was or would be wrongful or that a particular adverse person is the owner of or has an interest in the security.

(2) A bona fide purchaser in addition to acquiring the rights of a purchaser also acquires the security free of any adverse claim.

(3) A purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-301, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.54, 674.59—674.61, 614.09.

678.302 "Bona Fide Purchaser."—A "bona fide purchaser" is a purchaser for value in good faith and without notice of any adverse claim who takes delivery of a security in bearer form or of one in registered form issued to him or indorsed to him or in blank.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-302, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.54.

- 678.310 Indorsement of security in bearer form.
- 678.311 Effect of unauthorized indorsement.
- 678.312 Effect of guaranteeing signature or indorsement.
- 678.313 When delivery to the purchaser occurs; purchaser's broker as holder.
- 678.314 Duty to deliver, when completed.
- 678.315 Action against purchaser based upon wrongful transfer.
- 678.316 Purchaser's right to requisites for registration of transfer on books.
- 678.317 Attachment or levy upon security.
- 678.318 No conversion by good faith delivery.
- 678.319 Statute of frauds.
- 678.320 Transfer or pledge within a central depository system.

678.303 "Broker."—"Broker" means a person engaged for all or part of his time in the business of buying and selling securities, who in the transaction concerned acts for, or buys a security from or sells a security to a customer. Nothing in this chapter determines the capacity in which a person acts for purposes of any other statute or rule to which such person is subject.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-303, U.C.C.

cf.—§710.03(3) Manner of making gifts.

678.304 Notice to purchaser of adverse claims.—

(1) A purchaser (including a broker for the seller or buyer but excluding an intermediary bank) of a security is charged with notice of adverse claims if:

(a) The security whether in bearer or registered form has been indorsed "for collection" or "for surrender" or for some other purpose not involving transfer; or

(b) The security is in bearer form and has on it an unambiguous statement that it is the property of a person other than the transferor. The mere writing of a name on a security is not such a statement.

(2) The fact that the purchaser (including a broker for the seller or buyer) has notice that the security is held for a third person or is registered in the name of or indorsed by a fiduciary does not create a duty of inquiry into the rightfulness of the transfer or constitute notice of adverse claims. If, however, the purchaser (excluding an intermediary bank) has knowledge that the proceeds are being used or that the transaction is for the individual benefit of the fiduciary or otherwise in breach of duty, the purchaser is charged with notice of adverse claims.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-304, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.40, 674.58.

678.305 Staleness as notice of adverse claims.—An act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which sets a date on or after which the security is to be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange does not of itself constitute any notice of adverse claims except in the case of a purchase:

(1) After one year from any date set for such presentment or surrender for redemption or exchange; or

(2) After six months from any date set for payment of money against presentation or surrender of the security if funds are available for payment on that date.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-305, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.54(2), 674.55.

678.306 Warranties on presentment and transfer.—

(1) A person who presents a security for registration of transfer or for payment or exchange warrants to the issuer that he is entitled to the registration, payment or exchange. But a purchaser for value without notice of adverse claims who receives a new, reissued or re-registered security on registration of transfer warrants only that he has no knowledge of any unauthorized signature (§678.311) in a necessary indorsement.

(2) A person by transferring a security to a purchaser for value warrants only that:

(a) His transfer is effective and rightful; and

(b) The security is genuine and has not been materially altered; and

(c) He knows no fact which might impair the validity of the security.

(3) Where a security is delivered by an intermediary known to be entrusted with delivery of the security on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against such delivery, the intermediary by such delivery warrants only his own good faith and authority even though he has purchased or made advances against the claim to be collected against the delivery.

(4) A pledgee or other holder for security who redelivers the security received, or after payment and on order of the debtor delivers that security to a third person makes only the warranties of an intermediary under subsection (3).

(5) A broker gives to his customer and to the issuer and a purchaser the warranties provided in this section and has the rights and privileges of a purchaser under this section. The warranties of and in favor of the broker acting as an agent are in addition to applicable warranties given by and in favor of his customer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-306, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.67—674.69, 674.71, 614.13, 614.14.

678.307 Effect of delivery without indorsement; right to compel indorsement.—Where a security in registered form has been delivered to a purchaser without a necessary indorsement he may become a bona fide purchaser only as of the time the indorsement is supplied, but against the transferor the transfer is complete upon delivery and the purchaser has a specifically enforceable right to have any necessary indorsement supplied.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-307, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.51, 614.11.

678.308 Indorsement, how made; special indorsement; indorser not a guarantor; partial assignment.—

(1) An indorsement of a security in registered form is made when an appropriate person signs on it or on a separate document an assignment or transfer of the security or a power to assign or transfer it or when the signature of such person is written without more upon the back of the security.

(2) An indorsement may be in blank or special. An indorsement in blank includes an indorsement to bearer. A special indorsement specifies the person to whom the security is to be transferred, or who has power to transfer it. A holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement.

(3) "An appropriate person" in subsection (1) means:

(a) The person specified by the security or by special indorsement to be entitled to the security; or

(b) Where the person so specified is described as a fiduciary but is no longer serving in the described capacity,—either that person or his successor; or

(c) Where the security or indorsement so specifies more than one person as fiduciaries and one or more are no longer serving in the described capacity,—the remaining fiduciary or fiduciaries, whether or not a successor has been appointed or qualified; or

(d) Where the person so specified is an individual and is without capacity to act by virtue of death, incompetence, infancy or otherwise,—his executor, administrator, guardian or like fiduciary; or

(e) Where the security or indorsement so specifies more than one person as tenants by the entirety or with right of survivorship and by reason of death all cannot sign,—the survivor or survivors; or

(f) A person having power to sign under applicable law or controlling instrument; or

(g) To the extent that any of the foregoing persons may act through an agent,—his authorized agent.

(4) Unless otherwise agreed the indorser by his indorsement assumes no obligation that the security will be honored by the issuer.

(5) An indorsement purporting to be only of part of a security representing units intended by the issuer to be separately transferable is effective to the extent of the indorsement.

(6) Whether the person signing is appropriate is determined as of the date of signing and an indorsement by such a person does not become unauthorized for the purposes of this chapter by virtue of any subsequent change of circumstances.

(7) Failure of a fiduciary to comply with a controlling instrument or with the law of the state having jurisdiction of the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer, does not render his indorsement unauthorized for the purposes of this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-308, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.34-674.38, 674.40, 674.66, 674.71, 614.22.

cf.—§610.021(4) Definitions.

678.309 Effect of indorsement without delivery.—An indorsement of a security whether special or in blank does not constitute a transfer until delivery of the security on which it appears or if the indorsement is on a separate document until delivery of both the document and the security.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-309, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.33, 614.03, 614.12.

678.310 Indorsement of security in bearer form.—An indorsement of a security in bearer form may give notice of adverse claims (§678.304) but does not otherwise affect any right to registration the holder may possess.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-310, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.43.

678.311 Effect of unauthorized indorsement.—Unless the owner has ratified an unauthorized indorsement or is otherwise precluded from asserting its ineffectiveness:

(1) He may assert its ineffectiveness against the issuer or any purchaser other than a purchaser for value and without notice of adverse claims who has in good faith received a new, reissued or re-registered security on registration of transfer; and

(2) An issuer who registers the transfer of a security upon the unauthorized indorsement is subject to liability for improper registration (§678.404).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-311, U.C.C.; supersedes §674.25.

678.312 Effect of guaranteeing signature or indorsement.—

(1) Any person guaranteeing a signature of an indorser of a security warrants that at the time of signing:

(a) The signature was genuine; and
(b) The signer was an appropriate person to indorse (§678.308); and

(c) The signer had legal capacity to sign. But the guarantor does not otherwise warrant the rightfulness of the particular transfer.

(2) Any person may guarantee an indorsement of a security and by so doing warrants not only the signature (subsection (1)) but also the rightfulness of the particular transfer in all respects. But no issuer may require a guarantee of indorsement as a condition to registration of transfer.

(3) The foregoing warranties are made to any person taking or dealing with the security in reliance on the guarantee and the guarantor is liable to such person for any loss resulting from breach of the warranties.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-312, U.C.C.

678.313 When delivery to the purchaser occurs; purchaser's broker as holder.—

(1) Delivery to a purchaser occurs when:

(a) He or a person designated by him acquires possession of a security; or

(b) His broker acquires possession of a security specially indorsed to or issued in the name of the purchaser; or

(c) His broker sends him confirmation of the purchase and also by book entry or otherwise identifies a specific security in the broker's possession as belonging to the purchaser; or

(d) With respect to an identified security to be delivered while still in the possession of a third person when that person acknowledges that he holds for the purchaser; or

(e) Appropriate entries on the books of a clearing corporation are made under §678.320.

(2) The purchaser is the owner of a security held for him by his broker, but is not the holder except as specified in subsection (1)(b)-(c) and (e). Where a security is part of a fungible bulk the purchaser is the owner of a proportionate property interest in the fungible bulk.

(3) Notice of an adverse claim received by the broker or by the purchaser after the broker takes delivery as a holder for value is not effective either as to the broker or as to the purchaser. However, as between the broker and the purchaser the purchaser may demand delivery of an equivalent security as to which no notice of an adverse claim has been received.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-313, U.C.C.; supersedes §§674.01, 614.02(2).

678.314 Duty to deliver, when completed.—

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where a sale of a security is made on an exchange or otherwise through brokers:

(a) The selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver when he places such a security in the possession of the selling broker or of a person designated by the broker or if requested causes an acknowledgment to be made to the selling broker that it is held for him; and

(b) The selling broker including a correspondent broker acting for a selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver by placing the security or a like security in the possession of the buying broker or a person designated by him or by effecting clearance of the sale in accordance with the rules of the exchange on which the transaction took place.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this section and unless otherwise agreed, a transferor's duty to deliver a security under a contract of purchase is not fulfilled until he places the security in form to be negotiated by the purchaser in the possession of the purchaser or of a person designated by him or at the purchaser's request causes an acknowledgment to be made to the purchaser that it is held for him. Unless made on an exchange a sale to a broker purchasing for his own account is within this subsection and not within subsection (1).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-314, U.C.C.

678.315 Action against purchaser based upon wrongful transfer.—

(1) Any person against whom the transfer of a security is wrongful for any reason, including his incapacity, may against anyone except a bona fide purchaser reclaim possession of the security or obtain possession of any new security evidencing all or part of the same rights or have damages.

(2) If the transfer is wrongful because of an unauthorized indorsement, the owner may also reclaim or obtain possession of the security or new security even from a bona fide purchaser if the ineffectiveness of the purported indorsement can be asserted against him under the provisions of this chapter on unauthorized indorsements (§678.311).

(3) The right to obtain or reclaim possession of a security may be specifically enforced and its transfer enjoined and the security impounded pending the litigation.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-315, U.C.C.; supersedes §614.09.

678.316 Purchaser's right to requisites for registration of transfer on books.—Unless otherwise agreed the transferor must on due demand supply his purchaser with any proof of his authority to transfer or with any other requisite which may be necessary to obtain registration of the transfer of the security but if the transfer is not for value a transferor need not do so unless the purchaser furnishes the necessary expenses. Failure to comply with a demand made within a reasonable time gives the purchaser the right to reject or rescind the transfer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-316, U.C.C.

678.317 Attachment or levy upon security.—

(1) No attachment or levy upon a security or any share or other interest evidenced thereby which is outstanding shall be valid until the security is actually seized by the officer making the attachment or levy but a security which has been surrendered to the issuer may be attached or levied upon at the source.

(2) A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a security shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction or otherwise, in reaching such security or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process.

Note.—§8-317, U.C.C.; supersedes §§614.15, 614.16.

cf.—§56.061 Property subject to execution.

678.318 No conversion by good faith delivery.—An agent or bailee who in good faith (including observance of reasonable commercial standards if he is in the business of buying, selling or otherwise dealing with securities) has received securities and sold, pledged or delivered them according to the instructions of his principal is not liable for conversion or for participation in breach of fiduciary duty although the principal had no right to dispose of them.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-318, U.C.C.

cf.—§610.071 Nonliability of corporation or transfer agent.

678.319 Statute of frauds.—A contract for the sale of securities is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless:

(1) There is some writing signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker sufficient to indicate that a contract has been made for sale of a stated quantity of described securities at a defined or stated price; or

(2) Delivery of the security has been accepted or payment has been made but the contract is enforceable under this provision only to the extent of such delivery or payment; or

(3) Within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the sale or purchase and sufficient against the sender under subsection (1) has been received by the party against whom enforcement is sought and he has failed to send written objection to its contents within ten days after its receipt; or

(4) The party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading, testimony or otherwise in court that a contract was made for sale of a stated quantity of described securities at a defined or stated price.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-319, U.C.C.

678.320 Transfer or pledge within a central depository system.—

(1) If a security:

(a) Is in the custody of a clearing corporation or of a custodian bank or a nominee of either subject to the instructions of the clearing corporation; and

(b) Is in bearer form or indorsed in blank by an appropriate person or registered in the name of the clearing corporation or custodian bank or a nominee of either; and

(c) Is shown on the account of a transferor or pledgor on the books of the clearing corporation;

then, in addition to other methods, a transfer or pledge of the security or any interest therein may be effected by the making of appropriate entries on the books of the clearing corporation reducing the account of the transferor or pledgor and increasing the account of the transferee or pledgee by the amount of the obligation or the number of shares or rights transferred or pledged.

(2) Under this section entries may be with respect to like securities or interests therein as a part of a fungible bulk and may refer merely to a quantity of a particular security without reference to the name of the registered owner, certificate or bond number or the like and, in appropriate cases, may be on a net basis taking into account other transfers or pledges of the same security.

(3) A transfer or pledge under this section has the effect of a delivery of a security in bearer form or duly indorsed in blank (§678-

301) representing the amount of the obligation or the number of shares or rights transferred or pledged. If a pledge or the creation of a security interest is intended, the making of entries has the effect of a taking of delivery by the pledgee or a secured party (§§679.304 and 679.305). A transferee or pledgee under this section is a holder.

(4) A transfer or pledge under this section does not constitute a registration of transfer under part IV of this chapter.

(5) That entries made on the books of the clearing corporation as provided in subsection (1) are not appropriate does not affect the validity or effect of the entries nor the liabilities or obligations of the clearing corporation to any person adversely affected thereby.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

PART IV REGISTRATION

678.401 Duty of issuer to register transfer.
678.402 Assurance that indorsements are effective.
678.403 Limited duty of inquiry.

678.404 Liability and non-liability for registration.
678.405 Lost, destroyed and stolen securities.
678.406 Duty of authenticating trustee, transfer agent or registrar.

678.401 Duty of issuer to register transfer.—

(1) Where a security in registered form is presented to the issuer with a request to register transfer, the issuer is under a duty to register the transfer as requested if:

(a) The security is indorsed by the appropriate person or persons (§678.308); and

(b) Reasonable assurance is given that those indorsements are genuine and effective (§678.402); and

(c) The issuer has no duty to inquire into adverse claims or has discharged any such duty (§678.403); and

(d) Any applicable law relating to the collection of taxes has been complied with; and

(e) The transfer is in fact rightful or is to a bona fide purchaser.

(2) Where an issuer is under a duty to register a transfer of a security the issuer is also liable to the person presenting it for registration or his principal for loss resulting from any unreasonable delay in registration or from failure or refusal to register the transfer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-401, U.C.C.

cf.—§§517.07-517.091 Re registration of securities.

678.402 Assurance that indorsements are effective.—

(1) The issuer may require the following assurance that each necessary indorsement (§678.308) is genuine and effective:

(a) In all cases, a guarantee of the signature (§678.312(1)) of the person indorsing; and

(b) Where the indorsement is by an agent, appropriate assurance of authority to sign;

(c) Where the indorsement is by a fiduciary, appropriate evidence of appointment or incumbency;

(d) Where there is more than one fiduciary, reasonable assurance that all who are required to sign have done so;

(e) Where the indorsement is by a person not covered by any of the foregoing, assurance appropriate to the case corresponding as nearly as may be to the foregoing.

(2) A "guarantee of the signature" in subsection (1) means a guarantee signed by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the issuer to be responsible. The issuer may adopt standards with respect to responsibility provided such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(3) "Appropriate evidence of appointment or incumbency" in subsection (1) means:

(a) In the case of a fiduciary appointed or qualified by a court, a certificate issued by or under the direction or supervision of that court or an officer thereof and dated within sixty days before the date of presentation for transfer; or

(b) In any other case, a copy of a document showing the appointment or a certificate issued by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the issuer to be responsible or in the absence of such a document or certificate other evidence reasonably deemed by the issuer to be appropriate. The issuer may adopt standards with respect to such evidence provided such standards are not manifestly unreasonable. The issuer is not charged with notice of the contents of any document obtained pursuant to this paragraph (b) except to the extent that the contents relate directly to the appointment or incumbency.

(4) The issuer may elect to require reasonable assurance beyond that specified in this section but if it does so and for a purpose other than that specified in subsection (3)(b) both requires and obtains a copy of a will, trust, indenture, articles of co-partnership, by-laws or other controlling instrument it is charged with notice of all matters contained therein affecting the transfer.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§8-402, U.C.C.

cf.—§610.051 Evidence of appointment or incumbency.

678.403 Limited duty of inquiry.—

(1) An issuer to whom a security is presented for registration is under a duty to inquire into adverse claims if:

(a) A written notification of an adverse claim is received at a time and in a manner which affords the issuer a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to the issuance of a new, reissued or re-registered security and the notification identifies the claimant, the registered owner and the issue of which the security is a part and provides an address for communications directed to the claimant; or

(b) The issuer is charged with notice of an adverse claim from a controlling instrument which it has elected to require under §678.402(4).

(2) The issuer may discharge any duty of inquiry by any reasonable means, including notifying an adverse claimant by registered or certified mail at the address furnished by him or if there be no such address at his residence or regular place of business that the security has been presented for registration of transfer by a named person, and that the transfer will be registered unless within thirty days from the date of mailing the notification, either:

(a) An appropriate restraining order, injunction or other process issues from a court of competent jurisdiction; or

(b) An indemnity bond sufficient in the issuer's judgment to protect the issuer and any transfer agent, registrar or other agent of the issuer involved, from any loss which it or they may suffer by complying with the adverse claim is filed with the issuer.

(3) Unless an issuer is charged with notice of an adverse claim from a controlling instrument which it has elected to require under §678.402(4) or receives notification of an adverse claim under subsection (1) of this section, where a security presented for registration is indorsed by the appropriate person or persons the issuer is under no duty to inquire into adverse claims. In particular:

(a) An issuer registering a security in the name of a person who is a fiduciary or who is described as a fiduciary is not bound to inquire into the existence, extent, or correct description of the fiduciary relationship and thereafter the issuer may assume without inquiry that the newly registered owner continues to be the fiduciary until the issuer receives written notice that the fiduciary is no longer acting as such with respect to the particular security;

(b) An issuer registering transfer on an indorsement by a fiduciary is not bound to inquire whether the transfer is made in compliance with a controlling instrument or with the law of the state having jurisdiction of the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer; and

(c) The issuer is not charged with notice of the contents of any court record or file or other recorded or unrecorded document even though the document is in its possession and even though the transfer is made on the indorsement of a fiduciary to the fiduciary himself or to his nominee.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

678.404 Liability and non-liability for registration.—

(1) Except as otherwise provided in any law relating to the collection of taxes, the issuer is not liable to the owner or any other person suffering loss as a result of the registration of a transfer of a security if:

(a) There were on or with the security the necessary indorsements (§678.308); and

(b) The issuer had no duty to inquire into adverse claims or has discharged any such duty (§678.403).

(2) Where an issuer has registered a transfer of a security to a person not entitled to it the issuer on demand must deliver a like security to the true owner unless:

(a) The registration was pursuant to subsection (1); or

(b) The owner is precluded from asserting any claim for registering the transfer under §678.405(1); or

(c) Such delivery would result in overissue, in which case the issuer's liability is governed by §678.104.

cf.—§610.071 Nonliability of corporation or transfer agent.

678.405 Lost, destroyed and stolen securities.—

(1) Where a security has been lost, apparently destroyed or wrongfully taken and the owner fails to notify the issuer of that fact within a reasonable time after he has notice of it and the issuer registers a transfer of the security before receiving such a notification, the owner is precluded from asserting against the issuer any claim for registering the transfer under the preceding section or any claim to a new security under this section.

(2) Where the owner of a security claims that the security has been lost, destroyed or wrongfully taken, the issuer must issue a new security in place of the original security if the owner:

(a) So requests before the issuer has notice that the security has been acquired by a bona fide purchaser; and

(b) Files with the issuer a sufficient indemnity bond; and

(c) Satisfies any other reasonable requirements imposed by the issuer.

(3) If, after the issue of the new security, a bona fide purchaser of the original security presents it for registration of transfer, the issuer must register the transfer unless registration would result in overissue, in which event the issuer's liability is governed by §678.104. In addition to any rights on the indemnity bond, the issuer may recover the new security from the person to whom it was issued or any person taking under him except a bona fide purchaser.

678.406 Duty of authenticating trustee, transfer agent or registrar.—

(1) Where a person acts as authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar, or other agent for an issuer in the registration of transfers of its securities or in the issue of new securities or in the cancellation of surrendered securities:

(a) He is under a duty to the issuer to exercise good faith and due diligence in performing his functions; and

(b) He has with regard to the particular functions he performs the same obligation to the holder or owner of the security and has the same rights and privileges as the issuer has in regard to those functions.

(2) Notice to an authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar or other such agent is notice to the issuer with respect to the functions performed by the agent.

679.101 Short title.—Chapter 679 shall be known and may be cited as uniform commercial code—secured transactions.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§9-101, U.C.C.

679.102 Policy and scope of chapter.—

(1) Except as otherwise provided in §679.103 on multiple state transactions and in §679.104 on excluded transactions, this chapter applies so far as concerns any personal property and fixtures within the jurisdiction of this state:

(a) To any transaction (regardless of its form) which is intended to create a security interest in personal property or fixtures including goods, documents, instruments, general intangibles, chattel paper, accounts or contract rights; and also

(b) To any sale of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper.

(2) This chapter applies to security interests created by contract including pledge, assignment, chattel mortgage, chattel trust, trust deed, factor's lien, equipment trust, conditional sale, trust receipt, other lien or title retention contract and lease or consignment intended as security. This chapter does not apply to statutory liens except as provided in §679.310.

(3) The application of this chapter to a security interest in a secured obligation is not affected by the fact that the obligation is itself secured by a transaction or interest to which this chapter does not apply.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.
Note.—§9-102, U.C.C.

679.103 Accounts, contract rights, general intangibles and equipment relating to another jurisdiction; and incoming goods already subject to a security interest.—

(1) If the office where the assignor of accounts or contract rights keeps his records concerning them is in this state, the validity and perfection of a security interest therein and the possibility and effect of proper filing is governed by this chapter; otherwise by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where such office is located.

(2) If the chief place of business of a debtor is in this state, this chapter governs the validity and perfection of a security interest and the possibility and effect of proper filing with regard to general intangibles or with regard to goods of a type which are normally used in more than one jurisdiction (such as automotive equipment, rolling stock, airplanes, road building equipment, commercial harvesting equipment, construction machinery and the like) if such goods are classified as equipment or classified as inventory by reason of their being leased by the debtor to others. Otherwise, the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where such chief place of business is located shall govern. If the chief place of business is located in a jurisdiction which does not provide for perfection of the security interest by filing or recording in that jurisdiction, then the security interest may be perfected by filing in this state.

(3) If personal property other than that governed by subsections (1) and (2) is already subject to a security interest when it is brought into this state, the validity of the security interest in this state is to be determined by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached. However, if the parties to the transaction understood at the time that the security interest attached that the property would be kept in this state and it was brought into this state within 30 days after the security interest attached for purposes other than transportation through this state, then the validity of the security interest in this state is to be determined by the law of this state. If the security interest was already perfected under the law of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached and before being brought into this state, the security interest continues perfected in this state for four months and also thereafter if within the four month period it is perfected in this state. The security interest may also be perfected in this state after the expiration of the four month period; in such case perfection dates from the time of perfection in this state. If the security interest was not perfected under the law of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached and before being brought into this state, it may be perfected in this state; in such case perfection dates from the time of perfection in this state.

(4) Notwithstanding subsections (2) and (3), if personal property is covered by a certificate of title issued under a statute of this state or any other jurisdiction which requires indication on a certificate of title of any security interest in the property as a condition of perfection, then the perfection is governed by the law of the jurisdiction which issued the certificate.

(5) Notwithstanding subsection (1) and §679.302, if the office where the assignor of accounts or contract rights keeps his records concerning them is not located in a jurisdiction which is a part of the United States, its territories or possessions, and the accounts or contract rights are within the jurisdiction of this state or the transaction which creates the security interest otherwise bears an appropriate relation to this state, this chapter governs the validity and perfection of the security interest and the security interest may only be perfected by notification to the account debtor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—The above section is not identical with the 1962 official U.C.C. text.

Note.—§9-103, U.C.C.

679.104 Transactions excluded from chapter.—This chapter does not apply:

(1) To a security interest subject to any statute of the United States such as the ship mortgage act, 1920, to the extent that such statute governs the rights of parties to and third parties affected by transactions in particular types of property; or

(2) To a landlord's lien; or

(3) To a lien given by statute or other rule of law for services or materials except as provided in §679.310 on priority of such liens; or

(4) To a transfer of a claim for wages, salary or other compensation of an employee; or

(5) To an equipment trust or other security device covering railroad rolling stock or equipment nor does it apply to any property of a railroad subject to regulation by a federal or state regulatory body; or

(6) To a sale of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper as part of a sale of the business out of which they arose, or an assignment of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper which is for the purpose of collection only, or a transfer of a contract right to an assignee who is also to do the performance under the contract; or

(7) To a transfer of an interest or claim in or under any policy of insurance; or

(8) To a right represented by a judgment; or

(9) To any right of set-off; or

(10) Except to the extent that provision is made for fixtures in §679.313, to the creation or transfer of an interest in or lien on real estate, including a lease or rents thereunder; or

(11) To a transfer in whole or in part of any of the following: any claim arising out of tort; any deposit, savings, passbook or like account maintained with a bank, savings and loan association, credit union or like organization.

679.105 Definitions and index of definitions.—

(1) In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Account debtor" means the person who is obligated on an account, chattel paper, contract right or general intangible;

(b) "Chattel paper" means a writing or writings which evidence both a monetary obligation and a security interest in or a lease of specific goods. When a transaction is evidenced both by such a security agreement or a lease and by an instrument or a series of instruments, the group of writings taken together constitutes chattel paper;

(c) "Collateral" means the property subject to a security interest, and includes accounts, contract rights and chattel paper which have been sold;

(d) "Debtor" means the person who owes payment or other performance of the obligation secured, whether or not he owns or has rights in the collateral, and includes the seller of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper. Where the debtor and the owner of the collateral are not the same person, the term "debtor" means the owner of the collateral in any provision of the chapter dealing with the collateral, the obligor in any provision dealing with the obligation, and may include both where the context so requires;

(e) "Document" means document of title as defined in the general definitions of chapter 671 (§671.201);

(f) "Goods" includes all things which are movable at the time the security interest attaches or which are fixtures (§679.313), but does not include money, documents, instruments, accounts, chattel paper, general intangibles, contract rights and other things in action. "Goods" also include the unborn young of animals and growing crops;

(g) "Instrument" means a negotiable instrument (defined in §673.104), or a security (defined in §678.102) or any other writing which evidences a right to the payment of money and is not itself a security agreement or lease and is of a type which is in ordinary course of business transferred by delivery with any necessary indorsement or assignment;

(h) "Security agreement" means an agreement which creates or provides for a security interest;

(i) "Secured party" means a lender, seller or other person in whose favor there is a security interest, including a person to whom accounts, contract rights or chattel paper have been sold. When the holders of obligations issued under an indenture of trust, equipment trust agreement or the like are represented by a trustee or other person, the representative is the secured party.

(2) Other definitions applying to this chapter and the sections in which they appear are:

"Account".	§679.106.
"Consumer goods".	§679.109(1).
"Contract right".	§679.106.
"Equipment".	§679.109(2).
"Farm products".	§679.109(3).
"General intangibles".	§679.106.

"Lien creditor".	§679.301(3).

"Proceeds". §679.306(1).

"Purchase money security interest." §679.107.

(3) The following definitions in other chapters of this code apply to this chapter:

"Check". §673.104.

"Contract for sale". §672.106.

"Holder in due course". §673.302.

"Note". §673.104.

"Sale". §672.106.

(4) In addition chapter 671 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-105, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.01.

679.106 Definitions: "Account"; "Contract Right"; "General Intangibles".—"Account" means any right to payment for goods sold or leased or for services rendered which is not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. "Contract right" means any right to payment under a contract not yet earned by performance and not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. "General intangibles" means any personal property (including things in action) other than goods, accounts, contract rights, chattel paper, documents and instruments.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-106, U.C.C.

679.107 Definitions: "Purchase Money Security Interest".—A security interest is a "purchase money security interest" to the extent that it is:

(1) Taken or retained by the seller of the collateral to secure all or part of its price; or

(2) Taken by a person who by making advances or incurring an obligation gives value to enable the debtor to acquire rights in or the use of collateral if such value is in fact so used.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-107, U.C.C.

679.108 When after-acquired collateral not security for antecedent debt.—Where a secured party makes an advance, incurs an obligation, releases a perfected security interest, or otherwise gives new value which is to be secured in whole or in part by after-acquired property his security interest in the after-acquired collateral shall be deemed to be taken for new value and not as security for an antecedent debt if the debtor acquires his rights in such collateral either in the ordinary course of his business or under a contract or purchase made pursuant to the security agreement within a reasonable time after new value is given.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-108, U.C.C.; supersedes §85.30.

679.109 Classification of goods; "Consumer Goods"; "Equipment"; "Farm Products"; "Inventory".—Goods are:

(1) "Consumer goods" if they are used or bought for use primarily for personal, family or household purposes;

(2) "Equipment" if they are used or bought for use primarily in business (including farming or a profession) or by a debtor who is a non-profit organization or a governmental subdivision or agency or if the goods are not included in the definitions of inventory, farm products or consumer goods;

(3) "Farm products" if they are crops or livestock or supplies used or produced in farming operations or if they are products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured states (such as ginned cotton, wool-clip, maple syrup, milk and eggs), and if they are in the possession of a debtor engaged in raising, fattening, grazing or other farming operations. If goods are farm products they are neither equipment nor inventory;

(4) "Inventory" if they are held by a person who holds them for sale or lease or to be furnished under contracts of service or if he has so furnished them, or if they are raw materials, work in process or materials used or consumed in a business. Inventory of a person is not to be classified as his equipment.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-109, U.C.C.

679.110 Sufficiency of description.—For the purposes of this chapter any description of personal property or real estate is sufficient whether or not it is specific if it reasonably identifies what is described; except that a description of real estate in an instrument filed to perfect a security interest in crops growing or to be grown or goods which are or are to become fixtures shall be sufficient only if the filing or recording of the same constitutes constructive notice under the laws of this state, other than this chapter, which are applicable to the filing or recording of real estate mortgages, and a mailing or street address alone shall not be sufficient.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254; §1, ch. 67-264.

Note.—§9-110, U.C.C.; supersedes §§700.01, 85.30(1)(c), 699.08, 673.09.

679.111 Applicability of bulk transfer laws.

—The creation of a security interest is not a bulk transfer under chapter 676 (see §676.103).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-111, U.C.C.; supersedes Ch. 726.

679.112 Where collateral is not owned by debtor.—Unless otherwise agreed, when a secured party knows that collateral is owned by a person who is not the debtor, the owner of the collateral is entitled to receive from the secured party any surplus under §679.502(2) or under §679.504(1), and is not liable for the debt or for any deficiency after resale, and he has the same right as the debtor:

(1) To receive statements under §679.208;

(2) To receive notice of and to object to a secured party's proposal to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the indebtedness under §679.505;

(3) To redeem the collateral under §679.506;

(4) To obtain injunctive or other relief under §679.507(1); and

(5) To recover losses caused to him under §679.208(2).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-112, U.C.C.

679.113 Security interests arising under article on sales.—A security interest arising solely under the chapter on sales (chapter 672) is subject to the provisions of this chapter except that to the extent that and so long as the debtor does not have or does not lawfully obtain possession of the goods:

(1) No security agreement is necessary to make the security interest enforceable; and

(2) No filing is required to perfect the security interest; and

(3) The rights of the secured party on default by the debtor are governed by the chapter on sales (chapter 672).

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-113, U.C.C.

PART II

VALIDITY OF SECURITY AGREEMENT AND RIGHTS OF PARTIES THERETO

679.201 General validity of security agreement.

679.202 Title to collateral immaterial.

679.203 Enforceability of security interest; proceeds, formal requisites.

679.204 When security interest attaches; after-acquired property; future advances.

679.205 Use or disposition of collateral without accounting permissible.

679.206 Agreement not to assert defenses against assignee; modification of sales warranties where security agreement exists.

679.207 Rights and duties when collateral is in secured party's possession.

679.208 Request for statement of account or list of collateral.

679.201 General validity of security agreement.—Except as otherwise provided by this code a security agreement is effective according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of the collateral and against creditors. Nothing in this chapter validates any charge or practice illegal under any statute or regulation thereunder governing usury, small loans, retail installment sales, or the like, or extends the application of any such statute or regulation to any transaction not otherwise subject thereto.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-201, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.03.

679.202 Title to collateral immaterial.—Each provision of this chapter with regard to rights, obligations and remedies applies whether title to collateral is in the secured party or in the debtor.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-202, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.02, 698.03, 698.05.

679.203 Enforceability of security interest; proceeds, formal requisites.—

(1) Subject to the provisions of §674.208 on the security interest of a collecting bank and §679.113 on a security interest arising under the chapter on sales, a security interest is not enforceable against the debtor or third parties unless:

(a) The collateral is in the possession of the secured party; or

(b) The debtor has signed a security agreement which contains a description of the collateral and in addition, when the security interest covers crops or oil, gas or minerals to be extracted or timber to be cut, a description of the land concerned. In describing collateral, the word "proceeds" is sufficient without further description to cover proceeds of any character.

(2) A transaction, although subject to this chapter, is also subject to Chs. 516, 519, 520, F. S., and in the case of conflict between the provisions of this chapter and any such statute, the provisions of such statute control. Failure to comply with any applicable statute has only the effect which is specified therein.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-203, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.02.

679.204 When security interest attaches; after-acquired property; future advances.—

(1) A security interest cannot attach until there is agreement (§671.201(3)) that it attach and value is given and the debtor has rights in the collateral. It attaches as soon as all of the events in the preceding sentence have taken place unless explicit agreement postpones the time of attaching.

(2) For the purposes of this section the debtor has no rights:

(a) In crops until they are planted or otherwise become growing crops, in the young of livestock until they are conceived;

(b) In fish until caught, in oil, gas or minerals until they are extracted, in timber until it is cut;

(c) In a contract right until the contract has been made;

(d) In an account until it comes into existence.

(3) Except as provided in subsection (4) a security agreement may provide that collateral, whenever acquired, shall secure all obligations covered by the security agreement.

(4) No security interest attaches under an after-acquired property clause:

(a) To crops which become such more than seven years after the security agreement is executed except that a security interest in crops which is given in conjunction with a lease or a land purchase or improvement transaction evidenced by a contract, mortgage or deed of trust may if so agreed attach to crops to be grown on the land concerned during the period of such real estate transaction;

(b) To consumer goods other than accessions (§679.314) when given as additional security unless the debtor acquires rights in them within ten days after the secured party gives value.

(5) Obligations covered by a security agreement may include future advances or other value whether or not the advances or value are given pursuant to commitment.

History.—Art. 10, §1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-204, U.C.C.; supersedes §§699.04, 699.05, 700.01. cf.—§697.04 Future advances may be secured.

679.205 Use or disposition of collateral without accounting permissible.—A security interest is not invalid or fraudulent against creditors by reason of liberty in the debtor to use, commingle or dispose of all or part of the collateral (including returned or repossessed goods) or to collect or compromise accounts, contract rights or chattel paper, or to accept the return of goods or make repossessions, or to use, commingle or dispose of proceeds, or by reason of the failure of the secured party to require the debtor to account for proceeds or replace collateral. This section does not relax the requirements of possession where perfection of a security interest depends upon possession of the collateral by the secured party or by a bailee.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-205, U.C.C.

679.206 Agreement not to assert defenses against assignee; modification of sales warranties where security agreement exists.—

(1) Subject to any statute or decision which establishes a different rule for buyers or lessees of consumer goods, an agreement by a buyer or lessee that he will not assert against an assignee any claim or defense which he may have against the seller or lessor is enforceable by an assignee who takes his assignment for value, in good faith and without notice of a claim or defense, except as to defenses of a type which may be asserted against a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument under the chapter on commercial paper (chapter 673). A buyer who as part of one transaction signs both a negotiable instrument and a security agreement makes such an agreement.

(2) When a seller retains a purchase money security interest in goods the chapter on sales (chapter 672) governs the sale and any disclaimer, limitation or modification of the seller's warranties.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-206, U.C.C.

679.207 Rights and duties when collateral is in secured party's possession.—

(1) A secured party must use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of collateral in his possession. In the case of an instrument or chattel paper reasonable care includes taking necessary steps to preserve rights against prior parties unless otherwise agreed.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, when collateral is in the secured party's possession:

(a) Reasonable expenses (including the cost of any insurance and payment of taxes or other charges) incurred in the custody, preservation, use or operation of the collateral are chargeable to the debtor and are secured by the collateral;

(b) The risk of accidental loss or damage is on the debtor to the extent of any deficiency in any effective insurance coverage;

(c) The secured party may hold as additional security any increase or profits (except money) received from the collateral, but money so received, unless remitted to the debtor, shall be applied in reduction of the secured obligation;

(d) The secured party must keep the collateral identifiable but fungible collateral may be commingled;

(e) The secured party may repledge the collateral upon terms which do not impair the debtor's right to redeem it.

(3) A secured party is liable for any loss caused by his failure to meet any obligation imposed by the preceding subsections but does not lose his security interest.

(4) A secured party may use or operate the collateral for the purpose of preserving the collateral or its value or pursuant to the order of a court of appropriate jurisdiction or, except in the case of consumer goods, in the manner and to the extent provided in the security agreement.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-207, U.C.C.

cf.—§818.04 Selling collateral security before debt due.

679.208 Request for statement of account or list of collateral.—

(1) A debtor may sign a statement indicating what he believes to be the aggregate amount of unpaid indebtedness as of a specified date and may send it to the secured party with a request that the statement be approved or corrected and returned to the debtor. When the security agreement or any other record kept by the secured party identifies the collateral a debtor may similarly request the secured party to approve or correct a list of the collateral.

(2) The secured party must comply with such a request within two weeks after receipt by sending a written correction or approval. If the secured party claims a security interest in all of a particular type of collateral owned by the debtor he may indicate that fact in his reply and need not approve or correct an itemized list of such collateral. If the secured party without reasonable excuse fails to comply he is liable for any loss caused to the debtor thereby; and if the debtor has properly included in his request a good faith statement of the obligation or a list of the collateral or both the secured party may claim a security interest only as shown in the statement against persons misled by his failure to comply. If he no longer has an interest in the obligation or collateral at the time the request is received he must disclose the name and address of any successor in interest known to him and he is liable for any loss caused to the debtor as a result of failure to disclose. A successor in interest is not subject to this section until a request is received by him.

(3) A debtor is entitled to such a statement once every six months without charge. The secured party may require payment of a charge not exceeding $10 for each additional statement furnished.

679.301 Persons who take priority over unperfected security interests; "Lien Creditor".—

(1) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (2), an unperfected security interest is subordinate to the rights of:

(a) Persons entitled to priority under §679.312;

(b) A person who becomes a lien creditor without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected;

(c) In the case of goods, instruments, documents, and chattel paper, a person who is not a secured party and who is a transferee in bulk or other buyer not in ordinary course of business to the extent that he gives value and receives delivery of the collateral without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected;

(d) In the case of accounts, contract rights, and general intangibles, a person who is not a secured party and who is a transferee to the extent that he gives value without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected.

(2) If the secured party files with respect to a purchase money security interest before or within ten days after the collateral comes into possession of the debtor, he takes priority over the rights of a transferee in bulk or of a lien creditor which arise between the time the security interest attaches and the time of filing.

(3) A "lien creditor" means a creditor who has acquired a lien on the property involved by attachment, levy or the like and includes an assignee for benefit of creditors from the time of assignment, and a trustee in bankruptcy from the date of the filing of the petition or a receiver in equity from the time of appointment. Unless all the creditors represented had knowledge of the security interest such a representative of creditors is a lien creditor without knowledge even though he personally has knowledge of the security interest.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-301, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.08(2), 673.09(2)(b), 698.01, 699.07, 700.02, 85.30, 85.25(2)(b), 673.08.
cf.—§713.06 Liens of persons not in privity; proper payments.

679.302 When filing is required to perfect security interest; security interests to which filing provisions of this chapter do not apply.—

(1) A financing statement must be filed to perfect all security interests except the following:

(a) A security interest in collateral in possession of the secured party under §679.305;

(b) A security interest temporarily perfected in instruments or documents without delivery under §679.304 or in proceeds for a 10 day period under §679.306;

(c) A purchase money security interest in farm equipment having a purchase price not in excess of $2500; but filing is required for a fixture under §679.313;

(d) A purchase money security interest in consumer goods; but filing is required for a fixture under §679.313;

(e) An assignment of accounts or contract rights which does not alone or in conjunction with other assignments to the same assignee transfer a significant part of the outstanding accounts or contract rights of the assignor;

(f) A security interest of a collecting bank (§674.208) or arising under the chapter on sales (see §679.113) or covered in subsection (3) of this section.

(2) If a secured party assigns a perfected security interest, no filing under this chapter is required in order to continue the perfected status of the security interest against creditors of and transferees from the original debtor.

(3) The filing provisions of this chapter do not apply to a security interest in property subject to a statute:

(a) Of the United States which provides for a national registration or filing of all security interests in such property; or

(b) Of this state which provides for central filing of security interest in such property, or in a motor vehicle which is not inventory held for sale for which a certificate of title is required under the statutes of this state if a notation of such a security interest can be indicated by a public official on a certificate or a duplicate thereof.

(4) A security interest in property covered by a statute described in subsection (3) can be perfected only by registration or filing under that statute or by indication of the security interest on a certificate of title or a duplicate thereof by a public official.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—The 1962 official text of paragraph (b) was drafted in two alternatives (A and B). Alternative B was adopted in Florida.

Note.—§9-302, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.08, 28.22.

679.303 When security interest is perfected; continuity of perfection.—

(1) A security interest is perfected when it has attached and when all of the applicable steps required for perfection have been taken. Such steps are specified in §§679.302, 679.304-679.306. If such steps are taken before the security interest attaches, it is perfected at the time when it attaches.

(2) If a security interest is originally perfected in any way permitted under this chapter and is subsequently perfected in some other way under this chapter, without an intermediate period when it was unperfected, the security interest shall be deemed to be perfected continuously for the purposes of this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-303, U.C.C.; supersedes §§698.01, 85.30, 700.02, 699.07, 673.08, 28.221, 698.09.

679.304 Perfection of security interest in instruments, documents, and goods covered by documents; perfection by permissive filing; temporary perfection without filing or transfer of possession.—

(1) A security interest in chattel paper or negotiable documents may be perfected by filing. A security interest in instruments (other than instruments which constitute part of chattel paper) can be perfected only by the secured party's taking possession, except as provided in subsections (4) and (5).

(2) During the period that goods are in the possession of the issuer of a negotiable document therefor, a security interest in the goods is perfected by perfecting a security interest in the document, and any security interest in the goods otherwise perfected during such period is subject thereto.

(3) A security interest in goods in the possession of a bailee other than one who has issued a negotiable document therefor is perfected by issuance of a document in the name of the secured party or by the bailee's receipt of notification of the secured party's interest or by filing as to the goods.

(4) A security interest in instruments or negotiable documents is perfected without filing or the taking of possession for a period of 21 days from the time it attaches to the extent that it arises for new value given under a written security agreement.

(5) A security interest remains perfected for a period of 21 days without filing where a secured party having a perfected security interest in an instrument, a negotiable document or goods in possession of a bailee other than one who has issued a negotiable document therefor:

(a) Makes available to the debtor the goods or documents representing the goods for the purpose of ultimate sale or exchange or for the purpose of loading, unloading, storing, shipping, transshipping, manufacturing, processing or otherwise dealing with them in a manner preliminary to their sale or exchange; or

(b) Delivers the instrument to the debtor for the purpose of ultimate sale or exchange or of presentation, collection, renewal or registration of transfer.

(6) After the 21 day period in subsections (4) and (5) perfection depends upon compliance with applicable provisions of this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-304, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.03, 673.08(1), 698.01, 678.33.

679.305 When possession by secured party perfects security interest without filing.—A security interest in letters of credit and advices of credit (§675.116(2)(a)), goods, instruments, negotiable documents or chattel paper may be perfected by the secured party's taking possession of the collateral. If such collateral other than goods covered by a negotiable document is held by a bailee, the secured party is deemed to have possession from the time the bailee receives notification of the secured party's interest. A security interest is perfected by possession from the time possession is taken without relation back and continues only so long as possession is retained, unless otherwise specified in this chapter. The security interest may be otherwise perfected as provided in this chapter before or after the period of possession by the secured party.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-305, U.C.C.; supersedes §§698.01, 678.44.

679.306 "Proceeds"; secured party's rights on disposition of collateral.—

(1) "Proceeds" includes whatever is received when collateral or proceeds is sold, exchanged, collected or otherwise disposed of. The term also includes the account arising when the right to payment is earned under a contract right. Money, checks and the like are "cash proceeds". All other proceeds are "non-cash proceeds".

(2) Except where this chapter otherwise provides, a security interest continues in collateral notwithstanding sale, exchange or other disposition thereof by the debtor unless his action was authorized by the secured party in the security agreement or otherwise, and also continues in any identifiable proceeds including collections received by the debtor.

(3) The security interest in proceeds is a continuously perfected security interest if the interest in the original collateral was perfected but it ceases to be a perfected security interest and becomes unperfected ten days after receipt of the proceeds by the debtor unless:

(a) A filed financing statement covering the original collateral also covers proceeds; or

(b) The security interest in the proceeds is perfected before the expiration of the ten day period.

(4) In the event of insolvency proceedings instituted by or against a debtor, a secured party with a perfected security interest in proceeds has a perfected security interest:

(a) In identifiable non-cash proceeds;

(b) In identifiable cash proceeds in the form of money which is not commingled with other money or deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings;

(c) In identifiable cash proceeds in the form of checks and the like which are not deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings; and

(d) In all cash and bank accounts of the debtor, if other cash proceeds have been commingled or deposited in a bank account, but the perfected security interest under this paragraph (d) is:

1. Subject to any right of set-off; and

2. Limited to an amount not greater than the amount of any cash proceeds received by the debtor within ten days before the institution of the insolvency proceedings and commingled or deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings less the amount of cash proceeds received by the debtor and paid over to the secured party during the ten day period.

(5) If a sale of goods results in an account or chattel paper which is transferred by the seller to a secured party, and if the goods are returned to or are repossessed by the seller or the secured party, the following rules determine priorities:

(a) If the goods were collateral at the time of sale for an indebtedness of the seller which is still unpaid, the original security interest attaches again to the goods and continues as a perfected security interest if it was perfected at the time when the goods were sold. If the security interest was originally perfected by a filing which is still effective, nothing further is required to continue the perfected status; in any other case, the secured party must take possession of the returned or repossessed goods or must file.

(b) An unpaid transferee of the chattel paper has a security interest in the goods against the transferor. Such security interest is prior to a security interest asserted under paragraph (a) to the extent that the transferee of the chattel paper was entitled to priority under §679.308.

(c) An unpaid transferee of the account has a security interest in the goods against the transferor. Such security interest is subordinate to a security interest asserted under paragraph (a).

(d) A security interest of an unpaid transferee asserted under paragraph (b) or (c) must be perfected for protection against creditors of the transferor and purchasers of the returned or repossessed goods.

679.307 Protection of buyers of goods.—

(1) A buyer in ordinary course of business (§671.201(9)) other than a person buying farm products from a person engaged in farming operations takes free of a security interest created by his seller even though the security interest is perfected and even though the buyer knows of its existence.

(2) In the case of consumer goods and in the case of farm equipment having an original purchase price not in excess of $2500 (other than fixtures, see §679.313), a buyer takes free of a security interest even though perfected if he buys without knowledge of the security interest, for value and for his own personal, family or household purposes or his own farming operations unless prior to the purchase the secured party has filed a financing statement covering such goods.

Note.—§9-307, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.09(2), 85.30.

679.308 Purchase of chattel paper and non-negotiable instruments.—A purchaser of chattel paper or a non-negotiable instrument who gives new value and takes possession of it in the ordinary course of his business and without knowledge that the specific paper or instrument is subject to a security interest has priority over a security interest which is perfected under §679.304 (permissive filing and temporary perfection). A purchaser of chattel paper who gives new value and takes possession of it in the ordinary course of his business has priority over a security interest in chattel paper which is claimed merely as proceeds of inventory subject to a security interest (§679.306), even though he knows that the specific paper is subject to the security interest.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-308, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.09(1)(a), 673.10.

679.309 Protection of purchasers of instruments and documents.—Nothing in this chapter limits the rights of a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument (§673.302) or a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated (§677.501) or a bona fide purchaser of a security (§678.301) and such holders or purchasers take priority over an earlier security interest even though perfected. Filing under this chapter does not constitute notice of the security interest to such holders or purchasers.

Note.—§9-309, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.09(1)(a).

679.310 Priority of certain liens arising by operation of law.—When a person in the ordinary course of his business furnishes services or materials with respect to goods subject to a security interest, a lien upon goods in the possession of such person given by statute or rule of law for such materials or services takes priority over a perfected security interest unless the lien is statutory and the statute expressly provides otherwise.

679.311 Alienability of debtor's rights: judicial process.—The debtor's rights in collateral may be voluntarily or involuntarily transferred (by way of sale, creation of a security interest, attachment, levy, garnishment or other judicial process) notwithstanding a provision in the security agreement prohibiting any transfer or making the transfer constitute a default.

679.312 Priorities among conflicting security interests in the same collateral.—

(1) The rules of priority stated in the following sections shall govern where applicable: section 674.208 with respect to the security interest of collecting banks in items being collected, accompanying documents and proceeds; section 679.301 on certain priorities; section 679.304 on goods covered by documents; section 679.306 on proceeds and repossessions; section 679.307 on buyers of goods; section 679.308 on possessory against non-possessory interests in chattel paper or non-negotiable instruments; section 679.309 on security interests in negotiable instruments, documents or securities; section 679.310 on priorities between perfected security interests and liens by operation of law; section 679.313 on security interests in fixtures as against interests in real estate; section 679.314 on security interests in accessions as against interest in goods; section 679.315 on conflicting security interests where goods lose their identity or become part of a product; and section 679.316 on contractual subordination.

(2) A perfected security interest in crops for new value given to enable the debtor to produce the crops during the production season and given not more than three months before the crops become growing crops by planting or otherwise takes priority over an earlier perfected security interest to the extent that such earlier interest secures obligations due more than six months before the crops become growing crops by planting or otherwise, even though the person giving new value had knowledge of the earlier security interest.

(3) A purchase money security interest in inventory collateral has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral if:

(a) The purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives possession of the collateral; and

(b) Any secured party whose security interest is known to the holder of the purchase money security interest or who, prior to the date of the filing made by the holder of the purchase money security interest, had filed a financing statement covering the same items or type of inventory, has received notification of the purchase money security interest before the debtor receives possession of the collateral covered by the purchase money security interest; and

(c) Such notification states that the person giving the notice has or expects to acquire a purchase money security interest in inventory of the debtor, describing such inventory by item or type.

(4) A purchase money security interest in collateral other than inventory has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral if the purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives possession of the collateral or within ten days thereafter.

(5) In all cases not governed by other rules stated in this section (including cases of purchase money security interests which do not qualify for the special priorities set forth in subsections (3) and (4) of this section), priority between conflicting security interests in the same collateral shall be determined as follows:

(a) In the order of filing if both are perfected by filing, regardless of which security interest attached first under §679.204(1) and whether it attached before or after filing;

(b) In the order of perfection unless both are perfected by filing, regardless of which security interest attached first under §679.204(1) and, in the case of a filed security interest, whether it attached before or after filing; and

(c) In the order of attachment under §679.204(1) so long as neither is perfected.

(6) For the purpose of the priority rules of the immediately preceding subsection, a continuously perfected security interest shall be treated at all times as if perfected by filing if it was originally so perfected and it shall be treated at all times as if perfected otherwise than by filing if it was originally perfected otherwise than by filing.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-312, U.C.C.; supersedes Chs. 700, 698.

679.313 Priority of security interests in fixtures.—

(1) The rules of this section do not apply to goods incorporated into a structure in the manner of lumber, bricks, tile, cement, glass, metal work and the like and no security interest in them exists under this chapter unless the structure remains personal property under applicable law. The law of this state other than this code determines whether and when other goods become fixtures. This code does not prevent creation of an encumbrance upon fixtures or real estate pursuant to the law applicable to real estate.

(2)(a) A security interest which attaches to goods which are or become fixtures is invalid against any person with an interest in the real estate at the time the security interest in the goods is perfected or at the time the goods are affixed to the real estate, whichever occurs later, who has not in writing consented to the security interest or disclaimed an interest in the goods as fixtures.

(b) A security interest in goods which are or become fixtures takes priority as to the goods over the claims of all persons acquiring interests in the real estate subsequent to the perfection of such security interest or the affixing of the goods to the real estate, whichever occurs later.

(3)(a) When under subsections (2) or (3) a secured party has priority over the claims of all persons who have interests in the real estate, he may, on default, subject to the provisions of part V, remove his collateral from the real estate but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the real estate who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury, but not for any diminution in value of the real estate caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation.

(b) The secured party shall give reasonable notification of his intention to remove the collateral to all persons entitled to reimbursement.

§520.31 Definitions.

§713.15 Repossession of materials not used.

679.314 Accessions.—

(1) A security interest in goods which attaches before they are installed in or affixed to other goods takes priority as to the goods installed or affixed (called in this section "accessions") over the claims of all persons to the whole except as stated in subsection (3) and subject to §679.315(1).

(2) A security interest which attaches to goods after they become part of a whole is valid against all persons subsequently acquiring interests in the whole except as stated in subsection (3) but is invalid against any person with an interest in the whole at the time the security interest attaches to the goods who has not in writing consented to the security interest or disclaimed an interest in the goods as part of the whole.

(3) The security interests described in subsections (1) and (2) do not take priority over:

(a) A subsequent purchaser for value of any interest in the whole; or

(b) A creditor with a lien on the whole subsequently obtained by judicial proceedings; or

(c) A creditor with a prior perfected security interest in the whole to the extent that he makes subsequent advances.

If the subsequent purchase is made, the lien by judicial proceedings obtained or the subsequent advance under the prior perfected security interest is made or contracted for without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected. A purchaser of the whole at a foreclosure sale other than the holder of a perfected security interest purchasing at his own foreclosure sale is a subsequent purchaser within this section.

(4) When under subsections (1) or (2) and (3) a secured party has an interest in accessions which has priority over the claims of all persons who have interests in the whole, he may on default subject to the provisions of part V remove his collateral from the whole but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the whole who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury but not for any diminution in value of the whole caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-314, U.C.C.

679.315 Priority when goods are commingled or processed.—

(1) If a security interest in goods was perfected and subsequently the goods or a part thereof have become part of a product or mass, the security interest continues in the product or mass if:

(a) The goods are so manufactured, processed, assembled or commingled that their identity is lost in the product or mass; or

(b) A financing statement covering the original goods also covers the product into which the goods have been manufactured, processed or assembled.

In a case to which paragraph (b) applies, no separate security interest in that part of the original goods which has been manufactured, processed or assembled into the product may be claimed under §679.314.

(2) When under subsection (1) more than one security interest attaches to the product or mass, they rank equally according to the ratio that the cost of the goods to which each interest originally attached bears to the cost of the total product or mass.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-315, U.C.C.

679.316 Priority subject to subordination.—Nothing in this chapter prevents subordination by agreement by any person entitled to priority.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-316, U.C.C.

679.317 Secured party not obligated on contract of debtor.—The mere existence of a security interest or authority given to the debtor to dispose of or use collateral does not impose contract or tort liability upon the secured party for the debtor's acts or omissions.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-317, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.12.

679.318 Defenses against assignee; modification of contract after notification of assignment; term prohibiting assignment ineffective; identification and proof of assignment.—

(1) Unless an account debtor has made an enforceable agreement not to assert defenses or claims arising out of a sale as provided in §679.206 the rights of an assignee are subject to:

(a) All the terms of the contract between the account debtor and assignor and any defense or claim arising therefrom; and

(b) Any other defense or claim of the account debtor against the assignor which accrues before the account debtor receives notification of the assignment.

(2) So far as the right to payment under an assigned contract right has not already become an account, and notwithstanding notification of the assignment, any modification of or substitution for the contract made in good faith and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards is effective against an assignee unless the account debtor has otherwise agreed but the assignee acquires corresponding rights under the modified or substituted contract. The assignment may provide that such modification or substitution is a breach by the assignor.

(3) The account debtor is authorized to pay the assignor until the account debtor receives notification that the account has been assigned and that payment is to be made to the assignee. A notification which does not reasonably identify the rights assigned is ineffective. If requested by the account debtor, the assignee must seasonably furnish reasonable proof that the assignment has been made and unless he does so the account debtor may pay the assignor.

(4) A term in any contract between an account debtor and an assignor which prohibits assignment of an account or contract right to which they are parties is ineffective.

FILING

- 679.401 Place of filing; erroneous filing; removal of collateral.
 679.4011 Filing and recording with clerk of circuit court in Florida.
 679.402 Formal requisites of financing statement; amendments.
 679.403 What constitutes filing; duration of filing; effect of lapsed filing; duties of filing officer.

- 679.404 Termination statement.
 679.405 Assignment of security interest; duties of filing officer; fees.
 679.406 Release of collateral; duties of filing officer; fees.
 679.407 Information from filing officer.

679.401 Place of filing; erroneous filing; removal of collateral.—

* (1) The proper place to file in order to perfect a security interest is as follows:

(a) When the collateral is equipment used in farming operations, or farm products, or accounts, contract rights or general intangibles arising from or relating to the sale of farm products by a farmer, or consumer goods, then by recording in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county of the debtor's residence or if the debtor is not a resident of this state then by recording in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county where the goods are kept, and in addition when the collateral is crops by recording in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county where the land on which the crops are growing or to be grown is located;

(b) When the collateral is goods which at the time the security interest attaches are or are to become fixtures, then by recording in the office and in the record where a mortgage on the real estate concerned would be recorded;

(c) In all other cases, by filing in the office of the department of state.

(2) Except as provided in §679.313(2), a filing which is made in good faith in an improper place or in fewer than all of the places required by this section is nevertheless effective with regard to any collateral as to which the filing complied with the requirements of this chapter, and such filing is also effective with regard to collateral covered by the financing statement against any person who has knowledge of the contents of such financing statement.

* (3) Except as provided in §679.313(2), a filing which is made in the proper place in this state continues effective even though the debtor's residence or place of business or the location of the collateral or its use, whichever controlled the original filing, is thereafter changed.

(4) If collateral is brought into this state from another jurisdiction, the rules stated in §679.103 determine whether filing is necessary in this state.

679.4011 Filing and recording with clerk of circuit court in Florida.—

(1) The filing of a writing in the office of a clerk of the circuit court under this chapter shall be complete and sufficient only if the writing is recorded in the office of the appropriate clerk of the circuit court, in the official records book of such office or in such record book as shall be designated by the clerk of the circuit court for such purpose. Any writing required or permitted to be filed in such office by any provisions of this chapter shall be entitled to be recorded without oath, acknowledgment or proof of its execution. In all other respects such recording shall be in the manner provided in chapter 695, F. S., for recording of conveyances of real property, and in the manner and upon payment of fees as provided in chapter 28, F. S. The record of such writing shall be held for public inspection in lieu of the original. No writing under this chapter shall be deemed filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court unless such writing shall be recorded as provided in this section.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—New section added, applicable in Florida only.

679.402 Formal requisites of financing statement; amendments.—

(1) (a) A financing statement is sufficient if it is signed by the debtor and the secured party, gives an address of the secured party from which information concerning the security interest may be obtained, gives a mailing address of the debtor, and contains a statement indicating the types, or describing the items, of collateral. A financing statement may be filed before a security agreement is made or a security interest otherwise attaches.

(b) When the financing statement covers crops growing or to be grown or goods which are, are to, or thereafter become fixtures, the statement must also contain a sufficient legal description of the real estate concerned (a mailing or street address not being sufficient) and the name of the record owner or record lessee thereof. A copy of the security agreement is sufficient as a financing statement if it contains the above information and is signed by both parties.

(2) A financing statement which otherwise complies with subsection (1) is sufficient although it is signed only by the secured party when it is filed to perfect a security interest in:

(a) Collateral already subject to a security interest in another jurisdiction when it is brought into this state. Such a financing statement must state that the collateral was brought into this state under such circumstances.

(b) Proceeds under §679.306 if the security interest in the original collateral was perfected. Such a financing statement must describe the original collateral.

(3) A form substantially as follows is sufficient to comply with subsection (1):

Name of debtor (or assignor) _____

Address _____

Name of secured party (or assignee) _____

Address _____

(a) This financing statement covers the following types (or items) of property:

(Describe) _____

(b) (If collateral is crops) The above-described crops are growing or are to be grown on:

(Describe real estate by legal description; a mailing or street address is not sufficient.) Record owner (or record lessee) of said real estate _____

(c) (If collateral is goods which are, are to, or thereafter become fixtures) The above-described goods are affixed, or are to be affixed, to:

(Describe real estate by legal description; a mailing or street address is not sufficient.) Record owner (or record lessee) of said real estate _____

(d) (If proceeds or products of collateral are claimed) Proceeds—products of the collateral are also covered.

Signature of debtor (or assignor) _____

Signature of secured party (or assignee) _____

(4) The term "financing statement" as used in this chapter means the original financing statement and any amendments but if any amendment adds collateral, it is effective as to the added collateral only from the filing date of the amendment.

(5) A financing statement substantially complying with the requirements of this section is effective even though it contains minor errors which are not seriously misleading.

(6) The department of state may promulgate approved and uniform forms of financing statements and other instruments to be filed with the department of state pursuant to this chapter. Any person filing any instrument permitted or required to be filed under this chapter with the department of state on a form other than the approved or uniform form of the department of state shall pay a fee of two dollars in addition to the fee required by §15.091, F. S.

679.403 What constitutes filing; duration of filing; effect of lapsed filing; duties of filing officer.—

(1) Presentation for filing of a financing statement and tender of the filing fee or acceptance of the statement by the filing officer and recording in compliance with section 679.4011, where required, constitutes filing under this chapter.

(2) A filed financing statement which states a maturity date of the obligation secured of five years or less is effective until such maturity date and thereafter for a period of sixty days. Any other filed financing statement is effective for a period of five years from the date of filing. The effectiveness of a filed financing statement lapses on the expiration of such sixty day period after a stated maturity date or on the expiration of such five year period, as the case may be, unless a continuation statement is filed prior to the lapse. Upon such lapse the security interest becomes unperfected. A filed financing statement which states that the obligation secured is payable on demand is effective for five years from the date of filing.

(3) A continuation statement may be filed by the secured party (a) within six months before and sixty days after a stated maturity date of five years or less, and (b) otherwise within six months prior to the expiration of the five year period specified in subsection (2). Any such continuation statement must be signed by the secured party, identify the original statement by file number and state that the original statement is still effective. Upon timely filing of the continuation statement, the effectiveness of the original statement is continued for five years after the last date to which the filing was effective whereupon it lapses in the same manner as provided in subsection (2) unless another continuation statement is filed prior to such lapse. Succeeding continuation statements may be filed in the same manner to continue the effectiveness of the original statement.

(4) A filing officer shall mark each statement with a file number and with the date and hour of filing and shall hold the record for public inspection. In addition the filing officer shall index the statements according to the name of the debtor in the index for official records or in a separate index for recordings made under this chapter designated by the filing officer and shall note in the index the file number and the address of the debtor given in the statement.

(5) The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing certified copy of an original or a continuation statement shall be as provided in chapters 15 or 28, F. S.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

679.404 Termination statement.—

(1) Whenever there is no outstanding secured obligation and no commitment to make advances, incur obligations or otherwise give value, the secured party must on written demand by the debtor send the debtor a statement that he no longer claims a security interest under the financing statement, which shall be identified by file number. A termination statement signed by a person other than the secured party of record must include or be accompanied by the assignment or a statement by the secured party of record that he has assigned the security interest to the signer of the termination statement. The uniform fee for filing and indexing such an assignment or statement thereof shall be as provided in chapters 15 or 28, F. S. If the affected secured party fails to send such a termination statement within ten days after proper demand therefor he shall be liable to the debtor for one hundred dollars, and in addition for any loss caused to the debtor by such failure.

(2) On presentation to the filing officer of such a termination statement said officer must file and index such statement.

(3) The uniform fee for filing and indexing a termination statement shall be as provided in chapters 15 or 28, F. S.

(1) A financing statement may disclose an assignment of a security interest in the collateral described in the statement by indication in the statement of the name and address of the assignee or by an assignment itself or a copy thereof on the face or back of the statement. Either the original secured party or the assignee may sign this statement as the secured party. On presentation to the filing officer of such a financing statement the filing officer shall mark the same as provided in §679-403(4). The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data for a financing statement so indicating an assignment shall be as provided in chapters 15 or 28, F. S.

(2) A secured party may assign of record all or a part of his rights under a financing statement by the filing of a separate written statement of assignment signed by the secured party of record and setting forth the name of the secured party of record and the debtor, the file number and the date of filing of the financing statement and the name and address of the assignee and containing a description of the collateral assigned. A copy of the assignment is sufficient as a separate statement if it complies with the preceding sentence. On presentation to the filing officer of such a separate statement, the filing officer shall mark such separate statement with the date and hour of the filing, and shall file and index same. The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data about such a separate statement of assignment shall be as provided in chapters 15 or 28, F. S.

(3) After the disclosure or filing of an assignment under this section, the assignee is the secured party of record.

Upon presentation of such a statement to the filing officer he shall mark the statement with the hour and date of filing and shall file and index such statement. (1) If the person filing any financing statement, termination statement, statement of assignment, or statement of release, furnishes the filing officer a copy thereof, the filing officer shall note upon the copy the file number and date and hour of the filing of the original. The department of state shall charge no additional fee for such service. The fee to be charged by a clerk of the circuit court shall be as provided in chapter 28, F. S.

(2) Upon request of any person, the filing officer shall provide a certified copy of any filed instrument under this chapter. The fee for such service shall be as provided in chapters 15 or 28, F. S.

PART V

DEFAULT

679.501 Default; procedure when security agreement covers both real and personal property.

679.502 Collection rights of secured party.

679.503 Secured party's right to take possession after default.

679.504 Secured party's right to dispose of collateral after default; effect of disposition.

679.505 Compulsory disposition of collateral; acceptance of the collateral as discharge of obligation.

679.506 Debtor's right to redeem collateral.

679.507 Secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

679.501 Default; procedure when security agreement covers both real and personal property.—

(1) When a debtor is in default under a security agreement, a secured party has the rights and remedies provided in this part, and except as limited by subsection (3) those provided in the security agreement. He may reduce his claim to judgment, foreclose or otherwise enforce the security interest by any available judicial procedure. If the collateral is documents the secured party may proceed either as to the documents or as to the goods covered thereby. A secured party in possession has the rights, remedies and duties provided in §679.207. The rights and remedies referred to in this subsection are cumulative.

(2) After default, the debtor has the rights and remedies provided in this part, those provided in the security agreement and those provided in §679.207.

(3) To the extent that they give rights to the debtor and impose duties on the secured party, the rules stated in the subsections referred to below may not be waived or varied except as provided with respect to compulsory disposition of collateral (§679.505(1)) and with respect to redemption of collateral (§679.506) but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which the fulfillment of these rights and duties is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable:

(a) Sections 679.502(2) and 679.504(2) insofar as they require accounting for surplus proceeds of collateral;

(b) Sections 679.504(3) and 679.505(1) which deal with disposition of collateral;

(c) Section 679.505(2) which deals with acceptance of collateral as discharge of obligation;

(d) Section 679.506 which deals with redemption of collateral; and

(e) Section 679.507(1) which deals with the secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

(4) If the security agreement covers both real and personal property, the secured party may proceed under this part as to the personal property or he may proceed as to both the real and the personal property in accordance with his rights and remedies in respect of the real property in which case the provisions of this part, do not apply.

(5) When a secured party has reduced his claim to judgment the lien of any levy which may be made upon his collateral by virtue of any execution based upon the judgment shall relate back to the date of the perfection of the security interest in such collateral. A judicial sale, pursuant to such execution, is a foreclosure of the security interest by judicial procedure within the meaning of this section, and the secured party may purchase at the sale and thereafter hold the collateral free of any other requirements of this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-501, U.C.C.; supersedes §673.06.

679.502 Collection rights of secured party.—

(1) When so agreed and in any event on default the secured party is entitled to notify an account debtor or the obligor on an instrument to make payment to him whether or not the assignor was theretofore making collections on the collateral, and also to take control of any proceeds to which he is entitled under §679.306.

(2) A secured party who by agreement is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral or otherwise to full or limited recourse against the debtor and who undertakes to collect from the account debtors or obligors must proceed in a commercially reasonable manner and may deduct his reasonable expenses of realization from the collections. If the security agreement secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But, if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-502, U.C.C.; supersedes §698.03.

679.503 Secured party's right to take possession after default.—Unless otherwise agreed a secured party has on default the right to take possession of the collateral. In taking possession a secured party may proceed without judicial process if this can be done without breach of the peace or may proceed by action. If the security agreement so provides the secured party may require the debtor to assemble the collateral and make it available to the secured party at a place to be designated by the secured party which is reasonably convenient to both parties. Without removal a secured party may render equipment unusable, and may dispose of collateral on the debtor's premises under §679.504.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-503, U.C.C.; supersedes §§698.03, 673.06.

679.504 Secured party's right to dispose of collateral after default; effect of disposition.—

(1) A secured party after default may sell, lease or otherwise dispose of any or all of the collateral in its then condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing. Any sale of goods is subject to chapter 672. The proceeds of disposition shall be applied in the order following to:

(a) The reasonable expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for sale, selling and the like and, to the extent provided for in the agreement and not prohibited by law, the reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the secured party;

(b) The satisfaction of indebtedness secured by the security interest under which the disposition is made;

(c) The satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate security interest in the collateral if written notification of demand therefor is received before distribution of the proceeds is completed. If requested by the secured party, the holder of a subordinate security interest must seasonably furnish reasonable proof of his interest, and unless he does so, the secured party need not comply with his demand.

(2) If the security interest secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and, unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides.

(3) Disposition of the collateral may be by public or private proceedings and may be made by way of one or more contracts. Sale or other disposition may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the disposition including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. Unless collateral is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, reasonable notification of the time and place of any public sale or reasonable notification of the time after which any private sale or other intended disposition is to be made shall be sent by the secured party to the debtor, and except in the case of consumer goods to any other person who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in this state or who is known by the secured party to have a security interest in the collateral. The secured party may buy at any public sale and if the collateral is of a type customarily sold in a recognized market or is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations he may buy at private sale.

(4) When collateral is disposed of by a secured party after default, the disposition transfers to a purchaser for value all of the debtor's rights therein, discharges the security interest under which it is made and any security interest or lien subordinate thereto. The purchaser takes free of all such rights and interests even though the secured party fails to comply with the requirements of this part or of any judicial proceedings:

(a) In the case of a public sale, if the purchaser has no knowledge of any defects in the sale and if he does not buy in collusion with the secured party, other bidders or the person conducting the sale; or

(b) In any other case, if the purchaser acts in good faith.

(5) A person who is liable to a secured party under a guaranty, indorsement, repurchase agreement or the like and who receives a transfer of collateral from the secured party or is subrogated to his rights has thereafter the rights and duties of the secured party. Such a transfer of collateral is not a sale or disposition of the collateral under this chapter.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-504, U.C.C.; supersedes §§673.06, 698.03.

679.505 Compulsory disposition of collateral; acceptance of the collateral as discharge of obligation.—

(1) If the debtor has paid sixty per cent of the cash price in the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods or sixty per cent of the loan in the case of another security interest in consumer goods, and has not signed after default a statement renouncing or modifying his rights under this part a secured party who has taken possession of collateral must dispose of it under §679.504 and if he fails to do so within ninety days after he takes possession the debtor at his option may recover in conversion or under §679.507(1) on secured party's liability.

(2) In any other case involving consumer goods or any other collateral a secured party in possession may, after default, propose to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the obligation. Written notice of such proposal shall be sent to the debtor and except in the case of consumer goods to any other secured party who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in this state or is known by the secured party in possession to have a security interest in it. If the debtor or other person entitled to receive notification objects in writing within thirty days from the receipt of the notification or if any other secured party objects in writing within thirty days after the secured party obtains possession the secured party must dispose of the collateral under §679.504. In the absence of such written objection the secured party may retain the collateral in satisfaction of the debtor's obligation.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-505, U.C.C.

679.506 Debtor's right to redeem collateral.—At any time before the secured party has disposed of collateral or entered into a contract for its disposition under §679.504 or before the obligation has been discharged under §679.505(2) the debtor or any other secured party may unless otherwise agreed in writing after default redeem the collateral by tendering fulfillment of all obligations secured by the collateral as well as the expenses reasonably incurred by the secured party in retaking, holding and preparing the collateral for disposition, in arranging for the sale, and to the extent provided in the agreement and not prohibited by law, his reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

Note.—§9-506, U.C.C.

679.507 Secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.—

(1) If it is established that the secured party is not proceeding in accordance with the provisions of this part disposition may be ordered or restrained on appropriate terms and conditions. If the disposition has occurred the debtor or any person entitled to notification or whose security interest has been made known to the secured party prior to the disposition has a right to recover from the secured party any loss caused by a failure to comply with the provisions of this part. If the collateral is consumer goods the debtor has a right to recover in any event an amount not less than the credit service charge plus ten per cent of the principal amount of the debt or the time price differential plus ten per cent of the cash price.

(2) The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the secured party is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the secured party either sells the collateral in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with reasonable commercial practices among dealers in the type of property sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. The principles stated in the two preceding sentences with respect to sales also apply as may be appropriate to other types of disposition. A disposition which has been approved in any judicial proceeding or by any bona fide creditors' committee or representative of creditors shall conclusively be deemed to be commercially reasonable, but this sentence does not indicate that any such approval must be obtained in any case nor does it indicate that any disposition not so approved is not commercially reasonable.

History.—§1, ch. 65-254.

(1) The article on documents of title (Art. 7) does not repeal or modify any laws prescribing the form or contents of documents of title or the services or facilities to be afforded by bailees, or otherwise regulating bailees' businesses in respects not specifically dealt with herein; but the fact that such laws are violated does not affect the status of a document of title which otherwise complies with the definition of a document of title (§671.201).

(2) The following laws and parts of laws are specifically not repealed and shall take precedence over any provisions of this code which may be inconsistent or in conflict therewith:

Chapter 517.—Sale of securities.

(1) A customer, or any customer if there is more than one, or any person authorized to sign checks or make withdrawals on or from an account, may stop payment of any item payable, for or drawn against such customer's or customers' account but the same shall not be effective and the bank may disregard the same unless the order is in writing, is signed by such customer or authorized person, describes with certainty the item on which payment is to be stopped, and is served upon and received by an officer of the bank at the banking house during regular banking hours and in such time and in such manner as to afford the bank a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to the happening of any of the events described in §674.303, and in any event no bank shall be responsible or liable for failure to comply with any such order on the day the same is served upon or received by such bank unless such omission or failure to comply with the same on the day received result from the willful and intentional disregard of such order.

(2) An order may be disregarded by the bank six months after its receipt unless renewed in writing.

(3) The bank may be liable to its customer for the actual loss incurred by the customer resulting from the wrongful payment of an item contrary to a valid and binding stop payment order, not exceeding the amount of the item unless the bank is guilty of gross negligence or unless such wrongful payment was made as a result of the willful and intentional disregard by the bank of such order. The burden of establishing the fact and amount of loss resulting from the wrongful payment of an item contrary to a binding stop payment order is on the customer.

History.—§22, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.10.

682.02 Arbitration agreements made valid, irrevocable and enforceable; scope.—Two or more parties may agree in writing to submit to arbitration any controversy existing between them at the time of the agreement, or they may include in a written contract a provision for the settlement by arbitration of any controversy thereafter arising between them relating to such contract or the failure or refusal to perform the whole or any part thereof. Such agreement or provision shall be valid, enforceable and irrevocable without regard to the justifiable character of the controversy; provided that this act shall not apply to any such agreement or provision to arbitrate in which it is stipulated that this law shall not apply or to any arbitration or award thereunder.

History.—§1, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.11.

682.03 Proceedings to compel and to stay arbitration.—

(1) A party to an agreement or provision for arbitration subject to this law claiming the neglect or refusal of another party thereto to comply therewith may make application to the court for an order directing the parties to proceed with arbitration in accordance with the terms thereof. If the court is satisfied that no substantial issue exists as to the making of the agreement or provision, it shall grant the application. If the court shall find that a substantial issue is raised as to the making of the agreement or provision, it shall summarily hear and determine the issue and, according to its determination, shall grant or deny the application.

(2) If an issue referable to arbitration under an agreement or provision for arbitration subject to this law becomes involved in an action or proceeding pending in a court having jurisdiction to hear an application under subsection (1) of this section, such application shall be made in said court. Otherwise and subject to §682.19, such application may be made in any court of competent jurisdiction.

(3) Any action or proceeding involving an issue subject to arbitration under this law shall be stayed if an order for arbitration or an application therefor has been made under this section or, if the issue is severable, the stay may be with respect thereto only. When the application is made in such action or proceeding, the order for arbitration shall include such stay.

(4) On application the court may stay an arbitration proceeding commenced or about to be commenced, if it shall find that no agreement or provision for arbitration subject to this law exists between the party making the application and the party causing the arbitration to be had. The court shall summarily hear and determine the issue of the making of the agreement or provision and, according to its determination, shall grant or deny the application.

(5) An order for arbitration shall not be refused on the ground that the claim in issue lacks merit or bona fides or because any fault or grounds for the claim sought to be arbitrated have not been shown.

History.—§2, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.12.

682.04 Appointment of arbitrators by court.—If an agreement or provision for arbitration subject to this law provides a method for the appointment of arbitrators or an umpire, this method shall be followed. In the absence thereof, or if the agreed method fails or for any reason cannot be followed, or if an arbitrator or umpire who has been appointed fails to act and his successor has not been duly appointed, the court, on application of a party to such agreement or provision shall appoint one or more arbitrators or an umpire. An arbitrator or umpire so appointed shall have like powers as if named or provided for in the agreement or provision.

History.—§3, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.13.

682.05 Majority action by arbitrators.—The powers of the arbitrators may be exercised by a majority of their number unless otherwise provided in the agreement or provision for arbitration.

History.—§4, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.14.

682.06 Hearing.—Unless otherwise provided by the agreement or provision for arbitration:

(1) (a) The arbitrators shall appoint a time and place for the hearing and cause notification to the parties to be served personally or by registered or certified mail not less than five days before the hearing. Appearance at the hearing waives a party's right to such notice. The arbitrators may adjourn their hearing from time to time upon their own motion and shall do so upon the request of any party to the arbitration for good cause shown, provided that no adjournment or postponement of their hearing shall extend beyond the date fixed in the agreement or provision for making the award unless the parties consent to a later date. An umpire authorized to hear and decide the cause upon failure of the arbitrators to agree upon an award shall, in the course of his jurisdiction, have like powers and be subject to like limitations thereon.

(b) The arbitrators, or umpire in the course of his jurisdiction, may hear and decide the controversy upon the evidence produced notwithstanding the failure or refusal of a party duly notified of the time and place of the hearing to appear. The court on application may direct the arbitrators, or the umpire in the course of his jurisdiction, to proceed promptly with the hearing and making of the award.

(2) The parties are entitled to be heard, to present evidence material to the controversy and to cross-examine witnesses appearing at the hearing.

(3) The hearing shall be conducted by all of the arbitrators but a majority may determine any question and render a final award. An umpire authorized to hear and decide the cause upon the failure of the arbitrators to agree upon an award shall sit with the arbitrators throughout their hearing but shall not be counted as a part of their quorum or in the making of their award. If, during the course of the hearing, an arbitrator for any reason ceases to act, the remaining arbitrator, arbitrators or umpire appointed to act as neutrals may continue with the hearing and determination of the controversy.

History.—§5, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.15.

682.07 Representation by attorney.—A party has the right to be represented by an attorney at any arbitration proceeding or hearing under this law. A waiver thereof prior to the proceeding or hearing is ineffective.

History.—§6, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.16.

682.08 Witnesses, subpoenas, depositions.—

(1) Arbitrators, or an umpire authorized to hear and decide the cause upon failure of the arbitrators to agree upon an award, in the course of his jurisdiction, may issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and for the production of books, records, documents and other evidence, and shall have the power to administer oaths. Subpoenas so issued shall be served, and upon application to the court by a party to the arbitration or the arbitrators, or the umpire, enforced in the manner provided by law for the service and enforcement of subpoenas in a civil action.

(2) On application of a party to the arbitration and for use as evidence, the arbitrators, or the umpire in the course of his jurisdiction, may permit a deposition to be taken, in the manner and upon the terms designated by them or him of a witness who cannot be subpoenaed or is unable to attend the hearing.

(3) All provisions of law compelling a person under subpoena to testify are applicable.

(4) Fees for attendance as a witness shall be the same as for a witness in the circuit court.

History.—§7, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.17.

682.09 Award.—

(1) The award shall be in writing and shall be signed by the arbitrators joining in the award or by the umpire in the course of his jurisdiction. They or he shall deliver a copy to each party to the arbitration either personally or by registered or certified mail, or as provided in the agreement or provision.

(2) An award shall be made within the time fixed therefor by the agreement or provision for arbitration or, if not so fixed, within such time as the court may order on application of a party to the arbitration. The parties may, by written agreement, extend the time either before or after the expiration thereof. Any objection that an award was not made within the time required is waived unless the objecting party notifies the arbitrators or umpire in writing of his objection prior to the delivery of the award to him.

History.—§8, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.18.

682.10 Change of award by arbitrators or umpire.—On application of a party to the arbitration, or if an application to the court is pending under §§682.12, 682.13 or 682.14, on submission to the arbitrators, or to the umpire in the case of an umpire's award, by the court under such conditions as the court may order, the arbitrators or umpire may modify or correct the award upon the grounds stated in §682.14 (1) (a) and (c) or for the purpose of clarifying the award. The application shall be made within twenty days after delivery of the award to the applicant. Written notice thereof shall be given forthwith to the other party to the arbitration, stating that he must serve his objections thereto, if any, within ten days from the notice. The award so modified or corrected is subject to the provisions of §§682.12-682.14.

History.—§9, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §57.19.

682.11 Fees and expenses of arbitration.—Unless otherwise provided in the agreement or provision for arbitration, the arbitrators' and umpire's expenses and fees, together with other expenses, not including counsel fees, incurred in the conduct of the arbitration, shall be paid as provided in the award.

History.—§10, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.

Note.—See former §57.20.

682.12 Confirmation of an award.—Upon application of a party to the arbitration, the court shall confirm an award, unless within the time limits hereinafter imposed grounds are urged for vacating or modifying or correcting the award, in which case the court shall proceed as provided in §§682.13 and 682.14.

History.—§11, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.

Note.—See former §57.21.

682.13 Vacating an award.—

(1) Upon application of a party, the court shall vacate an award when:

(a) The award was procured by corruption, fraud or other undue means;

(b) There was evident partiality by an arbitrator appointed as a neutral or corruption in any of the arbitrators or umpire or misconduct prejudicing the rights of any party;

(c) The arbitrators or the umpire in the course of his jurisdiction exceeded their powers;

(d) The arbitrators or the umpire in the course of his jurisdiction refused to postpone the hearing upon sufficient cause being shown therefor or refused to hear evidence material to the controversy or otherwise so conducted the hearing, contrary to the provisions of §682.06, as to prejudice substantially the rights of a party; or

(e) There was no agreement or provision for arbitration subject to this law, unless the matter was determined in proceedings under §682.03 and unless the party participated in the arbitration hearing without raising the objection;

But the fact that the relief was such that it could not or would not be granted by a court of law or equity is not ground for vacating or refusing to confirm the award.

(2) An application under this section shall be made within ninety days after delivery of a copy of the award to the applicant, except that, if predicated upon corruption, fraud or other undue means, it shall be made within ninety days after such grounds are known or should have been known.

(3) In vacating the award on grounds other than those stated in subsection (1)(e), the court may order a rehearing before new arbitrators chosen as provided in the agreement or provision for arbitration or by the court in accordance with §682.04, or, if the award is vacated on grounds set forth in subsection (1)(c) and (d), the court may order a rehearing before the arbitrators or umpire who made the award or their successors appointed in accordance with §682.04. The time within which the agreement or provision for arbitration requires the award to be made is applicable to the rehearing and commences from the date of the order therefor.

(4) If the application to vacate is denied and no motion to modify or correct the award is pending, the court shall confirm the award.

History.—§12, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.

Note.—See former §57.22.

682.14 Modification or correction of award.—

(1) Upon application made within ninety days after delivery of a copy of the award to the applicant, the court shall modify or correct the award when:

(a) There is an evident miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in the description of any person, thing or property referred to in the award;

(b) The arbitrators or umpire have awarded upon a matter not submitted to them or him and the award may be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision upon the issues submitted; or

(c) The award is imperfect as a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy.

(2) If the application is granted, the court shall modify and correct the award so as to effect its intent and shall confirm the award as so modified and corrected. Otherwise, the court shall confirm the award as made.

(3) An application to modify or correct an award may be joined in the alternative with an application to vacate the award.

History.—§13, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.

Note.—See former §57.23.

682.15 Judgment or decree on award.—

Upon the granting of an order confirming, modifying or correcting an award, judgment or decree shall be entered in conformity therewith and be enforced as any other judgment or decree. History.—§14, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.

Note.—See former §57.25.

682.17 Application to court.—Except as otherwise provided, an application to the court under this law shall be by motion and shall be heard in the manner and upon the notice provided by law or rule of court for the making and hearing of motions. Unless the parties have agreed otherwise, notice of an initial application for an order shall be served in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons in an action.

History.—§16, ch. 57-402; §12, ch. 67-254.

Note.—See former §57.26.

682.18 Court, jurisdiction.—

(1) The term "court" means any court of competent jurisdiction of this state. The making of an agreement or provision for arbitration subject to this law and providing for arbitration in this state shall, whether made within or outside this state, confer jurisdiction on the court to enforce the agreement or provision under this law, to enter judgment on an award duly rendered in an arbitration thereunder and to vacate, modify or correct an award rendered thereunder for such cause and in the manner provided in this law.

(2) Any judgment entered upon an award by a court of competent jurisdiction of any state, territory, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or foreign country shall be enforceable by application as provided in §682.17 and regardless of the time when said award may have been made.

one of the two instruments in which any such variance occurred was prior in point of time to the other and irrespective of whether the instruments were executed or originated before or after August 5, 1953, shall not destroy or impair the presumption that the person so named in one of said instruments was the same person as the one so named in the other of said instruments which would exist if the names in the two instruments were identical; and, in spite of any such variance, the person so named in one of said instruments shall be presumed to be the same person as the one so named in the other until such time as the contrary appears and, until such time, either or both of such instruments or the record thereof or certified copy or copies of the record thereof shall be admissible in evidence in the same manner as though the names in the two instruments were identical.

(4) "Remainderman" as used in this chapter means the person ultimately entitled to the principal, whether named or designated by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established or determined by operation of law.

(5) "Trustee" as used in this chapter includes the original trustee of any trust to which the principal may be subject and also any succeeding or added trustee.

History.—§1, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(2-a); am. §7, ch. 22858, 1945.

690.03 Application of chapter; powers of settlor.—This chapter shall govern the ascertainment of income and principal, and the apportionment of receipts and expenses between tenants and remaindermen, in all cases where a principal has been established with or, unless otherwise stated hereinafter, without the interposition of a trust; except that in the establishment of the principal provision may be made touching all matters covered by this chapter, and the person establishing the principal may himself direct the manner of ascertainment of income and principal and the apportionment of receipts and expenses or grant discretion to the trustee or other person to do so, and such provision and direction, where not otherwise contrary to law, shall control notwithstanding this chapter.

History.—§2, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(3).

- 690.08 Principal used in business.
- 690.09 Principal comprising animals.
- 690.10 Disposition of natural resources.
- 690.11 Principal subject to depletion.
- 690.12 Unproductive estate.
- 690.13 Expenses; trust estates.
- 690.14 Expenses; nontrust estates.
- 690.15 Uniformity of interpretation.

690.04 Income and principal; disposition.—

(1) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as rent of realty or hire of personalty or dividends on corporate shares payable other than in shares of the corporation itself, or interest on money loaned, or interest on or the rental or use value of property wrongfully withheld or tortiously damaged, or otherwise in return for the use of principal, shall be deemed income unless otherwise expressly provided in this chapter.

(2) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as the consideration for the sale or other transfer, not a leasing or letting, of property forming a part of the principal, or as a repayment of loans, or in liquidation of the assets of a corporation, or as the proceeds of property taken on eminent domain proceedings where separate awards to tenant and remainderman are not made, or as proceeds of insurance upon property forming a part of the principal except where such insurance has been issued for the benefit of either tenant or remainderman alone, or otherwise as a refund or replacement or change in form of principal, shall be deemed principal unless otherwise expressly provided in this chapter. Any profit or loss resulting upon any change in form of principal shall enure to or fall upon principal.

(3) All income after payment of expenses properly chargeable to it shall be paid and delivered to the tenant or retained by him if already in his possession; or held for accumulation where legally so directed by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established; while the principal shall be held for ultimate distribution as determined by the terms of the transaction by which it was established or by law.

History.—§3, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(4).

690.05 Apportionment of income.—Whenever a tenant shall have the right to income from periodic payments, which shall include rent, interest on loans, and annuities, but shall not include dividends on corporate shares, and such right shall cease and determine by death or in any other manner at a time other than the date when such periodic payments should be paid, he or his personal representative shall be entitled to that portion of any such income next payable which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time elapsed from the last due date of such periodic payments to and including the day of the determination of his right is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue. The remaining income shall be paid to the person next entitled to income by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established. But no action shall be brought by the trustee or tenant to recover such apportioned income or any portion thereof until the day on which it would have become due to the tenant but for the determination of the right of the tenant entitled thereto. The provisions of this section shall apply whether an ultimate remainderman is specifically named or not. Likewise when the right of the first tenant accrues at a time other than the payment dates of such periodic payments, he shall only receive that portion of such income which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time during which he has been so entitled is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue; the balance shall be a part of the principal.

History.—§4, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(5).
Am. §10, ch. 27991, 1953.

690.06 Corporate dividends and share rights.—

(1) All dividends on shares of a corporation which form a part of the principal and are payable in the shares of the corporation, or in shares or other securities or obligations of corporations other than the declaring corporation, shall be deemed principal. Subject to the provision of this section, all dividends payable otherwise than in the shares of the declaring corporation, and otherwise than in the shares or other securities or obligations of corporations other than the declaring corporation, shall be deemed income. Where the trustee shall have the option of receiving a dividend either in cash or in the shares of the declaring corporation, it shall be considered as a cash dividend and deemed income, irrespective of the choice made by the trustee, provided however, that all distributions of capital of mutual investment trusts shall be deemed principal irrespective of the choice made by the trustee.

(2) All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in such corporation, and the proceeds of any sale of such rights, shall be deemed principal. All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in another corporation, and the proceeds of the sale of such rights, shall likewise be deemed principal.

(3) Where the assets of a corporation are liquidated, amounts paid upon corporate shares as cash dividends declared before such liquidation occurred or as arrears of preferred or guaranteed dividends shall be deemed income; all other amounts paid upon corporate shares on disbursement of the corporate assets to the stockholders shall be deemed principal. All disbursements of corporate assets to the stockholders, whenever made, which are designated by the corporation as a return of capital or division of corporate property shall be deemed principal.

(4) Where a corporation succeeds another by merger, consolidation or reorganization or otherwise acquires its assets, and the corporate shares of the succeeding corporation are issued in substitution for those of the original corporation, the two corporations shall be considered a single corporation in applying the provisions of this section. But two corporations shall not be considered a single corporation under this section merely because one owns corporate shares of or otherwise controls or directs the other.

(5) In applying this section the date when a dividend accrues to the person who is entitled to it shall be held to be the date specified by the corporation as the one on which the stockholders entitled thereto are determined, or in default thereof the date of declaration of the dividend.

History.—§5, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(6); (1), (2) a. by §1, ch. 61-72.

690.07 Premium and discount bonds.—

Where any part of the principal consists of bonds or other obligations for the payment of money, they shall be deemed principal at their inventory value or in default thereof at their market value at the time the principal was established, or at their cost where purchased later, regardless of their par or maturity value; and upon their respective maturities or upon their sale any loss or gain realized thereon shall fall upon or enure to the principal.

History.—§6, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(7).

690.08 Principal used in business.—

(1) Whenever a trustee or a tenant is authorized by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established, or by law, to use any part of the principal in the continuance of a business which the original owner of the property comprising the principal had been carrying on, the net profits of such business attributable to such principal shall be deemed income.

(2) Where such business consists of buying and selling property the net profits for any period shall be ascertained by deducting from the gross returns during and the inventory value of the property at the end of such period, the expenses during and the inventory value of the property at the beginning of such period.

(3) Where such business does not consist of buying and selling property, the net income shall be computed in accordance with the customary practice of such business, but not in such way as to decrease the principal.

(4) Any increase in the value of the principal used in such business shall be deemed principal, and all losses, after the income from such business has been exhausted, shall fall upon principal.

History.—§7, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(8).

690.09 Principal comprising animals.—Where any part of the principal consists of animals employed in business, the provisions of §690.08 shall apply; and in other cases where the animals are held as a part of the principal partly or wholly because of the offspring or increase which they are expected to produce, all offspring or increase shall be deemed principal to the extent necessary to maintain the original number of such animals and the remainder shall be deemed income; and in all other cases such offspring or increase shall be deemed income.

History.—§8, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(9).

690.10 Disposition of natural resources.—Where any part of the principal consists of lands from which may be taken timber, minerals, oils, gas or other natural resources and the trustee or tenant is authorized by law or by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established to sell or dispose of such natural resources, and no provision is made for the disposition of the proceeds thereof, such proceeds shall be considered principal. Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or extend any right which a tenant may otherwise have by law to exploit or develop such natural resources for his own benefit.

History.—§9, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(10).

690.11 Principal subject to depletion.—Where any part of the principal consists of property subject to depletion, such as leaseholds, patents, copyrights and royalty rights, and the trustee or tenant in possession is not under a duty to change the form of the investment of the principal, the full amount of rents, royalties or return from the property shall be income to the tenant; but where the trustee or tenant is under a duty, arising either by law or by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established, to change the form of the investment, either at once or as soon as it may be done without loss, then the return from such property not in excess of five per cent per annum of its inventory value or in default thereof its market value at the time the principal was established, or at its cost where purchased later, shall be deemed income and the remainder principal.

History.—§10, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(11).

690.12 Unproductive estate.—

(1) Where any part of the principal in the possession of a trustee consists of realty or personalty which, for more than a year and until disposed of as hereinafter stated, has not produced an average net income of at least one per cent per annum of its inventory value or in default thereof its market value at the time the principal was established or of its cost where purchased later, and the trustee is under a duty to change the form of the investment as soon as it may be done without sacrifice of value and such change is delayed, but is made before the principal is finally distributed, then the tenant, or in case of his death his personal representative, shall be entitled to share in the net proceeds received from the property as delayed income to the extent hereinafter stated.

(2) Such income shall be the difference between the net proceeds received from the property and the amount which, had it been placed at simple interest at the rate of five per cent per annum for the period during which the change was delayed, would have produced the net proceeds at the time of change, but in no event shall such income be more than the amount by which the net proceeds exceed the inventory value of the property or in default thereof its market value at the time the principal was established or its cost where purchased later. The net proceeds shall consist of the gross proceeds received from the property less any expenses incurred in disposing of it and less all carrying charges which have been paid out of principal during the period while it has been unproductive.

(3) The change shall be taken to have been delayed from the time when the duty to make it first arose, which shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be one year after the trustee first received the property if then unproductive, otherwise one year after it became unproductive.

(4) If the tenant has received any income from the property or has had any beneficial use thereof during the period while the change has been delayed, his share of the delayed income shall be reduced by the amount of such income received or the value of the use had.

(5) In the case of successive tenants the delayed income shall be divided among them or their representatives according to the length of the periods for which each was entitled to income.

History.—§11, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(12).

690.13 Expenses; trust estates.—

(1) All ordinary expenses incurred in connection with the trust estate or with its administration and management, including regularly recurring taxes assessed against any portion of the principal, water rates, premiums on insurance taken upon the estates of both tenant and remainderman, interest on mortgages on the principal, ordinary repairs, trustees, compensation except commissions computed on principal, compensation of assistants, and court and other fees on regular accountings, shall be paid out of income. But such expenses where incurred in connection with unproductive estate as defined in §690.12 shall be paid out of principal, subject to the provisions of subsection (2) of §690.12.

(2) All other expenses, including trustee's commissions computed upon principal, cost of investing or reinvesting principal, attorney's fees and other costs incurred in maintaining or defending any action to protect the property or assure the title thereof, unless due to the fault or cause of the tenant, and costs of, or assessments for, improvements to property forming part of the principal, shall be paid out of principal. Any tax levied by any authority, federal, state or foreign, upon profit or gain defined as principal under the terms of subsection (2) of §690.04 shall be paid out of principal, notwithstanding said tax may be denominated a tax upon income by the taxing authority.

(3) Expenses paid out of income according to subsection (1) hereof which represent regularly recurring charges shall be considered to have accrued from day to day, and shall be apportioned on that basis whenever the right of the tenant begins or ends at some date other than the payment date of the expenses. Where the expenses to be paid out of income are of unusual amount, the trustee may distribute them throughout an entire year or part thereof, or throughout a series of years. After such distribution, where the right of the tenant begins or ends during the period, the expenses shall be apportioned between tenant and remainderman on the basis of such distribution.

(4) Where the costs of, or special taxes or assessments for, an improvement representing an addition of value to property held by the trustee as part of principal are paid out of principal, as provided in subsection (2) hereof, the trustee shall reserve out of income and add to the principal each year a sum equal to the cost of the improvement divided by the number of years of the reasonably expected duration of the improvement.

History.—§12, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(13).

690.14 Expenses; nontrust estates.—

(1) The provisions of §690.13, so far as applicable and excepting those dealing with costs of, or assessments for improvements to property, shall govern the apportionment of expenses between tenants and remaindermen where no trust has been created, subject, however, to any legal agreement of the parties or any specific direction of the taxing or other statutes; but where either tenant or remainderman has incurred an expense for the benefit of his own estate and without the consent or agreement of the other, he shall pay such expense in full.

(2) Subject to the exceptions stated in subsection (1) the cost of, or special taxes or assessments for, an improvement representing an addition of value to property forming part of the principal shall be paid by the tenant, where such improvement is not reasonably expected to outlast the estate of the tenant. In all other cases a portion thereof only shall be paid by the tenant, while the remainder shall be paid by the remainderman. Such portion shall be ascertained by taking that percentage of the total which is found by dividing the present value of the tenant's estate by the present value of an estate of the same form as that of the tenant except that it is limited for a period corresponding to the reasonably expected duration of the improvement. The computation of present values of the estates shall be made on the expectancy basis set forth in the official mortality tables and no other evidence of duration or expectancy shall be considered.

History.—§13, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(14).

690.15 Uniformity of interpretation.—This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

History.—§14, ch. 18392, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(15).

691.02 Definitions.—The term "trust" as used in this chapter includes any express trust, except trust deeds in the nature of a mortgage to secure the payment of money due on notes, bonds or other like obligations, and also excepting what are commonly known as voting trusts. "Trust instrument" includes any writing which legally creates, limits, declares, manifests or otherwise evidences the existence of a trust. "Trustee" includes corporations, individuals and any other legal entity authorized to act and that is acting as a trustee.

History.—§1, ch. 18397, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5671(17).
 cf.—§1.01, General definitions.

691.03 Powers of trustees.—In the absence of contrary or limiting provisions in the trust instrument or a subsequent order or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, the trustee of an express trust is authorized:

(1) To exchange, re-exchange, subdivide, develop, improve, dedicate to public use, make or obtain the vacation of public plats, adjust boundaries, partition real property and on exchange or partition to adjust differences in valuation by giving or receiving money or money's worth. Easements may be dedicated to public use without consideration if deemed by the trustee to be for the best interests of the trust.

(2) To grant options and to sell real property at public auction or at private sale for cash or upon credit, secured by lien upon the property sold or upon other property deemed to be adequate security. Where a trustee is authorized to sell, mortgage, lease, or otherwise dispose of land, such authority shall include the right to sell, mortgage, lease, or otherwise dispose of part thereof whether the division is horizontal, vertical, or made in any other way.

(3) To grant leases of real property of which the trustee is the fee owner, to begin at once or within three years from the date thereof, and to grant leases of all rights and privileges above or below the surface of such real property for any term of years not exceeding ninety-nine years, with or without option of purchase and with or without covenants as to erection of buildings, or as to renewals, thereof, though the term of the lease or renewals thereof or of such options extends beyond the term of the trust.

(4) To raze existing party walls or buildings and erect new party walls or buildings, alone or jointly with owners of adjacent property.

(5) To make ordinary or extraordinary repairs or alterations in buildings or other structures.

(6) To effect and keep in force, fire, rent, title, liability, casualty or other insurance of any nature, in any form and in any amount, for the proper protection of the property and the ownership thereof.

(7) To hold without liability, other than that involved in holding property legal for investment of trust funds, any and all property, whether or not permissible for investment of funds of that particular trust, received from or through the settlor of the trust, and any property lawfully coming into the hands of the trustees in lieu of or in substitution therefor. This provision shall not be construed to cover reinvestments of cash made by the trustee.

(8) To make division, allotment and distribution of principal to legatees, beneficiaries, distributees, and remaindermen, wholly or partly in property in kind.

(9) To compromise, contest, submit to arbitration or otherwise settle any and all claims in favor of or against the trust estate or the trustee.

(10) To vote at corporate meetings in person or by proxy.

(11) To pay calls, assessments, and any other sums chargeable or accruing against or on account of shares of stocks, bonds, debentures or other corporate securities in the hands of the trustee, where such payment may be legally enforceable against the trustee or any property of the trust, or the trustee deems payment expedient and for the best interests of the trust. To sell or exercise stock subscription or conversion rights, participate in foreclosures, reorganizations, consolidations, mergers, liquidations, pooling agreements and voting trusts; and to assent to corporate sales, leases and encumbrances. In the exercise of the powers named in this subsection, the trustee shall be authorized, where he deems such course expedient, to deposit stocks, bonds or other securities with any protective or other similar committee, under such terms and conditions respecting the deposit thereof as the trustee may approve.

(12) To dispose of, call in or change and make new investments legal for such trust. An authority in general terms to invest in such securities or in such manner as the trustee may deem or think best or fit or to the advantage of the estate or in good safe securities, or in other terms conferring a discretion not expressly limited to property legal for investment of trust funds, shall be construed as not so limited.

(13) To hold any corporate stock, mutual investment trust shares, registered bonds, notes, debentures, and revenue certificates issued by any corporation, government, municipality, or subdivisions or agencies thereof in his own name or in the name of a nominee, with or without disclosing any fiduciary relationship, but the trustee, however, shall be responsible for all acts and omissions of such nominee relating to such property.

(14) To create reserves out of income for depreciation, obsolescence, amortization or to insure prompt payment of taxes or assessments, general or special and other obligations, and to restore to income such reserves as may be unused.

(15) To make payments of income directly to minor beneficiaries over the age of eighteen years as though they were of full age; and when income is directed to be paid to minors, to apply and expend the same for their benefit either with or without the intervention of a guardian.

(16) To borrow money and to mortgage or otherwise encumber or pledge trust property or future income or principal as security for its repayment.

(17) To advance income to or for the use of the beneficiaries for which advance such trustee shall have a lien on the future benefits of such beneficiary.

(18) To advance money for the protection of the trust or its property and for all expenses, losses and liabilities incurred in or about the execution or protection of the trust or because of the holding or ownership of any property subject thereto. For all such advances, the trustee shall have a lien on the trust property and may reimburse himself with interest therefor out of the trust property.

691.04 Investments; mortgages, etc.; survivor and successor trustees; action of less than all; notice to trustee.—The following provisions shall apply to all trusts but shall not be exclusive of others imposed by law unless contrary thereto:

(1) A trustee in making investments of trust funds may rely upon information and opinions deemed by him reliable concerning facts necessary or proper to be taken into consideration in determining whether such investment conforms to the requirements of such trust.

(2) The trustee shall not be liable for breach of trust by reason only of his continuing to hold an investment, which because of changing conditions has ceased to be an investment authorized by the trust instrument or the law applicable thereto.

(3) A trustee shall not be responsible for the genuineness or validity of execution of any instrument representing an investment made by him in good faith and without negligence.

(4) Where a trustee is authorized by the trust instrument or by law to pay or apply capital money subject to the trust for any purpose or in any manner, he shall have power to raise the money required by sale, conversion, mortgage, calling in, or by otherwise encumbering all or any part of the trust property for the time being in his possession.

(5) Where a power or trust is given to or imposed on two or more trustees jointly, the same may be exercised or performed by the survivors or survivor of them for the time being.

(6) A successor trustee shall succeed to all of the powers, duties and discretionary authority of an original trustee.

(7) Where there are three or more trustees of a trust, the action of a majority shall be sufficient unless the trust instrument provides otherwise.

(8) A trustee shall be answerable and accountable only for his own acts, receipts, neglects, or defaults, and not for those of any co-trustee, nor for any banker, broker or other person with whom any trust money or securities may be lawfully deposited, nor for any loss unless the same occurs through his own default or negligence. Whenever the trust instrument reserves unto the trustor, or vests in an advisory or investment committee or in any other person or persons, including a co-trustee, to the exclusion of the trustee or to the exclusion of one or more of several trustees, authority to direct the making or retention of investments or of any investment, the excluded trustee or co-trustee shall be liable, if at all, only as a ministerial agent and shall not be liable as trustee or co-trustee for any loss resulting from the making or retention of any investment pursuant to such authorized direction.

(9) A trustee, acting for more than one trust, shall not, in the absence of fraud, be affected by notice of any instrument, matter, fact or thing in relation to any particular trust if he has obtained notice thereof merely by reason of his acting or having acted for another trust or in some other fiduciary capacity.

However, in the case of those states which do not require a notary public to have a seal, if the acknowledgment or proof be made before a notary public, then such notary public shall have affixed to the instrument, in lieu of an official seal, a certificate by the proper authority, wherein the commission of said notary public has been filed, that said notary public is duly authorized by the laws of such state to certify the acknowledgment or proof of a deed or any other instrument concerning real property; and such clerk's certificate shall be under the seal of the said proper authority.

(3) IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.—If the acknowledgment or proof be made in any foreign country, it may be made before any commissioner of deeds appointed by the governor of this state to reside in such country, or before any notary public of such foreign country having an official seal, or before any ambassador, envoy extraordinary, minister plenipotentiary, minister, commissioner, charge d'affaires, consul general, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, or any other diplomatic or consular officer of the United States appointed to reside in such country, military or naval officer authorized by the laws or articles of war of the United States to perform the duties of notary public, and the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be under the seal of the officer.

(1) Hereafter, any mortgage or other instrument given by a cooperative association for the purpose of creating a lien on real or personal property, or both, may secure not only existing indebtedness, but also such future advances, whether obligatory or otherwise, as are made within ten years from the date thereof. Such lien, as to third persons without actual notice thereof, shall be valid as to all such indebtedness and future advances from the time the mortgage or other instrument is filed for record as provided by law. (2) A "Cooperative association" within the meaning of this section means any corporation formed, reorganized or brought under any general or special law of this or any other state as a cooperative association.

(3)(a) A mortgage executed by a cooperative association may cover and create a valid mortgage lien upon stocks or inventories of farm supplies and processed agricultural products, which stocks and inventories the mortgagor may be permitted to retain in possession and sell in the usual course of business. The lien of such mortgage shall be lost on such of the mortgaged property as is sold in the usual course of business up to the time a receiver, who shall be appointed as a matter of right upon application of the mortgagee by the court having jurisdiction of a proceeding instituted to foreclose said mortgage, shall have taken possession of the mortgaged property, and shall without further act, writing or formality attach to any proceeds of the sale thereof, including but not limited to accounts receivable arising from sale of the mortgaged property, but a purchaser of mortgaged property from any such mortgagor, not having actual notice of the attaching of such lien to said proceeds, shall not be liable for any payments made to the person who, except for the provisions of this subsection, would be entitled thereto; provided, however, that such lien as to said accounts receivable shall be subject and subordinate to assignments of any such accounts receivable which are protected assignments under the provisions of chapter 679, *and the recording or record of any mortgage provided for herein shall not constitute notice under §524.04(2)(b)1. If so provided in the mortgage, the lien thereof shall, in addition to the stocks and inventories originally mortgaged, attach to farm supplies and processed agricultural products acquired after the execution and delivery of such mortgage.

(b) If so stipulated therein, such mortgage may secure not only existing indebtedness of the mortgagor to the mortgagee but also such future advances, whether obligatory or otherwise, as are made by the mortgagee to the mortgagor within ten years from the date of such mortgage to the same extent as if such future advances were made on the date of the execution of such mortgage although there may be no advance made at the time of the execution of such mortgage and although there may be no indebtedness outstanding at the time any advance is made. Such lien shall be valid as to all such indebtednesses and future advances from the time the mortgage is filed for record as provided by law whether such stocks and inventories shall be in existence at the time of the execution of the mortgage or at the time of filing such mortgage for record or shall come into existence subsequent thereto or shall be subsequently acquired by the mortgagor.

(c) The total amount of the indebtedness that may be so secured may decrease or increase from time to time but the total unpaid balance so secured at the time shall not exceed a maximum principal amount which must be specified in such mortgage, plus interest thereon, together with costs and attorney's fees, and any disbursements made for the payment of taxes, levies, assessments, or insurance on the property covered by the mortgage, with interest on such disbursements.

(d) Such mortgage shall not be invalid or fraudulent against creditors because the mortgagor is permitted to retain in possession and sell the mortgaged property in the usual course of business or by reason of liberty in the mortgagor to use, commingle, or dispose of any such stocks or inventories or the proceeds of the sale of such stocks or inventories or by reason of the failure of the mortgagee to require the mortgagor to account for such proceeds or to replace mortgaged property.

(e) The provisions of this subsection shall not be construed as impairing, limiting, or otherwise affecting the rights of a lender to, or other creditor of a mortgagor of such farm supplies or processed agricultural products, to deal with and make loans to such mortgagor upon the security of assignments of accounts receivable arising or to arise on account of the sale by the mortgagor of the mortgaged property.

(f) This subsection shall not apply to any mortgages made on or after the effective date in this state of the uniform commercial code.

History.—§§1, 2, ch. 20248, 1941; §1, ch. 65-540.

Note.—Section 524.04(2)(b)1. was moved by ch. 65-254, but in any event required written notice. Therefore the 1971 revisor's bill will repeal as superfluous the words "and the recording or record of any mortgage provided for herein shall not constitute notice under §524.04(2)(b)1."

697.04 Future advances may be secured.—

(1) Hereafter, any mortgage or other instrument given for the purpose of creating a lien on real or personal property, or both, including, but not limited to, livestock and agricultural, horticultural, or fruit crops, planted, growing or to be planted, grown or raised, to secure agricultural, horticultural, or livestock loans, or loans of any other type or character, may, and when so expressed therein shall, secure not only existing indebtedness, but also such future advances, whether such advances are obligatory or to be made at the option of the lender, or otherwise, as are made within twenty years from the date thereof, to the same extent as if such future advances were made on the date of the execution of such mortgage or other instrument, although there may be no advance made at the time of the execution of such mortgage or other instrument, and although there may be no indebtedness outstanding at the time any advance is made. Such lien, as to third persons without actual notice thereof, shall be valid as to all such indebtedness and future advances from the time the mortgage or other instrument is filed for record as provided by law. The total amount of indebtedness that may be so secured may decrease or increase from time to time, but the total unpaid balance so secured at any one time shall not exceed a maximum principal amount which must be specified in such mortgage or other instrument, plus interest thereon, and any disbursements made for the payment of taxes, levies, or insurance on the property covered by the lien, with interest on such disbursements. This section shall not apply to any mortgages, shipping contracts, or other instruments made and given by naval stores operators and producers to secure existing loans and future advances by naval stores factors.

(2) As against the rights of creditors or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration, actual notice or record notice of advances to be made at the option of the lender, under the terms of such mortgage or other instrument, shall be valid only as to such advances as are to be made within twenty years from the date of such mortgage or other instrument; provided that this section shall not apply to any mortgages, shipping contracts, or other instruments made and given by naval stores operators and producers to secure existing loans and future advances by naval stores factors.

(3) Any such mortgage or other instrument shall be prior in dignity to all subsequent encumbrances, including statutory liens, except landlords' liens.

History.—§§1-3, ch. 20846, 1941; §1, ch. 28116, 1953; §§1, 2, ch. 61-135; §3, ch. 63-212.

697.05 Balloon mortgages; scope of law; definition; requirements as to contents; penalties for violations; exemptions.—

(1) Any conveyance, obligation conditioned or defeasible, bill of sale or other instrument of writing conveying or selling real property for the purpose or with the intention of securing the payment of money, whether such instrument be from the debtor to the creditor or from the debtor to some third person in trust for the creditor, shall be deemed and held to be a mortgage, and shall be subject to the provisions of this section.

(2)(a) Every mortgage in which the final payment or the balance due and payable upon maturity is greater than twice the amount of the regular monthly or periodic payment of the said mortgage shall be deemed a balloon mortgage, and shall have printed or clearly stamped on such mortgage: THIS IS A BALLOON MORTGAGE AND THE FINAL PAYMENT OR THE BALANCE DUE UPON MATURITY IS ACCRUED INTEREST, IF ANY, AND ALL ADVANCEMENTS MADE BY THE MORTGAGEE UNDER THE TERMS OF THIS MORTGAGE.

(b) This legend including the total amount due upon maturity shall appear at the top of the first page or face sheet of the mortgage and also immediately above the place for signature of the mortgagor. The legend shall be conspicuously printed or stamped in type as large as the largest type used in the text of the instrument, either as an over-print or by a rubber stamp impression.

(3) Failure of a mortgagee, creditor or a third party in trust for a mortgagee or creditor to comply with the provisions of this section shall automatically extend the maturity date of such mortgage in the following manner: The final payment or the balance due and payable is to be divided by the regular monthly or periodic payment and the quotient so secured is to be the number of months or periods the maturity date of the mortgage is extended. The mortgagor shall continue to make such monthly or periodic payments until the principal of the mortgage is paid. All such payments shall be credited to the principal only.

(4) Any mortgagee, creditor, bona fide holder, assignee, transferee, endorsee, or any agent, officer, or other representative of any such person violating the provisions of this section shall forfeit the entire interest charged, contracted to be charged or reserved under any such mortgage written in violation of this section, and only the principal sum of such mortgage can be enforced in any court in this state, either at law or in equity. Any interest, collection charge or attorney fee that has been paid or reserved or contracted for, either directly or indirectly, shall be forfeited to the person or mortgagor presently obligated under such mortgage.

(5) This section does not apply to the following:

(a) Any mortgage in effect prior to January 1, 1960;

(b) Any first mortgage;

(c) Any mortgage created for a term of more than five years;

(d) Any mortgage, the periodic payments on which are to consist of interest payments only, with the entire original principal sum to be payable upon maturity.

(1) In all mortgages to or in favor of the government of the United States or any agencies thereunder making agricultural loans, or to secure principal indebtedness not exceeding five hundred dollars, bearing interest not in excess of the general legal rate, on farm machinery and equipment, and agricultural, horticultural or fruit crops in being, it may be provided or covenanted that the mortgagee, his legal representatives or assigns, shall have the power to sell the mortgaged property upon any breach or default by the mortgagor of the terms, covenants, conditions or stipulations of such mortgage or of the obligation thereby secured or upon nonpayment of the indebtedness secured by such mortgage or interest thereon, when due and payable in such manner and on such terms as may be provided in such mortgage, and all such provisions and covenants shall be valid, effectual and enforceable, and every such sale thereunder shall vest in the purchaser, or purchasers, the title in and to the property mortgaged and described in such mortgage.

(2) In case of the exercise of such power of sale, written notice of such sale shall be given to the mortgagor and all persons claiming by, through or under him by instrument duly recorded, not less than fifteen days prior to such sale. Such notice may be served in the same manner as summons ad respondendum are served pursuant to the laws of Florida, and a copy of such notice shall be published at least twice, the first publication of which shall be not less than twenty days prior to such sale, in a newspaper published in the county where such sale shall occur, and another copy of such notice shall be served upon any person in charge or having or taking part in the supervision or care of such mortgaged property, or any part thereof. Such notice may be served upon any of said parties wherever they may be within the state. If any person to whom notice is required to be given under this statute shall not reside in the state, or his residence be unknown to the mortgagee, his legal representatives or assigns, then it shall not be necessary to make personal service of such notice upon him, and in such case, the publication of such notice as above provided shall be sufficient; provided, that where the address of such nonresident be known to the mortgagee, his legal representative or assigns, a copy of such notice shall be mailed to him at such address, by registered mail.

terest, if any, and the balance or excess, if any, shall be paid to the owner of such mortgaged property if he be known; otherwise, such excess shall be paid by the person conducting such sale into the registry of the circuit court for such county to be there held for the benefit of the person lawfully entitled to the same.

History.—§1, ch. 17108, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5727(1).

The mortgagee or assignee may bid and become the purchaser at any such sale. (1) COMPLAINT.—In foreclosure, the original or a copy of the mortgage note and mortgage shall be attached to the complaint as a part thereof, and such attachment shall constitute averments of all of the contents of each instrument to the same extent as if fully set forth in the body of the complaint. If a copy of the mortgage note be contained in the mortgage, attachment of the mortgage alone shall be sufficient.

(2) SALE BY CLERK.—In any final decree of foreclosure, the court shall direct its clerk to sell the mortgaged property at public sale on the day specified in such final decree, which day shall be not less than ten nor more than thirty days after the date of such final decree, and upon the terms and conditions as provided in such final decree. Notice of such sale shall be published once only at least seven days prior to the sale in a newspaper circulated in the county where the sale is to be held. Such notice shall be concise and shall contain:

- (a) A description of the property to be sold;
- (b) The time and place of sale;
- (c) A statement that the sale will be made pursuant to a final decree of foreclosure, and specifying the court in which the cause be pending and the docket number of the case; and

If no objections to such sale be filed in the proceeding within ten days after the filing of such certificate of sale, the clerk shall thereupon complete and file in the proceeding a further certificate of title which shall be substantially in the following form:

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE

I, _____, Clerk of the above entitled Court, do hereby certify that heretofore, on the _____ day of _____, 19____, I executed and filed herein my Certificate of Sale of the mortgaged property, and that no objections to such sale have been filed herein on or before the date hereof, and that 10 days have elapsed since the filing of said Certificate of Sale.

That, as recited in said Certificate of Sale, the mortgaged property described as follows, to wit:

WITNESS my hand and the official seal of this Honorable Court, this _____ day of _____, 19____.

(SEAL) _____, Clerk

By _____

(4) DISBURSEMENT OF PROCEEDS OF SALE.—Upon the filing of a certificate of title, the clerk shall disburse the proceeds of the sale in accordance with the provisions of the final decree of foreclosure, and shall thereupon file in the proceeding a report of such disbursements, which report shall be substantially in the following form:

(Style of case) (Designation of court)

(5) VALUE OF PROPERTY.—The value of the property sold by the clerk shall be conclusively presumed to be the amount bid therefor and for which the property was sold at the sale, unless objection thereto shall be filed in the cause within ten days after the filing of the clerk's certificate of sale. If any objections to said value be filed within such ten day period, such objections shall be considered by the court; provided, however, that the filing of objections to the value of the mortgaged property shall not in any manner affect or cloud the title of the purchaser at the sale to the mortgaged property. If no such objections be filed, the value as fixed herein shall have the same force and effect as if the court had decreed that the value of the said property was the amount bid and for which the property was sold at the foreclosure sale.

(6) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any suits pending at the time this act becomes a law.

CHAPTER 704

EASEMENTS

- 704.01 Common law, statutory easements defined and determined.
 704.02 When lands enclosed person using easement to maintain gates.

704.01 Common law, statutory easements defined and determined.—

(1) IMPLIED GRANT OF WAY OF NECESSITY.—The common law rule of an implied grant of a way of necessity is hereby recognized, specifically adopted and clarified. Such an implied grant exists where a person has heretofore or hereafter grants lands to which there is no accessible right-of-way except over his land, or has heretofore or hereafter retains land which is inaccessible except over the land which he conveys. In such instances a right-of-way is presumed to have been granted or reserved. Such an implied grant or easement in lands or estates exists where there is no other reasonable and practicable way of egress or ingress and same is reasonably necessary for the beneficial use or enjoyment of the part granted or reserved. An implied grant arises only where a unity of title exists from a common source other than the original grant from the state or United States; provided, however, that where there is a common source of title subsequent to the original grant from the state or United States, the right of the dominant tenement shall not be terminated if title of either the dominant or servient tenement has been or should be transferred for nonpayment of taxes either by foreclosure, reversion or otherwise.

(2) STATUTORY WAY OF NECESSITY EXCLUSIVE OF COMMON LAW RIGHT.—Based on public policy, convenience and necessity, a statutory way of necessity exclusive of any common law right exists when any land or portion thereof outside any municipality which is being used or desired to be used as a dwelling or for agricultural or for timber raising or cutting or stockraising purposes shall be shut off or hemmed in by lands, fencing or other improvements of other persons so that no practicable route of egress or ingress shall be available therefrom to the nearest practicable public or private road. The owner or tenant thereof or anyone in their behalf lawfully may use and maintain an easement for persons, vehicles, stock and electricity and telephone service over and upon the lands which lie between the said shut-off or hemmed-in lands and such public or private road by means of the nearest practical route, considering the use to which said lands are being put; and the use thereof, as aforesaid, shall not constitute a trespass; nor shall the party thus using the same be liable in damages for the use thereof; provided, that such easement shall be used only in an orderly and proper manner.

History.—§1, ch. 7326, 1917; RGS 4999; CGL 7088; §1, ch. 28070, 1953.

- 704.03 The term “practicable,” as used in chapter, defined.
 704.04 Judicial remedy and compensation to servient owner.

704.02 When lands enclosed person using easement to maintain gates.—When the land on which the statutory easement referred to in §704.01(2) shall be in use, or afterwards put to the use of enclosing farm or grove products, or livestock, the owner or tenant of the dominant tenement using the easement of the same shall, if no compensation is paid under §704.04, when requested by the owner of the servient tenement, erect and maintain either a cattle guard or a gate at each place where said easement intersects a fence. Any such gate is to be kept closed when not opened for passage, and any such cattle guard or gate so erected and maintained shall be in substantial conformity with the character of the fence at such intersection.

History.—§2, ch. 7326, 1917; RGS 5000; CGL 7089; §2, ch. 28070, 1953.

704.03 The term “practicable,” as used in chapter, defined.—That for the purposes of this chapter the word “practicable,” as used in §704.01, shall be held and construed to mean “without the use of bridge, ferry, turnpike road, embankment or substantial fill”.

History.—§3, ch. 7326, 1917; RGS 5001; CGL 7090; §3, ch. 28070, 1953.

704.04 Judicial remedy and compensation to servient owner.—When the owner or owners of such lands across which a statutory way of necessity under §704.01(2) is claimed, exclusive of the common law right, objects or refuses to permit the use of such way under the conditions set forth herein, or until he receives compensation therefor, then either party or the board of county commissioners of such county may file suit in the circuit court of the county wherein the land is located in order to determine if the claim for said easement exists, and the amount of compensation to which said party is entitled for use of such easement. Where said easement is awarded to the owner of the dominant tenement, it shall be temporary and exist so long as such easement is reasonably necessary for the purposes stated herein. The court, in its discretion, shall determine all questions including the type, extent and location of the easement and the amount of compensation, provided that if either of said parties so request in his original pleadings the amount of compensation may be determined by a jury trial. The easement shall date from the time the award is paid.

History.—§4, ch. 28070, 1953.

705.09 Disposition and appraisal of property seized by the sheriff or by any other officer.—

(1) When personal property not subject to be summarily destroyed is seized by the sheriff pursuant to any of the provisions of the law of this state permitting forfeiture thereof, or when property seized by any other officer is delivered to the sheriff under such provisions, the sheriff shall forthwith fix the approximate value thereof and make report thereof to the county judge. The report shall contain a schedule of the property seized, a full statement of the facts giving cause for said seizure, the name and position of the person making the seizure and the name and address of the owners or persons having possession of the property seized, and names and addresses of all persons, firms or corporations known to the sheriff to have an interest in the property seized.

(2) The sheriff shall hold the property seized pending an order of disposal by the court.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267.

705.10 Notice of seizure and order to show cause.—

(1) The county judge upon receiving the report and schedule of the sheriff shall treat it as a petition or libel in rem for the forfeiture of the property therein described. The report shall be sufficient as said petition or libel notwithstanding the fact that it may not contain a formal prayer or demand for forfeiture. The report shall be subject to amendment at any time before final hearing upon due notice to all interested parties.

(2) Upon the filing of the report, the county judge shall cause to be issued a citation directed to all persons, firms, and corporations owning, having or claiming any interest in or lien upon the seized property, giving notice of the seizure and directing all such persons, firms and corporations to file their claims stating their particular interest in said property. All persons, firms and corporations personally served shall file their claims within twenty days after receiving service of the citation. The citation shall set the time for filing a claim for interested parties not personally served not to exceed thirty days from the date the report was filed. Personal service shall be made on all parties in the state having liens noted upon a certificate of title as shown by the records of the department of highway safety and motor vehicles.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267; §6, ch. 65-190; §§24, 35, ch. 69-106.

705.11 Notice of seizure and order to show cause when owners of property are unknown.—

When personal property not subject to summary destruction is seized by the sheriff pursuant to any of the provisions of the law in this state permitting forfeiture of said property, or when property seized by any other officer is delivered to the sheriff, and the name of the owners of said property or the names of any person, firm or corporation having an interest in or lien upon said property cannot be ascertained, the sheriff shall give notice of seizure and an order to show cause why the property should not be forfeited and sold by publication for a period of thirty days in the manner provided in chapter 49.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267.

705.12 Proceeding when claim filed.—When one or more claims are filed in the cause, the cause shall be tried upon the issues made thereby with the petition for forfeiture with any affirmative defenses being deemed denied without further pleading. Judgment by default shall be entered against all other persons, firms and corporations owning, claiming or having an interest in and to the property seized after which the cause shall proceed as in other common law cases; except any claimant shall prove to the satisfaction of the court that he did not know or have any reason to believe, at the time his right, title, interest or lien arose, that the property was being used for or in connection with the violation of any of the statutes or laws of this state making such property subject to such forfeiture, and further, that at such time there was no reasonable reason to believe that said property might be used for such purpose. Where the owner of the property has been convicted of the violation of a statute or laws of the state which provide for the seizure and forfeiture of property, such conviction shall be prima facie evidence that each claimant had reason to believe that the property might be used for or in connection with a violation of such statutes and laws, and it shall be incumbent upon such claimant to satisfy the court that he was without knowledge of such conviction.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267.

705.13 Judgment of forfeiture.—On final hearing the report of the sheriff to the county judge shall be taken as prima facie evidence that the property seized was or had been used in, or in connection with, the violation of the statutes and laws of this state subjecting the property involved to forfeiture and sale and shall be sufficient predicate for a judgment of forfeiture in the absence of other proofs and evidence. The burden shall be upon the claimants to show that the property was not so used or if so used that they had no knowledge of such violation and no reason to believe that the seized property was or would be used for the violation of such statutes and laws. Where such properties are encumbered by a lien or retained title agreement under circumstances wherein the lien holder had no knowledge that the property was or would be used in violating such statutes and laws, and no reasonable reason to believe that it might be so used, then the court may declare a forfeiture of all the rights, titles and interest, subject, however, to the lien of such innocent lien holder, or may direct the payment of such a lien from the proceeds of any sale of said property. The proceedings and judgment of forfeiture shall be in rem and shall be primarily against the property itself. Upon the entry of a judgment of forfeiture the court shall determine the disposition to be made of the property, which may include the destruction thereof, the sale thereof, the allocation thereof to some other governmental function or use, or otherwise, as the court may determine. If any of the property declared forfeited is of such a nature as to be readily adaptable for use in the office of sheriff, the sheriff of the county involved shall be allowed to requisition such items of the forfeited property before any other disposition is made under the judgment. The sheriff's requisition shall be filed before judgment and the property requisitioned therein shall be allocated to the office of the sheriff in said judgment. The balance of the property shall be destroyed or sold or allocated to some other governmental function or use. Sales of such property shall be a public sale to the highest and best bidder for cash after two weeks public notice as the court may direct. Upon the application of any claimant, the court may fix the value of a forfeitable interest in the seized property and permit such claimant to redeem the said property upon the payment of a sum equal to said value which sum shall be disposed of as would the proceeds of the sale of said property under a judgment of forfeiture.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267.

705.14 Disposition of proceeds of forfeiture.

—All sums received from the sale or other disposition of the seized property shall be paid into the state treasury for the benefit of the state school fund and shall become a part thereof.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267.

705.15 Fees for services.—Fees for services required hereunder shall be the same as provided for sheriffs and clerks for like and similar services in other cases.

History.—§5, ch. 63-267.

(1) An adult person may, during his lifetime, make a gift of a security or money, a life insurance policy or an annuity contract to a person who is a minor on the date of the gift:

(a) If the subject of the gift is a security in registered form, by registering it in the name of the donor, an adult member of the minor's family, a guardian of the minor or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for _____ under the Florida Gifts to Minors Act";

(b) If the subject of the gift is a security not in registered form, by delivering it to an adult member, other than the donor, of the minor's family, a guardian of the minor or trust company, accompanied by a statement of gift in the following form, in substance, signed by the donor and the person designated as custodian: "GIFT UNDER THE FLORIDA GIFTS TO MINORS ACT" _____ hereby delivers to _____ (name of donor) (name of _____ as custodian for _____ under the custodian)

Florida Gifts to Minors Act, the following security(ies): (insert an appropriate description of the securities or security delivered sufficient to identify it or them)

_____ (signature of donor) _____ hereby acknowledges receipt of (name of custodian)
the above described security(ies) as custodian for the above minor under the Florida Gifts to Minors Act.

Dated: _____
_____ (signature of custodian)

(c) If the subject of the gift is money, by paying or delivering it to a broker, savings and loan association, or a bank for credit to an account in the name of the donor, an adult member of the minor's family, a guardian of the minor or a bank with trust powers, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for _____ under the Florida Gifts to Minors Act."

(d) If the subject of the gift is a life insurance policy or an annuity contract, the ownership of the policy or contract shall be registered by the donor of such policy or contract in his own name, in the name of an adult member of the minor's family, a guardian of the minor or a bank or trust company, followed by the words "as custodian for _____

(name of minor)
under the Florida Gifts to Minors Act," and such policy or contract shall be delivered to the person in whose name it is thus registered as custodian. If the policy or contract is registered in the name of the donor, as custodian, such registration shall of itself constitute the delivery required by this subsection.

(2) Any gift made in a manner prescribed in subsection (1) may be made to only one minor and only to one person as custodian.

(3) A donor who makes a gift to a minor in a manner prescribed in subsection (1) shall promptly do all things within his power to put the subject of the gift in the possession and control of the custodian, but neither the donor's failure to comply with this subsection, nor his designation of an ineligible person as custodian, nor renunciation by the person designated as custodian affects the consummation of the gift.

History.—§2, ch. 57-53; (1) (c) §2, ch. 61-125; §2, ch. 65-354.

710.04 Effect of gift.—

(1) A gift made in a manner prescribed in this act is irrevocable and conveys to the minor indefeasible vested legal title to the custodial property given, but no guardian of the minor has any right, power, duty or authority with respect to the custodial property except as provided in this act.

(2) By making a gift in a manner prescribed in this act, the donor incorporates in his gift all the provisions of this act and grants to the custodian, and to any issuer, transfer agent, bank, broker, savings and loan association, or third person dealing with a person designated as custodian, the respective powers, rights and immunities provided in this act.

History.—§3, ch. 57-53; (2) §3, ch. 61-125; §3, ch. 65-354.

(2) The custodian shall pay over to the minor for expenditure by him, or expend for the minor's benefit, so much of or all the custodial property as the custodian deems advisable for the support, maintenance, education and benefit of the minor in the manner, at the time or times, and to the extent that the custodian in his discretion deems suitable and proper, with or without court order, with or without regard to the duty of himself or of any other person to support the minor or his ability to do so, and with or without regard to any other income or property of the minor which may be applicable or available for any such purpose.

(3) The court, on the petition of a parent or guardian of the minor or of the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, may order the custodian to pay over to the minor for expenditure by him or to expend so much of or all the custodial property as is necessary for the minor's support, maintenance or education.

(4) To the extent that the custodial property is not so expended, the custodian shall deliver or pay it over to the minor on his attaining the age of twenty-one years or, if the minor dies before attaining the age of twenty-one years, he shall thereupon deliver or pay it over to the estate of the minor.

(5) The custodian, notwithstanding statutes restricting investments by fiduciaries, shall invest and reinvest the custodial property as would a prudent man of discretion and intelligence who is seeking a reasonable income and the preservation of his capital, except that he may, in his discretion and without liability to the minor or his estate, retain a security given to the minor in a manner prescribed in this act.

(6) The custodian may sell, exchange, convert or otherwise dispose of custodial property in the manner, at the time or times, for the price or prices and upon the terms he deems advisable. He may vote in person or by general or limited proxy a security which is custodial property. He may consent, directly or through a committee or other agent, to the reorganization, consolidation, merger, dissolution or liquidation of an issuer, a security which is custodial property, and to the sale, lease, pledge or mortgage of any property by or to such an issuer, and to any other action by such an issuer. He may execute and deliver any and all instruments in writing which he deems advisable to carry out any of his powers as custodian.

(7) The custodian shall register each security which is custodial property and in registered form in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for _____ under the Florida Gifts to Minors Act." The custodian shall hold all money which is custodial property in an account with a broker, savings and loan association, or in a bank in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for _____ under the Florida

Gifts to Minors Act." The custodian shall keep all other custodial property separate and distinct from his own property in a manner to identify it clearly as custodial property.

(8) The custodian shall keep records of all transactions with respect to the custodial property and keep them available for inspection at reasonable intervals by a parent or legal representative of the minor or by the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years.

(9) A custodian has and holds as powers in trust, with respect to the custodial property, in addition to the rights and powers provided in this act, all the rights and powers which a guardian has with respect to property not held as custodial property.

(10) If the subject of the gift is a life insurance policy or annuity contract, the custodian shall have all the incidents of ownership in such policy or contract which he may hold as custodian, to the same extent as if he were the owner thereof, except that the designated beneficiary of any such policy or contract on the life of the minor shall be the minor's estate and the designated beneficiary of any such policy or contract on the life of a person other than the minor shall be the custodian as custodian for the minor for whom he is acting.

History.—§4, ch. 57-53; §4, ch. 61-125; §4, ch. 65-354.

(2) A custodian may act without compensation for his services.

(3) Unless he is a donor, a custodian may receive from the custodial property reasonable compensation for his services as directed by the donor when the gift is made.

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this act, a custodian shall not be required to give a bond for the performance of his duties.

(5) A custodian is not liable for losses to the custodial property unless they result from his bad faith, intentional wrongdoing or gross negligence or from his failure to maintain the standard of prudence in investing the custodial property provided in this act.

History.—§5, ch. 57-53.

710.07 Exemption of third persons from liability.—No issuer, transfer agent, bank, life insurance company, broker, savings and loan association or other person acting on the instructions of or otherwise dealing with any person purporting to act as a donor or in the capacity of a custodian is responsible for determining whether the person designated by the purported donor or purporting to act as custodian has been duly designated or whether any purchase, sale or transfer to or by or any other act of any person purporting to act in the capacity of custodian, is in accordance with or authorized by this act, or is obliged to inquire into the validity or propriety under this act of any instrument or instructions executed or given by a person purporting to act as a donor or in the capacity of a custodian, or is bound to see to the application by any person purporting to act in the capacity of a custodian of any money or other property paid or delivered to him.

710.08 Resignation, death or removal of custodian; bond; appointment of successor custodian.—

(1) Only an adult member of a minor's family, a guardian of the minor, or a trust company is eligible to become a successor custodian. A successor custodian has all the rights, powers, duties and immunities of a custodian designated in the manner prescribed by this chapter; the successor custodian, so long as he complies with the provisions of this subsection, may be named in the will of the custodian, without necessity of petitioning the court for permission to designate the successor custodian, unless the donor shall have provided otherwise.

(2) A custodian may petition the court for permission to resign and for the designation of a successor custodian.

(3) If a person designated as custodian is not eligible, renounces or dies before the minor attains the age of twenty-one years, the guardian of the minor shall be successor custodian. If the minor has no legal guardian, a donor, his legal representative, the legal representative of the custodian, the natural guardian of the minor, the minor's legal representative, an adult member of the minor's family, or the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, may petition the court for the designation of a successor custodian.

(4) A donor, the legal representative of a donor, an adult member of the minor's family, a guardian of the minor or the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, may petition the court that, for cause shown in the petition, the custodian be removed and a successor custodian be designated or, in the alternative, that the custodian be required to give a bond for the faithful performance of his duties.

(5) Upon the filing of a petition as provided in this section the circuit court shall issue an order, directed to the custodian and returnable on such notice as the court may require, to show cause why the relief prayed for in the petition should not be granted and, in due course, grant such relief as the court finds to be in the best interest of the minor.

(2) The court, in a proceeding under this act or otherwise, may require or permit the custodian or his legal representative to account and, if the custodian is removed, shall so require and order delivery of all custodial property to the successor custodian and the execution of all instruments required for the transfer thereof.

History.—§8, ch. 57-53.

710.10 Construction.—This act shall be so construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. This act shall not be construed as providing an exclusive method for making gifts to minors.

Said lien shall be effective from and after the time of recording in the public records in the county in which the condominium parcel is located of a claim of lien stating the description of the condominium parcel, the name of the record owner, the amount due and the date when due, and the lien shall continue in effect until all sums secured by the lien shall have been fully paid. Such claims of liens shall include only assessments which are due and payable when the claim of lien is recorded. Such claims of liens shall be signed and verified by an officer or agent of the association and shall then be entitled to be recorded. Upon full payment the party making payment shall be entitled to a recordable satisfaction of the lien. All such liens shall be subordinate to the lien of a mortgage or other lien recorded prior to the time of recording of the claim of lien.

(5) Liens for assessments may be foreclosed by suit brought in the name of the association in like manner as a foreclosure of a mortgage on real property. In any such foreclosure the unit owner shall be required to pay a reasonable rental for the condominium parcel, if so provided in the declaration or bylaws, and the plaintiff in such foreclosure shall be entitled to the appointment of a receiver to collect the same. The association shall have the power, unless prohibited by the declaration or bylaws, to bid in the condominium parcel at foreclosure sale, and to acquire and hold, lease, mortgage and convey the same. Suit to recover a money judgment for unpaid assessments may be maintained without waiving the lien securing the same.

(6) Where the mortgagee of a first mortgage of record or other purchaser of a condominium unit obtains title to the condominium parcel as a result of foreclosure of the first mortgage, such acquirer of title, his successors and assigns, shall not be liable for the share of common expenses or assessments by the association pertaining to such condominium parcel or chargeable to the former unit owner of such parcel which became due prior to acquisition of title as a result of the foreclosure. Such unpaid share of common expenses or assessments shall be deemed to be common expenses collectible from all of the unit owners including such acquirer, his successors and assigns.

(7) Any unit owner shall have the right to require from the association a certificate showing the amount of unpaid assessments against him with respect to his condominium parcel.

The holder of a mortgage or other lien shall have the same right as to any condominium parcel upon which he has a lien. Any person other than the owner who relies upon such certificate shall be protected thereby.

History.—§15, ch. 63-35; (6) §6, ch. 65-387.

711.16 Termination.—

(1) All of the unit owners may remove the condominium property from the provisions of this law by an instrument to that effect, duly recorded, provided that the holders of all liens affecting any of the condominium parcels consent thereto or agree, in either case by instruments duly recorded, that their liens be transferred to the undivided share of the unit owner in the property as hereinafter provided.

(2) Upon removal of the condominium property from the provisions of this law, the condominium property shall be deemed to be owned in common by the unit owners. Unless otherwise provided in the declaration, the undivided share in the property owned in common by each unit owner shall be the undivided share previously owned by such owner in the common elements.

(3) The condominium may be terminated in such other manner as may be prescribed in the declaration. After termination of a condominium in any manner, the liens upon condominium parcels shall be upon the respective undivided shares of the owners as tenants in common.

(4) The termination of a condominium shall not bar the creation of another condominium affecting the same property.

History.—§16, ch. 63-35; (1)-(3) §7, ch. 65-387.

711.17 Equitable relief.—In the event of substantial damage to or destruction of all or a substantial part of the condominium property, and in the event the property is not repaired, reconstructed, or rebuilt within a reasonable period of time, any unit owner shall have the right to petition a court of equity having jurisdiction in and for the county where the condominium property is located for equitable relief, which may, but need not necessarily, include a termination of the condominium and a partition.

History.—§17, ch. 63-35.

711.18 Limitation of liability.—

(1) The liability of the owner of a unit for common expenses shall be limited to the amounts for which he is assessed from time to time in accordance with this law, the declaration and bylaws.

(2) The owner of a unit shall have no personal liability for any damages caused by the association on or in connection with the use of the common elements. A unit owner shall be liable for injuries or damages resulting from an accident in his own unit to the same extent and degree that the owner of a house would be liable for an accident occurring within his house.

History.—§18, ch. 63-35.

711.19 Separate taxation of condominium parcels; survival of declaration after tax sale.—

(1) Property taxes and special assessments assessed by municipalities, counties and other taxing authorities shall be assessed against and collected on the condominium parcels and not upon the condominium property as a whole. Each condominium parcel shall be separately assessed for ad valorem taxes and special assessments as a single parcel. The taxes and special assessments levied against each condominium parcel shall constitute a lien only upon such condominium parcel so assessed and upon no other portion of the condominium property.

(2) All provisions of a declaration relating to a condominium parcel which has been sold for taxes or special assessments shall survive and be enforceable after the issuance of a tax deed or master's deed upon foreclosure of an assessment, certificate or lien, a tax deed, tax certificate, or tax lien, to the same extent that they would be enforceable against a voluntary grantee, immediate, mediate, or remote, of the owner of the title immediately prior to the delivery of the tax deed or master's deed.

(3) Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to alter, amend, or expand the laws governing exemption of homesteads from taxation. It is the specific intent of the legislature that the aggregate of all of the homestead exemptions from taxation in any one building shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars irrespective of the number of units contained therein.

History.—§19, ch. 63-35.

711.20 Liens.—

(1) Subsequent to recording the declaration and while the property remains subject to the declaration, no liens of any nature shall thereafter arise or be created against the condominium property as a whole except with the unanimous consent of the unit owners. During such period liens may arise or be created only against the several condominium parcels.

(2) Labor performed or materials furnished to a unit shall not be the basis for the filing of a lien pursuant to the mechanics' lien law against the unit or condominium parcel of any unit owner not expressly consenting to or requesting the same. No labor performed or materials furnished to the common elements shall be the basis for a lien thereon, but if duly authorized by the association such labor or materials shall be deemed to be performed or furnished with the express consent of each unit owner and shall be the basis for the filing of a lien against all condominium parcels in the proportions for which the owners thereof are liable for common expenses.

(3) In the event a lien against two or more condominium parcels becomes effective each owner thereof may relieve his condominium parcel of the lien by payment of the proportionate amount attributable to his condominium parcel. Upon such payment it shall be the duty of the lienor to release the lien of record for such condominium parcel.

(4) Service or delivery of notices, papers or copies thereof permitted or required under the mechanics lien law for or incident to the perfection or enforcement of liens arising from labor or materials furnished to the common elements, duly authorized by the association, may be effected by service on or delivery to the association. Suits to foreclose or otherwise enforce liens arising from labor or materials furnished to the common elements may be brought against the association and the owners of units shall not be deemed necessary parties to such suits.

History.—§20, ch. 63-35.
cf.—§§713.01-713.36 Part I, Mechanics' Lien Law.

711.21 Zoning and building.—All laws, ordinances and regulations concerning buildings or zoning shall be construed and applied with reference to the nature and use of such property without regard to the form of ownership. No law, ordinance or regulation shall establish any requirement concerning the use or location, placement or construction of buildings or other improvements which are, or may thereafter be subjected to the condominium form of ownership, unless such requirement shall be equally applicable to all buildings and improvements of the same kind not then or thereafter to be subjected to the condominium form of ownership.

History.—§21, ch. 63-35; §8, ch. 65-387.

711.22 Authority to regulate.—Buildings included in a condominium property shall be subject to the authority, regulation or control of the division of hotels and restaurants of the department of business regulation only to the extent provided in chapter 509. Such buildings not subject to the authority, regulation or control of the division under chapter 509 shall be subject to the provisions of chapter 399 with respect to elevators.

History.—§22, ch. 63-35; §16, 35, ch. 69-106.

711.23 Remedies for violation.—Each unit owner shall be governed by and shall comply with this law and the declaration and bylaws as they may exist from time to time. Failure to do so shall entitle the association or any other unit owner to recover sums due for damages or injunctive relief or both. Such actions may be maintained by the association or in a proper case by an aggrieved unit owner. Such relief shall not be exclusive of other remedies provided by law.

History.—§23, ch. 63-35.

- 712.10 Law to be liberally construed.

712.01 Definitions.—As used in this law:

(1) The term person as used herein denotes singular or plural, natural or corporate, private or governmental, including the state and any political subdivision or agency thereof as the context for the use thereof requires or denotes.

(2) Root of title means any title transaction purporting to create or transfer the estate claimed by any person and which is the last title transaction to have been recorded at least thirty years prior to the time when marketability is being determined. The effective date of the root of title is the date on which it was recorded.

(3) Title transaction means any recorded instrument or court proceeding which affects title to any estate or interest in land.

History.—§1, ch. 63-133; (2) §11, ch. 65-420.

712.02 Marketable record title.—Any person having the legal capacity to own land in this state, who, alone or together with his predecessors in title, has been vested with any estate in land of record for thirty years or more, shall have a marketable record title to such estate in said land, which shall be free and clear of all claims except the matters set forth as exceptions to marketability in §712.03. A person shall have a marketable record title when the public records disclosed a title transaction affecting the title to the land which has been of record for not less than thirty years purporting to create such estate either in:

- (1) The person claiming such estate; or
- (2) Some other person from whom, by one or more title transactions, such estate has passed to the person claiming such estate, with nothing appearing of record, in either case, purporting to divest such claimant of the estate claimed.

History.—§2, ch. 63-133.

712.03 Exceptions to marketability.—Such marketable record title shall not affect or extinguish the following rights:

(1) Estates or interests, easements and use restrictions disclosed by and defects inherent in the muniments of title on which said estate is based beginning with the root of title; provided, however, that a general reference in any of such muniments to easements, use restrictions or other interests created prior to the root of title shall not be sufficient to preserve them unless specific identification by reference to book and page of record or by name of recorded plat be made therein to a recorded title transaction which imposed, transferred or continued such easement, use restrictions or other interests; subject, however, to the provisions of subsection (5).

(2) Estates or interests preserved by the filing of a proper notice in accordance with the provisions hereof.

(3) Rights of any person in possession of the lands, so long as such person is in such possession.

(4) Estates or interests arising out of a title transaction which has been recorded subsequent to the effective date of the root of title.

(5) Recorded or unrecorded easements or rights, interest or servitude in the nature of easements, rights of way and terminal facilities, including those of a public utility or of a governmental agency, so long as the same are used and the use of any part thereof shall except from the operation hereof the right to the entire use thereof.

(6) Rights of any person in whose name the land is assessed on the county tax rolls for such period of time as the land is so assessed and which rights are preserved for a period of three years after the land is last assessed in such person's name.

History.—§3, ch. 63-133; (1) §12, ch. 65-420.

712.04 Interests extinguished by marketable record title.—Subject to the matters stated in §712.03, such marketable record title shall be free and clear of all estates, interests, claims or charges whatsoever, the existence of which depends upon any act, title transaction, event or omission that occurred prior to the effective date of the root of title. All such estates, interests, claims or charges, however denominated, whether such estates, interests, claims or charges are or appear to be held or asserted by a person sui juris or under a disability, whether such person is within or without the state, whether such person is natural or corporate, or is private or governmental, are hereby declared to be null and void, except that this chapter shall not be deemed to affect any right, title or interest of the United States, Florida or any of its officers, boards, commissions or other agencies reserved in the patent or deed by which the United States, Florida or any of its agencies parted with title.

History.—§4, ch. 63-133; §1, ch. 65-280.

712.05 Effect of filing notice.—

(1) Any person claiming an interest in land may preserve and protect the same from extinguishment by the operation of this act by filing for record, during the thirty year period immediately following the effective date of the root of title, a notice, in writing, in accordance with the provisions hereof, which notice shall have the effect of so preserving such claim of right for a period of not longer than thirty years after filing the same unless again filed as required herein. No disability or lack of knowledge of any kind on the part of anyone shall delay the commencement of or suspend the running of said thirty year period. Such notice may be filed for record by the claimant or by any other person acting on behalf of any claimant who is:

- (a) Under a disability,
- (b) Unable to assert a claim on his behalf, or
- (c) One of a class, but whose identity cannot be established or is uncertain at the time of filing such notice of claim for record.

(2) It shall not be necessary for the owner of the marketable record title, as herein defined, to file a notice to protect his marketable record title.

History.—§5, ch. 63-133.

712.06 Contents of notice; recording and indexing.—

(1) To be effective, the notice above referred to shall contain:

(a) The name or description of the claimant and the name and particular post office address of the person filing the claim.

(b) The name and post-office address of an owner, or the name and post office address of the person in whose name said property is assessed on the last completed tax assessment roll of the county at the time of filing, who, for the purpose of such notice, shall be deemed to be an owner.

(c) A full and complete description of all land affected by such notice, which description shall be set forth in particular terms and not by general reference, but if said claim is founded upon a recorded instrument, then the description in such notice may be the same as that contained in such recorded instrument, provided the same shall be sufficient to identify the property.

(d) A statement of the claim showing the nature, description and extent of such claim, except that it shall not be necessary to show the amount of any claim for money or the terms of payment.

(e) If such claim is based upon an instrument of record, such instrument shall be sufficiently described to identify the same, including reference to the book and page in which the same is recorded.

(f) Such notice shall be acknowledged in the same manner as deeds are acknowledged for record.

(2) Such notice shall be filed with the clerk of the circuit court of the county or counties where the land described therein is situated, together with a true copy thereof. The clerk shall enter, record and index said notice in the same manner that deeds are entered, recorded and indexed, as though the claimant were the grantee in the deed and the purported owner were the grantor in a deed, and the clerk shall charge the same fees for recording thereof as are charged for recording deeds. In those counties where the circuit court clerk maintains a tract index, such notice shall also be indexed therein.

(3) The clerk of the circuit court shall, upon such filing, mail by registered or certified mail to the purported owner of said property, as stated in such notice, a copy thereof and shall enter on the original, before recording the same, a certificate showing such mailing. For mailing each such copy, the claimant shall pay the sum of fifty cents, in addition to the recording charges. If the notice names purported owners having more than one address, the person filing the same shall furnish a true copy for each of the several addresses stated, and the clerk shall send one such copy to the purported owners named at each respective address. Such certificate shall be sufficient if the same reads substantially as follows:

I hereby certify that I did on this _____ _____, mail by registered (or certified) mail a copy of the foregoing notice to each of the following at the address stated:

Clerk of the circuit court of _____ county, Florida,

By _____ Deputy clerk

(4) Failure of any purported owner to receive the mailed notice shall not affect the validity of the notice or vitiate the effect of the filing of such notice.

History.—§6, ch. 63-133.

712.07 Limitations of actions and recording acts.—Nothing contained in this law shall be construed to extend the period for the bringing of an action or for the doing of any other act required under any statute of limitations or to affect the operation of any statute governing the effect of the recording or the failure to record any instrument affecting land. This law shall not vitiate any curative statute.

History.—§7, ch. 63-133.

712.08 Filing false claim.—No person shall use the privilege of filing notices hereunder for the purpose of asserting false or fictitious claims to land; and in any action relating thereto if the court shall find that any person has filed a false or fictitious claim, the court may award to the prevailing party all costs incurred by him in such action, including a reasonable attorney's fee, and in addition thereto may award to the prevailing party all damages that he may have sustained as a result of the filing of such notice of claim.

History.—§8, ch. 63-133.

712.09 Extension of thirty year period.—If the thirty year period for filing notice under §712.05 shall have expired prior to July 1, 1965, such period shall be extended to July 1, 1965.

History.—§9, ch. 63-133.

712.10 Law to be liberally construed.—This law shall be liberally construed to effect the legislative purpose of simplifying and facilitating land title transactions by allowing persons to rely on a record title as described in §712.02 subject only to such limitations as appear in §712.03.

History.—§10, ch. 63-133.

The owner may post said bond or a copy thereof.

(7) Any person who furnishes trees, shrubs, bushes, or plants planted on real property shall have a lien for the value thereof. A lien under this subsection shall be acquired as provided in §713.05 or §713.06, depending on whether or not the lienor is in privity with the owner.

Note.—Formerly §84.022.

713.03 Liens for professional services.—

(1) Any person who performs services as architect, landscape architect, engineer or land surveyor, subject to compliance with and the limitations imposed by part I of this chapter, shall have a lien on the real property improved for any money that shall be owing to him for his services in preparing plans, specifications or drawings used in connection with improving the real property or for his services in supervising any portion of the work of improving the real property, rendered in accordance with his contract and with the direct contract.

(2) Any architect, landscape architect, engineer or land surveyor who has a direct contract and who in the practice of his profession shall perform services, by himself or others, in connection with a specific parcel of real property and subject to said compliances and limitations, shall have a lien upon such real property for the money owing to him for his professional services, regardless of whether such real property is actually improved.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §1, ch. 65-456; §35, ch. 67-254.

The work of making real property suitable as the site of an improvement shall include but shall not be limited to the grading, leveling, excavating and filling of land (including the furnishing of fill soil), the grading and paving of streets, curbs and sidewalks, the construction of ditches and other area drainage facilities, and the laying of pipes and conduits for water, gas, electric, sewage and drainage purposes, and construction of canals and shall also include the altering, repairing and redoing of all said things. When such services or materials are placed on land dedicated to the public use and are furnished under contract with the owner of the abutting land, the cost of such services and materials, if unpaid, may be the basis for a lien upon said abutting land. When such services or materials are placed upon land under contract with the owner of such land who subsequently dedicates portions of such lands to public use, the person furnishing the services or materials placed upon the dedicated land shall be entitled to a lien upon the land abutting the dedicated land for the unpaid cost of the services and materials placed upon the dedicated land, or in the case of improvements which serve or benefit real property which is divided by such improvements, to a lien upon each abutting portion for the equitable portion of the full amount due and owing. If the portion of the cost to be borne by each parcel of the lands subject to the same lien is not specified in the contract it shall be prorated equitably among the parcels served or benefited. 713.05 Liens of persons in privity.—A materialman or laborer, either of whom is in privity with the owner, or a contractor who complies with the provisions of part I of this chapter and is subject to the limitations thereof, shall have a lien on the real property improved for any money that shall be owing to him for labor, services, materials or other items required by or furnished in accordance with the direct contract. No lien under this section shall be acquired until a claim of lien is recorded. A lienor who, as a subcontractor, laborer or materialman not in privity with the owner, commences to furnish labor, services or material to such an improvement and who thereafter becomes in privity with the owner shall have such a lien for any money that shall be owing to him for such labor, services or materials furnished after he becomes in privity with the owner; provided, such a lienor may record one claim of lien to cover his work done both in privity with the owner and not in privity with the owner. No lienor under this section shall be required to serve a notice to owner as provided in §713.06(2). A contractor may claim a lien for any labor, services or materials furnished by another lienor for which he is obligated to pay such lienor regardless of the right of such lienor to claim a lien but if such lienor claims a valid lien, the contractor shall not recover the amount of the lien recovered by the lienor and the amount of the contractor's claim of lien may be reduced accordingly by court order.

713.06 Liens of persons not in privity; proper payments.—

(1) A materialman or laborer, either of whom is not in privity with the owner, or a subcontractor who complies with the provisions of part I of this chapter and is subject to the limitations thereof, shall have a lien on the real property improved for any money that shall be owing to him for labor, services or materials furnished in accordance with his contract and with the direct contract. The total amount of all liens allowed under part I of this chapter for furnishing labor, services or material covered by any certain direct contract shall not exceed the amount of the contract price fixed by said direct contract except as provided in subsection (3) of this section.

(2) (a) All lienors under this section, except laborers, as a prerequisite to perfecting a lien under this chapter and recording a claim of lien, shall be required to serve a notice on the owner setting forth the lienor's name and address, a description sufficient for identification of the real property, and the nature of the services or materials furnished or to be furnished. This notice must be served before commencing or not later than forty-five days from commencing to furnish his services or materials but in any event before the date of furnishing the affidavit under subsection (3) (d)1., of this section, or abandonment, whichever shall occur first. The serving of this notice shall not dispense with recording the claim of lien. This notice shall not be deemed to constitute a lien, cloud or encumbrance on said real property nor actual nor constructive notice of any of the same.

(b) If the owner, in his notice of commencement, shall have designated a person in addition to himself to receive a copy of such lienor's notice, as provided in §713.13(1)(g), the lienor shall mail a copy of his notice to the person so designated. Failure by the lienor to mail such copy, however, shall not invalidate an otherwise valid lien.

(c) The notice may be in substantially the following form:

NOTICE TO OWNER

To _____
(owner's name and address)

The undersigned hereby informs you that he has furnished or is furnishing services or materials as follows: _____

(general description of services or materials) for the improvement of the real property identified as _____ (property description)

under an order given by _____
Florida law prescribes the serving of this notice and restricts your right to make payments under your contract in accordance with §713.06, Florida Statutes.

Copies to _____ (Lienor's signature and address)

(3) The owner may make proper payments on the direct contract as to lienors under this section, in the following manner:

(a) The owner shall not pay any money on account of a direct contract prior to recording of the notice provided in §713.13, and any amount so paid shall be held improperly paid.

(b) The owner at any time after recording the notice provided in §713.13, may pay to any laborers the whole or any part of the amounts that shall then be due and payable to them respectively for labor or services performed by them and covered by the direct contract, and shall deduct the same from the balance due the contractor under a direct contract.

(c) When any payment becomes due to the contractor on the direct contract, except the final payment:

1. The owner shall pay or cause to be paid, within the limitations imposed by subparagraph 2. the sum then due to each lienor giving notice prior to the time of said payment. The owner may require (and in such event, the contractor shall furnish as a prerequisite to requiring payment to himself) an affidavit as prescribed in paragraph (d)1. of this subsection, on any payment made or to be made on a direct contract; provided, the furnishing of any such affidavit shall not relieve the owner of his responsibility to pay or cause to be paid all lienors giving notice as aforesaid. Except laborers, the owner shall be under no obligation to any lienor from whom he has not received a notice at the time of making any such payment.

2. When the payment due is insufficient to pay all bills of lienors giving notice, the owner shall prorate the amount then due under the direct contract among the lienors filing notices pro rata in the manner prescribed in subsection (4) of this section. Lienors receiving money shall execute partial releases as provided in §713.20(2), to the extent of the payment received.

3. If any affidavit permitted hereunder recites any outstanding bills for labor, services or materials, the owner may pay such bills in full direct to the person or firm to whom they are due if the balance due on the direct contract at the time the affidavit is given is sufficient to pay such bills and shall deduct the amounts so paid from the balance of payment due the contractor.

4. No person furnishing labor or material or both who is required to serve a notice under subsection (2)(a) of this section and who did not serve such notice and whose time for such service has expired shall be paid because he is listed in an affidavit furnished by the contractor under this subsection until all lienors giving notice and lienors listed in such affidavit whose time for serving such notice has not expired have been paid in full. If there is a balance due the contractor after all of said lienors have been paid in full, any of said persons who failed to serve timely notice shall be paid in full or pro rata according to the amounts of their claims to the extent of such balance due the contractor; provided, this shall not be construed to permit any claim or demand whatsoever by said persons failing to serve timely notice against the owner.

(d) When the final payment under a direct contract becomes due the contractor:

1. The contractor shall give to the owner an affidavit stating, if that be the fact, that all lienors have been paid in full or, if the fact be otherwise, showing the name of each lienor who has not been paid in full and the amount due or to become due each for labor, services or materials furnished. The contractor shall have no lien or right of action against the owner for labor, services or materials furnished under the direct contract while in default by reason of not giving the owner such affidavit. The contractor shall execute said affidavit and deliver it to the owner at least five days before instituting suit as a prerequisite to the institution of any suit to enforce his lien under this chapter.

2. If the contractor's affidavit required in this subsection recites any outstanding bills for labor, services or materials the owner may, after giving the contractor at least ten days' written notice, pay such bills in full direct to the person or firm to whom they are due, if the balance due on a direct contract at the time the affidavit is given is sufficient to pay them and lienors giving notice, and shall deduct the amounts so paid from the balance due the contractor. Lienors listed in said affidavit not giving notice may be paid nevertheless.

3. If the balance due is not sufficient to pay in full all lienors listed in the affidavit given by the contractor at that time and other lienors giving notice, the owner shall pay no money to anyone until such time as the contractor has furnished him with the difference; provided, that if the contractor fails to furnish the difference within ten days from delivery of the affidavit or notice from the owner to the contractor to furnish the affidavit, the owner shall determine the amount due each lienor and shall disburse to them the amounts due from him on a direct contract in accordance with the procedure established by subsection (4) of this section.

4. The owner shall have the right to rely on the contractor's affidavit given under this subparagraph in making the final payment unless there are lienors giving notice who are not listed in said affidavit. If there are lienors giving notice who are not so listed, the owner may pay said lienors and any persons listed in said affidavit and shall thereupon be discharged of any further responsibility under the direct contract except for any balance which may be due to the contractor.

5. The owner shall retain the last payment due under a contract or ten per cent of the original contract price, whichever is larger, which shall not be disbursed until the contractor's affidavit under paragraph (d)1. of this subsection has been delivered to the owner.

6. When final payment has become due to the contractor and the owner fails to withhold as required by paragraph (d)5. of this subsection, the property improved shall be subject to the full amount of all valid liens of which the owner has notice at the time the contractor furnishes his affidavit.

(e) If the improvement is abandoned before completion, the owner shall determine the amount due each lienor giving notice and shall pay the same in full or prorate in the same manner as provided in subsection (4) of this section.

(f) No contractor shall have any right to require the owner to pay any money to him under a direct contract if such money cannot be properly paid by the owner to the contractor in accordance with this section.

(g) Except with written consent of the contractor, before paying any money directly to any lienor except the contractor or any laborer, the owner shall give the contractor at least ten days' written notice of his intention to do so, and the amount he proposes to pay each lienor.

(h) When the owner has properly retained all sums required in this section to be retained but has otherwise made improper payments, the owner's real property shall be held liable to all laborers, subcontractors and materialmen complying with this chapter only to the extent of such retentions and such improper payments, notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection. Any money paid by the owner on a direct contract, the payment of which is proved to have caused no detriment to any certain lienor, shall be held to have been properly paid as to such lienor, and if any of such money shall be held not properly paid as to any other lienors, the entire benefit of its being held not properly paid as to them shall go to such lienors.

(4) (a) In determining the amounts for which liens between lienors claiming under a direct contract shall be paid by the owner or allowed by the court within the total amount fixed by the direct contract and under the provisions of this section, the owner or court shall pay or allow such liens in the following order:

1. Liens of all laborers.

2. Liens of all persons other than the contractor.

3. Lien of the contractor.

(b) Should the total amount for which liens under such direct contract may be allowed be less than the total amount of liens under such contract in all classes above mentioned, all liens in a class shall be allowed for their full amounts before any liens shall be allowed to any subsequent class. Should the amount applicable to the liens of any single class be insufficient to permit all liens within that class to be allowed for their full amounts, each lien shall be allowed for its pro rata share of the total amount applicable to liens of that class; but if the same labor, services, or materials shall be covered by liens of more than one class, such labor, services, or materials shall be allowed only in the earliest class by which they shall be covered; and also if the same labor, services, or materials shall be covered by liens of two or more lienors of the same class, such labor, services or materials shall be allowed only in the lien of the lienor farthest removed from the contractor. This section shall not be construed to affect the priority of liens derived under separate direct contracts.

713.07 Priority of liens.—

(1) Liens under §§713.03 and 713.04 shall attach at the time of recordation of the claim of lien and shall take priority as of that time.

(2) Liens under §§713.05 and 713.06 shall attach and take priority as of the time of recordation of the notice of commencement, but in the event a notice of commencement is not filed, then such liens shall attach and take priority as of the time the claim of lien is recorded.

(3) All such liens shall have priority over any conveyance, encumbrance or demand not recorded against the real property prior to the time such lien attached as provided herein, but any conveyance, encumbrance or demand recorded prior to the time such lien attaches and any proceeds thereof, regardless of when disbursed, shall have priority over such liens.

(4) If construction ceases before completion and the owner desires to recommence construction, he may pay all lienors in full or pro rata in accordance with §713.06(4), prior to recommencement in which event all liens for the recommenced construction shall take priority from such recommencement; or the owner may record an affidavit in the clerk's office stating his intention to recommence construction and that all lienors giving notice have been paid in full except those listed therein as not having been so paid in which event thirty days after such recording, the rights of any person acquiring any interest, lien or encumbrance on said property or of any lienor on the recommenced construction shall be paramount to any lien on the prior construction unless such prior lienor records a claim of lien within said thirty day period. A copy of said affidavit shall be served on each lienor named therein. Before recommencing, the owner shall record and post a notice of commencement for the recommenced construction, as provided in §713.13.

713.08 Claim of lien.—

(1) For the purpose of perfecting his lien under part I of this chapter every lienor, including laborers and persons in privity, shall record a claim of lien which shall state:

(a) The name of the lienor and the address where notices or process under part I of this chapter may be served on the lienor.

(b) The name of the person with whom the lienor contracted or by whom he was employed.

(c) The labor, services or materials furnished and the contract price or value thereof. Materials specially fabricated at a place other than the site of the improvement for incorporation in the improvement but not so incorporated and the contract price or value thereof shall be separately stated in the claim of lien.

(d) A description of the real property sufficient for identification.

(e) The name of the owner.

(f) The time when the first and the last item of labor or service or materials was furnished.

(g) The amount unpaid the lienor for such labor or services or materials.

(h) If the lien is claimed by a person not in privity with the owner, the date and method of service of the notice to owner.

(2) The claim of lien shall be signed and verified on personal oath by the lienor, his agent or attorney acquainted with the facts stated therein.

(3) Such claim of lien shall be sufficient if it is in substantially the following form:

(4) (a) The omission of any of the foregoing details or errors in such claim of lien shall not, within the discretion of the trial court, prevent the enforcement of such lien as against one who has not been adversely affected by such omission or error.

(b) Any claim of lien recorded as provided in part I of this chapter may be amended at any time during the period allowed for recording such claim of lien, provided, that such amendment shall not cause any person to suffer any detriment by having acted in good faith in reliance upon such claim of lien as originally recorded. Any amendment of the claim of lien shall be recorded in the same manner as is provided for recording the original claim of lien.

(c) Failure to serve any claim of lien in the manner provided in §713.18, within ten days after recording shall render the claim of lien voidable to the extent that such failure or delay is shown to have been prejudicial to any person entitled to rely thereon.

(5) The claim of lien may be recorded at any time during the progress of the work or thereafter but not later than ninety days after the final furnishing of the labor or services or materials by the lienor; provided if the original contractor defaults or the contract is terminated under §713.07(4), no claim for a lien attaching prior to such default shall be recorded after ninety days from the date of such default or ninety days after the final performance of labor or services or furnishing of materials, whichever occurs first. The claim of lien shall be recorded in the clerk's office. If such real property is situated in two or more counties the claim of lien shall be recorded in the clerk's office in each of such counties. The recording of the claim of lien shall be constructive notice to all persons of the contents and effect of such claim. The validity of the lien and the right to record a claim therefor shall not be affected by the insolvency, bankruptcy or death of the owner before the claim of lien is recorded.

713.09 When single claim of lien sufficient.—

(1) A lienor shall be required to record only one claim of lien covering his entire demand against such real property where the amount demanded is for labor or services or materials furnished for more than one improvement on a single lot, parcel, or tract of land, or for a single improvement on contiguous or adjacent lots, parcels, or tracts of land, or for more than one improvement to be operated as a single plant but located on separate lots, parcels, or tracts of land, or for more than one improvement to be operated as separate units on separate lots, parcel or tracts of land but improved in one continuous building operation, such as, but not limited to, a housing or multiple unit dwelling project, or a multiple separate unit development, and made or to be made in each case under the same direct contract. The claim of lien shall then be applicable to such lots, parcels or tracts of land and the improvements thereon included therein but not previously released in writing, and proof of delivery of materials at the order of the purchaser to any of such lots, parcels or tracts of land shall be prima facie sufficient to support a lien on any or all of such lots, parcels or tracts of land so improved.

(2) In the event the project consists of six or more improvements or one improvement costing more than fifty thousand dollars, and delivery is to a place, other than the site of improvement, designated by the purchaser, such as, but not limited to, a warehouse, concentration point, cutting or fabricating plant, of materials ordered by the purchaser to be used on one or more of such improvements, there shall be served upon the owner a notice, signed and acknowledged by both the seller and purchaser, substantially as follows:

NOTICE OF DELIVERY

Notice is hereby given that materials having a value of $_____ have been delivered by the undersigned vendor to _____

(purchaser)

at _____, said materials to (address of delivery)

be used for construction of improvements upon the following described property situated in

County, Florida, to wit:

Vendor

Purchaser

The service of said notice shall not create a lien, but shall be proof of delivery of the materials referred to in said notice sufficient to support a lien therefor on any or all of such lots, parcels or tracts of land described in said notice; provided, however, that no lien shall attach to any one or more of such lots, parcels or tracts of land by lienors subject thereto until compliance with §713.06(2), when required, and §713.08, and provided further, that no lien shall attach to any one or more of such lots, parcels or tracts of land previously released in writing or upon which the improvement has been completed for a period of ninety days.

Note.—Formerly §84.091.

713.10 Extent of liens.—Except as provided in §713.12, liens under part I of this chapter shall extend to, and only to, the right, title and interest of the person who contracts for the improvement as such right, title and interest exists at the commencement of the improvement or is thereafter acquired in the real property. When an improvement is made by a lessee in accordance with an agreement between such lessee and his lessor, liens shall extend also to the interest of such lessor. In the absence of fraud on the part of the lessor, the interest of the lessor shall not be subject to liens for improvements made by the lessee when the lease is recorded in the clerk's office and the terms of the lease expressly prohibit such liability.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §35, ch. 67-254.
Note.—Formerly §84.101.

713.11 Liens for improving land in which the contracting party has no interest.—When the person contracting for improving real property has no interest as owner in the land, no lien shall attach to the land, except as provided in §713.12, but if removal of such improvement from the land is practicable, the lien of a lienor shall attach to the improvement on which he has performed labor or services or for which he has furnished materials. The court, in the enforcement of such lien, may order such improvement to be separately sold and the purchaser may remove it within such reasonable time as the court may fix. The purchase price for such improvement shall be paid into court. The owner of the land upon which the improvement was made may demand that the land be restored substantially to its condition before the improvement was commenced, in which case the court shall order its restoration and the reasonable charge therefor shall be first paid out of such purchase price and the remainder shall be paid to lienors and other encumbrancers in accordance with their respective rights.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §35, ch. 67-254.
Note.—Formerly §84.111.

713.12 Liens for improving real property under contract with husband or wife on property of the other or of both.—When the contract for improving real property is made with a husband or wife who is not separated and living apart from his or her spouse and the property is owned by the other or by both, the spouse who contracts shall be deemed to be the agent of the other to the extent of subjecting the right, title, or interest of the other in said property to liens under part I of this chapter unless such other shall, within ten days after learning of such contract, give the contractor and record in the clerk's office, notice of his or her objection thereto.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §35, ch. 67-254.

Note.—Formerly §84.121.

713.13 Notice of commencement.—

(1) An owner or his authorized agent before actually commencing to improve any real property, or recommencing completion of any improvement after default or abandonment, whether or not a project has a payment bond complying with §713.23, shall record a notice of commencement in the clerk's office and forthwith post a certified copy thereof containing the following information:

(a) A description sufficient for identification of the real property to be improved. The description should include the legal description of the property and also should include the street address of the property if available or, if there is no street address available, such additional information as will describe the physical location of the real property to be improved.

(b) A general description of the improvement.

(c) The name and address of the owner as defined in §713.01, his interest in the site of the improvement, and the name and address of the fee simple title holder, if other than such owner.

(d) The name and address of the contractor.

(e) The name and address of the surety on the payment bond under §713.23, if any, and the amount of such bond.

(f) The name and address within the state of a person other than himself who may be designated by the owner as the person upon whom notices or other documents may be served under part I of this chapter, and service upon the person so designated shall constitute service upon the owner.

(g) The owner, at his option, may designate a person in addition to himself to receive a copy of the lienor's notice as provided in §713.06-(2)(b), and if he does so, the name and address of such person shall be included in the notice of commencement.

(2) If the improvement described in said notice is not actually commenced within thirty days after the recording thereof, such notice shall be void and of no further effect.

(3) Neither the recording of a notice of commencement nor the posting of a copy thereof shall constitute a lien, cloud or encumbrance on real property, nor actual nor constructive notice of any of the same.

(4) This section does not apply to an owner who is constructing improvements described in §713.04.

(5) Unless otherwise provided in the notice of commencement or a new or amended notice of commencement, any notice of commencement heretofore or hereafter recorded shall not be effective as to any person acquiring title or any interest in real property from the owner or under him after one year from the date of recording the notice of commencement.

713.135 Forms of notice of commencement of construction.—

(1) When an owner of real property upon which improvements are to be made applies (either in person or by an agent) for a building permit, the authority issuing such permit shall, when required to do so by ordinance or resolution of the governing body, furnish to the applicant two or more copies of a form of notice of commencement conforming with the provisions of §713.13, together with a concise printed statement explaining the provisions of the Florida mechanics' lien law, part I of this chapter, relating to the recording and to the posting of copies of notices of commencement and encouraging the owner to record a notice of commencement and post a copy thereof in accordance with the provisions of §713.13.

(2) The several boards of county commissioners, municipal councils or other similar bodies may by ordinance or resolution establish reasonable fees for furnishing copies of the forms and the printed statement in an amount not to exceed two dollars to be paid by the applicant for each permit in addition to all other costs of the permit; provided, however, that no forms or statement need be furnished nor shall such additional fee be obtained from applicants for permits in those cases where the owner of a legal or equitable interest (including that of ownership of stock of a corporate landowner) of the real property to be improved is engaged in the business of construction of buildings for sale to others and intends to make the improvements authorized by the permit on the property and upon completion will offer the improved real property for sale.

(3) This section shall apply to every municipality and county in the state which now or hereafter may have a system of issuing building permits for the construction of improvements or for the alteration or repair of improvements on or to real property located within the geographic limits of the issuing authority.

History.—§§1-3, ch. 67-185.

713.14 Application of money to materials account.—

(1) Any owner, contractor, or subcontractor in making any payment under or properly applicable to any contract to one with whom he has a running account, or with whom he has more than one contract, or to whom he is otherwise indebted, shall designate the contract under which the payment is made or the items of account to which it is to be applied and if he shall fail to do so or shall make a false designation he shall be liable to anyone suffering a loss in consequence for the amount of such loss.

(2) When a payment for materials is made to a subcontractor, or materialman, such subcontractor or materialman shall demand of the person making such payment a designation of the account and the items of account to which such payment is to apply. In any case where a lien is claimed for materials furnished by a subcontractor or materialman, it shall be a defense to such claim to prove that a payment made by the owner to the contractor for such materials has been paid over to such subcontractor or materialman, and to prove also that when such payment was received by such subcontractor or materialman he did not demand a designation of the account and of the items of account to which such payment was to be applied or, receiving a designation of its application to the account for such materials, he failed to apply such payment in accordance therewith; provided this subsection shall be deemed to be cumulative to any other defenses available to the person paying said materialman or subcontractor.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §35, ch. 67-254.
Note.—Formerly §84.141.

713.15 Repossession of materials not used.—If for any reason the completion of an improvement is abandoned or though the improvement is completed, materials delivered are not used therefor, a person who has delivered materials for the improvement which have not been incorporated therein and for which he has not received payment may peaceably repossess and remove such materials or replevy the same and thereupon he shall have no lien on the real property or improvements and no right against any persons for the price thereof, but shall have the same rights in regard to the materials as if he had never parted with their possession. This right to repossess and remove or replevy the materials shall not be affected by their sale, encumbrance, attachment, or transfer from the site of improvement, except that if the materials have been so transferred, the right to repossess or replevy them shall not be effective as against a purchaser or encumbrancer thereof in good faith whose interest therein is acquired after such transfer from the site of the improvement or as against a creditor attaching after such transfer. The right of repossession and removal given by this section shall extend only to materials whose purchase price does not exceed the amount remaining due to the person repossessing but where materials have been partly paid for, the person delivering them may repossess them as allowed in this section on refunding the part of the purchase price which has been paid.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §35, ch. 67-254.
Note.—Formerly §84.151.

713.16 Copy of contract and statements of account may be demanded.—

(1) A copy of the contract of a lienor or owner and a statement of the amount due or to become due if fixed or ascertainable thereon shall be furnished by any party thereto, upon written demand of an owner or a lienor contracting with or employed by the other party to such contract. If the owner or lienor refuses or neglects to furnish such copy of the contract or such statement, or wilfully and falsely states the amount due or to become due if fixed or ascertainable under such contract, any person who suffers any detriment thereby shall have a cause of action against the person refusing or neglecting to furnish the same or wilfully and falsely stating the amount due or to become due for his damages sustained thereby. The information contained in such copy or statement furnished pursuant to such written demand shall be binding upon the owner or lienor furnishing it unless actual notice of any modification is given to the person demanding the copy or statement before such person acts in good faith in reliance on it. The person demanding such documents shall be required to pay for the reproduction thereof and if such person fails or refuses to do so, he shall be entitled only to inspect such documents at reasonable times and places.

(2) The owner, at the time any payment is to be made by him to the contractor or directly to a lienor, may in writing demand of any lienor a written statement under oath of his account showing the nature of the labor or services performed and to be performed, the materials furnished and to be furnished, the amount paid on account to date, the amount due, and the amount to become due. Failure or refusal to furnish such statement within ten days after such written demand or the furnishing of a false or fraudulent statement shall deprive the person so failing or refusing to furnish such statement of his lien.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §10, ch. 65-456; §35, ch. 67-254.
Note.—Formerly §84.161.

713.17 Materials not attachable for debts of purchaser.—Whenever materials have been furnished to improve real property and payment therefor has not been made or waived, such materials shall not be subject to attachment, execution, or other legal process to enforce any debt due by the purchaser of such materials, except a debt due for the purchase price thereof, so long as in good faith the same are about to be applied to improve the real property; but if the owner has made payment for materials furnished and the materialman has not received payment therefor, such materials shall not be subject to attachment, execution, or other legal process to enforce the debt due for the purchase price.

(1) The acceptance by the lienor of an unsecured note for all or any part of the amount of his demand shall not constitute a waiver of his lien therefor unless expressly so agreed in writing, nor shall it in any way affect the period for filing the notice under §713.06- (2), or the claim of lien under §713.08.

(2) Any person other than a laborer may waive his lien under this chapter at any time, either before or after furnishing services or materials. A laborer may waive his lien only to the extent of labor theretofore performed.

This satisfaction shall be signed by the lienor, his agent or attorney and attested by said clerk. Any person who executes a claim of lien shall have authority to execute a satisfaction in the absence of actual notice of lack of authority to any person relying on the same.

(2) By the satisfaction of the lienor, duly acknowledged and recorded in the clerk's office. Any person who executes a claim of lien shall have authority to execute a satisfaction in the absence of actual notice of lack of authority to any person relying on the same.

(3) By failure to begin an action to enforce the lien within the time prescribed in part I of this chapter.

Upon filing a complaint therefor by any interested party the clerk shall issue a summons to the lienor to show cause within twenty days why his lien should not be enforced by action or vacated and canceled of record. Upon failure of the lienor to show cause why his lien should not be enforced or his failure to commence such action before the return date of the summons the court shall forthwith order cancellation of the lien.

(2) An owner or his agent or attorney may elect to shorten the time prescribed in subsection (1) of this section, within which to commence an action to enforce any claim of lien or claim against a bond or other security under §713.23 or §713.24 by recording in the clerk's office a notice in substantially the following form:

713.23 Payment bond.—The payment bond required to exempt an owner under parts I and II of this chapter and chapter 85 shall be furnished by the contractor in at least the amount of the original contract price before commencing the construction of the improvement under such direct contract. Such bond shall be executed as surety by a surety insurer authorized to do business in Florida and shall be conditioned that such contractor shall promptly make payments to all persons supplying him labor, material and supplies used directly or indirectly by said contractor, subcontractor or subsubcontractor in the prosecution of the work provided in said contract. The owner, contractor, or surety, parties or obligees under any such bond, shall furnish a true copy at cost of reproduction thereof to any lienor demanding the same and if any such person fails or refuses to furnish such copy without justifiable cause, he shall be liable to the lienor demanding the copy for any damages caused to such lienor by such refusal or failure. Any person supplying labor, material or supplies used directly or indirectly in the prosecution of the work to any subcontractor or subsubcontractor and who has not received payment therefor, shall, within ninety days after performance of the labor or after complete delivery of materials and supplies, deliver to the contractor written notice of the performance of such labor or delivery of such materials and supplies and the nonpayment therefor, and no action or suit for such labor or for such materials and supplies may be instituted or prosecuted against the contractor unless such notice has been given. No action or suit shall be instituted or prosecuted against the contractor or against the surety on the bond required in this section after one year from the performance of the labor or completion of delivery of the materials and supplies. Any lienor shall have direct right of action on such bond against the surety and no such bond shall contain any provisions restricting the classes of persons protected thereby or the venue of any suit thereon. The surety shall not be entitled to the defense of pro tanto discharge as against any lienor because of changes or modifications in the contract to which the surety is not a party; provided that the liability of the surety shall not be increased beyond the penal sum of the bond. Except claimants in privity with the contractor and except laborers, no claimant shall recover on a bond or from the contractor unless he shall have complied with the provisions of §713.06(2).

(a) Depositing in the clerk's office a sum of money, or

(b) Filing in the clerk's office a bond executed as surety by a surety insurer licensed to do business in this state, either to be in an amount equal to the amount demanded in such claim of lien plus interest thereon at six per cent per year for three years plus one hundred dollars to apply on any court costs which may be taxed in any proceeding to enforce said lien.

Such deposit or bond shall be conditioned to pay any judgment or decree which may be rendered for the satisfaction of the lien for which such claim of lien was recorded and costs not to exceed one hundred dollars. Upon making such deposit or filing such bond the clerk shall make and record a certificate showing the transfer of the lien from the real property to the security and mail a copy thereof by registered or certified mail to the lienor named in the claim of lien so transferred at the address stated therein. Upon filing the certificate of transfer the real property shall thereupon be released from the lien claimed and such lien shall be transferred to said security. The clerk shall be entitled to a fee for making and serving the certificate in the sum of two dollars. Any number of liens may be transferred to one such security.

(2) Any excess of the security over the aggregate amount of any judgments or decrees rendered plus costs actually taxed shall be repaid to the party filing the same or his successor in interest. Any deposit of money shall be considered as paid into court and shall be subject to the provisions of law relative to payments of money into court and the disposition of same.

(3) Any party having an interest in such security or the property from which the lien was transferred may at any time, and any number of times, file a complaint in chancery in the circuit court of the county where such security is deposited for an order to require additional security, reduction of security, change or substitution of sureties, payment or discharge thereof or any other matter affecting said security.

(4) If no proceeding to enforce a transferred lien shall be commenced within the time specified in §713.22 or if it appears that the transferred lien has been satisfied of record, the clerk shall return said security upon request of the person depositing or filing the same, or the insurer.

(2) Sales pursuant to any decree or judgment of foreclosure may be made by the clerk of the court which enters the decree or judgment in the same manner as prescribed for mortgage foreclosures in §702.02(2)-(5). If the court decrees the interpleader, it may transfer all claims to the funds held by the plaintiff. In such case the court shall require said fund to be deposited in registry of court, and effective upon such deposit, shall decree the real property to be free of all liens and claims of lien of the parties to the suit.

713.28 Judgments in case of failure to establish liens; personal and deficiency judgments or decrees.—

(1) If a lienor shall fail, for any reason, to establish a lien for the full amount found to be due him in an action to enforce the same under the provisions of part I of this chapter, he may, in addition to the lien decreed in his favor, recover a judgment or decree in such action against any party liable therefor for such sums in excess of the lien as are due him or which he might recover in an action on a contract against any party to the action from whom such sums are due him.

(2) In any action heretofore or hereafter brought a court may, either before or after the final adjudication, award a summary money judgment or decree in favor of any party. This shall not preclude the rendition of other judgments or decrees in the action.

(3) If, upon the sale of the real property under any judgment or decree there is a deficiency of proceeds to pay the amount of such judgment or decree, the judgment or decree may be enforced for the deficiency against any person liable therefor in the same manner and under the same conditions as deficiency decrees in mortgage foreclosures. Any payment made on account of any judgment or decree in favor of a party shall be credited on any other judgment or decree rendered in favor of that party in the same action.

Note.—Formerly §84.291.

713.30 Other actions not barred.—Part I of this chapter shall be cumulative to other existing remedies and nothing contained in part I of this chapter shall be construed to prevent any lienor or assignee under any contract from maintaining an action thereon at law in like manner as if he had no lien for the security of his debt, and the bringing of such action shall not prejudice his rights under part I of this chapter, except as herein otherwise expressly provided.

History.—§1, ch. 63-135; §35, ch. 67-254.

Note.—Formerly §84.301.

713.31 Remedies in case of fraud or collusion.—

(1) When the owner or any lienor shall, by fraud or collusion, deprive or attempt to deprive any lienor of benefits or rights to which such lienor is entitled under part I of this chapter by establishing or manipulating the contract price or by giving false affidavits, releases, invoices, worthless checks, statements or written instruments permitted or required under part I of this chapter relating to the improvement of real property hereunder to the detriment of any such lienor, the circuit court in chancery shall have jurisdiction, upon a complaint filed by such lienor, to issue temporary and permanent injunctions, order accountings, grant discovery, utilize all remedies available under creditors' bills and proceedings supplementary to execution, marshal assets and exercise any other appropriate legal or equitable remedies or procedures without regard to the adequacy of a remedy at law or whether or not irreparable damage has or will be done.

(2)(a) Any lien asserted under part I of this chapter in which the lienor has willfully exaggerated the amount for which such lien is claimed or in which the lienor has willfully included a claim for work not performed upon or materials not furnished for the property upon which he seeks to impress such lien or in which the lienor has compiled his claim with such willful and gross negligence as to amount to a willful exaggeration, shall be deemed a fraudulent lien.

(b) It shall be a complete defense to any action to enforce a lien under part I of this chapter, or against any lien in any action in which the validity of the lien is an issue, that the lien is a fraudulent lien and the court so finding is empowered to and shall declare the lien unenforceable and the lienor shall thereupon forfeit his right to any lien on the property upon which he sought to impress such fraudulent lien.

(c) An owner against whose interest a fraudulent lien is filed shall have a right of action for his actual damages occasioned thereby and for punitive damages. Such action may be instituted independently of another action, or in connection with a summons to show cause under §713.21, or as a counterclaim or crossclaim to any action to enforce or to determine the validity of such lien. The lienor who files a fraudulent lien shall be liable to the owner in damages which shall include court costs, clerk's fees, and a reasonable attorney's fee for services in securing the discharge of the lien, the amount of any premium for a bond given to obtain the discharge of the lien or interest on any money deposited for the purpose discharging the lien, and punitive damages in an amount not exceeding the difference between the amount claimed by the lienor to be due or to become due and the amount actually due or to become due.

The insurer may pay the proceeds of any such policy of insurance to the insured named in such policy and thereupon any liability of the insurer under part I of this chapter shall cease. Such named insured who receives any proceeds of such policy shall be deemed a trustee of such proceeds and such proceeds shall be deemed trust funds for the purposes designated by this section for a period of one year from the date of receipt of such proceeds. This section shall not apply to that portion of the proceeds of any policy of insurance payable to a person, including a mortgagee, who holds a lien perfected prior to the recording of the notice of commencement or recording.

(b) The amount required to satisfy prior encumbrances against the real property which is security for such loan and the fees and charges legally incident thereto, if such encumbrances are paid or to be paid with the consent of the lender, from the proceeds of the loan; and

(c) The amount of fees and charges for professional services for which liens are not provided by part I of this chapter and which are bona fide rendered in connection with the improving of the real property.

(2) Any person, firm, corporation or agent, officer or employee thereof who procures a loan secured by mortgage or other encumbrance on real property, representing that the net proceeds thereof are to be used for the purpose of improving such real property and who, with intent to defraud, shall use the net proceeds, as defined in subsection (1) of this section, or any part thereof for any other purpose than to pay for labor or services performed on, or material furnished for, this specific improvement, while any amount for which he may be or become liable for such labor, services, or materials remains unpaid or while any amount of which he has received notice of nonpayment prescribed by part I of this chapter remains unpaid, shall be guilty of embezzlement and shall be prosecuted and, upon conviction, punished in accordance with the provisions of the laws of this state; provided, however, that failure to pay for such labor, services or materials furnished for this specific improvement after receipt of such loan shall constitute prima facie evidence of intent to defraud.

(3) Any person, firm, corporation or agent, officer or employee thereof who, with intent to defraud, shall use the proceeds of any payment made to him on account of improving certain real property, for any other purpose than to pay for labor or services performed on or materials furnished for this specific improvement, while any amount for which he may be or become liable for such labor, services, or materials remains unpaid shall be guilty of embezzlement and shall be prosecuted and, upon conviction, punished in accordance with the provisions of the laws of this state; provided, however, that failure to pay for such labor, services or materials furnished for this specific improvement after receipt of such proceeds shall constitute prima facie evidence of intent to defraud.

(4) The provisions of subsections (2) and (3) shall not apply to mortgage bankers or their agents, servants or employees, for their acts in the usual course of the business of lending or disbursing mortgage funds.

The state treasurer, within five days after receipt of such claim, shall submit said verified claim or a verified copy thereof, to the department of banking and finance. All claims made for recovery of property, funds or money, not filed within five years from the date that said property, funds or money is received by the state treasurer, shall be forever barred, and the treasurer of the state shall be without power to consider or determine any claims so made by any claimant after five years from the date that the property, funds or money was received by the state treasurer.

(2) The comptroller shall, within thirty days after he has received said claim from the state treasurer, approve or disapprove the same. If the claim is approved, the funds, money or property of the claimant, less any expenses and costs which shall have been incurred by the state in securing the possession of said property, as provided by this chapter, shall be delivered to him by the state treasurer upon warrant issued according to law and his receipt taken therefor. If the comptroller shall disapprove the claim so filed, upon the ground that it does not show or state facts legally sufficient to entitle said claimant to recover said property, funds or money, then the claimant may file a complaint in the circuit court of Leon county, naming therein the treasurer and the comptroller of the state as defendants, in said action, setting forth in said petition or complaint all the facts supporting his claim to said property, funds or money.

(3) A hearing on said petition or complaint shall be held by the court not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from the date of the filing of said petition or complaint, and a copy of said petition or complaint, and notice of the date of hearing, must be served upon the comptroller and the state treasurer within ten days from the date of filing thereof; the comptroller and the state treasurer may answer said petition or complaint, as in other chancery actions. Any party interested and aggrieved by the decision of said court may appeal from such decision or judgment to the district court of appeal, first district, as provided by law for appeals in chancery cases.

(4) After hearing of the issues upon the merits of the case, if the court finds that the petitioner or plaintiff is entitled to the property, money or funds claimed, and shall render judgment in his or its favor, declaring that the petitioner or plaintiff is entitled to said property, funds or money, then upon presentation of said judgment or a certified copy thereof to the state comptroller, said comptroller shall draw his warrant for the amount of money stated in said judgment, without interest or cost to the state, less any sum paid by the state as costs or expenses in securing possession of said property, funds or money. When payment has been made to any claimant, no action thereafter shall be maintained by any other claimant against the state or any officer thereof, for or on account of said money, property or funds.

If a person other than the insured or annuitant is entitled to the funds and no address of such person is known to the corporation or if it is not definite and certain from the records of the corporation what person is entitled to the funds, it is presumed that the last known address of the person entitled to the funds is the same as the last known address of the insured or annuitant according to the records of the corporation.

(1) If the property is held by a banking organization or a financial organization, or by a business association organized under the laws of or created in this state; or

(1) It may be claimed as abandoned or escheated under the laws of such other state; and

(2) The laws of such other state make reciprocal provision that similar specific property is not presumed abandoned or escheatable by such other state when held for or owed or distributable to an owner whose last known address is within this state by a holder who is subject to the jurisdiction of this state.

History.—§10, ch. 61-10.

(3) If the person holding property presumed abandoned is a successor to other persons who previously held the property for the owner, or if the holder has changed his name while holding the property, he shall file with his report all prior known names and addresses of each holder of the property.

(4) The report shall be filed before November 1 of each year as of June 30 next preceding, but the report of insurance corporations shall be filed before May 1 of each year as of December 31 next preceding. The department may postpone the reporting date upon written request by any person required to file a report.

(5) If the holder of property presumed abandoned under this act knows the whereabouts of the owner and if the owner's claim has not been barred by the statute of limitations, the holder shall, before filing the annual report, communicate with the owner and take necessary steps to prevent abandonment from being presumed. The holder shall exercise due diligence to ascertain the whereabouts of the owner.

(6) Verification, if made by a partnership, shall be executed by a partner; if made by an unincorporated association or private corporation, by an officer; and if made by a public corporation, by its chief fiscal officer.

(1) Within one hundred twenty days from the filing of the report required by §717.12, the department shall cause notice to be published at least once each week for two successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in this state in which is located the last known address of any person to be named in the notice. If no address is listed or if the address is outside this state, the notice shall be published in the county in which the holder of the abandoned property has his principal place of business within this state.

(2) The published notice shall be entitled "Notice of names of persons appearing to be owners of abandoned property," and shall contain:

(a) The names in alphabetical order and last known addresses, if any, of persons listed in the report and entitled to notice within the county as hereinbefore specified.

(b) A statement that information concerning the amount or description of the property and the name and address of the holder may be obtained by any persons possessing an interest in the property by addressing an inquiry to the department.

(c) A statement that if proof of claim is not presented by the owner to the holder and if the owner's right to receive the property is not established to the holder's satisfaction within sixty-five days from the date of the second published notice, the abandoned property will be placed not later than eighty-five days after such publication date in the custody of the department to which all further claims must thereafter be directed.

(3) The department is not required to publish in such notice any item of less than twenty-five dollars unless it deems such publication to be in the public interest.

Such petition shall show:

(a) All proceedings specified by §§717.12 and 717.13 have been followed; and

717.18 Sale of abandoned property.—

Such sale shall be to the highest bidder at public sale in whatever place in the state affords in its judgment the most favorable market for the property involved. The department may decline the highest bid and re-offer the property for sale if it considers the price bid insufficient. It need not offer any property for sale if, in its opinion, the probable cost of sale exceeds the value of the property.

(2) Any sale held under this section shall be preceded by a single publication of notice thereof, at least three weeks in advance of sale in a newspaper of general circulation in the county where the property is to be sold.

(3) The purchaser at any sale conducted by the department pursuant to this act shall receive title to the property purchased, free from all claims of the owner or prior holder thereof and of all persons claiming through or under them. (2) Any person, firm, partnership, association or corporation engaged in the business of buying or selling watches, or any agent or servant thereof, who shall sell or exchange, or offer for sale or exchange, expose for sale or exchange, possess with the intent to sell or exchange, or display with the intent to sell or exchange any used watch, shall affix and keep affixed to the same a tag with the word "used" clearly and legibly written or printed thereon, and the said tag shall be so placed that the word "used" shall be in plain sight at all times.

(3) No will executed by a nonresident of Florida, either before or after this law takes effect, is valid as a will in this state unless it is executed in accordance with the laws of this state in force at the time of its execution, except that a will valid under the laws of the state or country in which the testator is domiciled at the time of his death is valid in this state, so far as it relates to personal property.

(5) All devises and bequests to subscribing witnesses are void unless there are at least two other disinterested subscribing witnesses to the will. If a subscribing witness would be entitled to any share of the estate of the testator in case the will were not established, he shall take such proportion of the devise or bequest made to him in the will as does not exceed the share of the estate which would be distributed to him if the will were not established.

The share of the estate which is assigned to such pretermitted spouse shall be raised in accordance with the order of appropriation of assets set forth in this law.

History.—§11, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(7); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

The share of the estate which is assigned to such pretermitted child shall be raised in accordance with the order of appropriation of assets set forth in this law.

731.14 Other revocation.—

(1) A will may be revoked by the testator himself or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, by burning, tearing, canceling, defacing, obliterating or destroying the same, with the intent and for the purpose of revocation.

(2) Neither subsequent marriage nor subsequent marriage and birth of issue shall revoke the prior will of any person; but the pretermitted child or spouse shall inherit as set forth in this law regardless of such prior will.

History.—§15, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(11); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.15 Revival by revocation.—The revocation of a will expressly revoking a former will shall not revive the former will, even though such former will is in existence at the date of the revocation of the subsequent will.

History.—§16, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(12); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.16 Revocation of codicil.—The revocation of a will revokes all codicils thereto previously made.

History.—§17, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(13); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.17 Republication of wills by codicil.—The execution of a codicil referring to a previous will has the effect of republishing the will as modified by the codicil.

History.—§18, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(14); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.18 Republication of wills by re-execution.—If a will has been revoked or if it is invalid for any other reason, it may be republished and made valid by the re-execution of the same with the formalities required by this law for the execution of wills.

History.—§19, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(15); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.19 Charitable devises and bequests.—If a testator dies leaving issue of his body or an adopted child, or the lineal descendants of either, or a spouse, and if the will of such testator devises or bequeaths the estate of such testator, or any part thereof, to a benevolent, charitable, literary, scientific, religious or missionary institution, corporation, association or purpose, or to this state, or to any other state or country, or to a county, city or town in this or any other state or country, or to a person in trust for any such purpose or beneficiary, whether or not such trust appears on the face of the instrument making such devise or bequest, such devise or bequest shall be avoided in its entirety within eight months from the death of the testator by one or more of the above specified persons who would receive any interest in the devise or bequest so avoided, by filing written notice thereof in the probate proceedings unless said will was duly executed at least six months prior to the death of the testator, or unless testator, by his will duly executed immediately next prior to such last will and more than six months before his death, made a valid charitable bequest or devise in substantially the same amount for the same purpose or to the same beneficiary, or to a person in trust for the same person or beneficiary as was made in such last will. The making of a codicil within the six-months period before testator's death, which codicil does not substantially change a charitable devise or bequest as herein defined, shall not render such charitable gift ineffective under this section. This section shall not be construed to apply to devises or bequests made to institutions of higher learning.

History.—§20, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(16); §1, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 57-243.

731.20 Lapsed or void legacies or devises.—

(1) If a devisee or legatee dies during the lifetime of the testator, the testamentary disposition to such devisee or legatee lapses unless an intention appears from the will to substitute another in his place; but, when any property is devised or bequeathed to an adopted child or blood kindred of the testator, and when such devisee or legatee dies before the testator, leaving lineal descendants, or is dead at the time the will is executed, leaving lineal descendants who survive the testator, such legacy or devise does not lapse, but such descendants take the property so given by the will in the same manner as the devisee or legatee would have done had he survived the testator.

(2) If a legacy or devise is void or lapses, it shall become a part of the residuum and shall pass to the residuary legatee or devisee unless a contrary intent is expressed by the testator in his will.

History.—§21, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(17); am. §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.21 Vesting of legacies or devises.—The death of the testator is the event which vests the right to legacies or devises unless the testator in his will has provided that some other event must happen before a legacy or devise shall vest.

History.—§22, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(18); am. §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.22 Income from legacies or devises.—The net income, interest or increase arising from property specifically devised or bequeathed shall belong to the specific legatees and devisees entitled thereto from the date of the death of the testator. From and after the time fixed by the county judge in an order of distribution, general legacies shall bear legal interest until paid.

History.—§23, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5477(19); am. §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.23 Order of succession.—The real and personal property of an intestate shall descend and be distributed as follows:

(1) To the surviving spouse and lineal descendants, the surviving spouse taking the same as if he or she were one of the children.

(2) If there are no lineal descendants, to the surviving spouse.

(3) If there is no surviving spouse, to the lineal descendants.

(4) If there is none of the foregoing, to the father and mother equally, or to the survivor of them.

(5) If there is none of the foregoing, to the brothers and sisters and the descendants of deceased brothers and sisters.

(6) If there is none of the foregoing, the estate shall be divided into moieties, one of which shall go to the paternal and the other to the maternal kindred in the following course:

(a) To the grandfather and grandmother equally, or to the survivor of them.

(b) If there is no grandfather or grandmother, to the uncles and aunts and the descendants of such of them as may be deceased.

(c) If there is no grandparent, uncle or aunt, or their descendants, to the great-grandfathers and the great-grandmothers equally, or to the survivor of them.

(d) If there is no great-grandfather or great-grandmother, then to the brothers and sisters of the grandfather and grandmother on the same side and to the descendants of such of them as may be deceased.

(e) And so in other cases without end, passing to the next lineal ancestor or ancestors, and, for want of them, to the descendants of such ancestors.

(7) Where the estate is hereinbefore directed to go by moieties to the paternal and the maternal kindred, if there are no such kindred on the one part, the whole shall go to the other part; and, if there are no kindred on either the one part or the other, the whole estate shall go to the kindred of the deceased spouse of the intestate in like course as if such deceased spouse had survived the intestate and then died entitled to the estate.

(8) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein contained, any parent may, with or without consideration, completely and unqualifiedly disclaim, renounce, or refuse to accept inheritance of property from any child of such parent, either prior to or within thirty days after the death of such child, by instrument in writing. For the purposes of this section, a parent executing such disclaimer, renunciation, or refusal to accept shall be deemed to have predeceased such child.

History.—§24, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(1); §1, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 69-173. cf.—§734.02-734.04, Distribution of estate.

731.24 Half blood.—In the cases before mentioned, where the estate is directed to pass to the collateral kindred of the intestate, if part of such collateral kindred are of the whole blood to the intestate and the other part of the half blood only, those of the half blood shall inherit only half as much as those of the whole blood; but, if all are of the half blood, they shall have whole portions.

History.—§25, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(2); am. §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.25 Inheritance per stirpes.—Descent and distribution, whether to lineal descendants or to collateral heirs, shall always be per stirpes.

History.—§26, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(3); am. §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.27 Descent of homesteads.—The homestead shall descend as other property; provided, however, that if the decedent is survived by a widow and lineal descendants, the widow shall take a life estate in the homestead, with vested remainder to the lineal descendants in being at the time of the death of the decedent.

History.—§28, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(5); am. §1, ch. 22783, 1945. cf.—§734.08, Administration of exempt estates.

731.28 Alien.—

(1) An alien may devise, bequeath, inherit and transmit inheritance in real and personal property as if he were a citizen of the United States; and in making title by descent it shall be no bar to a party that the intestate or any ancestor through whom he derives his descent from the intestate is or has been an alien.

(2) When the county judge determines that any alien legatee, devisee, heir, beneficiary or distributee not residing within the territorial limits of the United States or any territory or possession thereof would not have the benefit or use or control of property due him and that special circumstances make it desirable that delivery to him be deferred, the county judge may order that such property be converted into available funds and paid into the state treasury, after such attorney's fees of the attorney for such legatee, devisee, heir, beneficiary or distributee, as the court shall set, have been paid therefrom, and said funds held in the state treasury subject to such further orders as the said court may enter.

History.—§29, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(6); §1, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 59-128.

731.29 Illegitimate child as heir.—

(1) Every illegitimate child is an heir of his mother, and also of the person who, in writing, signed in the presence of a competent witness, acknowledges himself to be the father. Such illegitimate child shall inherit from his mother and also, when so recognized, from his father, in the same manner as if the child had been born in lawful wedlock. However, such illegitimate child does not represent his father or mother by inheriting any part of the estate of the parents' kindred, either lineal or collateral, unless his parents have intermarried, in which event such illegitimate child shall be deemed legitimate for all purposes.

(2) If any illegitimate child dies intestate, without lawful issue or spouse, his estate shall descend to his mother, or, in case of her decease, to her heirs at law.

History.—§30, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(7); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.30 Adopted child.—An adopted child, whether adopted under the laws of Florida or of any other state or country, shall be an heir at law, and for the purpose of inheritance, shall be regarded as a lineal descendant of his adopting parents, and the adopting parents shall inherit from the adopted child. The adopted child shall be regarded as the natural brother or sister of the natural children and other adopted children of the adopting parents for the purpose of inheritance from or by them. The adopted child shall inherit the estate of his blood parents, but his blood parents shall not inherit from the adopted child.

History.—§31, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(8); §1, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 28223, 1953.

731.31 Murderer.—Any person convicted of the murder of a decedent shall not be entitled to inherit from the decedent or to take any portion of his estate as a legatee or devisee. The portion of the decedent's estate to which such murderer would otherwise be entitled shall pass to the persons entitled thereto as though such murderer had died during the lifetime of the decedent.

History.—§32, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(9); §1, ch. 22783, 1945.

731.33 Escheat.—

(1) Whenever any person dies leaving property and without being survived by any person entitled to the same, such property shall escheat to the state.

(2) In any such case, or in any case where doubt exists as to the existence of any person entitled to the property, the personal representative shall, within one year after letters have been issued to him, institute a proceeding for the determination of beneficiaries as provided in this law, and citation shall be served upon the department of legal affairs of the state. If the personal representative fails to institute such proceeding within the time herein fixed, the same may be instituted by the department of legal affairs, and it is hereby made the duty of the department of legal affairs to secure from each county judge of the state, and the duty of each such county judge to furnish to the department, on or before January 15 of each year, a list of all estates being administered in such county judge's court wherein no person appears to be entitled to the assets thereof and in which the personal representative has instituted no proceedings for the determination of beneficiaries.

(3) If the county judge determines in such proceeding that there is no person entitled to the property and that the property escheats, said property shall, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the county judge, be sold and converted into money and paid to the treasurer of the state and by him deposited in the state school fund.

(4) Any person claiming to be entitled to the property of the decedent may, at any time within twenty years after the granting of letters, by petition filed with the county judge and service of citation upon the department of legal affairs, reopen the administration and assert his rights. If such claimant is determined to be entitled to any of the property of the decedent, the county judge shall by order fix the amount to which he is entitled, and the same shall be repaid to him without interest by the officials charged with the disbursement of state school funds. If no such claim is asserted in the manner and within the time herein fixed, the title of the state to such property and the proceeds thereof shall become absolute.

(5) The department of legal affairs shall represent the state in all proceedings with respect to escheated estates.

(6) Except as herein provided, escheated estates shall be administered as in other cases.

History.—§33, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5480(10), §1, ch. 21994, 1943; §1, ch. 22783, 1945; §§11, 35, ch. 69-106, cf.—§197.550, Disposition of unclaimed redemption funds. §734.25, Determination of beneficiaries.

731.34 Dower in realty and personalty.—Whenever the widow of any decedent shall not be satisfied with the portion of the estate of her husband to which she is entitled under the law of descent and distribution or under the will of her husband, or both, she may elect in the manner provided by law to take dower, which dower shall be one third in fee simple of the real property which was owned by her husband at the time of his death or which he had before conveyed, whereof she had not relinquished her right of dower as provided by law, and one third part absolutely of the personal property owned by her husband at the time of his death, and in all cases the widow's dower shall be free from liability for all debts of the decedent and all costs, charges and expenses of administration; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as exempting any personal property from liability for any debt secured by written assignment, pledge, mortgage or other security instrument mortgaging, assigning, or pledging, or otherwise granting, or imposing a lien upon, such personal property, whether or not possession of such property is delivered to such mortgagee, assignee, pledgee, or other security holder, and that nothing herein contained shall be construed as impairing the validity of any mortgage, pledge, assignment, or other lien so imposed or provided for in such security instrument, nor the rights therein created or provided for, and nothing herein contained shall be construed as impairing the validity of the lien of any duly recorded mortgage or the lien of any person in possession of personal property. The homestead shall not be included in the property subject to dower but shall descend as otherwise provided by law for the descent of homesteads. In any case where the dower interest of the widow shall have the effect of increasing the estate tax, her dower shall be ratably liable with the remainder of the estate for the estate taxes due by the estate of her deceased husband. Whenever the decedent has died intestate leaving no lineal descendants and the widow has duly elected dower, all property of the decedent not included in the widow's dower shall descend to her subject to the debts of the decedent except that the homestead of the decedent shall descend to her with the exemptions provided by the constitution.

cf.—§733.01, Possession of estate during administration.

§§733.09-733.14, Assignment of dower.

§734.041 Apportionment of estate taxes.

731.35 Election to take dower.—

(1) In order to take dower, a widow must so elect by an instrument in writing, signed by her and acknowledged or sworn to by her before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments or to administer oaths, and filed, within nine months after the first publication of the notice to creditors, in the office of the county judge in whose court the estate of the deceased husband is being administered. The county judge shall record all elections to take dower.

(2) Should the county judge extend the time for filing an objection to, or suit upon, the claim of a creditor, or should litigation occur involving a contested claim or the construction, admission to probate, or validity of the will, or on any other matter affecting such estate whereby the full and complete extent of estate assets subject to dower may be in doubt, the widow shall have seventy days from the date to which such extension of time for filing objection to such claim or the time for filing suit thereon is extended, or from the date of the final termination of all proceedings in all courts in any such litigation in which to elect to take dower.

(3) The guardian of a widow suffering under disabilities may, at any time during which the widow might have done so, file an election on behalf of the widow to take dower in lieu of the provisions of the will of her husband or under the law of descent and distribution, and thereupon the county judge shall grant or deny such election as the best interest of the widow may require.

731.36 Articles in addition to dower.—The widow of an intestate shall be entitled to receive and retain all wearing apparel and such household goods and farming utensils, provisions and clothing as may be necessary for her maintenance and that of the family, to be set apart by the county judge either upon her petition or upon the petition of the personal representative, with citation or notice to the other, special regard being had for the ability of the widow and children to provide for and maintain themselves. Such articles shall not be considered as part of the widow's dower or inheritance in any case.

History.—§38, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(1); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

cf.—§734.12, Jurisdiction in removal proceedings.

732.02 Court always open.—The court of the county judge, as a court of probate, shall be open at all times for the transaction of its business.

732.03 Power to enforce judgments.—In all cases where the county judge is authorized to enter orders, judgments or decrees, he may issue attachments of persons or property, executions, writs of possession, and all such other writs and orders as are necessary or appropriate to enforce such orders, judgments or decrees.

732.05 Substitution of circuit judge.—

(1) In the case of the disqualification, absence, sickness, or other disability of the county judge, any judge of the circuit court of the county may discharge all of the duties and powers of the county judge as a probate judge. In the event such circuit judge is disqualified, absent from the circuit, sick, or under other disability, then any other circuit judge in the state who is not disqualified, may discharge such duties and powers.

(2) The county judge, when disqualified for interest, shall file a certificate thereof. In no instance may he act as judge in any matter in which he is interested. Should he presume so to do, the circuit judge may, in his supervisory jurisdiction of probate matters, upon proper petition and short notice to the county judge, revise the action of the county judge.

(3) Sickness, absence, or disability of the county judge shall be conclusively evidenced by the certificate of the clerk of the county judge's court, or otherwise evidenced prima facie by the affidavit of any interested party. No decree or order of the circuit judge in probate reciting the disqualification, sickness, absence, or disability of the county judge shall be collaterally attacked.

(4) No county judge, while holding such office, shall act as personal representative of any estate any part of which is required to be administered in his own court; provided, however, a county judge, individually in his personal capacity, on his certificate of disqualification and on appointment and continued supervision by a judge of the circuit court acting as county judge, may serve as personal representative of the estate of his deceased spouse, adoptive parent, adopted child, or the estate of any decedent related to him by lineal consanguinity.

(2) Any interested person may, at his own cost and expense, have recorded as aforesaid any document or pleading filed in the office of the county judge; provided, that the cost of recording same shall not be taxed as costs against the estate unless so ordered by the county judge. A duly certified transcript of the whole or any part of probate or administration proceedings before any court of this state or of any foreign state or country may, upon the payment of appropriate fees, be filed or recorded in the office of any county judge of this state.

(3) All such record books shall be indexed as to the various estates and as to the subject matter therein, and shall be open to the inspection of all persons.

(4) All records, files, orders, judgments and decrees of any court of this state heretofore exercising probate jurisdiction shall be taken and held to be those of the county judge as if made or rendered by said judge, and shall be placed and remain in his custody. Copies thereof certified by the county judge shall be competent evidence.

(5) A progress docket of the proceedings in connection with each estate shall be kept by each county judge, in which docket shall be noted each pleading or document filed and each order entered, with notation of book and page of record of each writing recorded; and the residence and post-office address of each party who has designated same.

(6) County judges shall, upon request and payment of their fees, make and deliver certified copies of any pleading or document filed in their offices or of any of the records of their offices.

(7) County judges, in making certified copies of letters testamentary or of letters of administration, may upon request further certify, whenever such is the fact, that the letters so certified stand unrevoked at the date of the certificate; and such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of such fact.

(8) No county judge shall permit any paper, instrument, document, pleading or file to be removed from his office or custody except under circumstances named in this law or for purposes of taking testimony.

desired. It shall be filed before any process shall issue.

(3) DEFENSE.—Defenses shall be filed on or before the return day specified in the notice or citation. The answer shall, in short and simple manner, set up the facts constituting the defense.

(4) Upon the filing of a sufficient answer the cause shall be at issue, new matters being deemed denied; and the cause shall be tried at such early date as the county judge may direct.

(5) MOTIONS.—Either party may test the sufficiency of an adversary's pleading, or of any part thereof, by motion. Motions addressed to an answer shall be filed within ten days after the return day or within such other time as the county judge may in exceptional circumstances allow. Disposition of motions and all matters of amendment and pleading generally shall be in accordance with the direction of the county judge. Reasonable notice of not more than five days shall be given to the adversary or his counsel of the hearing of any motion. Ordinarily not more than ten days shall be allowed for further pleading.

(6) COPIES.—Copies of all pleadings shall be delivered or mailed to the adversary or his attorney.

(4) Service may be made without the state by any person, by the delivery to the person to be served of a true copy of the citation and of attached copy of the petition, and the return of service shall be by affidavit.

(5) Service shall be made upon a minor or insane person by the delivery of a true copy of the citation and of attached copy of petition to such minor or insane person and also to the person in whose care and custody such minor or insane person is.

(6) The return of service of citation in every case shall state the date when it was received by the person making the return, the date when it was served, the place of service, the name of the person served and the manner of service. Returns shall be amendable so as to speak the truth, upon application to the court issuing the process; and when amended shall be effective as of the date of the original return.

(7) (a) If personal service is impracticable, then upon order of the county judge so adjudicating, based upon an affidavit setting forth the reasons thereof, citation may be published once a week for four consecutive weeks, four publications being sufficient, in a newspaper published in the county where the court is located.

(b) Whenever publication of any citation, notice, pleading or other writing is required by any section of this law, and there is no newspaper conforming to the requirements of the laws of Florida in the county of the administration, then, in lieu of such publication in a newspaper, the same may be published by posting a true copy thereof at the courthouse and a true copy at each of two other public places in the county of the administration, such places to be prescribed by the county judge.

(c) Proof of publication or of posting shall be by affidavit and shall be filed in the office of the county judge.

(d) Citation to be published shall be substantially as follows:

(8) Service of citation or of any notice may be waived in writing by any party or person interested.

(9) If any person cited fails to file his defense to the petition within the time prescribed in the citation, or within such time as the county judge, under exceptional circumstances, may allow, then the matter shall proceed ex parte as to such person, and judgment may be entered in accordance with the right and justice of the case.

732.10 Service or publication when not otherwise provided.—Whenever any citation, notice, pleading or other writing is required by any section of this law to be served or published and the manner thereof is not specified in such section, such service or publication may be made as provided in this law for the service or publication of citations.

732.11 Duty to designate residence and post-office address.—

(1) Every creditor or claimant against the estate of a decedent and every heir, distributee, surviving spouse, legatee and devisee of such decedent shall file with the county judge of the county in which the estate of said decedent is in administration or in which such decedent's will may be probated a designation of the residence and post office address of such party, and, when there occurs a change of same, file likewise a designation of such change. Any party who has filed a claim, petition, answer, election or other pleading or appearance in any county judge's office in relation to any estate, without having made the aforesaid designation, shall be entitled to no notices whatever of any further proceedings with reference to such estate.

(2) Service of any citation or notice upon any party who has designated his residence and post office address as hereinabove required may, at the option of the moving party, be made by registered mail addressed to such party at the post office address designated. Proof of service by mailing may be by certificate of the county judge or by affidavit of the person mailing the citation or notice.

732.13 Depositions.—

(1) The testimony of any party or witness may be taken in probate proceedings by deposition de bene esse at any time either before or after issue under either of the following methods:

(a) Said testimony may be taken under the method prescribed in the "Florida rules of civil procedure."

(b) Said testimony may be taken before any notary public, not being of counsel or attorney for any of the parties, nor interested in the event of the proceedings. The depositions may be taken either upon oral interrogatories or upon written interrogatories furnished to the officer taking the depositions. Cross-interrogatories may likewise be either oral or written.

(2) Reasonable notice must first be given in writing by the party or attorney proposing to take such deposition to the opposite party or attorney, which notice shall state the names of the witnesses and the time and place of taking the testimony.

(3) The county judge shall upon application issue any necessary subpoenas running throughout the state to parties and witnesses who, upon being served, may be compelled to attend and testify as in other cases. The county judge may enforce this section by contempt or other proceedings.

(4) Any party failing to attend or to answer any lawful question or to subscribe the testimony given by him shall be liable, upon the motion of the opponent and certificate of the notary evidencing such default, to have his pleading stricken as sham and be placed in the same situation as if he had failed to file his pleading.

(5) Every witness or party deposing under this section shall be sworn to testify the whole truth. His testimony shall be reduced to writing or typewriting by the notary taking the deposition or by some person under his personal supervision and shall thereupon be subscribed by such witness or party unless subscription is waived.

(6) Every deposition taken under this section shall be retained by the magistrate taking it until he delivers it by mail or by his own hand into the court for which it is taken. Upon receipt by the court, depositions shall be filed and open to inspection of all parties. Each deposition shall contain the notice given and the certificate of the magistrate taking it, showing that he is not of counsel in the cause, not related to any of the parties and not interested in the event and showing compliance herewith.

(7) No deposition taken hereunder may be used upon the trial if it is made to appear that the deponent is within the county and able to testify at the time of trial, except that in such case any part of any deposition of any party may be used as an admission against interest, and also except that in such case any witness may be impeached by any part of any deposition.

cf.—§732.25, Commission to prove will.

732.14 Costs.—

(1) In all probate proceedings costs may be awarded in the discretion of the county judge, ordinarily abiding the result of each particular proceeding, but otherwise when it would be unjust that the failing party pay costs.

(2) When such costs are to be paid out of the estate, the county judge may, in his discretion, direct from what portion of the estate they shall be paid.

(3) An executor, being prima facie justified in offering a will, in due form, for probate, shall generally receive his costs and attorney's fees out of the estate, even though he is unsuccessful.

History.—§51, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(14); §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.15 Right of appeal.—All orders, judgments, and decrees of the county judge finally determining rights of any party in any particular proceedings in the administration of the estate of a decedent may, as a matter of right, be appealed to the appropriate district court of appeal except those appeals which may be taken direct to the supreme court as provided by §4, Art. V of the state constitution. Appeals provided by this section shall be governed by the Florida appellate rules including the right to supersedeas.

732.21 Curators.—

(1) The county judge, whenever it is necessary, sua sponte or upon the application of any person, may appoint a curator to take charge of the estate of any deceased person until letters are granted. If, however, the person entitled to letters is a resident of the county where the property is situated, no such curator shall be appointed until after such notice as the county judge may direct to such person so entitled to letters. Upon the appointment, the county judge shall direct the person in possession of the effects of the deceased forthwith to deliver them into the possession of the curator, and this order, when not obeyed promptly, may be enforced by attachment and imprisonment for contempt.

(2) If it is made to appear to the county judge, upon sworn petition, that there is great danger that said property or any portion of it is likely to be wasted, destroyed or removed beyond the jurisdiction of the court, and if the appointment of a curator would be delayed by giving the notice herein provided, then it shall be lawful for such judge to appoint a curator without first giving such notice.

(3) Upon special orders of the county judge from time to time, the curator may be authorized to perform any duty or function of an administrator or executor.

(4) Such bond shall be required of the curator as the county judge deems necessary to secure the property or proceeds, in case of sale, and the county judge may make an order for the sale of such portion of the property as should be sold; provided, however, that no such bond shall be required of banks and trust companies as curators.

(5) The curator shall file immediately an inventory of the property. When the personal representative qualifies, the curator shall immediately account to the personal representative and deliver to him all assets of the estate in his hands, and in default thereof shall be subject to the provisions of this law relating to removed executors or administrators.

(6) Curators shall be allowed such compensation for their services as the county judge deems reasonable.

732.22 Production of wills.—

(1) The custodian of a will, within ten days after receiving information that the testator is dead, must deposit such will with the county judge having jurisdiction of the estate of the decedent. Willful failure to do so shall render such custodian responsible for all costs and damages sustained by anyone, in the event the court finds that such custodian had no just or reasonable cause for withholding the deposit of said will.

(2) By petition and citation, the custodian of any will, after ten days' notice of the death of the testator, may be compelled to produce and deposit the same as aforesaid. In such proceedings all costs, damages and a reasonable attorney's fee shall be decreed to petitioner against such delinquent custodian, in the event the court finds that such custodian had no just or reasonable cause for withholding the deposit of said will.

732.23 Petition for probate of will.—

(1) Every petition for the probate of a will shall be sworn to by the petitioner, his agent or his attorney and shall contain statements to the best of the petitioner's information and belief showing:

(a) The domicile of the decedent at the time of his death;

(b) The date of his death;

(c) The approximate value of his estate;

(d) The residence or post-office address of the petitioner; and,

(e) The names, ages and residences of the surviving spouse and heirs at law of the decedent and their respective relationships to the decedent or averments showing that reasonable search has been made and that they cannot be ascertained without delay which would adversely affect the estate.

(2) No citation need be served before the probate of a will.

732.24 Proof of wills.—

(1) Last wills and testaments may be admitted to probate upon the oath of any attesting witness, taken before the county judge or before his clerk, or before a commissioner as provided in §732.25.

(2) When a will is offered for probate, if it appears to the court that the attesting witnesses have gone to parts unknown or are dead or have after its execution become incompetent or their testimony cannot be obtained within a reasonable time, it may be admitted to probate upon the oath, taken as above set forth, of the executor, whether he is interested in the estate or not, or of any person having no interest in the estate under the will, that he verily believes the writing exhibited to be the true last will and testament of the deceased.

History.—§61, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(60); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945; §5, ch. 22847, 1945.

732.25 Commission to prove will.—

(1) If any will is produced for probate and any witness attesting the same cannot without inconvenience appear before the county judge, the county judge may issue a commission to which such will or a photographic copy thereof is annexed, directed to any person who, by the laws of the state or country where such witness may be found, is authorized to administer an oath, empowering him to take proof of the attestation of such witness and certify same.

(2) If the person to whom such commission is directed duly certifies that the witness personally appeared and made written oath or affirmation, as the case may be (such written oath or affirmation to be attached to said certificate), as to the execution by the testator of the last will and testament, the original or photographic copy of which is annexed to such commission, such written oath or affirmation shall have the same operation and effect as if such written oath or affirmation had been made in the court whence the commission issued.

732.26 Effect of probate.—

(1) The will of any person who heretofore has died a resident of the state or any person who hereafter dies a resident of the state must be admitted to probate in an original proceeding in the state in order to establish its validity. Until so admitted to probate, such will shall be ineffective to convey title to, or the right to possession of, real or personal property of the testator; and, until such probate proceedings have been had, no personal representative shall acquire title to, or the right to possession of, any personal property owned by the decedent at the time of his death, notwithstanding that probate or administration proceedings have been had in some other state or country. None of the provisions of the two preceding sentences shall apply to or affect any will or any rights under any will admitted to probate in any other state or country prior to June 12, 1939. The title to personal property wheresoever situate of a person who hereafter dies a resident of the state shall not pass under his will to the legatee or legatees named or designated therein until after such personal property has been administered upon and distributed by the domiciliary personal representative of his estate; provided that this section shall not apply to any property as to which a valid order has been entered that no administration is necessary as to such property or as to the estate of which such property is a part.

(2) In any collateral suit or controversy relating to property, real or personal, thereby devised or bequeathed, the probate of a will in Florida, unless revoked or reversed upon appeal, shall be conclusive of the due execution of the will by a competent testator of his own free will and of the fact that such will, at the date of the testator's death, was unrevoked.

History.—§63, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(62); §1, ch. 19673, 1939; §2, ch. 22783, 1945; sub. §(1) am. §1, ch. 29892, 1955.

cf.—§732.32, Discovery of later will.

§732.38, Effect of prior foreign probate.

732.27 Establishment and probate of lost or destroyed will.—

(1) The establishment and probate of a lost or destroyed will shall be in one proceeding. Upon the probate of such a will, the county judge shall, as a part of his order admitting same to probate, recite, and thereby establish and preserve, the full and precise terms and provisions of such will.

(2) The petition for probate of a lost or destroyed will shall contain a copy of such will or the substance thereof. The testimony of each witness must be reduced to writing, signed by him and filed, and shall be evidence in any contest of the will if the witness has died or removed from the state.

(3) No probate of any lost or destroyed will shall be granted until citation has issued and been served upon those who, but for such will, would be entitled to the property thereby bequeathed or devised; or unless clearly and distinctly proved by the testimony of at least two disinterested witnesses, a correct copy being the equivalent of one witness.

History.—§64, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(63); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.
cf.—§732.32, Discovery of later will.

732.28 Notice of probate.—

(1) Upon the admission of a will to probate, the personal representative or any other interested party may, at his option, file in the office of the county judge a sworn statement containing the name and residence or post-office address of each legatee or devisee named in the will and of the surviving spouse and each heir at law of the decedent.

(2) Upon the filing thereof, the county judge shall cause to be duly mailed, postage prepaid, with the return address of the county judge upon each envelope, to each person named in said statement, a notice of the probate of said will. A certificate of such mailing shall be filed by the county judge.

(3) Thereupon, the county judge shall cause to be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the county, four publications being sufficient, a notice addressed to all persons interested, in substantially the following form:

In the County Judge's Court
 _____ County, Florida.
 Estate of _____, Deceased.

The State of Florida to all persons interested in the estate of said decedent:

You are hereby notified that a written instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said decedent has been admitted to probate in said court.

You are hereby commanded within six calendar months from the date of the first publication of this notice to appear in said court and show cause, if any you can, why the action of said court in admitting said will to probate should not stand unrevoked.

 County Judge
 _____ County, Florida.
 By _____
 Clerk

First publication on _____

(4) The expense of mailing and publication shall be advanced to the county judge by the moving party and shall be taxed as costs of administration, payable out of the assets of the estate.

(5) No person who has been served with citation upon the petition for probate or who has waived such citation need be notified hereunder; but such person shall be bound by the order admitting the will to probate, unless the probate is successfully appealed from. Any person may likewise waive notice of probate by an instrument in writing filed in the office of the county judge and such waiver shall bar any action for revocation of probate.

(6) If no petition for revocation of probate is filed within the time limited aforesaid, the order admitting such will to probate shall be conclusive without further order, upon proof of publication of notice of probate's being filed and recorded in the office of the county judge. No petition for revocation of probate may be maintained unless filed within said six-month period.

History.—§65, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(64); §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.281 Educational, charitable, and religious beneficiaries to be notified.—Upon the admission to probate of any will in which an educational, religious, or charitable institution is named as a beneficiary, the personal representative shall, by registered mail, forthwith notify each such institution that it is so named. The notice herein required shall designate the court in which the will has been admitted to probate, and shall give the name and address of the personal representative.

History.—§1, ch. 29779, 1955.

732.29 Caveat; proceedings.—

(1) If any state agency which is a creditor of the estate of a decedent is apprehensive that an estate, either testate or intestate, will be administered without its knowledge, or if any heir or distributee of the estate of a decedent is apprehensive that a will may be admitted to probate without his knowledge, such agency or person may file a caveat in the office of the county judge.

(2) No caveat shall be effective unless it contains a statement of the interest of the caveator in the estate, the name and specific residence address of the caveator, and, if the caveator is a nonresident of the county, the additional name and specific residence address of some person residing in the county, designated as the agent of the caveator, upon whom service of citation may be made. After the filing of same, the county judge shall not admit the will of such decedent to probate, or discharge the personal representative of said estate without the issuance of a citation to the caveator.

(3) Such citation shall be served either upon the caveator or upon his agent named in the caveat for service of citation, whichever is stated to be a resident of the county. Upon a return that after diligent search the caveator, if he is a resident, or his resident agent, if the caveator is a nonresident, cannot be found, the county judge may proceed to admit the will to probate upon the expiration of fifteen days after mailing copies of the citation and petition to the caveator and to his agent, if any is named in the caveat, at the respective residence addresses given. Certificate of mailing shall be filed in such instances by the county judge.

(4) Upon the return day of the citation, the caveator may answer the petition for probate. In his answer he shall therein set forth his interest in the estate and the facts constituting the grounds upon which probate of the will is opposed; and the court shall, upon the issue made and the proof adduced, probate the will or deny probate, according to the law and justice of the case.

(5) Unless a will is offered for probate within thirty days after the filing of a caveat, letters of administration may be granted to those entitled to administer. Should a will be offered for probate after such letters of administration have been granted, citation shall also issue upon the petition to the administrator.

History.—§66, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(65); §2, ch. 22783, 1945; §§1, 2, ch. 63-456.

732.30 Revocation of probate.—

(1) Any heir or distributee of the estate of a decedent, including legatees or devisees under a prior will, except those who have been served with citation before probate or who are barred under §732.29, may, at any time before final discharge of the personal representative, make application by petition to the court in which the probate of any will may have been granted, for revocation of such probate. The petition shall set forth the interest of the petitioner in such estate and the facts constituting the grounds upon which revocation is demanded.

(2) Citation to appear and defend shall be served upon the personal representative; and the county judge shall, upon the issues made and the proof adduced, confirm or revoke the probate according to the law and justice of the case.

(3) Any legatee, devisee or other person interested in the estate shall, upon application, be permitted to appear and prosecute or defend as though he were a party to the proceedings.

(4) Pending the determination of any issue made for revocation of probate, the personal representative shall proceed with the administration of the estate as if no such issue had been made, except that no distribution may be made to legatees or devisees in contravention of the rights of those who, but for such will, would be entitled to the property disposed of thereby.

(5) Revocation of probate of a will shall not affect or impair the title to the property, real or personal, theretofore purchased in good faith for value from the executor or administrator with the will annexed.

History.—§67, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(66); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.31 Burden of proof in contests.—In all proceedings contesting the validity of a purported will, whether before or after such will is admitted to probate, the burden of proof, in the first instance, shall be upon the proponent thereof to establish, prima facie, the formal execution and attestation thereof, whereupon the burden of proof shall shift to the contestant to establish the facts constituting the grounds upon which the probate of such purported will is opposed or revocation thereof is sought.

History.—§68, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(67); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.32 Discovery of later will.—Upon the discovery, pending probate proceedings, of a later will or codicil expressly revoking the probated will or impliedly revoking the same in whole or in part, any person interested may by petition offer same for probate. The proceedings shall be, as nearly as practicable, similar to those for revocation of probate generally.

History.—§69, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(68); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.33 Discovery of will after settlement of estate.—

(1) Upon the discovery, after the termination of administration or probate proceedings and the discharge of the personal representative, of an unknown will or a later will or codicil expressly revoking the probated will or impliedly revoking the same in whole or in part, any one or more persons interested may, by suit in equity, impress a trust upon the funds or property received by an heir, legatee or distributee in the administration or probate proceedings recently terminated which, because of the newly discovered will, such recipient is not justly entitled to retain. All persons interested under the newly discovered will and all heirs, legatees or distributees under the former proceedings whose rights are affected by such new will may be made parties to one proceeding. A receiver of any or all of the property may be appointed. It shall be no objection to the complaint that it is multifarious. Such heir, legatee or distributee shall be held to account, not for the value of any such property spent or consumed by him, but only for the property actually remaining in his hands in its original form or as it may be traced into other form or property.

(2) Such proceedings shall neither invalidate any acts of the personal representatives theretofore performed in good faith nor affect the rights of bona fide purchasers for value of any of the property of the estate; nor shall any such proceeding be brought after three years from the date of the discharge of the personal representative.

History.—§70, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(69); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945; §2, ch. 29737, 1955.

732.34 Probate of will written in foreign language.—

(1) The petition for the probate of a will written in a foreign language shall contain a true and complete English translation of the will. No probate of any will written in a foreign language shall be granted without citation to the surviving spouse, heirs at law of the testator and all beneficiaries under the will.

(2) Upon the probate of such a will, the county judge shall, in his order admitting the will to probate, establish the correct translation thereof. If possible, the original will shall also be recorded by the county judge in its original form. Any person affected may at any time and from time to time, during the administration of the estate, by petition and by the citation of all interested persons, have the correctness of the translation or of any portion thereof redetermined. No executor shall be held responsible for compliance at the time being with the English translation of the will as then established by the county judge's order.

History.—§71, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(70); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.35 Probate of will of resident after foreign probate.—

(1) In the event that the will of any person who heretofore has died a resident of this state or of any person who hereafter dies a resident of this state is, through inadvertence, error or omission, admitted to probate in any other state or country prior to the probate thereof in this state, the same may be established and admitted to probate in this state if the original thereof might have been admitted to probate in this state, in like manner as though said will had been lost or destroyed, and the proceedings for the establishment and probate thereof shall, in all matters, be as nearly as possible similar to like proceedings in connection with the establishment and probate of lost or destroyed wills.

(2) An exemplified or a certified copy of such will, of the foreign order of probate and of the letters, if any, issued thereon, shall be filed in the office of the county judge where application is made for probate of such will, in lieu of the original will; and the same shall be prima facie evidence of its execution and admission to foreign probate.

(3) Any person cited may oppose the probate of such will as in the case of the original probate of a will in this state. Any person interested adversely may apply for the revocation of the probate of such will in this state as in the case of the original probate of a will in this state.

History.—§72, ch. 16103, 1933; §2, ch. 17171, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(71); §1, ch. 19674, 1939; am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.36 Foreign probate prior to local probate of estate of resident decedent prohibited.—

(1) From and after the effective date of this section no person or corporation shall procure, or aid, abet or assist another in procuring, the probate of the estate or will of a person who heretofore has died a resident of this state or of a person who hereafter dies a resident of this state, in any other state or country prior to the probate of such estate or will in this state.

(1) When a copy of a notarial will in the possession of a notary entitled to the custody thereof, in a foreign state or country (the laws of which state or country require that such will remain in the custody of such notary), duly authenticated by such notary, whose official position, signature and seal of office are further authenticated by an American consul, vice-consul or other American consular officer within whose jurisdiction such notary may be a resident, is presented by the executor or other person interested to the county judge having jurisdiction as prescribed by this law, the same may be admitted to probate if the original might have been admitted to probate in this state.

(2) Such duly authenticated copy shall be filed in the office of the county judge where application is made for probate thereof in lieu of the original will; and the same shall be prima facie evidence of its purported execution and of the facts stated in the certificate in compliance with the preceding subsection.

(3) Any person cited may oppose the probate of such foreign will as in the case of the original probate of a will in this state. Any person interested adversely may apply for revocation of probate of such foreign will as in the case of the original probate of a will in this state. (2) Upon the probate of a nuncupative will, the county judge shall, as a part of his order admitting same to probate, recite, and thereby establish and preserve, the full and precise terms and provisions of such will.

History.—§76, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(75); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

The county judge in whose court the will has been probated shall have jurisdiction to entertain direct proceedings for the construction of such will or any part thereof. 732.43 Petition for letters of administration.—

(1) Every petition for letters of administration shall be sworn to by the petitioner, his agent or his attorney and shall contain statements to the best of petitioner's information and belief, showing the domicile of the decedent at the time of his death, the date of his death, the approximate value of the estate of the decedent, the residence and post-office address of the petitioner, and a statement that the decedent died intestate, and, if the decedent was a nonresident, whether there is a domiciliary administration pending or not, and if so, the name and post-office address of the domiciliary personal representative.

(2) Every such petition shall contain either a statement of the names, ages and residences of the surviving spouse and heirs at law of the decedent and their respective relationships to decedent, or averments showing that reasonable search has been made and that such information cannot be ascertained without delay which would adversely affect the estate.

(3) No citation need be served or notice given of the granting of letters of administration when it appears by the petition that the petitioner is entitled to preference of appointment; but, before letters shall be granted to any person who is not entitled to preference, citation shall issue to all known persons qualified to act as administrator and entitled to preference over the person applying, unless those entitled to preference waive same in writing.

History.—§79, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(22); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.44 Preference in appointment of administrator.—In the granting of letters of administration, the following preference shall be observed:

(1) The surviving spouse shall first be entitled to letters.

(2) The next of kin, at the time of the death of the decedent, shall next be entitled to letters.

(3) If there are several next of kin, equally near in degree, the one selected in writing by a majority of them who are sui juris shall be appointed. If no such selection is thus made, the county judge may exercise his discretion in selecting the one best qualified for the office.

(4) If no application is made by the next of kin, the county judge in his discretion, may appoint some capable person, but no person may be appointed under this subsection who works for such county judge or who holds public office under such county judge, nor any person who is employed by or holds office under any judge exercising probate jurisdiction.

(5) Persons entitled to an estate may select a disinterested person as administrator; and if such person is otherwise qualified, he shall be appointed.

(6) After letters of administration have been granted, if any person who is entitled to preference over the person appointed and upon whom citation was not served and who has not waived his preference seeks the appointment, letters granted may be revoked, and such person may have letters of administration granted to him after citation and hearing upon his application.

(7) After letters of administration have been granted, if any will is produced and pro-bated, the aforesaid letters shall be revoked and letters testamentary shall be granted to the executor of said will, or letters of administration cum testamento annexo shall be granted, if there is no executor ready and willing to qualify, preference being given to the person, if otherwise qualified, who is selected by the persons beneficially interested in the estate. No such will shall be probated without citation to the administrator.

History.—§80, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(23); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945; am. §1, ch. 23722, 1947.

732.45 Individuals who may be appointed personal representatives; resident agents.—

(1) Any person sui juris who is a citizen of the United States and a resident of Florida at the time of the death of the person whose estate he seeks to administer is qualified to act as personal representative in Florida. However, a person who has been convicted of a felony or who, from sickness, intemperance or want of understanding is incompetent to discharge the duties of a personal representative, is not qualified to act as personal representative.

(2) Before any personal representative, resident or nonresident of Florida, except corporate fiduciaries, shall be issued letters upon any estate, such a personal representative shall have his place of residence and post-office address recorded in the office of the county judge of the county in which the administration is pending, and he shall designate some resident of the county as his agent or attorney for the service of process, whose name, residence and post-office address shall also be likewise recorded. Such designation, in whatever form it may be, shall be taken to constitute the consent of the person so designating that service of any process upon the designated agent or attorney shall be sufficient to bind the person so designating in any suit or action against such personal representative, either in his representative capacity or personally; provided that such personal action must have accrued in the administration of such estate. The designation must be in writing and must be filed in the office of the county judge; provided, however, the written designation may be made in the form of an appropriate allegation to such effect set forth in the petition for letters of administration or petition for letters testamentary.

History.—§81, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(24); §2, ch. 22783, 1945; §6, ch. 22847, 1945; (2) §1, ch. 65-206.

732.46 Minor not qualified.—

(1) No person who is less than twenty-one years of age shall be qualified or permitted to act as an executor or administrator. If a minor is named as executor in any last will and testament, letters testamentary shall be granted to the other executor or executors, if any is named in said will; if none other is named, letters of administration with the will annexed shall be granted to the next of kin or to such other person as the judge shall appoint according to the provisions of this law, until said minor comes of full age, when he may have letters testamentary as the executor if otherwise qualified. In such case, the letters of administration, if any have been granted, shall be revoked, and the said administrator shall render a true and faithful account of his administration to the county judge's court and surrender the estate to the said executor.

(2) The executor in such cases shall be entitled to all rights and proceedings provided for in this law for compelling an accounting from removed personal representatives.

History.—§82, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(25); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

732.47 Nonresidents.—

(1) A person who is not an actual bona fide resident of the state cannot qualify as a personal representative of an estate in Florida, unless such person is a legally adopted child of the decedent, an adoptive parent or is related by lineal consanguinity to the decedent or is a spouse or a brother, sister, uncle, aunt, nephew or niece of the decedent. However, any person who has qualified in Florida as a personal representative prior to the effective date of this law may continue to serve in such capacity.

(2) Before any nonresident of Florida shall be issued letters upon any estate, such nonresident shall have his residence and postoffice address recorded in the office of the county judge of the county in which the administration is pending, and shall designate some resident of said county as his agent or attorney for the service of process, whose name, residence, and postoffice address shall also be likewise recorded. Such designation, in whatever form it may be, shall be taken to constitute the consent of the person so designating that service of any process upon the designated agent or attorney shall be sufficient to bind the person so designating in any suit or action against such personal representative, either in his representative capacity or personally, provided, that such personal action must have accrued in the administration of such estate. Such designation must be in writing and must be filed in the office of the county judge.

(3) Any qualified personal representative appointed after May 27, 1947, who becomes disqualified to act as such after his appointment immediately thereupon shall file, in the court where his letters were granted, his petition for resignation pursuant to the terms and provisions of §734.09, and immediately thereupon shall present said petition to said court and do any and all other things necessary or proper to procure an order approving such resignation.

(4) Anything contained in any will of a person who hereafter dies a resident of the state to the contrary notwithstanding, it shall be and constitute a violation of this section for any person or corporation to apply for or act under any letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed issued in any other state or country for or in respect of personal property of a person who hereafter dies a resident of the state and which is located elsewhere than in the state, solely because of the fact that the will of such testator purports to name, constitute or appoint such person or corporation as a purported executor or administrator with the will annexed, when such person or corporation is not qualified to receive and act under domiciliary letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed issued in the state.

(5) Any person who fails to comply with or who acts or continues to act in violation of any of the terms and provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, be fined not to exceed one hundred dollars for each day his appointment as such personal representative remains in effect contrary to any of the terms and provisions of this section.

732.49 Trust companies and other corporations.—

(1) All trust companies incorporated under the laws of the state and all national banking associations authorized and qualified to exercise fiduciary powers in Florida shall be entitled to act as personal representatives and curators of estates under the laws of the state.

(2) When any such corporation has been named as an executor in a will and thereafter sells its business and assets to, or consolidates or merges with, or is in any manner provided by law succeeded by, another such corporation, the successor corporation may, upon the death of the testator, qualify, and the county judge may issue letters to the successor corporation unless the will provides otherwise.

(3) A corporation authorized and qualified to act as a personal representative resulting from merger or consolidation shall, upon filing proof thereof in the county judge's court and without a new appointment, succeed to the rights and duties of all predecessor corporations as the personal representatives of estates. A purchase of substantially all the assets and the assumption of substantially all the liabilities shall be deemed a merger for the purpose of this section.

732.50 Joint executors and administrators.—If several executors are named in a will, one or more qualifying shall be entitled to execute all the powers and trusts confided to all in the will unless especially prohibited by the will; if more than one qualify, all must join in discharging the functions of executor unless the county judge gives special authority to one or more of such executors to discharge such functions. Each executor shall be responsible only for his own acts, unless by his own act or gross negligence he has enabled or permitted his coexecutor to waste the estate. The foregoing shall likewise apply to joint administrators.

732.51 Effect of appointment of debtor or creditor.—The appointment of a debtor or of a creditor as personal representative shall not, either in law or in equity, be construed to operate as a release or extinguishment of the debt due to or by the decedent. This section shall not be construed to prevent a testator from releasing a debtor by last will and testament.

History.—§87, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(30); am. §2, ch. 22783, 1945.

The county judge shall, without notice, appoint a guardian ad litem to represent any infant or person non compos mentis where there is no legal guardian appointed or qualified in this state, or where such guardian is interested in his own right, and to represent any unknown person interested in the estate. A guardian ad litem shall, upon appointment, make and file an oath to discharge his duties faithfully. Whenever the facts authorizing such appointment appear of record or are otherwise made known to the court, the court shall without notice appoint such administrator ad litem. The administrator ad litem shall, upon appointment, make and file an oath to discharge his duties faithfully, and said proceeding shall then be further maintained, prosecuted or defended, insofar as said estate is concerned, by said administrator ad litem and in his name as such.

732.58 Compensation of administrator ad litem.—An administrator ad litem shall be allowed such compensation for his services as the judge in whose court the proceeding is pending deems just and reasonable, and the same shall be taxed as costs in the case unless the court thinks it equitable that the same should be paid out of the assets of the estate without reference to prevailing or losing parties in the cause.

Said bond shall be payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned to perform faithfully all duties as such personal representative according to law. In form the bond must be joint and several.

The personal representative shall take possession of the real and personal property within the state of a person who hereafter dies a resident of some other state or country, and the rents, income, issues and profits therefrom whether accruing before or after the death of the decedent, and of the proceeds arising from the sale, lease or mortgage of the same or any part thereof. All such property and the rents, income, issues and profits therefrom shall be assets in the hands of the personal representative for the payment of legacies, debts, family allowance, estate and inheritance taxes, claims, charges and expenses of administration, and to enforce contribution and to equalize advancement and for distribution.

(2) The net income earned by the assets of the estate after the death of the testator, and prior to the distribution of the estate, and not used for the purposes set forth in subsection (1) above shall in the absence of specific provision in the will to the contrary be paid and applied as follows:

(a) To either specific or demonstrative legatees and devisees the net income from the property specifically or demonstratively bequeathed and devised to them respectively;

(b) To general legatees, legal interest on their respective legacies from the time fixed by the county judge in an order of distribution for the payment thereof, or if no date is fixed by the county judge, from and after thirty days from the entry of such order of distribution, except that where the general legacy provides that the net income therefrom shall be paid to or for the benefit of or accumulated for one or more beneficiaries, then such general legatee or legatees shall be entitled to that proportion of the net income which the general legacy at appraised value bears to the appraised value of the entire probate estate, excluding specific and demonstrative legacies and devises, provided, however, that the appraised value shall be the court appraisal unless a United States estate tax return is required to be filed, in which event the appraised value shall be the value finally determined for such tax purposes.

(c) To the residuary legatees and devisees, all the rest and remainder of the net income earned after the death of the testator not hereinabove applied.

(3) If any part of the estate is bequeathed or devised to a trustee the proportion of the net income applied to such bequest or devise shall be paid by the executor to such trustee and shall be held and distributed by the trustee as income.

Heirs and devisees of the decedent may themselves, or jointly with the personal representative, bring and maintain actions or suits for the possession or recovery of real property of the estate or for the purpose of quieting title thereto against anyone except the personal representative. In any suit to quiet title brought by an heir or devisee, the possession of the personal representative shall, for the purpose of such suit, be deemed the possession of the heir or devisee. In all actions or suits involving the title to real property, against an estate for the possession or recovery of real property or for the purpose of quieting title thereto, the personal representative and the heirs or devisees of such property shall be made parties.

733.08 Continuance of business of decedent.—

(1) In every case where a person has died while engaged in any trade or business, the county judge may authorize the curator or the personal representative of the estate of such deceased person to continue and carry on such trade or business for a reasonable time under the supervision of the county judge and require such security or additional security of such curator or personal representative as the county judge may deem proper.

(2) Before any order shall be made authorizing the continuance of the trade or business of the deceased person, the curator or the personal representative of such estate, by a verified petition, shall affirmatively and clearly allege and set forth sufficient facts to make it appear to the county judge that, to prevent great loss to the estate, it is necessary to continue such trade or business of the deceased.

(3) The order of the county judge authorizing the continuance of such trade or business of the deceased may empower the curator or the personal representative of such estate, in his representative capacity, to make such contracts as may be necessary to carry on and conduct such trade or business and to incur debts and to pay out money in the proper conduct of such trade or business, and the net profits of such trade or business only shall be assets of the said estate.

(4) In the conduct of such trade or business the curator or the personal representative shall keep full and accurate accounts of all receipts and expenditures, he shall make monthly reports thereof to the county judge, and he shall be allowed such compensation as the county judge may deem reasonable for his services in conducting such trade or business.

(5) Any person interested in the said estate at any time may apply to the county judge of the county where such order has been granted for an order requiring the curator or the personal representative of such estate to discontinue and to wind up the said trade or business, and upon due notice to the said curator or personal representative, such application shall be heard, and the county judge shall make such order thereon as he deems for the best interest of said estate.

History.—§113, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5507(4); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.10 Petition for assignment.—For the purpose of enabling the personal representative to lay off and assign dower, he shall file a petition therefor in the county judge's court in which the administration of the estate of the decedent is pending. Citation shall be served upon the widow and the heirs, devisees, legatees and distributees, or such of them as do not appear and join in the proceedings.

History.—§114, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5507(5); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.11 Petition by widow for assignment of dower.—

(1) If the personal representative fails to file a petition for the assignment of dower, the widow may file such petition, setting forth her claim, specifying as particularly as may be known to her the property in which she claims dower and praying for the assignment of the same. Citation shall be served upon the personal representative, the heirs, devisees, legatees and distributees, or such of them as do not appear and join in the proceedings.

(2) The widow may in addition file her extraordinary petition or petitions for assignment of dower in the county judge's court of any county or counties in this state where any lands lie which her husband had before conveyed, whereof she had not relinquished her right of dower as provided by law. Citations shall be served upon all persons adversely interested. Proceedings thereupon shall be, as nearly as possible, similar to those for the ordinary assignment of dower.

History.—§115, ch. 16103, 1933; §7, ch. 17171, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5507(6); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.12 Proceedings on the petition.—

(1) The proceedings upon any petition for assignment of dower shall be informal and summary.

(2) On any petition for assignment of dower, the right of dower as well as the admeasurement thereof, shall be determined, and mesne profits from the date of the death of the decedent shall be included in the judgment. The county judge in whose court the administration of the decedent's estate is pending shall have plenary jurisdiction to assign dower in all property, real or personal, located in any county in the state. But no such judgment shall become effective in any other county until a duly certified copy thereof has been recorded in such other county in the judgment lien record.

(3)(a) Upon written demand of any party filed at least one week before trial, the question of right of dower shall be submitted to a jury of six persons.

(b) If there are not sufficient number of jurors available, the court shall draw from the box to be immediately summoned by the sheriff, or shall direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of qualified jurors, to complete the panel for the trial of such cause.

733.13 Commissioners.—If a judgment for dower is made, the county judge shall select (unless selected by mutual agreement of the parties) and appoint as commissioners three suitable persons who are entirely disinterested and not connected with the parties either by consanguinity or by affinity. Such commissioners may employ a surveyor and shall be allowed such sum as may be deemed reasonable by the county judge to be paid as part of the costs of administration of the estate. They may be removed by the county judge for good cause shown and others appointed in their places. They shall proceed, immediately upon taking oaths faithfully and impartially to execute the trust imposed in them, to allot and set off the widow's dower. All matters of mesne profits shall be decided by the court upon the pleadings and evidence; provided, however, that when the interested parties agree to the allotment of dower, or when the assets are of such value and such a nature that dower may be allotted without the appointment of commissioners, the county judge may, in his discretion, dispense with such appointment and set off and allot dower.

History.—§117, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5507(8); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 29714, 1955.

733.14 Final judgment.—In all cases of assignment of dower, the county judge to whom application is made shall, upon hearing after notice, confirm, reject or modify the allotment or assignment made. Such judgment shall vest in the widow a fee simple estate in the lands and the absolute ownership of the personal property allotted. She shall be entitled to writ of possession if necessary.

History.—§118, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5507(9); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.15 Notice to creditors.—Every personal representative, after taking out letters testamentary or of administration, shall cause a notice to be published once a week for four consecutive weeks, four publications being sufficient, in a newspaper published in the county wherein said letters have been granted, notifying all persons having claims or demands against the estate of the decedent to file their claims in the office of the county judge granting such letters, at his office in the courthouse of said county, within six calendar months from the time of the first publication of said notice. If no newspaper conforming to the requirements of law is published in the county of the administration, then such publication shall be made by posting as provided for in this law. Proof of said publication or posting shall be filed with and recorded by the county judge.

History.—§119, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(91); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §2, ch. 61-394.

733.16 Form and manner of presenting claims; limitation.—

(1) No claim or demand, whether due or not, direct or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, or claim for personal property in the possession of the personal representative or for damages, including but not limited to actions founded upon fraud or other wrongful act or commission of the decedent, shall be valid or binding upon an estate, or upon the personal representative thereof, or upon any heir, legatee or devisee of the decedent unless the same shall be in writing and contain the place of residence and post-office address of the claimant, and shall be sworn to by the claimant, his agent or attorney, and be filed in the office of the county judge granting letters. Any such claim or demand not so filed within six months from the time of the first publication of the notice to creditors shall be void even though the personal representative has recognized such claim or demand by paying a portion thereof or interest thereon or otherwise; and no cause of action, at law or in equity, heretofore or hereafter accruing, including but not limited to actions founded upon fraud or other wrongful act or omission, shall survive the death of the person against whom such claim may be made, whether suit be pending at the time of the death of such person or not, unless such claim be filed in the manner and within the said six months as aforesaid;

(a) Provided, however, that if suit upon any such claim or demand is filed and service of process therein had upon such personal representative within six months from the time of the first publication of the notice to creditors, the claim or demand asserted by such suit shall not be impaired or affected by failure to file in the office of the county judge granting letters a claim or demand in manner and form as hereinabove provided, but such failure shall operate to preclude the plaintiff in such suit from recovering any suit costs or attorneys fees as an incident thereto; and the personal representative shall file in the office of the county judge granting letters a suggestion of the pendency of such suit and the same shall be entered on the claim docket;

(b) Provided further, that the lien of any duly recorded mortgage and the lien of any person in possession of personal property and the right to foreclose and enforce such mortgage or lien shall not be impaired or affected by failure to file claim or demand as hereinabove provided, but such failure shall bar the right to enforce any personal liability against the estate, and the claimant shall be limited to the enforcement of the mortgage or lien against the specific property so mortgaged or held. Any suit heretofore commenced and in which service of process was had upon the personal representative within the period hereinabove specified, and which may now be pending in any court against the personal representative of any estate which has not been finally closed, shall not be subject to attack upon the ground that the claim or demand upon which such suit is based was not made in manner and form and filed in the office of the county judge granting letters, as otherwise hereinabove provided.

(c) Provided further that a creditor shall deliver a copy of such claims as recorded and filed to the county judge, who shall forthwith mail said copy to the personal representative, and note on the original such fact of mailing.

(d) Provided, further, no claims or demand of any kind or nature shall be impaired or affected by failure to file claim or demand as hereinabove provided, to the extent that such claim or demand is secured by any casualty insurance, surety insurance, automobile or public liability insurance, or other similar insurance, but failure to file such claim or demand as hereinabove provided shall bar the right to enforce any personal liability of the deceased against the estate except to the extent of such insurance.

(2) Nothing herein contained shall be construed to require any legatee, devisee or heir at law to file a claim, as provided for in subsection (1), for the share or interest in an estate to which he may be entitled. Nor shall such requirement of filing a claim apply to those items contained in §733.20(1)(a),(b),(d),(i) and (j), but it shall apply to those items contained in §733.20(1)(c),(e),(f),(g) and (h).

(3) Any claim filed in any estate during the period of time between July 1, 1961, and July 1, 1963, which was filed within eight months from the first publication of notice to creditors but after six months from the first publication of notice to creditors, may, upon just cause shown to the county judge, be allowed as if it had been filed within six months from the first publication of notice to creditors provided there had not been an order of final distribution entered prior to the actual filing of the claim or the effective date hereof and the claimant can show to the satisfaction of the county judge that the allowance of the claim as though properly filed within six months from the first publication of the notice to creditors will not materially adversely affect the orderly administration of the estate. Provided further the time for filing suit upon objections filed to claims filed under this section is extended to July 1, 1963.

History.—§120, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(92); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 22889, 1945; §1, ch. 23970, 1947; §1, ch. 57-194; §3, ch. 61-394; §1, ch. 63-309; §1, ch. 67-246; §1, ch. 67-490.

cf.—§733.35, Mortgages.

§§734.27-734.29, Suspension of statutes of limitations.

733.17 Amendment of claims.—If a bona fide attempt to file a claim is made by any creditor or other claimant but it is defective as to form, the county judge in his discretion may permit the amendment of such claim at any time before payment.

History.—§121, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(93); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.18 Payment of and objections to claims.

(1) No personal representative shall be compelled to pay the debts of the decedent until after the expiration of six calendar months from the granting of letters; and if any person brings any suit or action against any personal representative within said six calendar months upon any claim to which the personal representative has filed no objection, the plaintiff, although he obtains decree or judgment, shall not receive any costs of suit or attorneys' fees, nor shall such judgment change the class of such claim in any manner.

(2) On or before the expiration of eight calendar months from the first publication of notice to creditors any personal representative or other person interested in the estate may file in the office of the county judge written objection to any claim or demand filed. An objection filed to any unmatured claim matures the same for the purpose of the establishment of the validity and amount thereof by suit. If objection is filed, the person filing it shall, forthwith, but not later than thirty days after same has been filed, serve a copy of such objection by registered mail or personal service on the creditor or claimant to whose claim he objects and also on the personal representative if the objection is filed by any interested person other than the personal representative. Failure to serve copy of such objection as herein provided shall constitute an abandonment of the objection unless the time for service thereof be extended by the county judge for good cause shown. The creditor or claimant shall thereupon be limited to two calendar months from the date of such service within which to bring appropriate suit, action or proceedings upon such claim or demand. The county judge for good cause shown may extend the time for filing objection to any claim or demand or the time for serving such objection, and may likewise for good cause shown extend the time for filing appropriate suit, action or proceedings upon any such claim after objection is filed; but in any of said instances, said extension of time shall be granted only after due notice of such application. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought against any personal representative after the time limited above. If objection is filed to the claim of any creditor and suit is brought by the creditor to establish his claim or demand, a judgment establishing such claim shall give it no priority over claims of the same general class to which it belongs.

(3) No interest shall be paid by the personal representative or allowed upon the claim of any creditor against the estate of a decedent until the expiration of eight calendar months from the granting of letters unless said claim is founded upon a written obligation of the decedent expressly providing for the payment of interest. Interest shall be allowed and paid by the personal representative upon written obligations of the decedent expressly providing for the payment of interest. Upon all other claims interest shall be allowed and paid beginning eight months from said granting of letters.

History.—§122, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(94); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 28209, 1953; §1, ch. 61-394; §1, ch. 63-454.

cf.—§1.01 Defines registered mail to include certified mail with return receipt requested.

733.19 Execution and levies prohibited.—No execution shall issue upon or be levied under any judgment against a decedent or against the personal representative, nor shall any levy be made against any property, real or personal, of the estate of a decedent. Claims upon all judgments against the decedent shall be filed in the same manner as other claims against estates of decedents; provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the enforcement of mortgages, pledges, liens or claims to specific property, real or personal.

History.—§123, ch. 16103, 1933; §8, ch. 17171, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(95); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.20 Order of payment of expenses of administration and claims against the estate; family allowance.—

(1) The personal representative shall pay the expenses of administration and claims against the estate in the following order:

(a) Class one. Costs, expenses of administration, compensation of personal representatives and their attorneys' fees.

(b) Class two. Reasonable funeral expenses not to exceed the sum of seven hundred fifty dollars, any excess over the sum allowed herein for funeral expenses shall be considered as included in the payments specified to be made in class eight.

(c) Class three. Expenses of last illness of the decedent, including debts for board and lodging, for hospital, physicians, surgeons, and druggists' bills, and for nursing, attendance and medicine during the last sickness of the deceased, incurred within a period of sixty days prior to the death of the decedent.

(d) Class four. If necessary for support, a family allowance of one year's support for the widow or minor, mentally or physically incompetent children of said decedent, or both such widow and children, in addition to the homestead and exempt personal property. Upon petition of the widow, if any, or of the legal guardian or of the person having the care and custody of a minor child or children, upon notice to the personal representative, a reasonable allowance shall be fixed by the county judge in personal property or money, or both, for the support of said widow and minor children, considering the needs of the family and the value of the estate. Said allowance or the portion payable in money shall be payable in equal periodic payments to be fixed by the county judge and shall be payable to the widow, if any, for the support of herself and the minor child or children, if any. If there is no widow, then the same shall be payable to the legal guardian or to the person having the care and custody of any minor child or children. Upon the petition of any person interested in the estate, the county judge may increase, decrease, discontinue or modify the allowance; but in no event shall such allowance exceed the sum or value of twelve hundred dollars.

(e) Class five. Wages to the extent of one hundred dollars for each employee of the decedent, for work done or services rendered within sixty days prior to the death of the employer.

(f) Class six. Judgments of record in this state during the lifetime of the decedent.

(g) Class seven. Mortgages, mechanics', material-men's, laborers', employees' and other liens where the value of the property of the estate encumbered by said liens exceeds the amount thereof.

(h) Class eight. All other debts without distinction of rank.

(i) Class nine. If, upon petition of the widow or minor children of decedent, upon notice to the personal representative, it shall appear that the family allowance provided under paragraph (d) of this subsection is insufficient for the reasonable support of said widow or minor children, or both, according to their previous standard of living, then the county judge may order the payment of a supplemental family allowance from the assets of decedent's estate remaining after full provision for payment of prior claims, which in his opinion will reasonably support said petitioners; provided, however, that such supplemental allowance shall not exceed the sum of three thousand dollars. Said supplemental allowance shall be payable in such manner as the county judge shall direct, and shall be subject to discontinuance or modification in the same manner as the family allowance provided for under paragraph (d) hereof.

(j) Class ten. In case the decedent, dying testate, leaves a natural or adopted child less than eighteen years of age without a legally responsible surviving natural or adoptive parent and without adequate means for support and maintenance in its own right by will, gift or trust, such child shall be deemed a dependent orphan child of the decedent. In addition to any temporary allowance for maintenance during the period of administration as provided by paragraph (d) hereof, the court, on petition of any interested party or on its own motion, shall make such additional provision for such child until its eighteenth birthday as the court deems reasonable and just, subject to the limitations hereinafter set forth. The court may increase, discontinue or modify such allowance, but before entering any order fixing or changing any allowance hereunder the court shall require notice to all interested parties. This provision is designed to afford reasonable protection to any dependent minor child who has been excluded from the provisions of the parents' will under circumstances which deprive it of an effective legal substitute for the continuing obligation of the parent, while living, for support and maintenance during the period of its minority. It is not intended that this provision should have the effect of creating in any child omitted from the provisions of its parent's will an estate which would exceed the value of its distributive share had the deceased parent died intestate. The court in its discretion, and in order to conclude the administration of the estate, may order the entire allowance hereunder paid in a lump sum to a guardian of the child's property, and in fixing the amount thereof the court shall consider the net value of the estate subject to distribution and the reasonable requirements of the child prospectively in relation to its eighteenth birthday.

(2) If, after paying any preceding class, the estate shall be insufficient to pay all of the next succeeding class, the creditors or claimants of the latter class shall be paid ratably in proportion to their respective claims.

733.21 Compromise and settlement.—Whenever it is proposed to compromise or settle any claim, whether in suit or not, by or against the estate of a decedent or the personal representative thereof, or to compromise or settle any question or dispute concerning the distribution of a decedent's estate, the county judge having jurisdiction of said decedent's estate, on sworn petition setting forth the facts and circumstances of such claim, question or dispute and the proposed compromise or settlement may, if satisfied that such compromise or settlement will be for the best interests of the estate, enter an order ex parte authorizing the same to be made, which order shall operate to relieve the said personal representative of any and all liability or responsibility in the premises; provided, however, that claims against the estate may not be compromised until after the time for filing objections to claims has expired and then only upon notice to those who have filed objection to the claim proposed to be compromised.

History.—§125, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(97); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.211 Claims undisposed of after three years barred.—

(1) Whenever anyone shall have filed a claim against any estate in any probate proceedings in this state, in accordance with this chapter, and which claim has not had objection filed thereto or has not been paid, settled or otherwise disposed of and no proceeding is pending for the enforcement or compulsory payment thereof, then at the expiration of three years from the date such claim is filed such claim shall be forever barred and foreclosed and have no further force or effect and no proceeding or action shall thereafter ever be brought for enforcement or payment of same. This section shall not affect the lien of any duly recorded mortgage or the lien of any person in possession of personal property or the right to foreclose and enforce such mortgage or lien.

(2) This section shall not apply to any claim upon which legal proceedings are brought for enforcement or compulsory payment of same on or before January 1, 1954.

History.—§§1, 2, ch. 28180, 1953.

733.22 Sale pursuant to will.—In every case where a power is given in a will to sell or dispose of property of the estate, or any interest therein, a sale made under authority of such will by the executors, or such of them as qualify, or by the surviving executor or executors shall be valid. Sales made under authority of such will by the administrator with the will annexed, or by the administrator de bonis non shall also be valid if it appears from the will that the testator intended to confer such power to representatives of his estate other than the named executor or executors.

History.—§126, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(98); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 65-284.

733.23 Sales where no power conferred.—Whenever any administrator of a decedent dying intestate, or any executor or administrator with the will annexed whose testator has not conferred upon him a power of sale or whose testator has granted such power but that power is so limited by the will or by operation of law that it cannot be conveniently exercised, shall consider that it is for the best interest of the estate and of those interested therein that the property of the estate be sold for distribution or for any other purpose, the personal representative may sell the same at public or private sale; provided, however, that no title shall pass until by order of the county judge the sale shall be authorized or confirmed. Sales may be authorized before made or confirmed after made. Application for authorization or confirmation of sale shall be made by the sworn petition of the personal representative setting forth the reasons for such sale, a description of the property sold or proposed to be sold, and except when authorization or confirmation of the sale at the current market of stocks or bonds listed upon an established exchange is applied for, the price and terms of such sale.

733.24 Sale on petition of interested persons.—If a personal representative neglects or refuses to sell property of an estate when it is expedient or necessary to do so or when a testator has directed a sale to be made, any person interested may, by petition, apply to the county judge for an order requiring the personal representative to sell. Notice of such petition shall be given to the personal representative and to such persons as would be entitled to notice in case of the application of the personal representative for authorization or confirmation of a sale of such property.

History.—§128, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(100); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.25 Sale of real property when widow survives.—In any case when a decedent is survived by a widow, no sale or disposition of real property shall be made, whether pursuant to the powers contained in the decedent's will or under the provisions of this law, until it appears that the widow will not have dower assigned to her, or, if she takes dower, until after her dower has been assigned, unless the widow consents to such sale and joins with the personal representative in the execution of a deed of conveyance to the purchaser thereof.

History.—§129, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(101); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.26 When notice of sale required.—

(1) No notice of any application for the authorization or confirmation of any sale shall be required when it shall appear that the personal property involved is perishable or rapidly depreciating.

(2) No notice of any application for the authorization or confirmation of any sale shall be required in any other case except as follows:

(a) Whenever it shall appear to the county judge that notice is necessary or desirable, notice shall be given to such persons as the county judge shall by order direct.

(b) Whenever application is made for the authorization or confirmation of the sale of property which has been specifically devised or bequeathed, notice shall be given to the devisee or legatee, unless he waive such notice or consent to such sale.

(c) Whenever any person interested in the estate shall serve upon the personal representative a written demand for notice of sale, containing the post-office address of such person, and file a copy of such demand and proof of the service thereof in the office of the county judge, notice of every application thereafter made for the authorization or confirmation of any sale shall be given to such person, unless he waive such notice or consent to such sale.

(d) Whenever the will of a decedent shall contain a direction or express a desire that any described or designated property be not sold, notice of application for the authorization or confirmation of the sale of any such property shall be given to the legatee or devisee of such property, unless he waive such notice or consent to such sale.

(e) Whenever application is made for the authorization or confirmation of the sale of any property for distribution.

733.27 Hearing on application to sell.—Where no notice is required, the county judge may hear and determine petitions for the sale of property ex parte. Where notice is required, such hearings shall be as in other cases. At any such hearing the county judge may in his discretion require an appraisal or new appraisal of the property.

History.—§131, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(103); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.28 Order of sale.—

(1) SALE GENERALLY.—After the hearing upon a petition to sell or confirm the sale of property, the county judge shall make and enter an order thereon, and if the sale is authorized or confirmed, the order shall describe the property, and if said property is authorized to be sold at private sale, the order shall fix the price and the terms of sale. Such order shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of the proceedings and of the authority of the personal representative to make a conveyance or transfer of the property. A certified copy of such order relating to real property may be recorded in the judgment lien record in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in each county wherein such real property or any part thereof is situated. When an order authorizing a sale is obtained, it may provide for the public or private sale of any of the property described therein, in parcels or as a whole. If public sale is ordered, the personal representative shall give such notice as the order may require.

(2) SALE BY COMMISSIONER.—In the order of sale, or at any time before a sale authorized to be made by an executor or by an administrator, the county judge, whenever he deems it necessary, may appoint a commissioner to make the sale and to execute whatever instruments may be necessary to consummate it. Any sale made by such commissioner shall be in compliance with the law governing sales by executors and administrators. Any sale so made by a commissioner under such an order shall be as valid as though made by the executor or administrator.

History.—§132, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(104); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §11, ch. 22847, 1945.

733.29 Additional bond upon sale.—Whenever the county judge makes an order authorizing or confirming a sale of property of an estate, he may in his discretion require the personal representative to execute a bond or an additional bond, with sureties as provided in this law, in such amount as the county judge may deem necessary, conditioned for the faithful accounting of the proceeds of such sale. No such bond shall, in any case, be required where the personal representative is a bank or trust company. All such bonds shall be recorded in the office of the county judge.

History.—§133, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 5541(105); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.
cf.—§732.62, Bond by a surety company.

733.30 Sales upon terms.—When so provided by the order of the county judge authorizing or confirming a sale of property, personal representatives may sell upon such terms as the order prescribes. If credit is given, it shall be for not more than sixty per cent of the purchase price nor for longer than five years, unless the county judge, in his discretion by written order, authorizes a larger per cent of credit. The county judge, in his discretion by written order, may also enlarge the time for payment. The exercise of such discretion shall be evidenced by written order duly recorded. The deferred purchase price shall be evidenced by the promissory note of the purchaser payable to the personal representative and secured by mortgage upon the property sold, if real property, or by such security as may be approved by the court in any case. The taking of any such promissory note and mortgage or other security shall not defer the final settlement of the estate, but, in the event of final settlement before the payment in full of such note, the same, together with the mortgage or other security, may be assigned and transferred without recourse to such person or persons who, but for such sale, would have been entitled to the property so sold.

History.—§134, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 5541 (106); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §12, ch. 22847, 1945.

733.31 When personal representative may purchase.—Any personal representative having an interest in the estate which he represents, either in his own right or in the right of his wife or infant child, as creditor, devisee, legatee or heir at law may, at any public sale of the real or personal property of his testator or intestate made as provided by law under the order of the county judge, become a bidder therefor; and, if such personal representative is the highest bidder at such sale, he may purchase the same, and said property shall be sold to such executor or administrator, but such sale shall always be subject to confirmation by the county judge.

History.—§135, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 5541(107); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.32 Conveyances pursuant to contracts of decedent.—In all cases where written agreements have been made for the sale and conveyance or transfer of real property in this state or of personal property, and the vendor has died before making such conveyance or transfer, the personal representative or person claiming the right to such conveyance or transfer may file with the county judge before whom the administration of the estate is pending a sworn petition setting forth the facts upon which the claim is predicated and annexing thereto the agreement or a copy thereof. The county judge, if he deems notice of hearing on said petition necessary or desirable, shall direct who should have the same and the manner in which it should be given. After a hearing upon such petition and the defenses, if any, made thereto, the county judge may make an order directing the personal representative to make, execute and deliver the conveyance or transfer to the person entitled to the same, or otherwise as justice may require. Such order shall describe the property to be conveyed or transferred. Said order shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of the proceedings and of the authority of the personal representative to make the conveyance or transfer. A certified copy of any such order relating to real property may be recorded in the miscellaneous records in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in any county wherein such real property or any part thereof is situated.

History.—§136, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 5541(108); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945; am. §1, ch. 23717, 1947.

733.33 Sale of contract to purchase.—If a decedent at the time of his death was possessed of a contract for the purchase of real property, the interest of the estate in such property and under such contract may be sold by the personal representative in the same manner as if the decedent had been the owner in fee simple of such property; provided, the holder of the fee simple title to such property and of the vendor's interest thereto shall execute a release to the personal representative relieving the estate from liability upon such contract. Such release shall not be required if no claim has been filed on such contract and if the time for filing claims has expired. In lieu of such release the personal representative may, upon order of the county judge, take from the purchaser of such contract a bond approved by the county judge with sureties in a penal sum double the amount due and to become due under such contract, conditioned that the purchaser will make all payments upon such contract and perform all agreements therein contained according to the tenor thereof and indemnify and save harmless the personal representative and all persons interested in the estate against all demands, costs, charges and expenses by reason of such contract.

History.—§137, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(109); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.34 Sale of real property subject to contract to purchase.—If a decedent at the time of his death was the owner of real property subject to a contract to sell and convey said property, the interest of the estate in such property and such contract may be sold under order of the county judge in the same manner as other real estate. No recourse shall be had against the estate or the personal representative for the nonpayment or nonperformance by the vendee under any such contract. The consent of the vendee under any such contract to the sale thereof shall discharge the estate and the personal representative from all obligations, duties and liabilities with respect to such contract, but such consent shall not be required if no claim has been filed thereon and the time for filing claims has expired.

History.—§138, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(110); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.35 Sale of real property subject to mortgage.—The county judge may, upon petition of the personal representative and with the written consent of the holder of the mortgage, authorize the sale of real property of the estate subject to mortgage, whether such mortgage was made by the decedent, the personal representative or any other person. The consent of the mortgagee shall discharge the estate and the personal representative from liability for the mortgage indebtedness or obligation. Such consent shall not be required if no claim has been filed upon the mortgage indebtedness and the time for filing claims has expired.

History.—§139, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(111); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

cf.—§733.16, Presenting claims.

733.36 Sale of stocks and bonds.—The county judge may, upon petition of the personal representative, make an order authorizing the sale, at the current market price, of any stocks or bonds which are listed upon an established stock or bond exchange, and such order need not otherwise designate the price at which such sale shall be made.

History.—§140, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(112); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.361 Stock held in the name of personal representative.—Upon entry of an order or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, the personal representative or representatives shall have the power and authority to hold any corporate stock, mutual investment trust shares, registered bonds, notes, debentures, or revenue certificates issued by any corporation, government, municipality, or subdivisions or agencies thereof, in the name of the sole personal representative or in the name of one or more of the several personal representatives, or in the name of a nominee, with or without disclosing any fiduciary relationship; but for all acts and omissions of the personal representative or representatives in whose names such property is held, and of such nominee relating to such property, all the personal representatives shall be jointly and severally responsible.

History.—§1, ch. 61-329; §2, ch. 65-106.

733.37 Interest in partnership.—When at the time of his death, a partnership existed between the decedent and any other person, the surviving partner shall, in the absence of a partnership agreement providing otherwise, without delay, wind up and settle the business and the affairs of the partnership, account to the personal representative and pay over to him all balances due the estate. If, however, at date of the partner's death, there existed a partnership agreement specifying the terms and conditions of termination of the partnership upon death of a partner, then such agreement shall be binding with respect to all matters, duties, rights and obligations relating to the partnership, including the determination of its final accounting period. The interest of the decedent in the partnership shall be included in the inventory of the estate. The personal representative may bring and maintain against the surviving partner any action, suit or proceeding relating to the partnership which the decedent could have brought. Any interest of an estate existing by virtue of a partnership between the decedent and any other person may be sold in the same manner as other property of the estate.

History.—§141, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(143); §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §1, ch. 26583, 1951.

733.38 Lease of real property.—Whenever it appears expedient and for the best interest of the estate to lease any real property of the estate, the county judge may authorize the personal representative to make such lease. The proceedings in such cases shall be, as nearly as possible, the same as in cases of application for the sale of property, except that notice shall be given to all persons interested in the estate. The personal representative may lease real property without an order of court when the tenancy is from month to month or for a term not extending beyond the time for filing claims against the estate.

History.—§142, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(113); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.39 Borrowing money and mortgaging property.—Whenever it appears expedient or necessary and for the best interest of the estate to borrow money upon a promissory note, either unsecured or to be secured by a mortgage, pledge or other lien upon the property of the estate or any part thereof, the county judge may by order authorize the personal representative to borrow such sum as the county judge shall deem proper. The proceedings in such cases shall be, as nearly as possible, the same as in cases of applications for the sale of property, except that notice shall be given to all persons interested in the estate. In like manner the county judge may authorize the personal representative to extend or renew any existing obligation of the estate or to extend or renew any existing mortgage, pledge or other lien. The signing of promissory notes or the execution of any agreement or other instrument creating a pledge or other lien by the personal representative, as such, shall create no personal liability against the person so signing or executing.

733.40 Power of personal representative to execute instruments.—Whenever the county judge authorizes or confirms any sale, authorizes the borrowing of money or the execution of any mortgage, agreement or other instrument creating a lien or a lease, or authorizes the distribution in kind of any property, the personal representative may make, execute, sign, seal, acknowledge and deliver in his name as such personal representative all deeds, bills of sale, assignments, instruments of transfer, promissory notes, mortgages, pledges, leases or any instruments necessary or proper to carry out and give effect to such orders.

733.41 Purchaser protected.—No person purchasing or leasing from, or taking a mortgage, pledge or other lien from a personal representative shall be bound or concerned to see that the money or other things of value paid to such personal representative are actually needed or properly applied; nor shall such person be otherwise obligated as to the proprieties or expediences of the acts of such personal representative. In all such transactions the acts of the personal representative pursuant to the powers of a will or the order of the county judge shall be prima facie valid.

733.42 Limitation in favor of purchaser from personal representative.—The title of any purchaser, or of anyone holding under him, who has held possession for three years or more, of any property, real or personal, purchased at any sale made under this law by an executor or administrator, free from fraud, shall not be questioned by any person upon any ground.

History.—§146, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(117); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

733.43 Annual returns.—

(1) A personal representative, unless otherwise ordered by the court, shall make his annual returns on or before ninety days after the expiration of the fiscal year, the election whereof he shall signify by filing notice thereof with the court within ninety days of his appointment, or, in the absence of such notice of election, on or before April first of each year for the calendar year or fraction of a calendar year expiring on December thirty-first preceding. If he fails to make such returns before the time applicable he shall, in the discretion of the county judge, forfeit all commissions on such returns so to be made; provided, however, that if the time for filing claims against the estate has expired prior to the end of the fiscal or calendar year, or shall expire within thirty days thereafter, the personal representative, may, in lieu of making annual returns, file his final returns within ninety days from the expiration of the fiscal year or on or before April 1 after expiration of the calendar year and apply for a discharge. If he fails to make his annual reports within such times as above specified, then, when such returns are made, he shall immediately give written notice of the filing of such returns to all persons interested in the estate being administered by him.

(2) When there is a single heir or beneficiary, or where all of the heirs or beneficiaries are sui juris and consent thereto in writing, it shall not be necessary to file a final accounting, nor to advertise notice thereof, nor shall it be necessary to file annual accountings, unless required in either case by the county judge.

Substantiating papers shall not be filed with accountings, but pertinent substantiating papers and records shall be available at a trial of objections to accountings, and all substantiating papers and records shall be preserved by the personal representative for three years after his discharge.

733.45 Objection to returns.—Upon the filing of returns with the county judge by a personal representative, any person interested as creditor, legatee, distributee, devisee or heir at law may, within thirty days after the time limited by law for filing the same, file objection in writing to the account or any item thereof, specifying the ground of objection. No item previously approved by order of the county judge upon notice shall be subject to objection. If any personal representative fails to file his annual returns on or before the first day of April in any year, any person interested in the estate may file in the office of the county judge a written demand for service of a copy of the returns, which demand shall contain the post-office address of the person filing the same. If any demand is on file at the time the returns are filed, the personal representative shall serve a copy of the returns upon the person who filed the demand therefor and shall file proof of the service thereof in the office of the county judge. Objection may be filed to the returns at any time within thirty days after the service of copy thereof.

733.46 Trial of objections.—If objections to accounts are filed, the personal representative or the objecting party may, after the expiration of the time limited for filing objections upon reasonable notice to the other, apply to the county judge who shall fix a day for the hearing. Upon the conclusion of the hearing, an order shall be entered by the county judge finally sustaining or overruling the objections, and he shall thereupon proceed to enter his order thereon.

733.47 Examination of returns not objected to.—If no objection is filed to returns within the time limited by law for filing objections, the county judge shall proceed to examine said returns and enter his order approving the same or requiring such proof of the items contained therein as the county judge shall find desirable.

733.48 Recording settlement.—There may be recorded in the office of the county judge any instrument settling an account in whole or in part, executed by the personal representative and any one or more legatees, devisees, heirs or claimants. To be entitled to record, any such instrument shall be acknowledged or sworn to by the parties before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments or to administer oaths, and the record thereof or a duly certified copy shall be admitted as prima facie evidence thereof and of its due execution without requiring proof of the execution.

History.—§152, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(123); §3, ch. 22783, 1945.

A copy of such order shall be served upon the personal representative. If the said personal representative fails, neglects or refuses without good cause shown to file such returns within the time specified by said order, the county judge shall forthwith issue a citation directed to said personal representative to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for such failure or neglect; and if such personal representative fails to show just cause, the county judge may forthwith adjudge said personal representative to be in contempt of court, and said person shall stand committed for contempt until he makes the annual returns.

History.—§153, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(124); am. §3, ch. 22783, 1945; §5, ch. 59-267.

733.50 Compulsory settlements.—Although an executor may, by the terms of the will appointing him, be exempted from making settlements with returns to the county judge, and although no mismanagement or waste is charged against him, upon the application of any creditor, legatee, distributee, devisee, heir or surety, the county judge shall make an order directing the personal representative to file such accounts and to make such settlements and distribution in whole or in part as is deemed necessary for the proper administration of said estate. Such order may also be made by the county judge upon his own motion.

733.51 Production of assets.—Upon the petition of any creditor, legatee, distributee, devisee or heir at law, or upon his own motion if he deems it necessary for the proper administration of said estate, the county judge may require any personal representative to produce satisfactory evidence that the assets of the estate are in his possession or under his control and, if necessary or proper, may order the production of such assets for the inspection of such creditor, legatee, distributee, devisee or heir at law, or of said judge.

734.01 Expenses and compensation.—

(1) A personal representative shall be allowed all necessary expenses and attorney's fees paid in the care, management and settlement of the estate. A personal representative shall be allowed commissions upon the amount of the estate, real and personal, accounted for by him as compensation for his ordinary services as follows:

(a) For the first one thousand dollars at the rate of six per cent; all above that sum and not exceeding five thousand dollars at the rate of four per cent; and all above five thousand dollars at the rate of two and one-half per cent.

(b) In addition to the aforesaid commissions a personal representative shall be allowed such further compensation as the court may deem just and reasonable for any extraordinary services including the sale of real estate or personal property, the conduct of litigation on behalf of or against the estate, the adjustment and payment of extensive or complicated estate or inheritance taxes, the carrying on of the decedent's business pursuant to an order of court, and any other special services which may be necessary for the personal representative to perform.

(c) When provision is made by the will of the decedent for compensation to a personal representative, the compensation fixed by such will shall be in full satisfaction for his services in lieu of the compensation provided, unless by an instrument filed with the county judge he renounces all claim to the compensation given by the will.

(d) If there be more than one personal representative, each shall be allowed such compensation for his services as the court shall determine to be just and reasonable; provided, however, that the compensation allowed any one of such multiple personal representatives for ordinary services shall not exceed the compensation specified in paragraph (a), nor the total compensation allowed all such multiple personal representatives for ordinary services be less than one commission computed in accordance with paragraph (a) hereunder nor more than the sum of two such commissions.

(2) Any attorney who has rendered services to an estate or the personal representative may apply to the court by petition for an order making an allowance for attorney's fees, and, after notice to persons adversely affected, the court shall make such order with respect thereto as shall be proper.

(3) In annual and final returns, the personal representative shall be entitled to credit for such reasonable sums as he may have paid for the services rendered to the estate by an attorney and his expenses in connection therewith.

Objections may be made to the allowance of such items as in other cases, unless the said items have been previously allowed by the county judge.

(4) If the personal representative is a practicing attorney at law of this state and has rendered legal services in connection with his official duties, he shall be allowed such fees therefor as shall be just and reasonable.

734.02 Delivery of legacies and distributive shares.—No personal representative shall be required to pay or deliver any legacy or distributive share or to surrender possession of any land to any heir or devisee until the expiration of eight calendar months from the granting of letters. Any payment, delivery or surrender made by the personal representative prior to that time shall be made at his risk.

History.—§159, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(127); §4, ch. 22783, 1945; §4, ch. 61-394.
cf.—§731.23, Descent and distribution; order.

734.03 Proceedings for the payment of legacies or distributive interest.—

(1) Before any personal representative is compelled to pay, prior to the final settlement of his accounts, any legacy in money or to deliver any specific personal property bequeathed to any person (unless such personal property is exempt personal property) which may have come into his hands, or to pay all or any part of any distributive share in the personal estate of said decedent, or to surrender any land to any heir or devisee, the heir, devisee, legatee or distributee shall file in the office of the county judge a petition setting forth the facts which entitle him to the relief prayed and stating that the property will not be required for the payment of debts, family allowance, estate and inheritance taxes, claims, charges and expenses of administration, or for providing funds for contribution or enforcing equalization in case of advancements; and citation shall be served upon or notice given to the personal representative. Upon the return day, or upon such other day as may be fixed by the county judge, he shall make appropriate order as he shall deem proper under the circumstances.

(2) An order directing the surrender of real estate or the delivery of any specific personal property shall describe the property to be surrendered or delivered; and such order, unless and until revoked or unless reversed on appeal, shall be conclusive in favor of bona fide purchasers for value from such heir, devisee, legatee or distributee as against the personal representative and all other persons claiming by, through, under or against the decedent or his estate.

(3) If the administration of the estate, except the distribution thereof, has not been completed prior to the entry of any order of distribution, the county judge in his discretion may require the person entitled to such distribution to give a bond with adequate sureties, to be approved by the county judge, conditioned to make due contribution for the payment of legacies, debts, demands and all costs which may be awarded, if any such debt or demand is duly presented within the time limited by law, and for family allowance, estate and inheritance taxes, claims, charges, expenses of administration and equalization in case of advancements.

734.031 Distribution; transfer of assets in kind to surviving spouse.—

(1) Whenever under any last will and testament or trust indenture the executor, trustee or other fiduciary is required to, or has an option to, satisfy a bequest, devise or transfer in trust to or for the benefit of the surviving spouse of a decedent by a transfer of assets of the estate or trust in kind at the values as finally determined for federal estate tax purposes, the executor, trustee or other fiduciary shall, in the absence of contrary provisions in such will or trust indenture, satisfy such bequest, devise or transfer by the distribution of assets, including cash, fairly representative of the appreciation or depreciation in the value of all property available for distribution in satisfaction of such bequest, devise or transfer.

(2) This act shall take effect September 1, 1965, and shall apply to wills of decedents dying before or after such date and to trust agreements executed before or after such date; provided, however, that this section shall not be applied so as to require repayment to the fiduciary of any distributions actually made prior to such date, nor to impose any obligation or liability upon the fiduciary by reason of distributions actually made prior to such date.

History.—§§1, 2, ch. 65-161

734.04 Distribution.—After the time for filing claims against the estate has expired and all debts, claims, estate and inheritance taxes, family allowance, charges and expenses of administration have been paid or provision made for the payment thereof, and before the final settlement of the accounts of the personal representative, he may apply by petition for an order authorizing him to surrender the possession of any designated or described real estate to the heir or devisee or to deliver any specific property or to make any distribution of the assets of the estate, and an order entered upon such petition shall have the same effect as though entered upon the petition of the heir or devisee as hereinbefore provided. Upon the approval of the final accounts of the personal representative, he shall surrender the possession of all real estate to the heir or devisee entitled thereto and pay over and distribute all personal property to those entitled thereto. An order of final discharge of the personal representative shall be evidence of such surrender or distribution, and unless revoked or unless reversed on appeal, shall be conclusive as to the rights of all heirs, devisees, legatees and distributees.

History.—§161, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(129); am. §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

734.041 Apportionment of estate taxes.—

(1) Any estate, inheritance, or other death tax levied or assessed under the provisions of the tax laws of this or any other state or political subdivision thereof, or country or of any United States revenue act, with respect to any property required to be included in the gross estate of a decedent under the provisions of any such law, shall be apportioned in the following manner:

(a) If any portion of the estate passed under the will of a decedent as a specific bequest or devise, or general legacy, or in any other non-residuary form (exclusive of property over which the decedent had a power of appointment as defined from time to time under the estate tax laws of the United States), the net amount of the tax attributable thereto shall, except as otherwise directed by the will, be charged to and paid from the residuary estate of the testator without requiring contribution from persons receiving such interests. In the event the residuary estate is insufficient to pay the tax attributable to such interests, any balance of such tax shall, except as otherwise directed by the will, be equitably apportioned among the recipients of such interests in the proportions that the value of each such interest included in the measure of such tax bears to the total of all such interests so included.

(b) If any portion of the estate passed under the will of the decedent as a residuary interest (exclusive of property over which the decedent had any such power of appointment), the net amount of the tax attributable thereto shall, except as otherwise directed by the decedent's will, be equitably apportioned among the residuary beneficiaries in the proportions that the value of the residuary interest of each included in the measure of such tax bears to the total of all residuary interests so included; provided, that where any residuary interest is an interest in income or an estate for years or for life or other temporary interest, the tax attributable thereto shall be charged to corpus and not apportioned between temporary and remainder estates.

(c) If any portion of the property with respect to which such tax is levied or assessed is held under the terms of any trust created inter vivos or is subject to such a power of appointment, the net amount of the tax attributable thereto shall, except as otherwise directed by the trust instrument with respect to the fund established thereby, or by the decedent's will, be charged to and paid from that portion of the corpus of the trust property or the property subject to such power of appointment included in the measure of such tax, as the case may be, and shall not be apportioned between temporary and remainder estates.

(d) Real property homesteads which are exempt from execution as defined by the laws of Florida shall be exempt from apportionment of taxes. Persons taking an interest in such homesteads shall not be liable for apportionment of taxes on account of such homesteads. The net amount of the tax attributable to such homestead property shall be paid from other assets of the probate or intestate estate in the order provided by §734.05, and the homestead shall not be subjected to contribution to such tax until the estate's assets are exhausted.

(e) The balance of the net amount of the tax, including, but not limited to, any tax imposed with respect to gifts in contemplation of death, jointly held properties passing by survivorship, property passing by intestacy, or insurance, shall, except as otherwise directed by the decedent's will, be equitably apportioned among and charged to and paid by the recipients and beneficiaries of such properties or interests in the proportion that the value of the property or interest of each included in the measure of such tax bears to the total value of all such properties and interests included in the measure of such tax; provided, that where any such property or interest is an interest in income or an estate for years or for life or other temporary interest, the amount so charged to such recipients or beneficiaries shall not be apportioned between temporary and remainder estates but shall be charged to and paid out of the corpus of such property or fund.

(2) As used in this section:

(a) The net amount of tax attributable to the interests encompassed by any one of paragraphs (a) through (e) of subsection (1) shall be such portion of the net amount of the tax as finally determined, together with interest thereon, as the value of interests included in the measure of such tax and included in such paragraph bears to the amount of the net estate, except that in the case of an inheritance or similar tax, the tax that is imposed on each beneficiary's interest as determined under the law of the state or country or political subdivision thereof then under consideration shall be deemed the tax attributable to such interest.

(b) The term net estate shall mean the gross estate as defined by the estate, inheritance or death tax laws of the particular state or country or political subdivision thereof whose tax is being apportioned hereunder less the deductions, other than the specific exemption, allowed by such laws. All proportions based on net estate shall be determined without regard to any diminution in deductions resulting from the charge of any portion of the tax to a deductible interest.

(c) The term included in the measure of such tax shall not include any property or interest whether passing under the will or not to the extent such property or interest is exempt, or is initially deductible from the gross estate, without regard to any subsequent diminution of such deduction by reason of the charge of any portion of the tax to such property or interest.

(d) The word value shall mean the pecuniary worth of the interest involved as finally determined for purposes of the estate, death or inheritance tax then under consideration without regard to any diminution thereof by reason of the charge of any portion of tax thereto.

(e) Except when the will or other governing instrument otherwise provides, in the event any credit is given under the estate tax laws of the United States for any estate, inheritance or death taxes paid to other countries or political subdivisions thereof, such credit shall be apportioned among the recipients of interests finally charged with the payment of such foreign tax in reduction of any United States estate tax chargeable to such recipients or interests whether or not such United States estate tax is attributable to such foreign interests; any excess of such credit shall be applied in reduction of that portion of United States estate tax chargeable to residue, and any excess of such credit over the United States estate tax chargeable to residue shall be apportioned ratably among those persons or interests finally charged with the balance of the payment of United States estate tax.

(3) Unless otherwise directed by the will of the decedent, the tax shall be paid by the executor or administrator out of the estate. In all cases in which any property required to be included in the gross estate does not come into the possession of the executor or administrator, he shall, in cases where property of a trust created inter vivos or property subject to a power of appointment is included in such gross estate, be entitled, and it shall be his duty, to recover from the fiduciary in possession of the corpus of such trust or of property subject to such power of appointment, and in all other cases from the recipients or beneficiaries of property or interests with respect to which such tax is levied or assessed, the proportionate amount of such tax payable by such fiduciary or persons with which they are chargeable under the provisions of this act, unless relieved of such duty as provided in subsection (6); provided that this subsection shall not authorize the recovery of any taxes hereunder from any company issuing any policy of insurance included in the gross estate, or from any bank, trust company, savings and loan association, or similar institution with respect to any account of which it is a depositary standing in the names of the decedent and any other person or persons which passed by operation of law on the death of the decedent. In any case where the fiduciary brings an action to recover a share of tax apportioned to an interest not within his control, any judgment he may obtain may, in the discretion of the court, include costs and reasonable attorney's fees.

(4) No executor, administrator, or other fiduciary shall be required to transfer any property until the amount of any tax due from the transferee is paid, or, if the apportionment of tax has not been determined, adequate security is furnished for such payment; provided, that in no event shall the fiduciary be required to distribute assets which he reasonably anticipates may be necessary to pay any state or federal taxes.

(5) After the amount of all estate, inheritance and death taxes is finally determined, the executor, administrator or other fiduciary shall petition the county judge's court having jurisdiction of the estate for an order of apportionment and shall give notice of such petition and the hearing thereon by publication once a week for four consecutive weeks, such hearing to be at least twenty-eight days after the first date of such publication, except that where all persons affected by such order are sui juris or properly represented by a natural or legal guardian and consent thereto in writing, such notice shall not be necessary. The fiduciary shall be entitled to, and it shall be his duty (except as provided in subsection (6)), to attempt to effect apportionment as determined by the order entered upon such hearing, and such apportionment shall be prima facie correct in proceedings in any court or jurisdiction. The fiduciary shall not be required to seek collection of any portion of tax attributable to any interest not within his control until after the entry of such order of apportionment.

(6)(a) Any executor, administrator, or other fiduciary who shall have the duty under this act of collecting the apportioned tax from persons interested in the estate, may be relieved of such duty to collect the tax or to attempt to collect the same if the county judge enters an order, after notice and hearing as provided in subsection (5), on a petition filed by such fiduciary finding one or more of the following:

1. That the estimated court costs and attorney fees in collecting the apportioned tax from a person interested in the estate will approximate the amount of the recovery.

2. That the person interested in the estate is a resident of a foreign country other than Canada and refuses to pay the apportioned tax on demand.

3. That it is impracticable to enforce contribution of the apportioned tax against any person interested in the estate in view of the improbability of obtaining a judgment or the improbability of collection under any judgment that might be obtained, or otherwise.

(b) Provided, that in no event shall the fiduciary be liable for failure to attempt to enforce such collection if such attempt would in fact have been economically impracticable; and provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall limit the right of any person who shall have been charged with more than the amount of the tax apportionable to him to obtain contribution from those who shall not have paid the full amount of the tax apportionable to them, respectively, which right is hereby expressly conferred.

(c) In the event the fiduciary obtains an order as hereinabove contemplated, the share of tax to which it refers shall be paid from assets of the probate or intestate estate in the order provided by §734.05. Any apportioned tax which is not collected shall also be paid from such assets in such order.

(7) This section shall apply:

(a) To estates of decedents dying after the effective date hereof;

(b) To estates of decedents dying after May 13, 1957, provided such decedent had by will directed apportionment of taxes to nonprobate assets consistent with the provisions hereof, and, provided, further, either that the taxes on such estate had been charged and paid consistent with such provision, or that such estate is still in the process of administration and the estate tax has not been finally determined and paid.

734.05 Order in which assets are appropriated.—

(1) If a testator makes provision by his will or designates the funds or property to be used for the payment of debts, estate and inheritance taxes, family allowance, charges and expenses of administration and legacies, the same shall be paid out of the funds, or from the property or proceeds thereof, as provided or designated by the wills so far as sufficient. If no provision is made, nor any fund designated, or if it is insufficient, the property of the estate shall be used for such purposes (except as otherwise provided in §734.041 with respect to estate, inheritance and other death taxes) and to raise the shares of pretermitted spouse and children in the following order:

(a) Property not disposed of by the will.

(b) Property devised or bequeathed to the residuary legatee or legatees.

(c) Property not specifically or demonstratively bequeathed or devised.

(d) Property specifically or demonstratively bequeathed or devised.

(2) No priority shall exist as between real and personal property.

cf.—§733.20, Order of payment of claims.

734.051 Mortgage on devised real property; liability for payment.—The specific devisee of mortgaged real property shall be entitled to have the mortgage on devised real property paid at the expense of the residue of the estate only when the will shows such an implied or expressed intent.

History.—§1, ch. 65-543.

734.06 Abatement and contribution.—Whenever the assets of a testate estate are insufficient for the full payment of debts, estate and inheritance taxes, family allowance, charges and expenses of administration, devises and legacies and when the will directs or discloses an intention as to the order of abatement, effect shall be given to such directions or intentions. Unless such directions are given or such intention appears, residuary legacies and devises shall first abate; general legacies and devises shall next abate, and specific and demonstrative legacies and devises shall abate last. Demonstrative legacies shall be classed as general legacies, upon the failure or insufficiency of fund or property out of which payment should be made, to the extent of such insufficiency. Legacies or devises to the decedent's widow given in satisfaction of or in lieu of her dower or statutory rights in the estate shall not abate until other legacies and devises of the same class are exhausted. Legacies and devises given for a valuable consideration shall abate with other legacies of the same class only to the extent of the excess thereof over the amount of value of the consideration until all others of the same class are exhausted. Except as herein provided, legacies and devises shall abate equally and ratably and without preference or priority as between real and personal property. When property, real or personal, which has been specifically devised or bequeathed or charged with a legacy is sold or taken by the personal representative, other legatees or devisees shall contribute according to their respective interests to the legatee or devisee whose legacy or devise has been sold or taken, and the county judge shall, before distribution, determine the amounts of the respective contributions, and the same shall be paid or withheld before distribution is made.

cf.—§733.01, Possession of estate of decedent.

734.07 Advancements.—When any person has received any advancements from an intestate in his lifetime and any of the next of kin, by petition, alleges that such advancement has been made, the same shall be determined by the county judge upon hearing after citation or notice to the personal representative and other persons interested and, unless the person to whom such advancement was made or those claiming through him renounce his or their interest in the estate, such advancement as of the value at the time made, without interest, shall be taken into account in determining the distribution of the estate and charged against the person to whom such advancement was made or those claiming through him. No personal representative shall be held responsible for having made distribution before such a petition has been filed and citation served upon or notice given to him. The statute of limitations shall not apply to advancements.

History.—§164, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(132); am. §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

734.08 Exempt estates.—If at any time during the course of administration it is made to appear to the county judge by petition that the estate consists of no more than the homestead and exempt personal property of the decedent, or in the event the allegations of said petition are denied by trial of the issues made, he may thereupon direct and order the distribution of said estate among the persons entitled to receive the same, and upon said distribution, may thereupon enter his order relieving, releasing and discharging the personal representative.

734.09 Resignation of personal representative.—Any personal representative may, upon petition to and with the approval of the county judge of the county where letters were granted, resign and be relieved of his office; provided, that notice is given to all interested persons of the filing of said petition; and provided, further, that before making an order relieving the personal representative from the duties and obligations as such the county judge shall require him to make and file a true and correct account of his administration and to pay over and deliver to his successor or to his coexecutor or coadministrator or both, as the case may be, any and all of the property of the deceased and all books of account, bonds, notes or other securities, documents, papers or other property of or concerning the estate, together with all the sums of money due the estate by him; and provided, always, that the acceptance of such resignation shall not be construed to exonerate any personal representative or his sureties from any liabilities previously incurred. The county judge, before making such order, shall be satisfied that the interest of the estate will not be placed in jeopardy by such action.

History.—§166, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(44); am. §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

- (2) Habitual drunkenness or continued sickness rendering him incapable of the discharge of his duties.
- (3) Failure to comply with any order of the county judge, unless such order has been superseded on appeal.
- (4) Failure to return schedules of property sold or accounts of sales of property, real or personal, or to produce and exhibit the assets of the estate when so required.

- (8) Failure of the resident personal representative removing from the state to designate a resident agent or representative with his residence and post-office address.

(9) The appointment of a receiver or liquidator for any corporate executor or administrator.

(10) Conflicting or adverse interest held by the personal representative against the estate, but this shall not apply to the widow because of electing to take dower or claiming family allowance or exemptions.

If the executor or administrator so removed is a sole executor or administrator, the county judge shall appoint an administrator cum testamento annexo de bonis non, or an administrator de bonis non, as the case may require, in which event a bond shall be required as in the case of an original administration, the condition of the bond being modified to suit the nature of the case.

In case of failure or neglect of the removed personal representative to comply with this order within the time required, the judge may—and when such default is not attributable to a cause which is justifiable, he shall—commit such removed personal representative until he complies fully with the requirements of the law in the respects indicated. If sufficient cause is shown for the default, the judge shall then indicate a reasonable time in which a compliance with the law shall be required; and upon failure of the removed personal representative to comply with this or any subsequent like order, the judge may commit the party in default until he does comply.

In cases where there is more than one personal representative such proceedings may be instituted by the one remaining in office, or, if more than one remain in office, then by any or all remaining.

734.22 Final settlement and discharge.—

(1) When a personal representative has completed the administration and nothing remains to be done except to make distribution, he shall file his final report and make application for discharge. After filing a report of his accounts as aforesaid and his application for discharge, the personal representative shall then publish a notice once a week for four consecutive weeks, four publications being sufficient, notifying all persons of the filing of his report and of his application for discharge. After filing the proof of publication, if no objection is filed and if it appears to the county judge that said applicant has faithfully administered the estate, he shall be entitled to an order approving his accounts and shall be directed to make distribution. No distribution of estate assets to a testamentary trustee shall be authorized until proof of qualification of the trustee under the law of the state wherein the testamentary trust is to be administered has been obtained and filed unless it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the county judge that there is no trust qualification law in existence in the state wherein the testamentary trust is to be administered, or unless it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the county judge that the trustee is not required to qualify under the trust qualification law in existence in the state wherein the testamentary trust is to be administered, or unless such qualification or compliance with such trust qualification law shall have been waived in accordance with or as permitted by the provisions of the law of said state. If objection is filed, trial shall be had as provided in this law for the trial of objections to annual returns. Said personal representative may retain from the funds in his hands before making distribution a sufficient amount to pay the expenses accrued since the filing of his final report and his application for discharge.

(2) It shall not be necessary to file an annual accounting, a final accounting, nor to advertise notice of the filing of final accounting, petition for distribution and discharge when there is a single heir or beneficiary of an estate or where all of the heirs or beneficiaries are sui juris and such heirs or beneficiaries consent thereto in writing. When the interest of a minor heir or beneficiary does not exceed the amount authorized by Florida law to be received by his natural guardian, such natural guardian may execute a valid written consent to the foregoing for and on behalf of such minor heir or beneficiary. The county judge in his discretion may require the filing of an annual or final accounting and the advertisement of notice thereof and of petition for distribution and discharge, notwithstanding the waivers aforesaid.

734.221 Disposition of unclaimed funds held by personal representatives.—

(1) In all cases where there are unclaimed funds in the hands of the personal representative of any decedent's estate which funds cannot be distributed or paid to the lawful owner by reason of inability to find the owner or claimant or because no lawful owner is known to exist or the lawful owner or claimant refuses to accept such funds, then such personal representative upon the order of the county judge shall deposit the same with the clerk of the circuit court in the county where the estate is being probated and receive his receipt therefor, and the clerk shall deposit the funds in the registry of the court to be disposed of as follows: If the value of such funds is fifty dollars or less, the clerk shall post a notice at the courthouse door giving the amount involved, the name of the personal representative and such other pertinent information that will put interested persons on notice, such notice to remain posted for a period of thirty days. If the value of such funds is over fifty dollars, the clerk shall publish such notice once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county. After the expiration of thirty days from receipt thereof the clerk shall deposit such funds with the state treasurer after deducting his fees and the costs for advertising.

(2) Upon receipt of the funds (sometimes referred to hereinafter as "money") paid to him under subsection (1) hereof, the state treasurer shall deposit the same to the credit of the state school fund to become a part of the school fund. All interest and all income that may accrue from the money while so deposited shall belong to the fund. The funds so deposited shall constitute and be a permanent appropriation for payments by the state treasurer in obedience to court orders entered as provided by subsection (3) hereof.

(3) Any person, firm or corporation (hereinafter referred to as "claimant") entitled to any of the funds before or after payment to the state treasurer and deposited as provided by subsections (1) and (2) hereof, may, within twenty years from the date of deposit with the state treasurer, on written petition to the county judge's court which authorized and directed the deposit of the funds, and on written notice to the state attorney of the circuit wherein such county judge's court is situate, and after proof of right thereto, obtain an order of the court directing the payment of such money to the claimant. All funds deposited with the state treasurer and not claimed within twenty years from the date of deposit shall escheat to the state for the use and benefit of the state school fund.

History.—§1, ch. 65-207.

734.23 Effect of discharge.—Upon the filing of evidence satisfactory to the county judge that distribution has been made as ordered, the county judge shall enter an order of discharge. Such discharge so obtained shall operate as a release from the duties of personal representative of the estate and as a bar to any suit against said personal representative as such, or as an individual or corporation, and his surety or sureties, unless such suit is commenced within one year from the date of the discharge.

734.24 Suit upon bond.—Any bond given by a personal representative or a curator, upon the breach thereof may be put in suit and prosecuted from time to time by the party damaged, in the name of the governor of the state for the use of the party damaged, until the whole penalty of said bond is recovered. The county judge shall deliver to any person on request and on payment of his legal fees for the same, a true copy of any bond given by any personal representative or curator, and such copy certified by said judge, with the seal of the court annexed, shall be prima facie proof of the bond.

734.25 Determination of beneficiaries.—

(1) Whenever property passes by the laws of descent and distribution or under a will to a person not sufficiently identified in such will, and the personal representative is in doubt as to who is entitled to receive said property, or any part thereof, or if he is in doubt as to shares and amounts which any person is entitled to receive, such personal representative may file with the county judge of the court out of which his letters were issued, his sworn petition setting forth the names, residences and post-office addresses, so far as known or ascertainable by diligent search and inquiry, of all persons in interest, except creditors of the decedent or the estate, and the nature and character of their respective interests and claims so far as known, designating those who are believed by him to be minors or non compos mentis, and stating whether those so designated are under legal guardianship in this state. If the personal representative believes that there are or may be persons who have claims against or interest in such estate as next of kin, distributees, legatees or beneficiaries whose names are not known to him, the petition shall so state.

(2) Upon the filing of such petition, the county judge shall appoint a guardian or guardians ad litem if necessary and shall issue a citation to all claimants and persons in interest whose names are set forth in said petition.

(3) If said petition sets forth that there are or may be persons whose names are not known who have claims against or interests in such estate, citation shall be published, directed to all persons claiming any beneficial interest in the estate of such decedent. Such publication of citation may also include all persons whose names are known and set forth in said petition but who cannot be personally served.

(4) After a hearing upon such petition and defenses thereto and upon such testimony and evidence as may be produced before the court, the county judge shall make and enter an order finding and adjudging who are entitled to such property and the shares and amounts which they, respectively, are entitled to receive. Any personal representative who makes distribution or takes any other action pursuant to such an order shall be fully protected thereby.

(5) Whenever it is necessary to determine who are or were the heirs, legatees or devisees of a deceased person, on the petition of any interested party or like proceedings, the county judge may make a determination thereof, irrespective of whether the estate of such deceased person is administered, or if administered whether the administration of the estate has been closed or the personal representative discharged.

734.26 Subsequent administration.— The final settlement of an estate and the discharge of the personal representative shall not prevent a revocation of the order of discharge or the subsequent issuance of letters testamentary or of administration if other property of the estate is discovered or if it becomes necessary or proper for any cause that further administration of the estate be had.

History.—§183, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(144); am. §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

734.27 Suspension of statutes of limitations in favor of personal representative.—If a person entitled to bring an action dies before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof and the cause of action survives, the action may be commenced by his personal representative after such expiration and within twelve months from the granting of letters.

734.29 Limitations against unadministered estates.—

(1) After three years from the death of any person his estate shall not be liable for any obligation or upon any cause of action if no letters testamentary or of administration with respect thereto have been taken out in Florida within said three years, or if such letters have been taken out but neither proof of publication of notice to creditors, nor the claim of any creditor has been filed in the office of the county judge within said period; provided, however, that the lien of any duly recorded mortgage and the lien of any person in possession of any personal property of the decedent, and the right to foreclose and enforce the same with respect to the property encumbered thereby, shall not be impaired by said limitation.

(2) Where a nonresident decedent leaves property in this state, the domiciliary personal representative of his estate, in order to determine the question of claims in Florida before the expiration of said three year period, may file in the office of the county judge of the county where any such property may be situated a duly certified or exemplified transcript of so much of the domiciliary proceedings as will show:

(a) 1. In a testate estate, the probated will and all probated codicils of the decedent and the order admitting same to record, the letters testamentary or the equivalent thereof, and such portion of the record as will show the names of the legatees, devisees and heirs of the decedent, or an affidavit of the domiciliary representative reciting that said names are not shown or fully disclosed by the domiciliary record and specifying the same.

2. Upon petition and presentation of such transcript and any supporting affidavit of the domiciliary representative, the county judge shall make and enter an order admitting the said will and codicils, if any, to probate and record if he finds that the same complies with the laws of Florida so as to entitle them to probate in this state, and said transcript shall be recorded.

(b) In an intestate estate, the certified letters of administration or the equivalent thereof, shall be included in the transcript of domiciliary proceedings, together with such portions of the record as will show the names of the heirs of the decedent, which names in case of necessity may be supplied by affidavit of the domiciliary representative as provided in paragraph (a) hereof. Upon petition and presentation of such transcript and any supporting affidavit of the domiciliary representative, the county judge shall cause the same to be filed and recorded.

(3) After complying with the foregoing requirements, with respect to any testate or intestate estate, as the case may be, the domiciliary representative may cause a notice to be published once a week for four consecutive weeks, four publications being sufficient, in a newspaper published in said county, notifying all persons having claims or demands against the estate of such decedent to file same in the office of the county judge within six calendar months from the date of the first publication of said notice.

(4) Any claims against said estate must be filed in the form and manner prescribed by law with respect to the regular administration of estates in Florida. If any claim is filed within the period of six months aforesaid, the county judge shall, upon application of any claimant or other person interested in the estate and after ten days written notice by registered mail to the domiciliary representative at his address as shown by the records, appoint an administrator for the estate according to law. If no claim is filed within said period of six months, the property of the decedent in this state shall not be liable for any obligation of said decedent or upon any cause of action against the decedent other than duly recorded mortgages and liens, and claims of persons in possession of property of the decedent as pledgees, lienors or purchasers.

(5) If no claims are filed against the estate, within six months as herein limited, the county judge shall enter an order adjudging that notice to creditors has been duly published, filed and recorded and that no claims have been filed against the estate.

734.30 Foreign personal representatives.—

(1) Personal representatives who produce probate of wills or letters of administration duly obtained in any of the states or territories in the United States and authenticated under the act of congress of May 26, 1790, shall be authorized to maintain actions in the several courts of this state under the same rules and regulations as other plaintiffs.

(2) Personal representatives appointed in any state or country may be sued in this state with reference to property, real or personal, in this state, and may defend any suit, action or proceeding in any court of this state.

(3) Debtors who have received no written demand for payment from a personal representative or curator appointed in this state, within three months after the appointment of a personal representative in any state or country other than this state, and whose property in Florida is subject to a mortgage or other lien securing such debt held by such foreign personal representative may make payment to the foreign personal representative after the expiration of three months from the date of his appointment. A proper satisfaction of such mortgage or lien executed and acknowledged by the foreign personal representative after said three months has expired, in the manner and form entitling the same to record in this state, with a duly authenticated copy of the letters or other evidence of authority of such foreign personal representative attached thereto, may be recorded in the public records of this state in like manner as other satisfactions, and when so recorded, shall constitute an effective discharge of any such mortgage or lien, irrespective of whether the debtor making payment had received such written demand before paying the same.

(4) All persons indebted to the estate of a decedent or having possession of personal property, either tangible or intangible, belonging to the estate of a decedent, who have received no written demand from a personal representative or curator appointed in this state, for payment of such indebtedness or the delivery of such property, are authorized to make payment of such indebtedness or to deliver such personal property to the foreign personal representative after the expiration of three months from the date of his appointment.

734.31 Ancillary administration.—

(1) Upon the death of a nonresident of this state leaving assets in this state, credits due him from residents of this state, or liens upon property in this state, the domiciliary personal representative of such decedent may, upon application, have ancillary letters issued to him, if qualified to act. Otherwise, the preference of appointment prescribed in this law shall be applicable. If ancillary letters are applied for by other than the domiciliary personal representative, citation shall be served upon the domiciliary personal representative.

(2) To entitle such applicant to ancillary letters, there shall be filed with the petition a duly certified copy of so much of the domiciliary proceedings as will show either:

(a) The will, petition for probate, order admitting the will to probate and letters testamentary, if there are such; or

(b) The petition for letters of administration and letters of administration.

(3) Upon the filing of a certified copy of a probated will, including any probated codicils thereto, and of the parts of the record of the domiciliary proceedings as aforesaid, the county judge may, upon petition therefor being filed, if he finds that the said will and codicils, if any, comply with the laws of this state so as to entitle them to probate, make and enter an order admitting said will and codicils, if any, to probate and record in this state.

(4) The ancillary personal representative shall give like bond as personal representatives generally, and all proceedings for appointment and in the administration of the estate shall be, as nearly as possible, similar to those in original administrations.

(5) After the payment of all expenses of administration and claims against the estate in accordance with this law, the county judge may, upon petition, order the remaining personal property in the hands of the ancillary personal representative to be transferred to the domiciliary personal representative.

(6) Ancillary personal representatives shall have the same rights, powers and authority as other personal representatives in Florida with reference to the management and settlement of the estate, and in addition, may sell, lease or mortgage local property in the manner provided in this law, to raise funds for the payment of debts, claims and legacies in the domiciliary jurisdiction. Provided, however, that no such property shall be sold, leased or mortgaged to pay any debt or claim which is barred by any statute of limitation, or of nonclaim, of this state.

734.33 Evidence of presumption.—At the hearing, the county judge shall take such evidence as shall be offered, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the presumption of death is established, and no person shall be disqualified to testify by reason of his relationship as husband or wife to the supposed decedent or of his interest in the estate of the person believed to be dead.

734.34 Order of presumption.—If satisfied, upon the hearing, that the legal presumption of death is established, the county judge shall so order, and shall forthwith cause notice thereof to be published as provided in this law, and also once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper published at or nearest the place where the supposed decedent was last heard from. The said notice shall require the supposed decedent, if alive, or any person for him, to produce, within three months from the date of its first insertion, satisfactory evidence of his continuance in life.

History.—§193, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(150); §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

734.37 Substitution of supposed decedent in actions.—After revocation of the letters of administration, the person erroneously supposed to be dead may, on suggestion filed of record of the proper fact, be substituted as plaintiff in all actions brought by the administrator, whether prosecuted to judgment or otherwise. He may, in all actions previously brought against his administrator, be substituted as defendant, on proper suggestion filed by himself or by the plaintiff therein, but shall not be compelled to go to trial in less than three months from the time of such suggestion filed. Judgments at law and decrees in equity against the administrator, before revocation, as aforesaid, of the letters, may be opened, on application by the supposed decedent made within three months from the said revocation and supported by affidavit, denying specifically, on the knowledge of the affiant, the cause of action or specifically alleging the existence of facts which would be a valid defense; but, if within the said three months such application is not made, or, if being made, the facts exhibited are adjudged an insufficient defense, the judgment or decree shall be conclusive to all intents, saving the defendant's right to have it reviewed, as in other cases, by appropriate appellate proceedings. After the substitution of the supposed decedent as defendant in any proceeding in which any judgment or decree may be procured as aforesaid, the said judgment or decree shall become a lien with like effect as other judgments.

734.38 Probate of will of person believed to be dead.—After letters of administration have been granted upon the estate of a person believed to be dead, the person having the custody of any will which may have been left by such person may produce said will in the county judge's court of the county in which the proceedings to establish the presumptive death of the supposed decedent have been held, and proceedings may be had as in the case of other wills.

History.—§195, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(152); am. §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

734.39 Notice to administrator and other persons.—Upon the filing of such petition, the county judge shall issue a citation to the person to whom letters of administration have been issued, as aforesaid, and to the surviving spouse and next of kin of the decedent, entitled under the laws of descent and distribution to his estate, to appear and show cause why the said alleged will should not be admitted to probate.

History.—§196, ch. 16103, 1933; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(153); am. §4, ch. 22783, 1945.

734.40 Letters to executor of will of supposed decedent.—Upon the hearing, if it appears that the proposed will was in fact the last will and testament of the supposed decedent, the said will shall be admitted to probate, and said will shall be annexed to the letters of administration theretofore issued; and thereafter the administrator shall execute the said will according to its terms; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the county judge from revoking the said letters, and in case of such revocation the powers of the personal representative and the rights of the legatees and devisees under said will shall cease, and all receipts and disbursements of assets, and other acts previously done by them shall remain as valid as if the said letters were unrevoked; and provided, further, that legatees and devisees may be called upon at any time by the supposed decedent to account for any property which they may have received, in the same manner as is provided in this law, and the administrator may be called upon to render an accounting as to all assets which have come into his custody or control; and provided, further, that if upon probate of the last will and testament of the decedent it appears that an executor is named in the will, the letters of administration shall be revoked and letters testamentary shall be issued to the executor named in said last will and testament.

735.01 Small estates.—Any testate or intestate estate having a gross value of not more than three thousand dollars, exclusive of the property exempt under the constitution and statutes of the state or any estate of a decedent who has been dead for more than three years, may be administered or not administered as set forth in this chapter; provided that proof satisfactory to the county judge, by affidavit or otherwise, is first produced to show that the estate to be administered comes within said value except where the decedent has been dead for more than three years.

History.—§1, ch. 16992, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(155); §15, ch. 22847, 1945; §1, ch. 23716, 1947.

735.02 May be administered in the same manner as other estates.—Such estate may be administered in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations as provided by law for the administration of any other estate, or it may be administered as provided in the next section of this chapter.

History.—§2, ch. 16992, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(156); §15, ch. 22847, 1945.

735.03 Certain administrative steps may be dispensed with.—

(1) In the administration of such an estate the county judge may in his discretion dispense with any steps and proceedings in the administration of such estate which are merely procedural or administrative and which do not affect the substantial rights of the heirs, devisees, legatees and creditors.

(2) The county judge may dispense with the appointment of appraisers and the filing of a warrant of appraisement and may require the personal representative to give a surety bond or a personal bond without sureties. The county judge may authorize notice to creditors to be published in a newspaper, as elsewhere provided by the probate act, or may authorize the notice to creditors to be published by notices posted at the front door of the courthouse and at two or more public places in the county, to be designated by the county judge. He shall require presentation of claims and demands within six calendar months from the time of such posting. He may also relieve the personal representative from filing annual returns and may require the personal representative to file only final returns. He may also authorize the notice of final discharge to be published in a newspaper as elsewhere provided in the probate act, or he may authorize the notice of final discharge to be published by notices posted at the front door of the courthouse and at two or more public places in the county to be designated by the county judge.

(3) The procedural steps which may be eliminated by the county judge as set forth above shall not be construed as exclusive, as it is intended hereby to vest broad powers of discretion in the county judge to the end that he may, in the interest of economy, dispense with any procedural step in the administration of small estates, as defined above, when such step appears to him not to be essential to proper and safe administration and to due process of law. Cases pending on the effective date of this act may be concluded under prior law or under this section.

History.—§2, ch. 16992, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(156); §15, ch. 22847, 1945; §31, ch. 63-572.

735.04 When administration unnecessary; testate or intestate estates.—The county judge may dispense with administration upon the estate of any testate or intestate:

(1) When such testate or intestate died a resident of this state and the entire estate is exempt from the claims of creditors under the constitution and statutes of the state; or,

(2) When such testate or intestate died a resident or nonresident of this State and the estate is not indebted and does not, in the judgment of the county judge, exceed in the aggregate five thousand dollars in value in this State, exclusive of property exempt under the constitution and statutes of the state, and there is a sole heir or surviving spouse, or the surviving spouse, if any, and all the heirs agree upon the distribution of the estate, or in case the decedent died testate and the beneficiaries and the widow, if any, agree upon the distribution of the estate upon the probate of the will; or,

(3) When the decedent, whether he died testate or intestate and whether he died a resident or nonresident of this state, has been dead for more than three years and no letters testamentary or letters of administration have been issued on his estate, and his last will and testament, if any, has not been admitted to probate in this state or elsewhere and there is a sole heir or surviving spouse, or the surviving spouse, if any, and all the heirs agree upon the distribution of the estate, or in case the decedent died testate and the beneficiaries and the widow, if any, agree upon the distribution of the estate upon the probate of the will.

History.—§2, ch. 16992, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(156); §15, ch. 22847, 1945; §2, ch. 23716, 1947; §1, ch. 25010, 1949.

735.05 Petition for order of administration unnecessary.—

(1) INTESTATE ESTATES.—The petition for an order of administration unnecessary on an intestate estate shall be signed and sworn to by all the heirs who are sui juris and by the surviving spouse of the decedent and by the guardians of heirs not sui juris. The petition shall be filed in the office of the county judge of the county where the decedent resided at the time of his death, and shall set forth the name, residence, date and place of death of the decedent; the names, ages and residences of the heirs and surviving spouse of the decedent and their respective relationships to the decedent; a detailed schedule of all the decedent's property, real and personal, showing the cash value of each item, and a statement of the agreed distribution of same among the petitioners; and if the entire estate is claimed to be exempt under the constitution and statutes of the state, the names and addresses of all known general creditors and judgment creditors of the decedent.

(2) TESTATE ESTATES.—The petition for an order of administration unnecessary on a testate estate may be filed only after the will has been probated, and shall be filed in the same case in which the will was probated. The petition shall be sworn to by the widow and by all the legatees and devisees who are sui juris and by the guardian of any of those who are not sui juris. The petition shall be filed in the office of the county judge of the county where the decedent resided at the time of his death, and shall set forth the same information as that specified in the preceding subsection of this section for petitions relating to intestate estates, except that, in lieu of the names, ages and residences of the heirs and the surviving spouse, the petition shall set forth the names, ages and residences of the legatees, devisees and the widow, if any, of the decedent.

(3) GUARDIAN AS PETITIONER.—If any heir, legatee or devisee of the decedent is not sui juris, the legal guardian of the estate of such incompetent shall be a party to the petition and shall have power to accept such distribution as the county judge may order, in full satisfaction and discharge of the interest of such incompetent in the estate. Natural guardians of a minor are authorized to act for such minor in the same manner as a legal guardian appointed by the county judge, where the interest of the minor in the estate does not exceed the amount authorized by the laws of Florida to be received by a natural guardian.

History.—§4, ch. 16992, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(158); §15, ch. 22847, 1945.

735.051 Filing of petition.—The petition for an order of administration unnecessary may be filed at any stage of the administration of any estate in accordance with the procedure as set forth in §735.05 and an order for administration unnecessary entered in accordance with §735.07 if it appears that at the time of such petition the estate would qualify for such an order of administration unnecessary.

History.—§1, ch. 59-308.

735.06 Hearing by county judge.—Upon the filing of the petition, if it appears that the entire estate of the decedent is claimed to be exempt under the constitution and statutes of the state, the county judge shall promptly notify each known creditor of the decedent, by registered mail, of the entry of his order, and shall make and file a certificate of such mailing.

History.—§3, ch. 16992, 1935; CGL 1936 Supp. 5541(157); §15, ch. 22847, 1945.

cf.—§1.01 Defines registered mail to include certified mail with return receipt requested.

735.07 Order of administration unnecessary.—

(1) After the hearing the county judge, if fully satisfied that the estate is entitled to the special benefits of this law, that the averments of the petition are true, and that there has been no concealment of material facts, shall make and enter his order that administration of the estate of the decedent is unnecessary. Such order shall contain a finding by the county judge of the true cash value of the estate.

(2) In such order, if the estate is an intestate estate, he shall set forth:

(a) The names and residences of the heirs and surviving spouse of the decedent who are entitled to have distribution of the estate without administration;

(b) What particular properties shall be distributed to each; and

(c) If the entire estate is exempt, of what the estate consists and what debts are known to exist against the estate.

(3) If the estate is a testate estate, the order shall set forth:

(a) The names and residences of the legatees, devisees and the widow, if any;

(b) What particular properties shall be distributed to each; and

(c) If the entire estate is exempt, of what the estate consists and what debts are known to exist against the estate.

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945.

735.08 County judge's discretion to deny petition.—The county judge in his discretion may deny the petition and forthwith appoint an administrator of the intestate estate in any case in which he has doubt as to the truth of the averments of the petition; and in the case of a testate estate, if he has doubt as to the truth of such averments, he may order the executor of the will, or his successor, to proceed with the administration.

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945.

735.09 Legal effect of order of administration unnecessary.—The county judge's order that administration of the estate of the decedent is unnecessary shall have the following effect:

(1) Those to whom specified portions of the decedent's estate may be assigned by the order shall be entitled to receive and collect the same and to have the same transferred to them; they may maintain suits to enforce such rights.

(2) Debtors of the decedent, those holding property of the decedent and those with whom securities or other property of the decedent are registered, are authorized and empowered to comply with such order by paying, delivering and transferring to those specified in the order the respective portions of the decedent's estate assigned to them by the order, and such persons shall not be accountable to anyone else for such property.

(3) From and after the entry of such order, bona fide purchasers for value from those respectively to whom properties of the decedent may be assigned by the order shall take the same free, clear and discharged of all claims and demands of creditors of the decedent and all rights of the widow of the decedent and all other heirs, legatees, devisees and claimants against the estate.

(4) Property of the decedent (not exempt from forced sale under process) remaining in the hands of those to whom it may be assigned by such order shall continue to be liable for the debts of the decedent and for all the other claims whatsoever against the estate of the decedent, if any such claims exist, until barred as herein elsewhere provided.

(5) The petitioners for an order of administration unnecessary shall, if the petition is granted, thereby become personally liable, jointly and severally, for all lawful claims and demands against the estate of the decedent, but only to the aggregate gross value of the estate of the decedent, exclusive of the property exempt from process under the constitution and statutes of Florida.

(6) After three years from the death of the decedent, his estate and those to whom it may be assigned shall not be liable for any obligation or liability of the decedent unless in the meantime proceedings are taken for the enforcement of same.

(7) Claimants against the estate of the decedent, if any, shall thenceforth be limited to the remedies prescribed in §735.11

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945.

735.10 Optional publication of notice of entry of order.—

(1) Those who shall have procured the entry of the order of administration unnecessary, or any one or more of them may, at their election, publish a notice to all persons having claims or demands against the estate of the decedent, that an order of administration unnecessary has been entered by the county judge. Such notice shall specify the total cash value of the estate and the names and addresses of those to whom it has been assigned by such order. Such notice, if published, shall be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the county wherein such order was entered, and proof of publication of such notice shall be filed with the county judge.

(2) If proof of publication of such notice is duly filed in the office of the county judge, all claims and demands of creditors against the estate of the decedent shall be forever barred unless such claims and demands are duly sworn to and filed in the office of the county judge within six months of the first publication of such notice.

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945; (2), §1, ch. 63-146.

735.11 Rights and remedies of those affected by order of administration unnecessary.—

(1) Any creditor or claimant against the estate of a decedent may by bill in chancery, filed at any time within three years from the death of the decedent, or within six months of the first publication of the notice of entry of the order of administration unnecessary, if same shall have been duly published and proof of publication filed, impress a trust upon all property of the decedent (exclusive of property exempt under the constitution and statutes of Florida and exclusive of the widow's exemption) remaining in the possession of the heirs, legatees, devisees and surviving spouse; require such parties to account for the value of all such property alienated, consumed, spent or donated by them, and have deficiency decrees to the extent of the undischarged liability of such parties, together with legal interest from the date of the filing of suit, and costs.

(2) Such suit or suits may be brought by one or more claimants or creditors; other claimants or creditors may intervene and share ratably in the recovery, and any one directly or indirectly affected by the order of administration unnecessary may also intervene in the proceeding or himself institute suit for his own protection. Any one or more of the petitioners who procured the order of administration unnecessary may be made party defendant. Any such defendant may implead other heirs, legatees or devisees for contribution or exoneration. A receiver may be appointed as a matter of course. It shall be no objection that the bill or other pleading is multifarious. Such suits may be brought only in the county in which the order of administration shall have been entered. If more than one suit is brought, such suits shall be consolidated.

(3) Any heir, legatee or devisee of the decedent who was lawfully entitled to share in the estate but who was excluded by the order of administration unnecessary may enforce his rights against those who procured such order in the manner hereinabove prescribed for creditors and claimants; or he may intervene in the suit of a creditor for the enforcement of his rights, subject, however, to the superior rights of creditors.

(4) In all such cases plaintiffs shall be awarded reasonable attorneys' fees as an element of costs.

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945; (1) a. by §6, ch. 61-394.

735.12 Will subsequently discovered.—If, after the entry of an order of administration unnecessary on an intestate estate, a will of the decedent is discovered, proceedings may be had in accordance with §732.33. But in such cases, those who have procured the entry of the order of administration unnecessary shall be accountable, jointly and severally, not only for the property of the decedent remaining in their hands but also for the proceeds of that which they have alienated and for the value of that which they have consumed, spent or donated.

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945.

735.13 County judge's fees.—The county judge shall receive a fee of seven dollars and fifty cents for all proceedings to and including the entry of an order of administration unnecessary, and fifty cents for each notice given by registered mail, and such fees as are allowed in probate proceedings for any other subsequent services.

History.—§15, ch. 22847, 1945
cf.—§1.01 Defines registered mail to include certified mail with return receipt requested.

735.14 Joinder of heirs, etc., in small estates.—That whenever any heir, devisee, legatee, widow or surviving spouse is authorized or required under this chapter, to join in any agreement or petition and any such person shall have died or shall have become incompetent or shall be a minor or shall have conveyed or transferred all of his or her interest in the property of the estate, then the heirs, devisees, legatees and surviving spouse, if any, and the executor or administrator, if any, of the estate of any such deceased person or the guardian of any such incompetent or minor or the grantee or transferee of any such person, as the case may be, shall be authorized to join in such agreement or petition in lieu of any such heir, devisee, legatee, widow or surviving spouse.

History.—§1, ch. 23872, 1947.

735.15 Income tax refunds in certain cases.—

(1) In any case where the United States treasury department determines there exists an overpayment of federal income tax and the person in whose favor the overpayment is determined is dead at the time such overpayment of tax is to be refunded, and irrespective of whether the deceased had filed a joint and several or separate income tax return, the amount of such overpayment, if not in excess of five hundred dollars, may be refunded as follows:

(a) Directly to the surviving spouse on his or her sworn application; or,

(b) If there be no surviving spouse, to such one of decedent's children as is designated in a sworn application purporting to be executed by all of the decedent's children over the age of fourteen years; provided that in either event such application shows to the knowledge of the applicant or applicants that the decedent was not indebted, or that provision has been made for the payment of his or her debts, or that the entire estate is exempt from the claims of creditors under the constitution and statutes of the state, and further shows that no administration of the estate, including the obtaining of an order of no administration necessary, has been initiated and that none is planned.

(2) If a refund is made to the surviving spouse or designated child pursuant to such application, such refund shall operate as a complete acquittal and discharge to the United States from liability from any suit, claim or demand of whatsoever nature by any heir, distributee, creditor of the decedent, or other person; provided, however, that nothing contained herein shall be construed as establishing the ownership or rights of any person in the refund so distributed.

History.—§1, ch. 65-162.

Such mortgage, when so executed by such authority, shall be effective in law to bind the real estate described therein as effectually as the same was bound by the mortgage or lien which is discharged and paid off by such loan, with the same rights, equities and priorities as existed in favor of the debts and liens so discharged.

Provided, however, if in the jurisdiction where the will of the nonresident was probated no petition is required as a prerequisite to the probate of a will, upon proof by affidavit or certificate of the judge of said court that no such petition is required in such jurisdiction, a duly authenticated copy of any such will, when accompanied by a duly authenticated copy of the order admitting it to probate, may be admitted to record, as herein provided, without being accompanied by duly authenticated copy of petition for probate, and the order of court admitting such will to record in Florida shall recite that in the state of original probate no petition was required.

(2) The said duly authenticated copies of will, codicil and order admitting to probate, may be admitted to record by the county judge upon the petition of any person. If the court finds that the will and any codicils thereto conform to the laws of this state as to form and manner of execution and that the said copies are duly authenticated, he shall, by short order, admit the same to record.

(3) All orders heretofore made for the record of such wills and codicils and all proceedings had under this section unaccompanied by an authenticated copy of the petition for probate are hereby validated and such wills and codicils shall be as valid and effectual to pass title to the real property therein described or referred to as if said wills and codicils had been accompanied by an authenticated copy of the petition for probate.

(4) When so admitted to record, such will and any codicils thereto, and all such as may have heretofore been recorded in the office of the county judge, whether admitted by order of the county judge or not, shall be as valid and effectual to pass title to real property, and any right, title or interest therein, as if such will had been duly proved and admitted to probate in the proper court in this state.

(5) The record of such copy, or a duly certified transcript thereof shall be presumptive evidence of the authority of any person authorized by such will, or any codicil thereto, to convey or otherwise dispose of any such real property or any right, title or interest therein.

History.—§1, ch. 22884, 1945; am. §1, ch. 24341, 1947.

736.07 Effect of chapter 22783, acts 1945.—Laws passed at the regular session of the legislature of 1945 shall not be repealed or affected by chapter 22783, acts of 1945 (revision of chapters 731, 732, 733, 734 and 736) but shall have full effect as if passed after the enactment of said chapter.

History.—§6, ch. 22783, 1945.

736.17 Bequests and devises to trustee.—

(1) An otherwise valid bequest or devise may be made to the trustee of a trust which is evidenced by a written instrument in existence at the time of the making of the will or by a written instrument subscribed concurrently with the making of the will, provided that such written instrument is identified in the will.

(2) Such devise or bequest shall not be invalid for any or all of the following reasons:

(a) Because the trust is amendable or revocable or both by any person whomsoever; or

(b) Because the trust has been amended or revoked in part after execution of the will or codicil thereto; or

(c) Because the trust instrument or any amendment thereto was not executed in the manner required for wills; or

(d) Because the possible expectancy of receiving benefits as named beneficiary of a life insurance policy deposited, or to be deposited with the trustee is the only trust res, and even though the testator or other person has reserved any or all rights of ownership in such insurance contracts, including the right to change the beneficiary.

(3) Such devise or bequest shall operate to dispose of property under the terms of the instrument which created the trust as theretofore or thereafter amended.

(4) An entire revocation of the trust by an instrument in writing prior to the testator's death shall invalidate the devise or bequest.

(5) Unless the will provides otherwise, the property so devised or bequeathed shall not be deemed held under a testamentary trust of the testator and thus shall not be subject to the terms of chapter 737, Florida trust accounting law, but shall become a part of the principal of the trust to which it is devised or bequeathed.

(6) This section shall not be construed as repealing or amendatory of, but as cumulative to, all laws touching upon the subject matter hereof and now in force and effect.

(7) This act shall take effect immediately upon the date the same becomes law and shall be applicable to wills executed before and after said date by persons who are living on or after said date.

History.—§1, ch. 59-57; §§2, 3, ch. 61-427.

Note.—This section was inadvertently repealed by §14, ch. 69-88, which enacted the uniform anatomical gift act. It will be reenacted by a subsequent reviser's bill.

736.20 Short title.—Sections 736.22, 736.24-736.28, and 736.30 may be cited as the uniform anatomical gift act.

History.—§1, ch. 69-88.

736.21 Legislative declaration.—Because of the rapid medical progress in the fields of tissue and organ preservation, the transplantation of tissue, and tissue culture, and because it is in the public interest to aid the development of this field of medicine, it is the policy and purpose of the Legislature of Florida in enacting this act to encourage and aid the development of reconstructive medicine and surgery and the development of medical research by facilitating premortem and postmortem authorizations for donations of tissue and organs. It is the purpose of this act to regulate only the gift of a body or parts of a body to be made after the death of a donor.

History.—§2, ch. 69-88.

(5) "Part" includes organs, tissues, eyes, bones, arteries, blood, other fluids, and other portions of the human body, and "part" includes "parts."

(6) "Person" means an individual, corporation, government or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, estate, trust, partnership or association, or any other legal entity.

(7) "Physician" or "surgeon" means a physician or surgeon licensed to practice under chapter 458 or chapter 459 or similar laws of any state. "Surgeon" will include dental or oral surgeon.

(8) "State" includes any state, district, commonwealth, territory, insular possession, and any other area subject to the legislative authority of the United States.

History.—§3, ch. 69-88.

736.23 Persons who may execute an anatomical gift.—

(1) Any individual of sound mind and eighteen years of age or more may give all or part of his body for any purpose specified in §736.21, the gift to take effect upon death.

(2) Any of the following persons, in order of priority stated, and in the absence of actual notice of contrary indications by the decedent, or actual notice of opposition by a member of the same or a prior class, may give all or any part of the decedent's body for any purposes specified in §736.21:

(a) The spouse;

(b) An adult son or daughter;

(c) Either parent;

(d) An adult brother or sister; or

(e) A guardian of the person of the decedent at the time of his death;

provided, however, no gift shall be made by the spouse if any adult son or daughter shall object thereto.

(3) If the donee has actual notice of contrary indications by the decedent or objection of a son or daughter or that a gift by a member of a class is opposed by a member of the same or a prior class, the donee shall not accept the gift.

(4) The persons authorized by subsection (2) may make the gift after death or immediately before death.

(5) A gift of all or part of a body authorizes any examination necessary to assure medical acceptability of the gift for the purposes intended.

(6) The rights of the donee created by the gift are paramount to the rights of others except as provided by §736.27.

History.—§4, ch. 69-88.

736.24 Persons who may become donees; purposes for which anatomical gifts may be made.—The following persons may become donees of gifts of bodies or parts thereof for the purposes stated:

(1) Any hospital, surgeon, or physician, for medical or dental education, research, advancement of medical or dental science, therapy, or transplantation; or

(2) Any accredited medical or dental school, college, or university for education, research, advancement of medical or dental science, or therapy; or

(3) Any bank or storage facility, for medical or dental education, research, advancement of medical or dental science, therapy, or transplantation; or

(4) Any specified individual for therapy or transplantation needed by him.

History.—§5, ch. 69-88.

736.25 Manner of executing anatomical gifts.—

(1) A gift of all or part of the body under §736.23(1) may be made by will. The gift becomes effective upon the death of the testator without waiting for probate. If the will is not probated, or if it is declared invalid for testamentary purposes, the gift, to the extent that it has been acted upon in good faith, is nevertheless valid and effective.

(2) A gift of all or part of the body under §736.23(1) may also be made by document other than a will. The gift becomes effective upon the death of the donor. The document, which may be a card designed to be carried on the person, must be signed by the donor and need not be witnessed. If the donor cannot sign, the document may be signed for him at his direction and in his presence and in the presence of two witnesses who must sign the document in his presence. Delivery of the document of gift during the donor's lifetime is not necessary to make the gift valid.

(3) The gift may be made to a specified donee or without specifying a donee. If the latter, the gift may be accepted by the attending physician as donee upon or following death. If the gift is made to a specified donee who is not available at the time and place of death, the attending physician, upon or following death, in the absence of any expressed indication that the donor desired otherwise, may accept the gift as donee. The physician who becomes a donee under this subsection shall not participate in the procedures for removing or transplanting a part.

(4) Notwithstanding §736.28(2), the donor may designate in his will, card or other document of gift the surgeon or physician to carry out the appropriate procedures. In the absence of a designation, or, if the designee is not available, the donee or other person authorized to accept the gift may employ or authorize any surgeon or physician for the purpose.

(5) Any gift by a person designated in §736.23(2) shall be made by a document signed by him, or made by his telegraphic, recorded telephonic or other recorded message.

History.—§6, ch. 69-88.

736.26 Delivery of document of gift.—If the gift is made by the donor to a specified donee, the will, card, or other document, or an executed copy thereof, may be delivered to the donee to expedite the appropriate procedures immediately after death, but delivery is not necessary to the validity of the gift. The will, card, or other document, or an executed copy thereof, may be deposited in any hospital, bank or storage facility, or registry office that accepts them for safekeeping or for facilitation of procedures after death. On request of any interested party upon or after the donor's death, the person in possession shall produce the document for examination.

History.—§7, ch. 69-88.

736.27 Amendment or revocation of the gift.—

(1) If the will, card, or other document, or executed copy thereof, has been delivered to a specified donee, the donor may amend or revoke the gift by:

(a) The execution and delivery to the donee of a signed statement; or

(b) An oral statement made in the presence of two persons and communicated to the donee; or

(c) A statement during a terminal illness or injury addressed to an attending physician and communicated to the donee; or

(d) A signed card or document found on his person or in his effects.

(2) Any document of gift which has not been delivered to the donee may be revoked by the donor in the manner set out in subsection (1) or by destruction, cancellation, or mutilation of the document and all executed copies thereof.

(3) Any gift made by a will may also be amended or revoked in the manner provided for amendment or revocation of wills or as provided in subsection (1).

History.—§8, ch. 69-88.

736.28 Rights and duties at death.—

(1) The donee may accept or reject the gift. If the donee accepts a gift of the entire body, or a part of the body to be used for scientific purposes other than as a transplant, he may, subject to the terms of the gift, authorize embalming and the use of the body in funeral services. If the gift is of a part of the body, the donee, upon the death of the donor and prior to or after embalming, shall cause the part to be removed without unnecessary mutilation. After removal of the part, custody of the remainder of the body vests in the surviving spouse, next of kin, or other persons under obligation to dispose of the body.

(2) The time of death shall be determined by a physician who attends the donor at his death, or, if none, the physician who certifies the death. This physician shall not participate in the procedures for removing or transplanting a part.

(3) A person who acts in good faith and without negligence in accord with the terms of this act or under the anatomical gift laws of another state or a foreign country is not liable for damages in any civil action or subject to prosecution in any criminal proceeding for his act.

(4) The provisions of this act are subject to the laws of this state prescribing powers and duties with respect to autopsies.

History.—§9, ch. 69-88.

736.29 Eye banks; registration of need.—

(1) Any state, county, district, or other public hospital may purchase and provide the necessary facilities and equipment to establish and maintain an eye bank for restoration of sight purposes.

*(2) The bureau of blind services of the division of vocational rehabilitation of the department of health and rehabilitative services may have prepared, printed, and thereafter distributed:

(a) A form document of gift for a gift of the eyes;

(b) An eye bank register, consisting of the names of persons who have executed documents for the gift of their eyes; and

(c) Wallet cards reciting such document of gift.

History.—§10, ch. 69-88; §§19, 35, ch. 69-106.

Note.—The editors have reworded paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) to make them consistent with the preceding sections. As enacted, the wording referred to sections repealed by §14, ch. 69-88.

736.30 Uniformity of interpretation.—This act shall be so construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

History.—§11, ch. 69-88.

737.01 Definitions.—In this chapter, where the context requires or permits, the words "person," "trustee" and "beneficiary" and pronouns related thereto shall include both the singular and plural and individuals and corporations. The word "trustee" shall mean any person or corporation designated in a will to perform trust functions and also shall include a temporary or successor trustee. The word "executor" shall include administrator cum testamento annexo. The word "trust" shall include trust estate and trust fund. The word "beneficiary" shall mean any person or corporation having any interest, vested or contingent, in the trust fund, including the guardian or other representative of any beneficiary. The words "supervisory proceeding" shall mean the proceeding in the circuit court required by this chapter. The words "incompetent beneficiary" shall include a minor, a person legally adjudged incompetent, an unknown person and an unborn person.

History.—§1, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.02 Testamentary trustees to establish qualifications.—

(1) Every person named as trustee under a will admitted to original probate in Florida shall, before he is entitled to receive any part of the property devised or bequeathed to him as such trustee, apply by petition to the circuit court of the county in which the decedent was domiciled, or in which the trustee is domiciled or has his principal place of business, to establish his qualifications as trustee and to submit the administration of the trust to the supervision of the court; provided, however, that if the trustee is a nonresident individual or a corporation organized under the laws of some other jurisdiction and having its principal place of business in some other state or country and where it appears from the will that the testator intended the trust to be administered in and subject to the laws of the jurisdiction in which the individual trustee resides or the corporate trustee has its principal place of business, such individuals or corporate trustee shall be exempt from the provisions of this chapter and the county judge shall authorize distribution of any property devised or bequeathed to the trustee without requiring such individual or corporate trustee to establish his qualifications hereunder.

(2) The court costs, costs of premium of the surety bond of the trustee and the initial fee of legal counsel incurred in first establishing the qualifications of the first trustees hereunder shall be paid as administration expenses by the executor of the estate of the decedent whose will created the trust.

History.—§2, ch. 26656, 1951.
cf.—§734.22 Final settlement and discharge.

737.03 Requisites of petition.—The petition shall conform substantially to the following requirements. It shall be entitled "In re: Trust under Will of _____, deceased," and shall contain:

(1) the name and address of the trustee and a statement showing his qualifications as trustee;

(2) the name of the decedent, the date of his death, the date upon which his will was admitted to probate, the court admitting the will to probate, a copy of the will, and the status of the administration of the decedent's estate;

(3) an inventory and itemized statement of the value of the trust, insofar as this information is available;

(4) the name, address and status of each beneficiary and a description of their respective interests in the trust; and

(5) a prayer for a decree determining that the trustee is qualified to act, fixing the amount of his bond, if any, assuming judicial supervision of the trust and a prayer for instructions as to any other matters presented by the petition.

History.—§3, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.04 When petition to be filed.—The petition shall be filed and the qualifications of the trustee duly established before the trustee shall be authorized to receive any of the trust funds or assets. If the trustee fails to file the petition within sixty days after notification by the executor that he is ready to make distribution of the trust, a similar petition may be filed by any beneficiary or by the executor of the will.

History.—§4, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.05 Respondents.—The executor of the will shall be made a respondent to the petition unless such executor is also a petitioning trustee, and each beneficiary of the trust shall also be made a respondent to the petition. If the petition is not filed by the trustee, he shall be made a respondent. Each respondent shall be served with process as in suits in equity; provided, however, that any respondent may, by answer signed, waive service of process upon himself. Unknown and unborn beneficiaries need not in express terms be made parties respondent to the proceedings; but in any event such beneficiaries, whether named as parties or not, shall be deemed parties to the proceedings; represented, as the case may be, in the manner provided by §§737.06 and 737.07, but the testator may waive notice to any or all of the beneficiaries, or he may limit the notice to certain of the beneficiaries, or to direct beneficiaries, and in such case notice need be given only to those beneficiaries required to be served, but such beneficiaries, if sui juris, may waive such notice in writing.

History.—§5, ch. 26656, 1951; §1, ch. 29924, 1955.

737.06 Representation of incompetent beneficiary.—The guardian of the property of any incompetent beneficiary shall represent such incompetent beneficiary in the supervisory proceedings. Any incompetent beneficiary for whose property no guardian has qualified, including any unknown or unborn beneficiary, may be represented by a competent living member of the class to which said beneficiary belongs or would belong or by a guardian ad litem as the court shall determine, except in such cases as come within the purview of §737.07. A guardian ad litem may appear and plead without service of process upon him. If the trustee is serving also as guardian of the property of an incompetent beneficiary, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent such incompetent beneficiary.

History.—§6, ch. 26656, 1951; §2, ch. 29924, 1955.

737.07 Representation in case of remainder to a class.—Where an interest in the trust has been limited in any contingency to the persons who shall compose a class upon the happening of a future event, it shall be sufficient to make parties to the supervisory proceeding the persons in being who would constitute the class if such event had happened immediately before the commencement of the supervisory proceeding, and all decrees entered therein shall be conclusive on all present and future members of the class. Where an interest in the trust has been limited to a person who is a party to the supervisory proceeding, and the same interest has been further limited upon the happening of a future event to persons who are or may be the distributees, heirs, issue or other kindred of such party, it shall not be necessary to make such distributees, heirs, issue or other kindred parties to the supervisory proceeding, and all decrees entered therein shall be conclusive upon them.

History.—§7, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.08 Who may qualify as trustees.—Generally, any person sui juris or any corporation authorized under the laws of Florida to receive testamentary bequests in trust may qualify as such trustee; but no person who has been convicted of a felony or who, from sickness, intemperance or want of understanding, is incompetent to discharge the duties of a trustee, shall be permitted to qualify.

History.—§8, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.09 Resident agent.—

(1) Before any person may qualify as trustee hereunder, he shall file in the supervisory proceeding the name and address of an agent residing in the county in which the proceeding is brought, with the consent in writing of such resident agent, the service of process upon whom shall bind such person in his representative capacity and personally; provided, however, that any liability sought to be imposed in any such action must have accrued in the administration of the trust, and provided further that service of process upon such resident agent may be made only when the trustee, whether a resident or nonresident of Florida, is not amenable to service of process within the state. Inability to effect personal service on the trustee may be evidenced by return of the sheriff.

(2) This section does not apply to corporations authorized to exercise trust functions in Florida or to trustees exempt from the provisions of this chapter under §737.02.

History.—§9, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.10 Hearing and decree.—If, at the hearing on the petition, the trustee is found qualified to act, the court shall determine the amount of his bond, if any, and the time within which it must be filed. Upon qualification of the trustee and giving of bond as required, the court shall enter a decree declaring the trustee qualified to act and the court shall thereupon assume supervisory jurisdiction of the trust. The decree may also contain any other appropriate provisions concerning the administration of the trust. If the trustee fails to qualify, the court shall appoint some other suitable person who upon qualifying shall be appointed to serve as trustee. No oath of the trustees shall be required as evidence of acceptance of the trust or the undertaking of faithful performance thereof.

History.—§10, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.11 Bond of trustee.—When any person interested in the trust estate files with the circuit court having jurisdiction of such trust estate a petition, from which petition and the evidence adduced thereon it is made to appear to the court that there is reasonable ground to apprehend that the trustee is mismanaging, wasting or diverting, or will mismanage, waste or divert the assets of said trust estate from their proper administration, the court shall require such trustee to give a bond with sufficient security conditioned as the law directs; and this bond may be required although the will may exempt said trustee from giving the bond. The trustee shall have such notice as the court may prescribe, and the right to appear and defend the proceedings. No bond shall be required of any corporation qualified to exercise trust powers in Florida, and whenever a corporate trustee is a cotrustee with one or more individuals and such corporate trustee certifies to the court that it has the custody of all of such assets, no bond shall be required of such individual, cotrustee or trustees.

History.—§11, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.12 Annual accounts, authority to appoint examiners and auditors.—

(1) Every trustee shall file an annual account within ninety days after the expiration of the immediately preceding full calendar or fiscal year of the administration of the trust; providing, however, that where the value of the trust property or the volume of transactions of the trust is small, the court may, in its discretion, authorize the trustee to file periodic accounts covering two or more years each. Each annual or other periodic account shall contain an inventory of the trust fund at the end of the accounting period, a statement of the trustee's principal and income, receipts and disbursements during the accounting period, whether in cash or other property, and any other information which the trustee may desire to submit. All disbursements and distributions shown upon the account shall be supported by receipts or vouchers showing the purpose therefor whenever the court or any beneficiary shall so request. The trustee may withdraw such receipts or vouchers from the court files upon order of the court and whenever all of the beneficiaries are sui juris and shall file in such action their several consents in writing waiving the filing of an accounting, the trustee shall then be relieved of filing such accounting unless required by the court, until one or more of the beneficiaries shall file a withdrawal in writing of such consent and waiver, or files a request in writing for an accounting. This shall not prevent any trustee from filing an accounting at any time.

(2) The court may examine or audit the accounts, or may appoint an examiner or auditor to examine and audit such accounts and report thereon to the court.

(3) The cost of the audit or examination shall be paid out of the trust estate or as the decree of the court shall otherwise direct.

History.—§12, ch. 26656, 1951; §3, ch. 29924, 1955; §1, ch. 59-376.

737.13 Notice of filing annual accounts.—The trustee need not, but may, at his option, give notice of the filing of an annual account, but the notice, if given, shall state that it is an application for the approval of all annual accounts then on file not previously approved. Such notice may be by registered mail with return receipt, by personal service, or by delivery made by any person within or without the state, or by such other method as the court may authorize; but service on an attorney of record shall not be sufficient, nor shall the entry of a decree pro confesso against any beneficiary on the original petition constitute notice to such beneficiary under this section.

History.—§13, ch. 26656, 1951.
cf.—§1.01 Defines registered mail to include certified mail with return receipt requested.

737.14 Objections to annual accounts.—Objections to any unapproved annual account may be filed by any beneficiary at any time. If notice of filing an annual account is given, objections to any unproved account must be filed within sixty days after the notice is given or mailed; if notice of filing such account is waived, objections must be filed within sixty days after the filing of the account. Objections shall be tried and determined by the court upon the application of any party in interest, including the trustee, after due notice to all other parties.

History.—§14, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.15 Order on trustee's account.—If notice of the filing of an annual account has been given or waived, the court may, after the time for filing objections has expired, or at the hearing on any objections, enter an appropriate order on such account and on all unapproved annual accounts previously filed.

History.—§15, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.16 Final account.—Prior to the final distribution of the trust, the trustee shall file a final account in the same form as an annual account, and give notice thereof to all beneficiaries as prescribed in §737.13. Objections to a final account shall be filed and determined as prescribed for annual accounts. If the court finds that the trustee has properly administered the trust, an order shall be entered approving the final account and all unapproved annual accounts and directing distribution; and upon filing of proper receipts showing distribution as directed, an order shall be entered finally discharging the trustee and the sureties on his bond, which order shall be conclusive, subject only to the right of appeal.

History.—§16, ch. 26656, 1951.
cf.—§1.01 Defines registered mail to include certified mail with return receipt requested.

737.17 Declaratory relief.—The supervisory proceeding is hereby declared to be a continuing proceeding and service or waiver of process based upon the original petition shall be sufficient to give the court jurisdiction of all parties thereto for the purpose of granting any declaratory or other relief authorized by chapter 86. Application for any such relief may be made by the trustee or any beneficiary and due notice of the application shall be given. Such notice may be given as provided in §737.13, but the applicant at his option may make service of process thereon as in suits in equity.

History.—§17, ch. 26656, 1951.
cf.—§1.01 Defines registered mail to include certified mail with return receipt requested.

737.18 Removal of trustee.—The trustee may be removed for good cause on the petition of any beneficiary or by the court on its own motion after due notice to the trustee and all other beneficiaries. The court may appoint a temporary trustee to administer the trust estate until final determination of removal proceedings.

History.—§18, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.19 Vacancy in trust.—In the event of a vacancy in the office of trustee from any cause, the court shall appoint a successor trustee, upon whose qualification the supervisory proceeding shall proceed as if the trustee so appointed had been named in the will. Upon the resignation, removal or death of a trustee, the court may enter all necessary orders with reference to the filing of accounts by the resigned or removed trustee or by the personal representative of the deceased trustee and the delivery of the trust to the successor trustee. Such orders may be enforced by commitment or contempt proceedings.

History.—§19, ch. 26656, 1951.

737.20 Powers of court.—All provisions of the Florida guardianship law with reference to devastavit, production of assets, and proceedings on the bond of a removed guardian, shall, where relevant, apply to trustees in the supervisory proceedings.

History.—§20, ch. 26656, 1951.

(b) The county judge may appoint a guardian of the person or of the property, or of both, of an incompetent. The county judge may hear and determine complaints of wards against their guardians, require of guardians security or additional security when necessary, displace them, and make such orders as to the said county judge may seem equitable and right relating to the estates of wards. The county judge may require of guardians, from time to time, inventories of their wards' estates, and accounts of receipts and disbursements, and shall make such orders as to him shall seem just. He may enforce his orders in a summary way by attachment for contempt and by imprisonment.

If the parents are given joint custody, then both shall continue as natural guardians. In the event a divorce is granted, and neither the father nor the mother is given custody of the children, then neither can act as natural guardian of the children. The mother of an illegitimate child is the natural guardian of such child.

(2) The mother and father jointly, or the survivor, may, without appointment, authority or bond, collect, receive, manage and dispose of any personal property inherited by, or otherwise accruing to the benefit of the child during infancy, when the amount involved in any instance does not exceed one thousand dollars; provided, however, that in case of a personal injury or other tort claim the power and authority of a natural guardian may be exercised only when the amount of any settlement or compromise of such claim does not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars.

(3) All receipts, bills of sale, releases or other instruments executed by a natural guardian under the powers provided for in subsection (2) of this section shall be binding upon the ward.

744.15 Foreign guardians.—

(1) Foreign guardians who produce orders appointing them guardians, curators, conservators or committees, duly obtained in any state, territory or country and certified or exemplified according to law, shall be authorized to maintain actions in the several courts in this state under the same rules and regulations as other plaintiffs.

(2) Guardians appointed in any state, territory or country may be sued in this state with reference to property, real or personal, in this state, and may defend any suit, action or proceeding in any court of this state.

(3) Debtors who have received no written demand for payment from a guardian appointed in this state within three months after the appointment of a guardian, curator, conservator or committee in any state, territory or country other than this state, and whose property in Florida is subject to a mortgage or other lien securing such debt held by such foreign guardian, curator, conservator or committee, may make payment to the foreign guardian, curator, conservator or committee after the expiration of three months from the date of his appointment. A proper satisfaction of such mortgage or lien executed and acknowledged by the foreign guardian, curator, conservator or committee after said three months has expired, in the manner and form entitling the same to record in this state, with a duly certified or exemplified copy of the letters or other evidence of authority of such foreign guardian, curator, conservator or committee attached thereto, may be recorded in the public records of this state in like manner as other satisfactions; and when so recorded shall constitute an effective discharge of any such mortgage or lien, irrespective of whether the debtor making payment had received such written demand before paying the same.

(4) All persons indebted to a ward or having possession of personal property, either tangible or intangible, belonging to a ward, who have received no written demand for payment of such indebtedness or the delivery of such property from a guardian appointed in this state, are authorized to make payment of such indebtedness or to deliver such personal property to the foreign guardian, curator, conservator or committee after the expiration of three months from the date of his appointment.

(2) Such guardian shall also designate a resident agent as required by §744.46.

(3) Such guardian shall file with such petition, certified or exemplified copies of his letters of guardianship and of his bond or other security. Evidence satisfactory to said county judge shall be produced showing that the foreign bond or other security is sufficient to guarantee the faithful management of the ward's property in this state. The county judge in his discretion may require a new guardian's bond in this state in such amount as he deems necessary, to be executed in accordance with the laws of this state and to be conditioned for the proper management and application of the property of the ward coming into the custody of said guardian in this state. The county judge may make such order or orders with reference to said petition as he deems appropriate.

(4) This section shall apply to and be operative in all cases in which the guardian of a nonresident ward is appointed by a court, or is made such guardian by virtue of the laws of another state, territory or country. In cases in which, by virtue of the laws of such state, territory or country, a person becomes the guardian of an estate of an incompetent domiciled therein, without an appointment by a court, or is not required to give bond or other security as such guardian, then the production of copies of letters of guardianship and bond or other security, and the evidence referred to in this section, shall not be required; provided, that satisfactory proof to the county judge is produced that such guardianship exists under the laws of such state, territory or country; and provided, further, that bond may be required by the county judge in such amount as he may deem necessary.

Any deed, lease or mortgage executed by a foreign guardian of a nonresident ward under the provisions of this law, when authorized or confirmed by the county judge, shall be effective to convey, lease or mortgage the right, title and interest of the ward in the property involved.

(2) If it is alleged that the incompetency is due to mental or physical incapacity, the petition shall be accompanied by a duly certified or exemplified copy of the adjudication of unsoundness of mind or of physical incapacity from the qualified authorities in the state, territory or country where such incompetent is domiciled, and shall state whether said incompetent is in the custody of any person or institution, and if so, shall give the name and post-office address of the custodian. Said adjudication shall constitute prima facie proof of such incompetency.

(3) If the question as to the mental or physical incapacity of a nonresident is presented while he is temporarily residing in Florida, and if he is not under an adjudication of incompetency made in some other state, territory or country, the procedure for the appointment of a resident guardian of his property shall be the same as though he were a citizen of Florida.

744.27 Who may be appointed guardian of a resident incompetent.—

(1) RESIDENT.—

(a) Any resident of Florida who is sui juris is qualified to act as guardian of the person or of the property, or of both, of an incompetent; provided, however, that no person who has been convicted of a felony, or who, from sickness, intemperance or want of understanding, is incompetent to discharge the duties of guardian, shall be appointed to act as guardian. A married woman may act as guardian in Florida without the consent of her husband. The guardian of the person and the guardian of the property may be the same person, or they may be different persons.

(b) No county judge shall act as guardian after this law becomes effective, except in cases in which he has qualified prior to his election as county judge and in cases in which he is related to his ward by blood, marriage or adoption. When any county judge is a guardian, he shall make his settlement as such guardian with a judge of the circuit court of the county where he resides in the same manner as other guardians are required by this law to make their settlements with the county judge.

(2) NONRESIDENT.—Any nonresident who is sui juris may be appointed guardian of the person but not of the property of a resident incompetent; provided, such nonresident complies with the laws of Florida relating to guardianship of incompetents.

(3) TRUST COMPANY OR NATIONAL BANK.—A trust company incorporated under the laws of Florida or a national banking association authorized and qualified to exercise fiduciary powers in Florida may act as guardian of the property of any incompetent.

History.—§1, ch. 1554, 1866; RS 2111; GS 2632; RGS 3994; CGL 5916; am. §1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.28 Pleadings.—The pleadings before the county judge in guardianship matters shall be in writing and shall be signed by the pleader or his attorney. All technical forms of pleading are abolished in guardianship matters. No defect of form shall impair substantial rights; and no defect in the statement of jurisdictional facts actually existing shall render void any proceedings. The pleadings and procedure with reference thereto shall be as nearly as possible the same as the pleadings and procedure under the probate law, as specified in §732.08.

History.—§1, ch. 9285, 1923; CGL 5933; am. §1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.29 Notice and service.—

(1) Whenever a notice or citation is required to be published in a newspaper by any of the provisions of this law, unless otherwise specified by law, publication shall be once a week for four weeks in a newspaper authorized to publish legal notices in the county of the guardianship, four publications being sufficient. If no newspaper is published in the county of the guardianship, then such notice may be published as aforesaid in a newspaper authorized to publish legal notices in any adjoining county. In lieu of publication in a newspaper in an adjoining county, such notice or citation may be by posting at not fewer than three public places in the county of the guardianship, one of which shall be at the courthouse, such other places to be prescribed by the county judge.

(2) Proof of publication or of posting shall be by affidavit, and such proof shall be filed in the office of the county judge.

(3) Whenever notice or citation is required by any of the provisions of this law and the manner and duration of such notice or citation is not specified, such notice or citation may be in such manner and for such length of time before the hearing as the county judge in his discretion may deem proper.

(4) Service may be made within the state in the manner prescribed by law for the service of any summons by any official of this state, or service may be made by any person by delivery of a true copy of a notice or citation to the person to be served. The return of service when made by a person other than an officer shall be by affidavit. Serving of notice or citation may be made outside the state by any official authorized to make service in the state, territory or country where the person to be served resides or can be found, or such service may be made by any person; provided, that if service is made by a person other than an officer, the return shall be made by affidavit. Whenever it is necessary to make service upon an incompetent, the notice or citation shall be served upon such incompetent and also on the person in whose care and custody such incompetent may be.

(5) The return of service in every case shall state the date when the notice or citation was received by the person making the return, the date it was served, the place of service, the name of the person served and the manner of service. Returns shall be amendable so as to speak the truth, and when amended, shall be effective as of the date of the original return.

(6) Service of notice or citation may be waived in writing by any interested person who is sui juris.

(7) If any person upon whom notice or citation is served fails to respond within the time prescribed in the notice or citation or within such time as the county judge, under exceptional circumstances, may allow, then the matter shall proceed ex parte as to such person, and judgment may be entered in accordance with the right and justice of the case.

The petition shall contain statements, to the best of petitioner's knowledge and belief, showing the name, age, residence and post-office address of the alleged incompetent, the nature of his incapacity, the approximate value and description of his property, the residence and post-office address of the petitioner, the names and addresses of the persons most closely related to the incompetent, or averments showing that reasonable search has been made and that such information cannot be ascertained without delay which would adversely affect the incompetent named in the petition, or his property.

History.—§2, ch. 4034, 1891; GS 2634; RGS 3996; CGL 5918; am. §1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.31 Petition for appointment of guardian for a person mentally or physically incompetent.—No guardian of the person or of the property, or of both, of a person alleged to be mentally or physically incompetent can be appointed until after such person has been adjudicated to be incompetent in separate proceedings instituted for that purpose in accordance with §§394.20 and 394.22, relating to the adjudication of incompetency. After such adjudication, a petition may be filed for the appointment of a guardian of either the person or of the property, or of both, of such person, and the general guardianship laws of this state shall apply to such petition and to all subsequent proceedings thereon. Any guardian appointed as a result of the filing of such petition shall be subject to the general guardianship laws of this state.

History.—§3, ch. 4034, 1891; GS 2635; RGS 3997; CGL 5919; §1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.315 Appointment of guardian of estate of physically incapacitated person without adjudication of incompetency.—The county judge having proper venue shall, without adjudication of incompetency, appoint a guardian of the estate of a resident or nonresident person who, though mentally competent, is incapable of the care, custody and management of his estate by reason of age or physical infirmity and who shall have voluntarily petitioned the county judge's court for such an appointment. Any guardian appointed under this section shall have the same duties and responsibilities as are provided by law as to guardians of property generally.

History.—§1, ch. 67-12.

744.32 Subpoenas and depositions.—The county judge, upon application of any party, shall issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum for the appearance of witnesses and the production of documents at any hearing. Depositions of witnesses in guardianship proceedings shall be taken, as nearly as possible, in the same manner as depositions are authorized to be taken under the probate law of Florida.

(1) When the petition alleges that the nature of the incapacity is minority, if the petitioner is not the parent and if the parents of the minor are living, reasonable notice of the hearing shall be given to them. When a parent applies for appointment as guardian of his minor child, no notice is necessary unless the other parent is living and refuses to consent to such appointment.

(2) When the petition for the appointment of a guardian alleges that the person named therein as respondent has been adjudicated to be physically or mentally incompetent, or both, the county judge shall hear the petition without notice if it is filed at the conclusion of the hearing in which such person was so adjudicated. If it is filed on a later date, then reasonable notice of the hearing shall be served on the respondent and also on one or more members of his family or relatives, if any can be found within the jurisdiction of the county judge, or if no such person can be found within the jurisdiction, then notice shall be given by such publication or otherwise as the county judge may think proper.

744.34 Order of appointment.—

(1) Upon the day fixed for the hearing on the petition for the appointment of a guardian, the county judge shall hear the evidence on the question of the competency of the person who is the subject of the hearing. An order of the county judge previously adjudicating a person to be incompetent shall constitute conclusive proof of such incompetency until reversed or set aside or until the competency of such person has been restored as provided by law. The county judge may hear testimony on the question as to who is entitled to preference in the appointment as guardian. Any person interested may intervene in such proceedings with leave of the county judge. If the county judge, on such hearing, is satisfied that the person who is the subject of the hearing is incompetent, he shall appoint a guardian of the person or of the property, or of both, as he may deem necessary. The order shall state the specific nature of the incapacity found to be existing. The order of appointment shall also specify the amount of the bond to be given by the guardian.

(2) The testimony adduced at the hearing may be transcribed and filed at the request of any of the parties or upon the direction of the county judge.

History.—§3, ch. 6943, 1915; RGS 4000; CGL 5922; am. §1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.35 Preference in appointment.—In the appointment of a guardian the county judge shall give due consideration to the appointment of one of the next of kin of said incompetent who is a fit and proper person and qualified to act, and likewise to any person designated as guardian in any will in which the incompetent is a beneficiary. The county judge may in his discretion appoint any person who is qualified to act as guardian, whether related to the ward or not.

(1) Every person appointed a guardian of the property of a ward in Florida, before entering on his duties as guardian, shall be required by the county judge to execute and file in his office a bond with two or more sufficient sureties to be approved by the county judge, or an authorized surety company as surety. Such bond shall be payable to the governor of the state and his successors in office, conditioned to perform faithfully all duties as such guardian according to law. In form the bond must be joint and several.

(2) All bonds required in guardianship proceedings, whether original bonds or additional bonds, shall be filed in the office of the county judge having jurisdiction and shall be recorded by him.

(3) The requirements of this section shall not be applicable to banks and trust companies authorized by law to act as guardians.

(4) Signatures of principals and sureties other than surety companies on a guardian's bond shall be witnessed by two competent witnesses, but the failure to have such a signature witnessed shall not affect the validity of the bond.

(5) When the sureties on a bond are persons (and not a surety company), the guardian shall be required to file with his annual returns proof satisfactory to the county judge that the sureties are alive and solvent.

(6) The penal sum of a guardian's bond shall be fixed by the county judge in his discretion, and it must be in an amount not less than the full amount of the cash on hand and on deposit belonging to the ward, plus the value of the notes and bonds owned by the ward which are payable to bearer.

(7) The county judge, for good cause shown, may reduce the amount of bond of any guardian.

744.41 Insufficiency of bond.—If any person files with the county judge having jurisdiction a petition alleging that the sureties on any bond given by a guardian are insolvent or insufficient or that the bond is insufficient in amount and substantiates the same with evidence satisfactory to the county judge, after notice to the guardian and his sureties and hearing on the petition, said judge may enter an order requiring additional sureties or an additional bond, as the circumstances require. If the county judge has such knowledge, though no petition has been filed, he may, after notice, enter such order sua sponte as the circumstances require.

History.—§10, ch. 6943, 1915; RGS 4007; CGL 5929; am. §1, ch. 22750, 1945.

The county judge shall deliver to any person, on request and payment of his legal fees for the same, a true copy of any bond given by any guardian, and such copy duly certified, with the seal of the court affixed, shall be prima facie proof of the bond.

whose name, residence and post-office address shall likewise be recorded.

(2) A resident guardian removing his residence from the state shall also comply with the foregoing requirements.

(3) The aforesaid designation, in whatever form it may be, shall be taken to constitute the consent of the person so designating that service of any process upon the designated agent or attorney shall be sufficient to bind the person so designating in any suit or action against such person either in his representative capacity or personally; provided, only, that such personal action must have accrued in the administration of the guardianship estate.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.47 Costs.—In all guardianship proceedings costs may be awarded in the sound judicial discretion of the county judge, and shall ordinarily abide the result of each particular proceeding unless, under the special circumstances of a particular case, it would be unjust that the losing party pay the costs. When the costs are to be paid out of the estate of the ward, the county judge may, in his discretion, direct from what portion of the estate such costs shall be paid.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.481 Periodic examination of ward.—Unless, after due notice and hearing upon petition of the guardian, the court having jurisdiction specifically enters an order declaring that it is not necessary, the guardian of the person of a person adjudged physically or mentally incompetent shall cause such person to be examined annually by a licensed physician as to the mental and physical condition of the ward except in those cases in which the ward is maintained in an institution operated by the state.

(2) The length of stay of the ward at such places;

(3) A resume of professional medical treatment, if any was given to the ward during the preceding year;

(4) A brief resume of the guardian's activity and visits to check on the progress and condition of the ward;

(5) An evaluation by the guardian as to whether or not the ward is competent to such an extent that he should be restored; and

(6) A written report and evaluation from the examining physician including, among other things, recommendations for treatment and prognosis and indications for restoration.

History.—§1, ch. 67-155.

744.483 Expense of examinations; insufficient assets.—The guardian shall be authorized to expend up to fifty dollars from the ward's estate, without prior court approval, for the professional examinations called for in §744.481. In each instance where the cost of the examination shall or may exceed fifty dollars, the guardian shall procure prior court authorization for such expenditures. If the ward's estate shall have insufficient assets to pay the expense of the examinations, the guardian shall report such insufficiency and procure an order of court permitting him to apply for financial relief from state or county funds, as the case may be, and as provided by laws respecting the care of indigent persons.

History.—§1, ch. 67-155.

744.484 Relief to be granted.—If it shall appear from the guardian's report and the medical report filed as required in §744.482 that the condition of the ward requires further examination; that any change of care, maintenance or treatment is needed; that the ward is qualified for restoration; or that his condition or maintenance requires the performance or doing of any other thing for the best interest of ward, it shall be the duty of the guardian to petition the court for such needed matters, including restoration, and the court shall make such order, with or without notice to interested persons, in its discretion, as may be just and proper in the circumstances.

History.—§1, ch. 67-155.

744.49 Powers of guardian of the person.—The guardian of the person shall be entitled to the custody of the ward. Such guardian shall not have power to bind the ward or his property or to represent him in any legal proceedings pertaining to his property.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.50 Payments to guardian of the person.—If the guardian of the person of the ward is other than the guardian of the property, either guardian may apply by petition to the county judge, upon reasonable notice to the other, for an order directing the guardian of the property to pay to the guardian of the person an amount weekly, monthly, quarterly, semiannually, annually, or as the county judge may direct, to be expended in the support, care, maintenance and education of the ward, which amount may be increased or decreased from time to time in the discretion of the county judge. The decision upon such petition shall be in the discretion of the county judge. If such order is made, the receipt of the guardian of the person for payments made in pursuance thereof shall be a sufficient acquittance to the guardian of the property, and he shall not be bound to see to the application thereof.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.51 Duties of guardian of the property.—It is the duty of the guardian of the property of the ward to protect and preserve it, to invest it prudently, to apply it as provided in §744.64, to account for it faithfully, to perform all other duties required of him by law, and at the termination of the guardianship, to deliver the assets of the ward to the person or persons lawfully entitled thereto.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.52 Guardian to take possession of all property.—The guardian of the property shall take possession of all of the ward's property, real and personal, and of the rents, income, issues and profits therefrom, whether accruing before or after his appointment, and of the proceeds arising from the sale, lease or mortgage of the same or any part thereof. All such property and the rents, income, issues and profits therefrom shall be assets in the hands of the guardian for the payment of debts, taxes, claims, charges and expenses of the guardianship, and for the care, support, maintenance and education of the ward or his dependents, as may be authorized or approved by the county judge.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.53 Duty to file inventory.—Within sixty days after his appointment the guardian of the property shall file with the county judge a complete verified inventory of the real and personal estate which has come to his knowledge and of any cause of action on which his ward has a right to sue or on which he has the right to sue in behalf of his ward. Said inventory shall be recorded in the office of the county judge having jurisdiction.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.54 Appointment and qualification of appraisers.—Whenever the county judge deems it necessary, he may appoint two persons of discretion not related to the ward or to the guardian and not interested in the property, authorizing them to appraise the property of the ward that may come to their knowledge. The form of the warrant of appraisal shall be substantially that prescribed for the appointment of appraisers of the estates of decedents. On the death or on the neglect or refusal to act of an appraiser, another may be appointed by the county judge to act in his place. Before making the appraisal, the appraisers shall make and subscribe an oath or affirmation before any person authorized to administer oaths, substantially in the following form:

"We solemnly swear or affirm that without partiality we will truly appraise the estate of the ward (giving his name) so far as it may come to our knowledge, and that in all respects we will perform our duties as appraisers to the best of our ability."

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.55 Form and return of appraisal.—The appraisers shall list every article or parcel of property owned by the ward with its value in dollars and cents. When the appraisal is completed, but in any event within sixty days from the date of the warrant, unless the time is extended by the county judge, the appraisers shall certify it under their hands and seals and shall deliver it to the county judge.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.56 Compensation of appraisers.—Each appraiser shall be entitled to receive for his services reasonable compensation to be fixed by the county judge after reasonable notice to the guardian of the property. Such compensation shall be paid by the guardian of the property from the estate of the ward.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.57 When appraisal unnecessary.—If the whole estate of the ward consists of money, no appraisal thereof shall be necessary. The county judge may dispense with the appraisal of any estate whenever he deems an appraisal unnecessary.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.58 Inventory or appraisal as evidence.—An inventory or appraisal may be used as evidence in any suit, by or against the guardian of the property, but it shall not be conclusive, for or against him, as to the real value of the estate, or that it was sold bona fide for more or less than the appraised amount.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.59 Subsequently discovered or acquired property.—If the guardian learns of any property which is not included in the previous inventories or appraisals, such property shall be inventoried in like manner within sixty days after the discovery or acquisition thereof. Upon any subsequent appraisals the same or different persons may be appointed as appraisers.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.60 Compromise and settlement.—Whenever it is proposed to compromise or settle any claim by or against the guardian or the ward, whether arising as a result of personal injury or otherwise, and whether arising before or after appointment of a guardian, the county judge, on sworn petition by the guardian setting forth the facts and circumstances of such claim, question or dispute and the proposed compromise or settlement, and on such evidence, if any, as may be introduced, if satisfied that such compromise or settlement will be for the best interest of the ward, may enter an order authorizing the settlement or compromise to be made, which order shall operate to relieve the guardian from any further responsibility or liability in connection with such claim or dispute when such compromise or settlement has been made in accordance with said order. The order authorizing the compromise may also determine whether an additional bond is required, and if it is required, shall fix the amount thereof, but no such bond shall be required when the guardian is a bank or trust company. In making any compromise or settlement under court order, as provided in this section, the guardian is authorized and empowered to execute any release or waiver which may be necessary to effect the compromise or settlement. The execution of such instrument shall operate as a full and complete release to the person, firm or corporation making the settlement; provided, however, that compromise and settlement of a tort claim, not exceeding one hundred dollars, and other claims not exceeding five hundred dollars, may be had under this section or under §744.13.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.601 Plaintiffs; actions by infants, idiots and lunatics.—In all actions now pending or hereafter brought by or on behalf of an infant or other incompetent to recover for injury to the person or damage to personal property, no settlement on behalf of the infant or incompetent is effective unless it is approved by the court. In the event of settlement or judgment or decree in favor of the infant or other incompetent, when the amount of the settlement, judgment or decree does not exceed the sum or value of two thousand dollars, exclusive of costs, the court may authorize either or both of the parents or a guardian, if one has been appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction, to collect the amount of the settlement, judgment or decree and to execute a release or satisfaction therefor without bond; provided, that a guardian appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction may collect and satisfy any decree or judgment in favor of an infant without securing authorization of the court as herein provided.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945; §39, ch. 67-254.
Note.—See former §45.02(2).

744.61 Suits by and against guardian or ward.—All suits, actions or proceedings to establish the validity and amount of claims against the estate of the ward shall be brought jointly against the guardian and the ward, and in any such suit no guardian ad litem need be appointed. Suits to enforce or to declare rights of the ward shall be brought jointly in the name of the guardian and the ward. If suit is brought by the guardian against the ward or vice versa or if the interest of the guardian is adverse to that of his ward, then a guardian ad litem shall be appointed by the court to represent the ward in that particular litigation. Judgments in favor of the ward shall, upon termination of guardianship, become the property of the ward without the necessity for any assignment by the guardian or receipt by the ward. The guardian may receive payment and satisfy any judgment in behalf of the ward without any joinder of the ward.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.62 Suspension of statutes of limitations in favor of guardian.—If a person entitled to bring an action is declared incompetent before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof and the cause of the action survives, the action may be commenced by the guardian after such expiration and within twelve months from the date of the order appointing him.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.63 Suspension of statutes of limitations in favor of claimants.—If a person against whom a cause of action exists is declared incompetent before the expiration of the time limited for commencement thereof and the cause of action survives, the action may be commenced against the guardian after such expiration and within twelve months from the date of the order appointing him.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.64 Application of income of property of ward.—

(1) The county judge may authorize the guardian of the property to apply the income of the ward's property, first to his care, support, education and maintenance, and then any surplus, as far as the county judge deems necessary, for the care, support, education, maintenance, cost of final illness and cost of funeral and burial or cremation of the spouse or dependents, if any, of such ward. If the income is not sufficient for such purposes, the county judge may authorize the expenditure of such portion of the principal as he deems necessary, from time to time, for such purposes.

(2) The word "dependents," as used in subsection (1), in addition to including those persons who are legal dependents of a ward under existing law, may, in the discretion of the county judge, based upon the showing of an existing need therefor and an ability of the estate of the ward to pay for, provide, or furnish same without unreasonably jeopardizing the care, support and maintenance of the ward, be deemed to include such person or persons who, in the opinion of the county judge, such ward is morally or equitably obligated to aid, assist, maintain or care for, including, but not limited to, such persons as the indigent husband of the ward.

(3) If the ward is a minor and his parents are able to care for him and to support, maintain and educate him, the guardian of the property of such minor shall not be required so to use his ward's property unless directed or authorized to do so by the county judge.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945; §1, ch. 67-82.

744.65 Petition for support of ward's dependents.—Any person lawfully entitled to support from the ward may apply by petition, personally, or if he is incompetent, by his guardian, to the county judge appointing the guardian for an order directing the guardian of the ward's property to contribute to the support of the applicant from the property of the ward in his possession or from the income therefrom. The county judge may enter an order for the suitable support and education of the applicant out of the ward's property or the income thereof. Such order may be appealed by the guardian or the applicant, or by the ward if the guardianship is terminated before the expiration of the time for taking an appeal. The granting or denial of such order for support, or the expiration of time for appeal therefrom, shall not preclude a further application for increase, decrease, modification or termination of such allowance for support by either the applicant or the guardian. Such order for support shall be valid as to payments made in pursuance thereto, but no valid payments can be made thereunder after the termination of the guardianship. The receipt of the applicant shall be a sufficient acquittance to the guardian for any payments made in pursuance of such order for support. If the property of the ward is derived in whole or in part from payments of compensation, adjusted compensation, pension, insurance or other benefits made directly to the guardian by the veterans' administration, notice of the application for support shall be given by the applicant to the chief attorney for the division of veterans' affairs of the department of community affairs in this state at least ten days before the hearing on the application.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945; §§18, 35, ch. 69-106.

744.66 Continuance of business.—In all cases where it is necessary, in the opinion of the county judge, to continue the business of a ward, such business may be continued by the guardian of the property under the supervision of the county judge, and according to the rules and regulations specified in §733.08 under which a personal representative is allowed to continue the business of a decedent.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.67 Cultivation of lands.—A guardian of the property may cultivate his ward's lands, hire labor, and make contracts for the purpose of such cultivation; provided, that the county judge first authorizes the cultivation of such land.

History.—§1, ch. 22750, 1945.

744.68 Burial expenses of ward.—Upon the death of his ward, the guardian may pay from the ward's estate, subject to the approval of the county judge, reasonable funeral expenses for the ward in an amount not to exceed seven hundred fifty dollars.

History.—§1, ch. 67-391.

745.01 Leases of ward's property.— The guardian may lease all or any of the ward's property, except for exploration and exploitation of oil, gas or mineral rights, upon such terms and for such length of time as the county judge may authorize or confirm. Proceedings in such cases shall be, as nearly as possible, as in cases of applications to sell property of the ward.

History.—§3, ch. 868, 1859; RS 2103; GS 2622; RGS 3984; CGL 5906; am. §2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.011 Application of uniform principal and income law.—

(1) The uniform principal and income law, chapter 690, shall be applicable in the principal and income of the estates of wards of the courts after July 1, 1965.

(2) Whenever the word "trustee" shall appear in chapter 690, the word "guardian" shall be substituted wherever applicable to the administration of the estate of a ward of the court.

History.—§1, ch. 65-205.

745.02 Leases of oil, gas, or mineral rights.—The guardian of the property of the ward may make oil, gas or mineral leases upon the real estate of the ward under the following rules:

(1) The guardian shall file a sworn petition with the county judge appointing him for authority to make any such oil, gas or mineral lease, and the county judge who hears such application shall require proof as to the necessity or advisability of such lease; and if he approves the same, he shall enter an order authorizing the guardian to make such oil, gas or mineral lease. Such order shall set out the consideration for which such land may be leased for oil, gas or mineral purposes, shall give the name of the lessee, and shall contain a copy of said oil, gas or mineral lease authorized to be made. It shall not be necessary to state in said petition, nor in any order entered thereon, nor in any lease executed in pursuance of such order, the exact interest of the ward in the property.

(2) Previous notice thereof shall be given by the guardian for one week prior to the time the county judge shall hear such petition, by publishing the same in some newspaper of general circulation in the county in which leases are to be issued, and in the county where the land is located, one issue of the paper in each county being sufficient. Said notice shall state when and where such petition will be heard. If no such newspaper is published in the county or counties where such notice is required to be given, then said notice shall be posted at the courthouse door and at two other conspicuous places in each such county, as may be specified by the order of the county judge, for seven days next preceding the date of such hearing. No citation or notice, other than that provided in this subsection, shall be necessary to give the court jurisdiction over the subject matter and the parties.

(3) The hearing may be continued by the county judge from time to time, or the petition may be heard at any time after the date specified in the notice, whether formally continued by the court or not.

(4) If such petition is granted, the guardian shall be authorized to make the oil, gas or mineral lease upon the real estate of the ward in accordance with the order of authorization, but such oil, gas or mineral lease shall not be valid until the guardian files a good and sufficient bond with surety in double the amount of the cash bonus that may be paid for such leases, or in the event that no cash bonus is paid, then such sum as may be fixed by the county judge.

(5) Any lease made by a guardian under the authority of this section may provide for the pooling or unitization of the leased land, or any part or parts thereof, and of any mineral or royalty interest therein, with land adjoining or in the vicinity of the leased land, or any mineral or royalty interest therein, so as to form a unit for development and purpose of operation. Operations on any such unitized area shall have the same effect as operations on the leased land. The lease may provide for payment of a proportionate part of the royalties on production from any such unitized area to the guardian in lieu of the royalties provided in the lease as to the area so unitized.

History.—§5, ch. 268, 1859; RS 2104; GS 2623; RGS 3985; CGL 5907; am. §2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.03 Investments by guardian of the property.—

(1) A guardian shall exercise the prudence of an ordinary business man in keeping the funds of his ward invested. In the investment of the funds of his ward, a guardian shall be governed by the provisions of chapter 518, except as hereinafter noted in this section.

(2) The county judge may authorize the purchase of the entire fee simple title to real estate in Florida in which the guardian has no interest, but such purchase can be made only for a home for the ward, or to protect the home of the ward or his interest, or as a home for his dependent family. If the ward is a married person adjudged incompetent and if the home of the ward or of the dependent family of the ward is owned by the ward and spouse as an estate by the entirety and if such home is sold pursuant to the authority of §745.15(3) (a), the county judge may authorize the investment of the proceeds or any portion thereof from such sale toward the purchase of a fee simple title to real estate in Florida for a home for the ward or the dependent family of the ward as an estate by the entirety owned by the ward and spouse. If the guardian is authorized to acquire title to real estate for the ward or dependent family of the ward as an estate by the entirety in accordance with the preceding provisions, the conveyance thereof shall be in the name of the ward and spouse and shall be effective to create an estate by the entirety in the ward and spouse. The purchase of real estate pursuant to this authority shall not be made except upon an order of the county judge after hearing upon a verified petition.

(3) The guardian may, with the approval of the county judge, exercise any option contained in any policy of insurance payable to or insuring to the benefit of the ward.

History.—§3, ch. 2014, 1874; RS 2105; GS 2624; RGS 3986; CGL 5908; §2, ch. 22750, 1945; §1, ch. 67-83. cf.—§518.01 et seq., Investment of fiduciary funds.

745.04 Encumbering property of ward.—

(1) Whenever it appears expedient or necessary and for the best interest of the ward to borrow money upon a promissory note or notes, either unsecured or to be secured by a mortgage, pledge or other lien upon the property of the ward or any part thereof, including crops then planted and growing or thereafter to be planted and grown, the county judge may by order authorize the guardian of the property to borrow such sum as the county judge deems proper. The proceedings in such cases shall be, as nearly as possible, the same as in cases of applications for the sale of the ward's property. In like manner the county judge may authorize the guardian to extend or renew any existing obligation of the ward, or any mortgage, pledge, lien or other security therefor. The signing of promissory notes or the execution of any agreement or other instrument creating a pledge or lien by the guardian as such, pursuant to an order obtained in accordance with the provisions of this section, shall create no personal liability against the guardian so signing or executing.

(2) To secure the payment of any loan made for the benefit of the ward, the guardian may execute a mortgage or other lien on the property of the ward or any part thereof, and the same shall be valid when authorized or confirmed by the county judge. The indebtedness so secured shall be the obligation of the estate of the ward.

(3) If, as an incident to the borrowing of money, the purchase of stock in the lending agency is required, the county judge may authorize such purchase in whatever amount he deems necessary.

History.—§4, ch. 2014, 1874; RS 2106; GS 2625; RGS 3987; CGL 5909; am. §2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.05 Sale.—When the guardian of the property deems it expedient, necessary or for the best interest of the ward for part or all of the property to be sold, he may sell at public or private sale, but no title shall pass until the sale is authorized or confirmed by order of the county judge; provided, however, that the guardian may sell without authorization or confirmation by the county judge any notes or bonds payable to bearer, and any sale so made shall convey all right, title and interest of the ward in the intangible personalty so sold; and provided, further, that inchoate right of dower of the ward shall be conveyed only as provided in §745.15.

History.—§5, ch. 2014, 1874; RS 2107; GS 2626; RGS 3988; CGL 5910; am. §2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.06 Petition for leave to sell.—Application for authorization or confirmation shall be made by the petition of the guardian setting forth with particularity in facts showing the expediency or necessity for such sale, a description of the property sold or proposed to be sold, and except when authorization or confirmation of the sale at current market of stocks, bonds or other securities listed upon an established exchange is applied for, the price and terms of such sale. If the petition seeks authorization for the sale of property at public sale, it shall state the minimum price for which it is desired to sell the property and shall state that, if the sale takes place, it shall be sold to the highest bidder, if any, above such minimum price. Applications for sale may be heard by the county judge ex parte, except as provided in §§745.07 and 745.08. The petition must be sworn to by the guardian, his agent or his attorney.

History.—§6, ch. 2014, 1874; RS 2108; GS 2627; RGS 3989; CGL 5911; §2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.07 Notice of hearing on petition to sell.

—No notice of any petition for the authorization or the confirmation of any sale of perishable personal property or of property rapidly deteriorating shall be required. No notice of any petition for the authorization or the confirmation of any sale of any kind of property shall be required unless the county judge deems it necessary or desirable, and then only such notice shall be given, personally or by publication, as the county judge may direct.

History.—§7, ch. 2014, 1874; RS 2109; GS 2628; RGS 3990; CGL 5912; am. §2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.08 Hearing.—When no notice is required, the county judge may hear and determine petitions for the sale of the ward's property ex parte. When notice is required, such hearing shall be as in other cases. At such hearing the county judge may in his discretion require a new appraisal of the property.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.09 Order of sale.—After the hearing upon a petition to sell property or to confirm the sale of property, the county judge shall make and enter an order thereon, and if the sale is authorized or confirmed, the order shall describe the property; and if the property is authorized to be sold at private sale, the order shall fix the price and the terms of sale. If the sale is to be public, then the order shall state the minimum price for which the property is to be sold and shall specify that the sale shall be made to the highest bidder above such price, if any. The order may also determine whether an additional bond is required, and if it is required, shall fix the amount thereof, but no such bond shall be required when the guardian is a bank or trust company. Such order shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of the proceedings and of the authority of the guardian to make a conveyance or transfer of the property. A certified copy of such order relating to real property may be recorded in the judgment lien record in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in any county wherein such real property or any part thereof is situated. An order of sale may provide for the sale of any of the property described therein, either publicly or privately, in parcels or as a whole.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.10 Notice of sale.—When a guardian of the property has been authorized to sell any of his ward's property at public sale, the guardian shall give such notice as the order requires. No notice of a sale of property to be made at private sale is necessary unless the county judge so orders.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.11 Sale upon terms.—The guardian must sell upon such terms as the order prescribes. If credit is given, it shall not be for more than seventy-five per cent of the purchase price nor for longer than five years, unless the county judge, in his discretion by written order, authorizes a larger per cent of credit. The county judge, in his discretion by written order, may also enlarge the time for payment. The exercise of such discretion shall be evidenced by written order duly recorded. The maturity of credit may extend beyond the duration of the incompetency of the ward.

The deferred purchase price shall be evidenced by the negotiable promissory note of the purchaser payable to the guardian and secured by mortgage or pledge, which shall be a first lien upon the property sold, or by such other security as may be approved by the county judge in any case. If the guardianship terminates before the payment in full of such note, the note and mortgage or other security may be assigned and transferred without recourse to the person entitled thereto. The taking of a mortgage securing a note or the taking of other security shall not defer the final settlement and discharge of the guardian.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §1, ch. 61-184.

745.12 Sale of stocks and bonds.—The county judge may, upon petition of the guardian, make an order authorizing the sale at the current market price of any stocks or bonds which are listed upon an established stock or bond exchange, and such order need not otherwise designate the price at which such sale shall be made.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.121 Stock held in name of personal representative.—Upon entry of an order or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, the guardian or guardians shall have the power to hold any corporate stock, mutual investment trust shares, registered bonds, notes, debentures, or revenue certificates issued by any corporation, government, municipality, or subdivisions or agencies thereof, in the name of the guardian or in the name of one or more of the joint guardians, or in the name of a nominee, with or without disclosing any fiduciary relationship; but for all acts and omissions of the guardian or guardians in whose name such property is held, and of such nominee, relating to such property, all the guardians shall be jointly and severally responsible.

History.—§1, ch. 61-327; §3, ch. 65-106.

745.13 Sale by commissioner.—In any order of sale or at any time before the sale, the county judge, whenever he deems it necessary, may appoint a commissioner to make the sale and to execute the deed consummating it. Any sale made by a commissioner shall be in compliance with the provisions of this law governing sales.

Any sale so made and any deed executed by a commissioner on such an order shall be as valid as though made by the guardian.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.14 Guardian forbidden to purchase.—

No guardian shall ever purchase property of the ward, unless sold at public sale, and then only if the guardian is a spouse, parent, child, brother or sister of the ward and is a cotenant of the ward in the property to be sold.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.15 Conveyance of various property rights; inchoate dower; joinder on behalf of incompetent husband or wife; estates by entirety; determination of values.—

(1) A guardian of the property may, on petition and order and upon such terms as the order directs, execute and deliver a deed, lease or mortgage in the name of the ward, conveying, leasing, mortgaging or releasing any actual or apparent right or interest of the ward in any property, real or personal, and in all cases the value, if any, of the ward's right or interest shall be preserved and protected by the court's order.

(2)(a) All or any portion of the separate estate of an adjudged incompetent wife whose husband has no interest in such property other than the right of joinder with respect to conveyances of his wife's separate estate, and when it is made to appear that there is a need to sell, mortgage or lease such property for the care, support and maintenance of such incompetent wife and if her husband has either deserted her or his whereabouts is then unknown or, without just cause therefor, such husband refuses to join in such sale, mortgage or lease, may be sold, mortgaged or leased by the guardian of the estate of such incompetent wife on proper application to and authorization of the county judge; provided, however, that such order may be entered only after service of citation on such husband in manner as provided by law.

(b) A guardian of the property of an adjudged incompetent wife may, without monetary consideration and with or without court order, join with the husband in the sale, mortgage or lease of any of the husband's property in which the wife has no interest other than her inchoate right to dower, to the same extent and effect as if such joinder were by the wife herself sui juris.

(c) In case an incompetent wife has no estate of value requiring active administration but has only an inchoate right of dower in her husband's property, which property he desires to sell, mortgage or otherwise convey, the court may, on proper petition, enter an order appointing the husband or other qualified person as the wife's property guardian without bond, and the court may in the same order make appropriate findings and may authorize said guardian, as such, to join with the husband without monetary consideration for the purpose of releasing the wife's dower in the husband's property described in the petition and order, and such joinder shall be to the same extent and effect as if by the wife herself sui juris.

(3)(a) A guardian of an adjudged incompetent husband may without consideration and with or without court order join with the wife in the sale, mortgage or lease of any of the wife's separate estate, real or personal, to the same extent and effect as if such joinder were by the husband himself sui juris.

(b) In case an incompetent husband has no estate of value requiring active administration but has only the right of joinder with respect to conveyances of his wife's separate estate, the court may, on proper petition, enter an order appointing the wife or other qualified person as her husband's property guardian without bond, and the court may in the same order make appropriate findings and may authorize said guardian, as such, to join with the wife without monetary consideration for the purpose of effectuating the conveyance of her separate property as described in the petition and order, and such joinder shall be to the same extent and effect as if by the husband himself sui juris.

(4)(a) All interests, whether legal or equitable, in real estate and in personal property and in intangible property in this state, owned by the entirety by any married man or married woman who has been adjudged insane or mentally or physically incompetent and for whom a guardian has been appointed, may be sold and conveyed upon the application of his or her guardian in the same manner as other property of said person adjudged incompetent may be sold and conveyed; provided, however, that the husband and wife, who is not incompetent, shall join in the sale or conveyance of any property sold or conveyed under the authority hereof.

(b) In ordering or approving sale and conveyance of such real, personal or intangible property the court shall provide that one-half of the net proceeds derived therefrom shall go to the guardian of the property of the incompetent and the other one-half of the net proceeds shall go to the husband or wife who is not incompetent.

(c) The guardian of the property of the incompetent shall collect all payments coming due on intangible property, such as notes and mortgages and other like securities, and shall retain one-half of all principal and interest payments so collected and shall pay the other one-half of such collections to the husband or wife who is not incompetent.

(d) The guardian of the property of the incompetent shall collect all payments coming due for rents on real estate held as an estate by the entireties and after paying all charges against said property such as taxes, insurance, up-keep and repairs, shall retain one-half of all the net rents so collected and shall pay the other one-half of such net rents so collected to the husband or wife who is not incompetent.

(5) In determining the value of life estates or remainder interests, the American experience mortality tables may be used.

(6) Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to apply to homesteads under §4, Art. X, of the state constitution.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §1, ch. 23715, 1947; §1, ch. 26917, 1951; §1, ch. 67-81; §19, ch. 69-216.

745.16 Conveyance pursuant to contract of ward.—In all cases where written agreements have been made for the sale and conveyance or transfer of real property in this state, or personal property, and the vendor has been placed under guardianship before making such conveyance or transfer, the guardian or the person claiming the right to such conveyance or transfer may file with the county judge issuing the order of appointment a sworn petition setting forth the facts upon which the claim is predicated and annexing thereto the agreement or a copy thereof. The petitioner shall serve upon the guardian or the claimant, as the case may be, reasonable notice of the hearing. After the hearing upon such petition and the defenses, if any, made thereto, the county judge may make an order directing the guardian to make, execute and deliver the conveyance or transfer of the ward's interest to the person entitled to it, or otherwise as justice may require. Such order, if the conveyance or transfer is directed, shall describe the property to be conveyed or transferred. Such order shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of the proceedings and of the authority of the guardian to make the conveyance or transfer. A certified copy of any such order relating to real property may be recorded in the judgment lien record in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in any county wherein such real property or any part thereof is situated.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.17 Sale of contract to purchase.—If the ward, at the time of the appointment of the guardian, possesses a contract for the purchase of real or personal property, his interest therein may be sold by the guardian in the same manner as if the ward had been the owner in fee simple or absolute owner of such property; provided, the owner of the interest or estate in such property which the ward has contracted to purchase and of the vendor's interest thereto shall execute a release to the guardian and the ward relieving them and the ward's property from liability upon such contract. In lieu of such release the guardian may, upon order of the county judge, take from the purchaser of such contract a bond to be approved by the county judge with sureties in a penal sum double the amount due and to become due under such contract, payable to the guardian, conditioned that the purchaser will make all payments upon such contract and perform all agreements therein contained according to the tenor thereof and indemnify and save harmless the guardian and the ward against all demands, costs, charges and expenses by reason of such contract.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.18 Sale of property subject to contract to purchase.—If the ward, at the time of the appointment of the guardian, is the owner of real or personal property subject to a contract to sell and convey such property, the interest of the ward in such property and such contract may be sold under the order of the county judge in the same manner as guardians may make other sales. No recourse shall be had against the guardian or the ward for the nonpayment or nonperformance by the vendee under any such contract. The consent of the vendee under said contract shall discharge the guardian and the ward from all obligations, duties and liabilities with respect to such contract.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.19 Sale of property subject to mortgage.—The county judge may, upon petition of the guardian and with or without the written consent of the holder of the mortgage, authorize the sale of any property owned by the ward in this state subject to mortgage, whether such mortgage was made by the guardian, the ward or some other person. The written consent of the mortgagee shall discharge the guardian and the ward from liability for the mortgage indebtedness or obligation.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.20 Power of guardian to execute instruments.—The guardian shall have power to execute and deliver in his name as guardian any instrument necessary or proper to carry out and give effect to the orders of the county judge.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.21 Purchasers and lenders protected.—No person purchasing or leasing from, or taking a mortgage, pledge or other lien from, a guardian shall be bound or concerned to see that the money or other things of value paid to such guardian are actually needed or properly applied; nor is such person otherwise bound as to the proprieties or expedencies of the acts of such guardian. In all such transactions the acts of the guardian shall prima facie be valid.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.22 Certain sales validated.—Any sale of real estate heretofore made by any guardian and any deed made pursuant thereto under an order of the circuit court or county judge is made as valid and effectual as if the law had authorized such sale and deed to be made under such order by the guardian conducting the same; provided, such sale was made three years prior to January 1, 1946.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.23 Power of election and of appointment.—The county judge, on his own motion or upon the petition of the guardian or of any person whose property interest might be affected thereby, may enter an order that any election, whether to dissent from a will or to exercise any other choice which the ward might exercise himself if sui juris or competent, shall be exercised or not exercised, or exercised in a particular manner or at a particular time, as the best interest of the ward may require. The county judge, on his own motion or on the petition of the guardian or of any person who is or may become an heir, legatee, devisee or successor in interest of or to the ward, may enter an order that the guardian, acting for the ward, shall do such act or acts or execute such documents as may be necessary or proper, to exercise, consummate or execute any power of appointment or other power which the ward might have lawfully exercised, consummated or executed if sui juris or competent, as the best interest of the ward requires. No order shall be entered under the authority of this section, except upon such notice or citation as the county judge may require, to all persons whose property interest might be affected thereby.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.24 Annual returns.—A guardian, unless otherwise ordered by the county judge, shall make his annual returns on or before April 1 of each year, for the calendar year or fractional calendar year expiring December 31 preceding. If he fails to make such returns before such time, he may in the discretion of the county judge forfeit all commission on such returns so to be made.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §1, ch. 59-322.

745.25 Contents of returns.—

(1) A guardian in his returns shall render a full and correct account of the receipts and disbursements of all his ward's property of which he has control, and he shall include therein a statement of the ward's assets. The guardian shall also file with his returns evidence satisfactory to the county judge that the sureties on his bond, if individuals, are alive and solvent.

(2) Substantiating papers shall not be filed with accountings, but pertinent substantiating papers and records shall be available at a trial of objections to accountings, and all substantiating papers and records shall be preserved by the guardian for three years after his discharge.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §2, ch. 59-322.

745.26 Objections to returns.—

(1) Upon the filing of returns with the county judge by the guardian as provided in this law, any person interested as creditor or otherwise, after the filing of such returns, may file objections in writing thereto or to any item thereof within thirty days after April 1st of each year, specifying the grounds of objection. No item previously approved by order of the county judge upon notice shall be subject to objection.

(2) If any guardian fails to file his annual returns on or before the first day of April in any year, any person interested in the estate may file in the office of the county judge a written demand for service of a copy of the returns, which demand shall contain the post-office address of the person filing it. If any demand is on file at the time the returns are filed, the guardian shall serve a copy of the returns upon the person who filed the demand therefor and shall file proof of service thereof in the office of the county judge. Objections may be filed to the returns at any time within thirty days after the service of a copy thereof.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.27 Hearing of objections.—If objections to the returns are filed, the guardian or the objecting person, after the expiration of the time limited for filing objections and upon reasonable notice to the other, may apply to the county judge for a hearing. After the hearing, the county judge shall enter an order finally sustaining or overruling the objections, and he shall thereupon proceed to enter his order thereon.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §3, ch. 59-322.

745.28 Examination of returns not objected to.—If no objection is filed to any returns within the time limited by law for filing objections, the county judge shall proceed to examine said returns and enter his order approving the same or requiring such proof of the items contained therein as the county judge shall find desirable.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §4, ch. 59-322.

745.29 Order requiring returns; contempt.

—When any guardian fails or neglects to make the annual returns as required by this law, the county judge shall issue an order directing said guardian to make such returns within fifteen days from the service upon him of such order or show cause why he should not be compelled to do so. A copy of such order shall be served upon the guardian or upon his resident agent. If the said guardian fails, neglects or refuses without good cause shown to file his returns within the time specified by said order, the county judge shall forthwith issue a citation directed to said guardian to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for such failure or neglect, and if such guardian fails to show just cause, the county judge may forthwith adjudge said guardian to be in contempt of court, and said person shall stand committed for contempt until he makes the annual returns.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945; §5, ch. 59-322.

745.30 Production of assets.—Upon the petition of any creditor or other interested person or upon his own motion, the county judge may require any guardian to produce satisfactory evidence that the assets of the ward are in his possession or under his control. If he deems it necessary or proper, the county judge may order the guardian to produce such assets for the inspection of such creditor or other interested person, or of said judge.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.31 Devastavit.—

(1) An action suggesting devastavit may be brought against the guardian of the property and his surety, jointly or separately, by any person interested in the ward or his property. When a guardian dies, resigns or is removed, an action suggesting devastavit may be brought also against him or his executor or administrator and against his surety by the remaining or successor guardian.

(2) When an action suggesting devastavit is brought against any guardian, if such guardian cannot show that he has fully administered according to law, he and his sureties shall be personally charged to the extent of assets not duly administered by him.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.32 Expenses and compensation. — A guardian of the property of a ward shall be allowed all necessary expenses and attorney's fees paid in the care, management and settlement of the ward's property. A guardian shall be allowed such compensation as the county judge may deem just and reasonable for his services, including services rendered in the sale of real or personal property, the conduct of litigation on behalf of or against the ward or his property, the carrying on of the ward's business pursuant to orders of the court and for any other services which may be found by the county judge to have been proper and necessary.

History.—§2, ch. 22750, 1945.

745.33 Attorney's fees and expenses.—

(1) An attorney who has been employed by a guardian and who has rendered service to the ward or to the guardian in the ward's behalf, may apply to the county judge by petition for an order making an allowance for attorney's fees. After notice to the guardian, the county judge shall make such order with respect thereto as he shall deem proper.

(2) In annual and final returns the guardian shall be entitled to credit for such reasonable sums as he may have paid to an attorney for expenses and services rendered to the ward or to the guardian in behalf of the ward and to credit for his own reasonable expenses in connection with the guardianship. Objections may be made to the allowance of such items in the manner specified in §745.26, unless such items have been previously allowed by the county judge.

(3) If the guardian is a practicing attorney at law in this state and has rendered legal services in connection with his guardianship duties, he shall be allowed just and reasonable fees therefor in addition to his expenses and compensation provided by law for him as guardian.

The county judge, before making such order, shall be satisfied that the interest of the ward will not be placed in jeopardy by such action; provided, always, that the acceptance of such resignation shall not be construed to exonerate any guardian or his surety from any liability previously incurred.

History.—§1, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(1); §1, ch. 20928, 1941; am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.03 Reasons for removal of guardian.—Any guardian may be removed and the order appointing him revoked for any of the following reasons, and such removal shall be in addition to, and not in lieu of, any other penalties prescribed by law:

- (1) Fraud in obtaining his appointment.
- (2) Failure to discharge his duties.
- (3) Abuse of his powers.

- (5) Habitual drunkenness or continued sickness rendering him incapable of the discharge of his duties.
- (6) Failure to comply with any order of the county judge unless such order has been superseded on appeal.

(7) Failure to return schedules of property sold or accounts of sales of property or to produce and exhibit the ward's assets when so required.

(10) Conviction of a felony.

(11) Appointment of a receiver or liquidator for any corporate guardian.

(12) Failure of a resident guardian who removes from Florida to designate a resident agent with the residence and post-office address of such agent.

746.04 Jurisdiction and proceedings for removal.—Proceedings for removal may be instituted by the county judge on his own motion or by any surety or other interested person. A petition for the removal of a guardian must be sworn to and filed in the office of the county judge having jurisdiction of the guardianship at the time the petition is filed. Reasonable notice shall be given to the guardian. Upon the hearing the county judge may enter such order as he deems proper under the pleadings and the evidence.

History.—§4, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(4); am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.05 Accounting upon removal.—A removed guardian shall file, within twenty days after his removal, unless for good cause shown the time is extended by the county judge, a true, complete and final account of his guardianship in the office of the county judge removing him.

History.—§5, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(5); am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.06 Surrender of assets upon removal.—The successor guardian shall demand of the removed guardian, or his heirs, personal representative or surety all the property of the ward and all books of account, cash, bonds, notes or other securities, documents or other papers concerning the property, together with all sums of money due the ward by him. The removed guardian, or his heirs, personal representative or surety shall turn over to his duly qualified successor all said property upon qualification of his successor and upon demand made as aforesaid.

If sufficient cause is shown for the default, the county judge shall then indicate a reasonable time within which compliance with the law shall be required; and upon failure to comply with this or any subsequent like order, the defaulting removed guardian may be committed by the county judge until said guardian does comply.

History.—§7, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(7); §3, ch. 20928, 1941; am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.09 Order on proceedings for commitment.—If the proceedings for commitment are instituted by the county judge sua sponte, the order so entered addressed to such defaulting removed guardian directing compliance with the law shall be sufficient of itself. If proceedings are instituted by a person other than the county judge, they shall be by written petition filed with the county judge, stating the facts upon which the proceedings are based; the petition shall be sworn to by the petitioner, his agent or his attorney. Upon the filing of such petition under oath, the county judge, after notice to the removed guardian and a hearing on the petition, may issue his order of commitment and proceed in accordance with the provisions of this law.

History.—§7, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(7); §3, ch. 20928, 1941; am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.11 Survival of action upon resignation or removal.—All cases pending before any court by or against a guardian who is removed, or who resigns or dies, shall survive to or against the successor guardian, but no successor guardian shall be liable for any default on the part of any predecessor nor for any amount beyond the value of the property coming into his custody.

History.—§8, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(8); am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.12 Termination of guardianship upon removal of ward's incapacity; exhaustion of assets.—When a ward becomes sui juris or when the property of a ward has been lawfully exhausted, the guardian of the property of such ward shall make final settlement and receive his discharge as provided in this law; provided, however, that before the county judge discharges such guardian, said county judge may require whatever proof of the removal of such incompetency or of the need of the continuance of the guardianship he may deem necessary.

History.—§8, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(8); am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.121 Termination of guardianship on change of domicile of resident ward.—When the domicile of a resident ward has lawfully been changed in accordance with §744.10, and the foreign court having jurisdiction over the ward at his new domicile has appointed a guardian of the property of such ward and said guardian has qualified and posted in such foreign jurisdiction a bond in an amount deemed reasonable by the county judge, the Florida guardian of the property of such ward may thereupon file his accountings and proceed to close the Florida guardianship if, in the opinion of the county judge, the transfer of such guardianship proceedings to the new domicile of the ward is deemed advisable and in the best interest of said ward, and provided further, however, that at the time of the filing of his accounting the Florida guardian shall cause to be published once a week for four consecutive weeks, four publications being sufficient, in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county, or where there is no newspaper of general circulation published in the county, by posting a copy thereof in three different places in said county, one of which shall be at the front door of the courthouse, of the fact that he has filed his accounting and will apply on a day certain, which shall not be less than twenty-eight nor more than sixty days from the date of the first publication of said notice, of his intent to apply for discharge, and therein stating that jurisdiction of said ward will be transferred to the state of foreign jurisdiction. If objection be filed to the termination of the Florida guardianship, the county judge, on the day set forth in said notice, shall proceed to hear said objection, and enter his order either sustaining or overruling said objection. Upon the disposition of any or all objections filed, or, if no objection be filed, final settlement shall be made by the Florida guardian and upon proof, acceptable to the county judge, that the remaining assets in such guardianship have been transferred to and received by the foreign guardian, the Florida guardian may be discharged and the Florida guardianship terminated. Provided further, however, that the entry of such order terminating the Florida guardianship shall not be construed to exonerate the guardian, or his surety, from any liability previously incurred thereto.

History.—§1, ch. 61-393.

746.13 Final returns and application for discharge; hearing.—

(1) When the need for a guardianship terminates, the guardian shall promptly file his final returns and his application to the county judge for discharge. If no objections are filed and if it appears to the county judge that said applicant has made full and complete distribution to his ward and has otherwise faithfully discharged his duties, said county judge may approve the applicant's final returns. If objections are filed, the county judge shall conduct a hearing under the same conditions as provided in this law for a hearing on objections to annual returns.

(2) The guardian applying for discharge is authorized to retain from the funds in his possession a sufficient amount to pay the final costs of administration accruing between the filing of his final returns and the order of discharge.

History.—§8, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(8); am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.14 Order of discharge.—Upon the consideration of the application for discharge and of the objections thereto, if any, and of the evidence, if the county judge is satisfied that the guardian has faithfully and completely discharged his duties and has rendered complete and accurate final returns and has delivered the assets of the ward to the person entitled thereto, the county judge shall enter an order of discharge. Such discharge shall operate as a release from the duties of the guardianship and as a bar to any suit against said guardian or his surety, unless such suit is commenced within one year from the date of the discharge.

History.—§9, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(9); am. §7, ch. 22000, 1943; am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

746.15 Letters of discharge.—Any time after the discharge of a guardian the county judge may issue letters of discharge to the guardian of the person or of the property, or of both, and he shall issue them whenever a request is made by the guardian for such letters, and the costs of the letters of discharge shall be paid by the estate of the ward. Letters of discharge shall not be necessary to the validity of the discharge.

History.—§10, ch. 17976, 1937; CGL 1940 Supp. 5919(10); am. §3, ch. 22750, 1945.

(2) Likewise, if at any time subsequent to the appointment of a conservator it shall appear that the absentee has died and an executor or administrator has been appointed for his estate, the court shall direct the termination of the conservatorship and the transfer of all property of the deceased absentee held thereunder to such executor or administrator.

(3) If the court on such hearing shall find that the petition is well founded, then the court shall appoint a curator of the estate of such person, herein referred to as a ward. Any person interested may intervene in such proceedings with leave of court.

(4) The testimony adduced at the hearing shall be transcribed and filed unless the court shall find it to be unnecessary, and so order.

747.12 Bond of curator.—

747.13 Court to direct allowance for ward.—The court appointing such curator shall have full power over the estate of the ward and allowances to or for the said ward, and may allow and assess against the estate of the ward all reasonable costs incurred in procuring the appointment of said curator and during the curatorship; and shall have full power to enter a decree for the selling, mortgaging, or leasing of the real or personal property of the said ward, after the court shall have made an affirmative finding that a mortgage, sale or lease for such purposes is reasonably necessary or expedient:

(1) For the maintenance and support of the ward or to secure advances for the same; or

(2) To discharge existing liens; or

(3) To protect the ward's estate;

(1) A person who, with intent to deprive or defraud the true owner of his property or of the use and benefit thereof, or to appropriate the same to the use of the taker, or of any other person:

(a) Takes from the possession of the true owner, or of any other person; or obtains from such person possession by color or aid of fraudulent or false representations or pretense, or of any false token or writing; or obtains the signature of any person to a written instrument, the false making whereof would be punishable as forgery; or secretes, withholds, or appropriates to his own use, or that of any person other than the true owner, any money, personal property, goods and chattels, thing in action, evidence of debt, contract, or property, or article of value of any kind; or

(b) Having in his possession, custody or control, as a broker, bailee, servant, attorney, agent, employee, clerk, trustee, or officer of any person, association, or corporation, member of co-partnership, pool or joint adventure, or as a person authorized by agreement, or by competent authority, to hold or take such possession, custody, or control, any money, personal thing or action, goods and chattels, evidence of debt, contract, property, or article of value of any kind, appropriates the same to his own use, or that of any other person other than the true owner or person entitled to the benefit thereof; or

(c) While acting as executor, administrator, committee, guardian, receiver, collector or trustee of any description, appointed by a deed, will, or other instrument, or by an order or judgment of a court or officer, secretes, withholds or otherwise appropriates to his own use, or that of any person other than the true owner, or person entitled thereto, any money, personal property, goods and chattels, thing in action, evidence of debt, contract, property or article of value of any kind, in his possession or custody by virtue of his office, employment or appointment; steals such property, and is guilty of larceny.

(2) If the property stolen is of the value of one hundred dollars or more, or if, as part of a common scheme or design to defraud, property of the aggregate value of two hundred dollars or more is taken in any twelve consecutive month period by an agent, servant, or employee from his principal or employer by a series or combination of any of the acts denounced in this section, the offender shall be deemed guilty of grand larceny and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for a period not exceeding 5 years or in the county jail for a period not exceeding 12 months or by fine not exceeding $1,000.00.

(3) If the value of the property stolen as mentioned in the preceding subsection is less than one hundred dollars, the offender shall be deemed guilty of petit larceny and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding 6 months or by fine not exceeding $300.00.

(4) Hereafter it shall not be a defense to a prosecution for larceny, or for an attempt or for conspiracy to commit the same, or for being accessory thereto, that the purpose for which the owner was induced by color of aid of fraudulent or false representation or pretense, or of any false token or writing, to part with his property or the possession thereof, was illegal, immoral or unworthy.

(5) It shall be sufficient for any indictment, information or warrant returned, filed or issued under this section to charge generally that the defendant at the time and in the county specified, did steal the personal property, thing in action, evidence of debt or contract or article of value out of which the prosecution arose, describing the same in general terms and alleging generally the ownership and value thereof. This section shall not be construed as intending to interfere with the power of the court to require the state to furnish the defendant with a bill of particulars in proper cases and on sufficient showing that cause exists for the same.

Such taking into custody and detention by a peace officer, merchant, or merchant's employee shall not render such police officer, merchant, or merchant's employee criminally or civilly liable for false arrest, false imprisonment, or unlawful detention.

(2) Any peace officer may arrest without warrant any person he has probable cause for believing has committed larceny in retail or wholesale establishments.

(3) A merchant or a merchant's employee who causes such arrest as provided for in subsection (1) hereof of a person for larceny of goods held for sale shall not be criminally or civilly liable for false arrest or false imprisonment where the merchant or merchant's employee has probable cause for believing that the person arrested committed larceny of goods held for sale.

(1) The rightful owner shall file a petition in the court having criminal jurisdiction describing the money or motor vehicle, the time and manner in which the same was taken from the rightful owner, the value thereof if the same is money or motor vehicle, and that the petitioner is the true and lawful owner thereof. Such petition shall be under oath, sworn to by the petitioner or, if the petitioner is a corporation, by a duly authorized officer or agent thereof, or by such person other than the petitioner who shall have actual knowledge of the facts alleged in such petition.

(2) Notice of the filing of such petition and a copy thereof shall be served upon any person charged with the larceny of the money or motor vehicle involved in the same manner and for the same fee as the service of a summons.

(3) If no person has been charged by indictment or information with larceny of the money or motor vehicle involved, or if a person has been so charged and cannot be found within the jurisdiction of the court out of which capias has issued and that fact has been noted on the return of such capias, then the petitioner shall publish in a newspaper of general circulation within the county in which the alleged larceny occurred once a week for two consecutive weeks, two publications being sufficient, notice of the filing of such petition. Such notice shall describe the money or motor vehicle involved and the time and particular place of its taking.

(4) Copies of the mentioned petition shall be furnished the officer having custody of the money or motor vehicle involved and also the prosecuting officer of the court having criminal jurisdiction and such officers shall be notified of any hearings and proceedings had upon such petition.

(5) Within five days after receipt of service of the notice hereinabove provided or within ten days after the last publication of the mentioned notice, any person other than the petitioner claiming title or right of possession to the money or motor vehicle involved shall file his objections to the granting of such petition. Such objections shall be under oath of the person making them and shall set forth facts showing that the petitioner is not the rightful owner or not entitled to possession. If the person interposing objections to the petition desires that the question of ownership or right to possession be resolved by a jury, he shall make and file a demand for a jury trial at the time of filing his objections. If the objector fails to demand a jury trial at such time he shall be deemed to have waived such right.

(6) If objections are filed, as herein provided, the court having criminal jurisdiction may order the pleadings transferred to the court having civil jurisdiction of the cause where the same shall be adjudicated upon the pleadings, or he may defer hearing the matter until the criminal case has been adjudicated.

(7) If no objections are filed within the time herein provided, the court having criminal jurisdiction shall hear the matter and may, if satisfied that the petitioner is the rightful owner of the money or motor vehicle involved, order such money or motor vehicle returned to the petitioner. The court may, in its discretion, require the petitioner to post a bond in such amount as the court shall deem proper, conditioned that the petitioner will return the motor vehicle or the value of the money to the court within such time as shall be fixed by the court in the event it should be subsequently determined in judicial proceedings that the petitioner is not the rightful owner of such money or motor vehicle.

(8) When money or motor vehicle is returned to the rightful owner, as hereinabove provided, the court shall direct the clerk to make a detailed inventory description of such money or motor vehicle. The clerk in compliance with such direction shall make such inventory and description, including photographs of the motor vehicle involved where practicable and certify the same as being a true and correct inventory and description. The certified inventory and description shall then be filed by the clerk among the records of his office.

(9) In any trial involving the larceny of money or motor vehicle which has been returned to the rightful owner, as hereinabove provided, and it shall be necessary therein to adduce testimony concerning such money or motor vehicle, secondary evidence, including the certified inventory and description thereof shall be admissible in the same manner and to the same effect as would the admission of the said money or motor vehicle, had the same not been returned.

(10) The fact that any person charged with the larceny of money or motor vehicle has failed to object to the return of such money or motor vehicle to the alleged rightful owner thereof, or the fact that such money or motor vehicle has been returned to the alleged rightful owner thereof under the provisions of this law, shall not be offered, received or considered as evidence either for or against the defendant in such criminal action.
